Thoughts on the Bicentennial, Conclusion

I know of no way of judging the future but by the past.
Patrick Henry, Statesman of the Revolutionary Period

The celebration of America's Bicentennial Year has given us an opportunity to pause and take a thoughtful look at the past and at the same time attempt to anticipate the direction of our future. And what is the future of this great country, America? What have we learned of our past—what has been rediscovered from our heritage—to assure us of the future of this nation?

In this series of "Thoughts on the Bicentennial" we have concentrated on the extraordinary spiritual heritage given to us by our founding fathers, reaching back in time to the very arrival of the Mayflower. In the search for freedom which led to the American Revolution, we have seen how religious faith, vital in colonial America, not only upheld those who risked their lives for independence, but also guided in the decisions made and the documents written. The founders of the American Republic gave serious thought to the teachings of the Bible. Moral law, justice, charity, brotherhood, equality, individual dignity, human rights—all were integral parts of freedom. The freedoms of today were spelled out within the framework of Christian belief.

America today is a good—and even great—country. In the words of Abraham Lincoln spoken over a century ago, America is still the "last, best hope of earth." The amazing vitality of its people and the remarkable faith of the founding fathers in the future of the country they dared to bring into existence have continued to bring this nation through stress and times of bitter trial. God has, in a unique way, heard the songs of praise and answered the prayers of faith of the American people. We are reminded of what Proverbs 14:34 says: "Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people." And Proverbs 11:11: "The good influence of godly citizens causes a city to prosper, but the moral decay of the wicked drives it downhill."

And so, where are we headed? Will the goodness and greatness of the past and present linger for long, or are the forces of evil—of moral decay—already undermining the structure of this nation we call our own? What of our future?

It rests in the hands of God and in the choices to be made by the American people. "Men must choose to be governed by God," said William Penn, "or they condemn themselves to be ruled by tyrants." In the divine timetable for the universe recorded in the Bible we cannot forget that American figures prominently in the developments which lead to the second coming of Christ. We are a part of that future still to unfold before us.

Meanwhile, each of us, loyally committed to God and Country, may have a part in Whittier's expression of faith—

But be it so or not, I only know
My present duty, and my Lord's command
To occupy till He come.
Where He hath set me in His providence
I choose for one to meet Him face to face.
No faithless servant frightened from his task. . . .

Mission Frontiers

... SUPPORT THEM WITH YOUR 13TH SABBATH OFFERING

by Jane Allen
 Associate Communication Director
 Far Eastern Division

Has the day of frontier evangelism passed? It's a logical question in this day of moon flights, mass communication, and multimillion dollar housing projects, but the fact is that today is still the day for pioneer evangelism.

The advantages of the 20th century make missions more viable than ever. Airplanes, for instance, make it possible to enter thousands of mission frontier areas. But the mere possession of an aircraft or even the ability to pilot one is of no more advantage than a team of oxen and a covered wagon if there is no safe place to land the craft.

Not all unentered territories are accessible by plane or even by boat, jeep, or motorcycle. Reaching such people as the tree dwellers of the Central Celebes, East Indonesia, for instance, takes days of hiking and riding horseback.

Indeed, the day of frontier evangelism is still with us. That's why the Far Eastern Division has selected several pioneer ventures to receive the third quarter Thirteenth Sabbath Offering overflow.

The first project is new jungle airstrips. It's impossible for anyone living in a modern setting with access to today's means of transportation and communication to understand the impact made on an isolated jungle area when an airstrip is built and small planes from "another world" fly in. This is one of the most fascinating features of carrying the gospel to the frontiers of the Far East.

Someone from a primitive tribe may visit an Adventist village, return to his own community, and tell his friends and relatives what he saw. He reports that the people in the Adventist village worship the great God of creation, that they have a school for their children, and that a plane comes out of the sky with medicine for the sick.

"We want Adventists to come to our village too," the people agree.

They are told that the Adventist missionaries cannot come unless the villagers build an airstrip for the plane to land. So they set to work clearing the jungle, digging tree stumps, leveling the ground, and when it's completed, the pilot makes a surface journey for inspection. If the strip meets safety requirements, he lands, and usually within a few weeks a company of believers is established.

in East Java, Indonesia. Although the church had work there at one time, it died out and has been neglected for many years. The Thirteenth Sabbath Offering overflow will help build a church and a pastor's home.

The third project to benefit from this quarter's overflow is a frontier in education, the relocation of East Visayan Academy in the Central Philippines. Built many years ago at the edge of town, this academy is now surrounded by an industrial area which makes the present location unsatisfactory. A portion of the offering overflow will be used to relocate the school on a suitable country site where it can fulfill its proper objectives. This, therefore, becomes another pioneer project, expanding the frontiers of education for a large constituency of Seventh-day Adventist youth in the second-most heavily populated area of the Philippines.

An emergency situation at Mountain View College in the Philippines has also created an urgent need for overflow funds. A burgeoning enrollment has caused a serious housing problem. Bunk beds are stacked three high in every dormitory room, and rooms that should house only four students have eight and nine packed into them. Two or three faculty homes are being used as extension dormitories for the girls, and boys who cannot fit into the boys' dorm are being housed in sheds, and in one case a former chicken coop. The dormitory worship rooms are filled with bunk beds in barrack style. Between three and four hundred students are inadequately housed at the present time.

Mountain View College is the most active soul-winning college in the Far East. In the past two years more than two thousand people joined the Adventist Church as a direct result of evangelistic meetings and Branch Sabbath Schools held by students and faculty. When the school was established there was only one church in the area, but today 93 churches are scattered throughout the villages around the school, and many of these are shepherded by Mountain View College student pastors.

Indeed, the day of frontier evangelism is not past. Reports continually come to division headquarters of new towns, unentered villages, unexpected opportunities, unconverted hearts—each a frontier for the gospel of Jesus.

The second project to benefit from the Thirteenth Sabbath Offering is tagged new work, which includes "planting" new churches—whether in the green jungles of Sarawak, the asphalt jungles of Singapore, or the brown hills of Korea—and opening work among primitive tribes in Indonesia and the Philippines.

"Church planting" is a part of the Far Eastern Division's present evangelistic thrust called Target 80, which calls for establishing more Adventist churches in the Orient. The philosophy behind this program is that more churches influence more people, and more baptisms result.

In particular, two tribes in Indonesia and the Philippines will receive funds to help open new work. They are the tree dwellers of the Central Celebes, and a Manobo tribe in the South Philippines. Work is also going to be re-established on the island of Lombok

“Healthy Birthday, America”

The Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital's Fourth of July parade float featured symbols of religious freedom.

What does it take to make a Fourth of July celebration a success? Lots of people, floats, bands, and something to celebrate—a strong American heritage.

We at Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital saluted a “Healthy Birthday America” celebration by presenting a week-long series of programs dedicated to the health of the community, and portraying the important role that health care has played in the development of the United States.

Traditionally Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital has entered prize-winning floats in the Hinsdale and Downers Grove Fourth of July parades. This year was no exception. It was the 200th birthday of America—a time to celebrate and a time to reminisce.

The celebration began Sunday morning, July 4. The hospital had recently completed its new surgical suites. Special invitations were sent to 150 of the hospital's closest friends. These friends were given a private tour of the surgical suites and the new Hinsdale Family Medicine Center—the hospital's family practice residency.

It was at the luncheon meeting that Mr. Ray Harvey of the Joyce Foundation announced a grant of $75,000 would be made to the hospital for the purpose of capital expansion. (See the next issue of the Lake Union Herald for the complete story.)

The afternoon tour gave those families living in the service area of the hospital an opportunity to come in and view the surgical suites from other than a horizontal position. They were also invited to visit and attend the week-long series of events celebrating the 200th birthday of our nation as well as the opening of our new Family Practice Medicine Center.

Sunday afternoon, July 4, the Hinsdale Hospital Bicentennial float made its debut. The sun burned brightly from an azure blue sky as the glistening float made its way through the streets of the Downers Grove Fourth of July parade.

The next day, Monday, July 5, we participated in the outstanding Bicentennial salute that the village of Hinsdale presented. In this parade the float won the grand prize.

Wednesday evening found the Hinsdale Sanitarium and

Friday night Dick Schaefer from Loma Linda University presented "The Adventist Health Heritage," pointing out the role that Adventists have played in the health care industry today as well as their unique message in providing excellence in health care.

On Sunday morning, July 11, the float was parked on the north lawn of the hospital and served as the backdrop for the dedication ceremonies of the Hinsdale Family Medicine Center. More than two hundred persons attended this dedication ceremony.

Elder Lowell Bock, president of the Lake Union Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, painted a graphic word picture of the historic relationship of Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital to the village of Hinsdale. Dr. William Holden from California, recent past president of the American College of Family Physicians, gave the keynote address. Dr. Holden, born at the Hinsdale Hospital and vitally interested in the practice of family medicine, presented an outstanding talk on the family and medicine in the 1970's.

Following a band concert and the dedication services, tours of the residency center were given by family practice residents. Hundreds crowded through this beautiful new facility which has been remodeled from the old Hinsdale Seventh-day Adventist Church.

The beauty of the stained glass windows is a reminder of the spiritual heritage of the past. The modern, new design of the interior is a monument to the dedication of those who planned and worked for the development of this center, showing that the church portrays a relationship between spiritual health and physical health.

The tradition of Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital again has been fulfilled—a tradition that has brought loving help and inspired encouragement to those in need. The "Healthy Birthday America" salute was more than just another celebration. It was a time of rededication, and a reaffirmation of the goals of the hospital as it strives to serve the needs of the Chicagoland area.

Architect's sketch of the dining area of the new vegetarian restaurant soon to open in Chicago.

VEGETARIAN RESTAURANT AND NATURAL FOOD STORE TO OPEN IN CHICAGO

A new demonstration of healthful living is soon to be opened in the heart of north Chicago. Located at 3339 North Halsted Street and under the direction of a board of area laymen, this new endeavor will feature a natural food store and vegetarian restaurant.

The natural food store has been in operation for several months, but the realization of a restaurant was more difficult. The double store front location had ample room for a restaurant as well, but the major remodeling needed could not be attempted without the services of an architect. The lack of funds available for such services seemed an insurmountable barrier.

Then Peter Vukshich and his wife, Bronca, contacted the Wayout-Inn to inquire about vegetarianism and Adventists. As Frank Hazelwood, director of the already functioning natural food store, visited with them, he shared the dream of a remodeled building to house the store and a vegetarian restaurant. Discovering that Mr. Vukshich was a registered architect, Frank exclaimed, "Oh, we've been praying for you!"

Later that week Vukshich and his wife met with the board of directors. Already interested in vegetarianism and impressed with the need for such a service, Vukshich offered to serve as architect for the project. When he also volunteered to be general contractor for the job and his wife promised to do the interior decorating, it was clear that the Lord had opened the way to begin work on the restaurant.

Believing the project was God's will, the board members turned to Him in prayer as each need became apparent. His blessing was evident as materials, skilled labor, and funds were donated. But the most dramatic providence was provided without a specific request, for no one even thought to pray for anything so marvelous.

In order to provide a large dining room that could also be used for health and Bible education programs, arches were needed in the wall dividing the building. This meant a major expense since steel support beams would be necessary. But as the plaster was sandblasted away to reveal the beautiful natural brick walls, the arches were found to have been built into the original building. Board members and workers still look with awe at the arches the Lord provided in just the right places 60 years before they were needed.

Every aspect of the project has been supervised by professionals. The food service director of Hinsdale Hospital is in charge of selecting the equipment and organizing the kitchen. Cynthia Hadley, a registered dietitian, has left a much higher paying position to direct the restaurant and nutrition education.

The board members originally prayed that a Seventh-day Adventist architect would be located who would donate his skills. When he planned and began supervision of the remodeling, Peter Vukshich was not a member or even willing to take studies. But only nine months after committing themselves to the project, Peter and Bronca committed themselves to the Lord and were baptized, becoming the first fruits of this health evangelism center.

Much has been accomplished and only a few hurdles stand in the way of the projected October opening of the restaurant. Commercial kitchen equipment is expensive. About $20,000 is needed to provide the essentials.

Workmen removing the plaster from the wall dividing the building discovered arches that had been built into the wall in just the right places nearly sixty years earlier.

Perhaps the Lord will lead you to be a part of the final miracle needed to make a vegetarian restaurant ministry in Chicago a reality. Your check should be marked "Restaurant" and made out to the Illinois Conference of Seventh-day Adventists. It may be mailed to Health Services Department, Illinois Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, P. O. Box 89, Brookfield, IL 60513. Members of the Illinois Conference may mail their donations as above, or simply mark a tithe envelope "Restaurant" and turn it in through the local church treasurer for convenience.

CHAPEL WEST IS A GROWING CHURCH

The sixth and newest church in Indianapolis, Chapel West, began as the Westside Company on September 7, 1974, after a series of meetings held in the Ben Davis High School. Church members from the west side met in Fire House 9 on West Ohio Street and voted to form a company. Most of them had been attending other Adventist churches. A few were to be baptized.

Present to guide in the organization of the company were Elder Robert L. Dale, who was then the president of the Indiana Conference; Elder S. D. H. Seltzer, then the pastor of the South Side Church; and Elder Ray Rouse, conference treasurer. Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Hickey, who with the help of Elder Seltzer had been leading the group and had expended much time and effort helping in the previous meetings, were also present.

When cold weather arrived, the company rented the United Methodist Church in West Newton. They were still meeting there on May 17, 1975, when the Chapel West Church was formally organized by the new Indiana Conference president, Elder G. W. Morgan. Elder Seltzer served as the pastor of the new church. With 46 charter members the church has now grown to 71 members with three in the baptismal class. Elder Seltzer has transferred to another state and Elder Robert Chase is the new pastor.

Plans are underway to try, with God's help, to enroll all school-age children in church school. There is also a Pathfinder Club, under the direction of Don Hockersmith. Several members, including the Pathfinder leaders, are working on their Master Guide honors, and have just completed a standard first aid course.

God has greatly blessed Chapel West and we pray for His continued blessing and guidance until Jesus comes.

GREENSBURG COMPANY IS FORMED

On the evening of March 30 a group of Seventh-day Adventists met at the home of Walter Thackery for the organization of a company. Elder William Hawkes, who had held meetings the previous fall, and Elder W. M. Adams Jr. were there to help.

The group asked Albert Hodge to be the leader and Mrs. Hodge was asked to be the treasurer. Mrs. Cox was asked to be the Dorcas leader with Juanita Gordon to assist her. In the coming months the company will continue to organize for further needs.

Mr. Hodge's main job will be to organize the group to help spread the gospel in the Greensburg area, previously a dark county.

We know that the Lord will bless these members, and we hope that there will be many souls added to the group at Greensburg.

NEWS NOTES

• Detroit area churches have joined together again in sponsoring a booth at the State Fair. This year's booth was designed to build interest in the area churches' annual health programs.

• Ola Robinson, pastor of the Jackson Church, will assume the responsibility of the Niles Church effective September 1. He replaces Jeremia Florea, who is moving to the Bad Axe and Bay City churches.

• Benjamin David Schoun, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Schoun of Berrien Springs, was ordained during this summer's Illinois camp meeting. He graduated from Andrews Academy and received his M.Div. from the university. He is currently serving as pastor at Prairie View, Illinois, concentrating on an outreach to students of the Western Illinois University campus.

• Kim Tagert, a recent convert to the church and now a student at Battle Creek Academy, was recently presented with the Camp Fire Girl's highest award, the WoHeLo award. One of the requirements necessary to achieve this honor was to provide 120 hours of volunteer work to the community. She chose to meet this requirement by working in the Coldwater Community Service Center.

J. L. CLEMENTS TO RETIRE

An August 31 retirement was planned by Elder J. L. Clements, left, assistant book department manager of the Review and Herald Publishing Association. Clements is known to most Michigan Adventists because of his service to the conference from 1943 to 1962, 12 of those years served with the Book and Bible House. Although he moved to Washington, he faithfully returned to Michigan to assist in the camp meeting book sales. He is shown here with Doug Anderson, present manager of the Adventist Book Center, as they look over the newly revised encyclopedia for the Adventist Commentary set.

Camp meeting can wear a person out, and this trio found a soft spot near their departmental meeting place to regain their strength.

INFORMATIVE WORKSHOPS HELD DURING MICHIGAN CAMP MEETING

A visitation program in the Grand Ledge area and one on the campgrounds was conducted during this year's camp meeting in Michigan.

church pastors joined in an attempt to visit every person attending camp meeting. They sought reactions to this year's camp meeting, counseled with members who had personal problems, and joined them in private prayer.

The biggest problem for the ministers, who were also caring for a multitude of camp meeting duties, was to find time when the camper was free. Those who took part, however, indicated that it was well worth the effort.

A religious survey was conducted in the Grand Ledge area as part of the New Testament workshop conducted by Elder George Knowles, field coordinator of the "It Is Written" telecast. He was assisted by Elder W. M. Buckman of the conference office.

REVIEW EMPHASIS, September 11-October 9, 1976

Breadmaking, an everyday activity which contributes to happy, healthful lives, was demonstrated by Marvin LaCourt of Battle Creek, with assistance from Pastor Ron Ruskjer and Dr. Wayne Griffith (holding the mirror) as part of the health series workshop.

Volunteers went out in teams contacting local residents, searching for persons interested in Bible study. According to final figures, 503 persons completed the ten-question religious survey. Of this group, 69 percent indicated they believed Jesus was coming again, while about nine percent said they didn't think this would happen. The rest expressed no definite opinion.

Guest speaker for the Sabbath School workshop was Virginia Richards Cason, daughter of Elder H. M. S. Richards, who gave very helpful instruction in all types of Sabbath School work.

More than 30 religions were mentioned in the early training of the individuals surveyed. About 60 percent remained in the church of their childhood. Less than half said they attended church regularly. Monthly church attendance was recorded by 14 percent, while 23 percent said they seldom attended, and nine percent indicated they never attend church.

The New Testament workshop was only one of the numerous special workshops, seminars, and classes held during the 108th annual camp meeting. Camp officials tried to follow closely the instruction from Mrs. White that camp meetings should be "a place where believers can receive an education that will help them to help others." Therefore special meetings to inform and train members were held during the ten-day session.

Among the groups participating were: Christian Record Braille Foundation, Church Musicians Guild, Community Services, Health Services, Literature Evangelism, New Testament Witnessing, Trust Services, Sabbath School Art and Child Evangelism, ASI, Pathfinders, Prison Band Workers, the Shepherdeses, and Communication.

Investment in MISSIONS Pays Large Dividends

FIRST SDA OPTOMETRIST MISSIONARY REPORTS

Dr. Robert Baker, the first optometrist missionary to be called into regular mission service by the General Conference Mission Board, gave a detailed report, including a slide presentation of his work in the Guam SDA Clinic, at the 19th annual meeting of the Association of Seventh-day Adventist Optometrists (ASDAO) held in Las Vegas, Nevada, on June 17 to 20.

His report included slides of the damage done to the clinic and the various buildings on the island of Guam due to the recent typhoon. It also included an account of the demand for optometric services not only on Guam but on the surrounding islands of the U.S. There has been a considerable effort for a number of years in medical and dental services on the island but never before have optometric services been available until Dr. and Mrs. Baker came to the clinic three years ago. Dr. Baker is anxious to recruit another optometrist to fill the need on some of the surrounding islands and augment his services at the SDA clinic.

During the ASDAO meeting considerable discussion took place in regard to establishing a school of optometry in the SDA education system. At the present time a recommendation is before the board of higher education in regard to the establishment of such a school. While this recommendation is pending, the ASDAO voted to purchase seats at the University of Houston in order to make it possible for SDA students to attend a school of optometry.

Any SDA student wishing to gain entrance to a school of optometry who does not have a seat available through his state should contact the president of the ASDAO, Dr. L. Wayne Rimmer, South Pittsburgh, Tennessee, and every effort will be made to assist him in enrolling in the school of optometry as soon as a seat is available.

SOCIAL WORK DEPT. CONDUCTS DAY-CARE PROGRAM FOR MIGRANTS

The social work department of Andrews University is conducting a day-care program this summer for migrant workers' children in Pokagon, Michigan, about ten miles east of the campus. The program is funded by the Department of Social Services, an agency of the State of Michigan.

The program, licensed to care for 72 children, is operating at near capacity. The children range in age from infancy to six years.

Two station wagons pick up the children from various camps in the morning and return them in the afternoon, since most of the migrant workers do not have transportation.

Andrews' food service department provides a small breakfast, a hot lunch, and a snack in the afternoon.

"The purpose of this program is to provide a community service as well as a means for the social work student to gain experience," says Reger Smith, associate professor of social welfare at Andrews.

This youngster enjoys the activities at the day-care center conducted by the AU social work department.

The center has a staff of 21, including three migrant women, seven AU students, and the wives of several students. The child-to-adult ratio is four to one. The program has been going since June and will finish in September.

OC ED CENTER GIVES 47 AWARDS AT JUNE RECEPTION

The fifth annual awards reception of the Center for Occupational Education at Andrews was held June 2.

Awards were presented by Dr. William Davidson, dean of the College of Technology, to 47 persons in the following areas of study: auto mechanics, welding, electrician work, carpentry, clerical work, sign lettering and design, cosmetology, food preparation, plumbing, keypunch-verifier operation, computer operation, horticulture, refrigeration, and air conditioning.

At the awards reception, Stephen W. Young, director of the Occupational Education program, welcomed the group, and a presentation address was made by F. R. Stephan, director of education for the Lake Union Conference.
