Should You Volunteer for Military Service?

*Clark Smith, Director
National Service Organization*

Many church members have expressed interest in joining one of the branches of the U.S. Armed Forces. If you wish to observe the Sabbath and do not wish to train with and use weapons, the Seventh-day Adventist Church strongly counsels you not to join the Armed Forces.

With today's all-volunteer concept in the Armed Forces, Sabbath observance grows more difficult to arrange with each passing year. This is especially true during the initial periods of training with their five-and-a-half-day weekly schedule. This counsel applies to both men and women. Women receive weapons training just as men do.

People who because of their professional training are directly commissioned as either chaplains or medical personnel have the fewest problems, since they have only a brief period of orientation instead of a training program. Those commissioned in other areas may have difficult Sabbath observance problems.

There is a special enlistment for noncombatants in the Army Medical Service that so far has offered a minimum of Sabbath problems and no weapons problems for either men or women. This special enlistment requires several weeks of negotiation with the Army Personnel Center before enlisting. We do not counsel our members to join through this program unless they have made a personal decision that they wish to join the Armed Forces. Information about this program can be obtained from your local conference youth director.

Those who voluntarily enter the Armed Forces at this time and insist on Sabbath observance during the four months to a year of training before their assignment to a unit are usually discharged as unsuitable for military service.

Therefore, military authorities join the church in counseling Seventh-day Adventists who wish to observe their Sabbath free of routine duty or training not to voluntarily enter the U.S. Armed Forces.

There is no draft for military service today and thus no need to register for selective service.

Were the early Seventh-day Adventists, as their name hinted, meticulous observers of the Sabbath? Did they really practice what they taught?

To answer these questions, in part at least, we turn to the diarists. A half-dozen diarists about 1880 indicate that attendance at the Sabbath morning service was regular and thoughtful. The afternoon testimony meeting was well attended and effective. The text of the morning discourse or its gist was recorded. Let's open O. A. Johnson's diary for January 1876.

On Sabbath, January 1: "Attended the sermon which was delivered by San[d]s Lane. Also the [social] meeting at 1 P.M. After this was baptism at the river."

January 8: "Eld. Uriah Smith delivered a discourse which was very interesting."

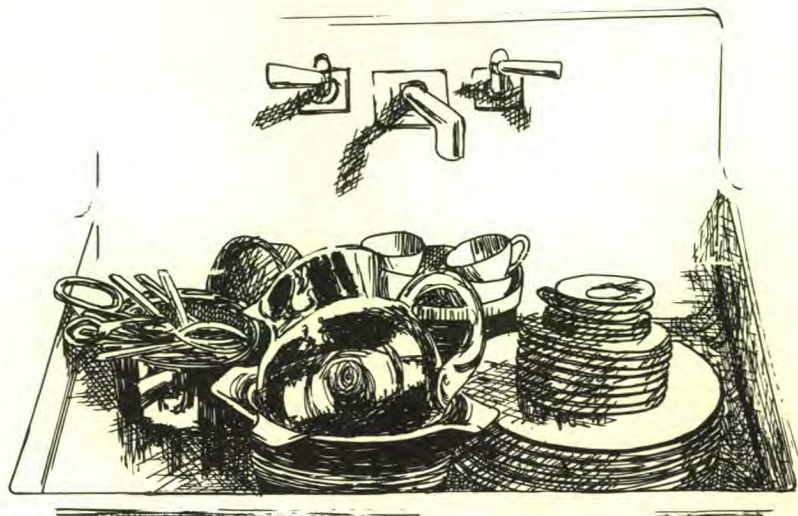

January 15: "I went to S. S. Our school today was very interesting. Eld. U. Smith spoke on the Eastern Question."

January 22: "I am very sorry that my S. S. lesson was poorly learned and . . . poorly recited. Staid to the sermon delivered by U. Smith from Acts 26:28."

January 29: "Had to write our lesson in S. S. as it was a review on the previous three lessons. Staid to the service at 10:30."

Although the diarists often mention Smith's preaching, as the century waned some indicated a preference for livelier talks. Thus Malcome Avery wrote in 1885: "Elder Smith spoke last evening on 'The Nature of Man.' [But I] don't like to hear him talk as well as some—[George I.] Butler for instance."

Yet Smith promoted careful Sabbath observance, for as his biographer, Richard Hammond, points out, there was no washing of dishes right after Sabbath meals at the Smith home. They waited until after sunset. When people inquired about this, Uriah explained they would not wash dirty dishes anymore than they would wash dirty clothes on the Sabbath!

The George W. Amadon family also was influential at headquarters. As foreman at the Review, he stood at times in the press doorway to greet and entertain "angel" strangers unawares. In short, Martha and George were hospitable people in a busy neighborhood. Studying Amadon's diary we discover that their entertaining fell into a pattern—a calculated plan.

Thursday, July 20, 1871: "Bro. White & wife, father, Fletcher, Bro. & Sr. Abbey here to dinner."

Wednesday, September 22, 1873: "Bro. & Sr. Abbey & father Butler here to dinner."

Sabbath, October 25, 1873: "Went to Assyria [Michigan] with Brn. Graves, Lunt, Miller, Lewis & Howland. A good day [for witnessing]."

Thursday, November 20, 1873:

"Bro. [J. N.] Andrews at our house to dinner."

Sabbath, May 12, 1875: "With Lewis, Lunt, Graves, Richard Coggsall, Sawyer to Convis [Michigan]."

Wednesday, October 18, 1876: "Sr. White, Miss Clough, Mrs. Knowles, Marsh & Mr. Wilson at our house to dinner. After dinner Sr. White prayed."

Wednesday, January 7, 1877: Homer Aldrich & wife & children, & Sr. Aldrich & Huldah here to dinner—a pleasant time."

Tuesday, March 14, 1878: "[A. C.] Hutchins here to dinner, with father."

What then can we conclude? We can conclude that both the Smiths and Amadons were very particular in hallowing their Sabbaths. And people knew it.

"A man's wisdom maketh his face to shine, and the hardness of his face is changed." Eccl. 8:1, American Revised Version.

V. O. P. On the Air in the Lake Union

From nearly 60 cities and towns in the Lake Union, the Voice of Prophecy is proclaiming God's Word on the radio.

This means that virtually every person living within the Lake Union can tune into the broadcast.

But have you ever wondered how those 60 cities and towns—and the stations—are selected?

According to Daniel R. Guild, manager of the Voice of Prophecy, a number of factors must be weighed every time a decision is made about continuing, ending or beginning coverage on a particular station. Among them are cost of air time, kilowatt power of the station, size of the potential listening audience, available time slots, listener response and church member support.

"We try to improve coverage with every decision," Guild said, "but there is a limit to how far the dollars will stretch."

The Voice of Prophecy staff feels it must first place the broadcast within reach of everyone. This goal takes priority over all other considerations. As a result, time may be purchased on smaller stations to cover a portion of a state even though this is more expensive in terms of cost per listener than it would be to buy time on more powerful stations in more heavily populated areas.

Once reasonable coverage of an entire geographic area is achieved, the challenge is to increase the listening audience by acquiring time on far-reaching stations or on big stations in major cities.

Guild believes that church leaders and laymen are just beginning to realize fully the role radio can play in reaching people during the final days of earth's history.

"Coupled with personal

You're reaching people . . .

in the Lake Union, and we want you to know what a thrill it is to participate with you in God's work of saving souls!

Your generosity through the years has helped the broadcast reach thousands of people in the Lake Union.

But our work is not yet done. So many people still need to hear. As we lay plans for another year, we turn to you in confidence that your commitment will enable the radio ministry to reach thousands more.

Many of God's people have sacrificed so that His Word could go out. God knows each heart that has been moved, each longing that has found peace through the simple words of faith and hope.

Your gift to the Voice of Prophecy on October 8 will be dedicated to reaching people. Every dollar will go to radio evangelism.

Pray for God to continue to guide this broadcast. Pray for thousands more to find their way to Jesus. Pray for your own family and friends who need God's love, and for your own needs.

And as we pray, let's draw closer to one another. Let's show love to each other. Let's reach out together so we can rejoice forever in the wonderful love of Jesus.

Roland and Jeane Ewald of Grand Ledge, Michigan, talked with Bernice Davidson, Voice of Prophecy Bible school consulting supervisor, during a visit to the V.O.P. headquarters in Glendale, California, last summer.

Enrollment Cards on Wheels

Roland and Jeane Ewald of Grand Ledge, Michigan, were loading their car in preparation for a trip to California last summer.

As Jeane started to put in a bag of fruit, she was interrupted by Roland. "That fruit will probably spoil before we have a chance to eat it, so maybe we'd better not take it," he said.

Jeane replied, "Maybe we'll find someone along the way who is hungry, and we can share it." They had already prayed that they would be a blessing to someone on the trip, so the fruit was packed.

As the Ewalds drove into a gas station in Santa Rosa, New Mexico, they noticed an old car that was obviously having mechanical difficulties. The couple in the car were on their way to Phoenix to look for work. They were out of money, almost out of gas, low on oil and now they were having car trouble. They had tried to find hitchhikers along the way to help pay for gas, but they hadn't seen any for a long time.

The Ewalds felt impressed to help. They located a man to fix the car, fill it with gas and put some oil in it. Then they remembered the fruit. "Surely it must be spoiled by now," they thought. But when they unpacked the fruit they discovered a "manna miracle." It was in near-perfect condition. In addition to sharing their food, they shared Bible promises for the couple to claim, had prayer, and gave them a New Testament and a Voice of Prophecy New Life Bible correspondence card.

The Ewalds have been passing out correspondence cards for many years. It has become a way of life to them; wherever they go, the cards go. Jeane said, "We left on this trip with what we thought were enough cards to take us around the world, but the Lord led us to so many people that we ran out. When we got to Glendale, we stopped by the Voice of Prophecy to get more cards for the trip home."

Last summer, just before camp meeting, the Ewalds met a student at Michigan State University through a Bible card contact. They exchanged names and addresses, and an invitation was extended to the girl to join the Ewalds at a Friday evening youth fest. Each week homes in the Lansing-Grand Ledge area are opened to high school and college-age students to spend time in fellowship together.

The Ewalds use the Voice of Prophecy enrollment cards as an opportunity to encourage people to study their Bibles. They say, "We don't know how many people have sent them in. We just plant the seed and let the Holy Spirit water it. It is so beautiful to see how God leads us to be in the right place to touch lives with His love."

When driving through Glendale, California, they came to a stoplight. In the lane next to them was a teenager on a bicycle. While waiting for the light to change, Mrs. Ewald exchanged greetings with her and then held out a New Life Bible card. "Here," she said, "why don't you take this along with you, and when you have a chance, take a look at it. I think it will be something you'll really like!"

The light changed, the girl pedaled off, and the Ewalds made their turn. Only God knows, but another seed may have been planted.

PEOPLE ARE RESPONDING IN THE LAKE UNION

Response to the Voice of Prophecy broadcast in the Lake Union is encouraging.

Last year 349 people in the Lake Union became Seventh-day Adventists as a result of the influence of the Voice of Prophecy. In addition more than 7,000 people from the Lake Union enrolled in a Voice of Prophecy Bible course.

"It came to a point in my life when I absolutely needed proof of the Lord's word, not just some priest saying this is what I am to believe," wrote a student in Indiana. She studied with Lutherans, Catholics, Unitarians and Jehovah's Witnesses without finding the Bible answers she sought. Then she turned to her Seventh-day Adventist neighbors for guidance.

"As if by magic," she wrote, "the elder of the Seventh-day Adventist church came to give me lessons. I found out the television program I watched every Sunday was an Adventist program. Then in the mail I received your offer for Bible study. I appreciate your lessons; I don't know what I'd do without them."

"The more I study, the more I want to learn," wrote a student in Wisconsin. "My husband watched me and felt left out. So I sent for the Focus on Living and New Life courses for him."

"I can't believe it!" exclaimed the woman to her husband.

"What's that?" he asked.

"Well, of all the times we've been camping, I've never seen a group like this one."

"I must admit that it is different."

"Say, where does your group come from?"

"We are the WAY team, which stands for the Wisconsin Adventist Youth. These Seventh-day Adventist young people come from all over the state of Wisconsin. We have just started a canoe trip here on the Wisconsin River. This is our second day. We started in Portage where our church has just held a 10-day camp meeting. We plan to paddle to the Mississippi, which is approximately 90 miles." (The group actually traveled 136 miles.)

"I certainly have appreciated the lovely music that your group has presented."

"Thank you. We wanted this trip to be more than just for fun; we wanted to let others know that we love the Lord Jesus Christ."

"Well, I think that's a wonderful idea. Your group is so different from other groups that we've seen while camping. Most groups are noisy or drinking or tearing up the campground. It is very refreshing to hear a group singing gospel songs."

"Thank you very much. Here is something that I think you will enjoy reading. It's called Wayout. It's about the relationship of parents to children. And here is a Discovery of a Lifetime card. If you send this card to the Voice of Prophecy, you will receive a series of free Bible reading guides."

"Well, thank you!"

The next morning as we were having camp council at the edge of the river just before we were to leave, a whole group of people were gathered to see us depart. What a witness it was to hear Jeff Cinquemani read the scripture about our being branches connected to the vine, Jesus Christ. I prayed for the group and most of the onlookers bowed their heads. As we paddled down the river many of our new-found friends wished us luck and a good trip.

This incident was repeated in most of the places where the group camped during the eight-day excursion.

"You know, after spending more than a week together, it's hard to see the group go their separate ways."

This comment seemed to sum up the feelings of the WAY team as they prepared to leave for home or schools or jobs.

Wisconsin Adventist Youth are on the move for Christ. Join them at Merrill, Wisconsin, October 6 to 8, 1977, for the WAY Festival to witness for our Lord. For further information write: Len McMillan, P.O. Box 7310, Madison, WI 53707.

FORTY-TWO ATTEND WORKSHOP

The annual food service workshop, conducted July 10 to 28 by Andrews University's home economics department, was attended by 42 persons from 18 states, Canada, Puerto Rico, the West Indies and Mexico, according to Dr. Fonda L. Chaffee, workshop director.

Fourteen individuals from within the Lake Union participated in the workshop. In attendance from Michigan were Joan Bessemer of Niles; Earlene Roberts, Ida Beaman and Constance Craft of Benton Harbor; Rex Townsend and Janet and Evelyn Hainey of Berrien Springs; Bernice Fecho of Eau Claire and Mary Morris of Houghton Lake. Participants from Illinois were Margaret Calvert of La Fox and Arthur Chaffee and James Downs of Hinsdale. Janet Frye came from Indiana to attend the workshop and Marjorie Slater came from Wisconsin.

To graduate from the program the participant attends two summer sessions at Andrews University and is supervised by a registered dietitian during a nine-month work experience in his own institution.

This year's workshop was designed to train food service personnel in the principles of food preparation, serving special functions, purchasing, menu planning, nutrition and modified diets.

The students attended classroom lectures and participated in laboratory experiences in the Andrews University food service.

During alternate years the workshop will emphasize principles of organization and management, personnel development, supervision techniques, communications, sanitation, safety, layout and design, equipment, cost control and a refresher course in mathematics for food services.

The workshop, which lasts three weeks, provides training for individuals now employed in food service in hospitals, nursing homes, schools or other institutions, and is designed to prepare these people for membership in the Hospital, Institution and Educational Food Service Society (HIEFSS), sponsored by the American Dietetic Association.

MUSIC ACCREDITATION RENEWED

The National Association of Schools of Music has renewed its accreditation of Andrews University's music department, according to Dr. Paul E. Hamel, department chairman. The decision came following an intensive two-day evaluation of the department and its objectives.

In his report of the evaluation, Dr. Lloyd G. Blakely of the N.A.S.M. said, "There is a permeating spirit of quality at Andrews University. The music department is a vital contributor to that."

BROADVIEW'S ENROLLMENT GOES UP

Broadview Academy's enrollment stands at 253 students, according to Esther Nelson, registrar. Even though most new students and some returning students had to preregister by completing numerous cards, everyone seemed happy and excited to begin a new year at B.V.A.

BEVERLY HILLS HOLDS HEALTH DEMONSTRATION

On August 13 the lay activities department of the Beverly Hills Church in Chicago, Illinois, gave a health demonstration in the Jewel food store parking lot located at 95th Street and Ashland Avenue in Chicago.

The demonstration, arranged through Jewel's home economist, Gail Moncrief, included a narration entitled "Real Freedom," which focused on health problems related to poor diet and self-indulgence. There were also exhibits on alcoholism, drug addiction, vegetarian cooking and a demonstration of Smoking Sally by Pastor Hampton White.

Several interested people signed the guest book indicating their desire to receive additional health information. The members of the church will be returning to Jewel again with a similar program very soon.

sophomores, 85 juniors and 69 seniors. Students arrived on Sunday, August 28, from all across Illinois and from several other states including Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, Texas and Wisconsin. The student who came the most distance was Ligia Thismon, a senior from Venezuela. However, in the near future two former students are expected to return from Brazil, Kathy and Keith Witzel.

During the summer several changes took place at Broadview and the returning students were quick to notice these changes. Many of the dormitory rooms had been carpeted and furnished with new furniture, and the brick had been laid on the bell tower in the middle of the campus. Also the water pump had been fixed after being burned out by lightning earlier in the summer.

At the end of registration when most of the students had moved into their rooms and were settled, everyone gathered at the gymnasium for the traditional handshake and watermelon feed. As one senior stated so aptly during the first week of school, "With dedicated faculty and such enthusiastic students, we are ready to begin a great year."

highest goal he has ever reached in all his years of Ingathering.

By June, Mac had already passed the $1,000 mark. That became a reality when Wayne Reed of Vincennes, Indiana, a longtime friend of Mac, donated a $30 check.

Many hours of hard work were put into God's work to reach such a goal, and even though $1,000 has already been reached, Mac says he plans to contribute also.

Not all of us seem to like Ingathering as much as Mac does, but perhaps we should be encouraged by his dedication and put forth more effort to do our part for God this year in Ingathering.

DETROIT CENTER CHURCH MINISTRY FOR THE DEAF

For the past 10 years Lillie Jones, a friend of Joyce Jones, has been a guest at some of the Adventist evangelistic meetings in Detroit, Michigan, where an interpreter was available.

Lillie Jones is deaf. She has attended crusades with Joyce since the George Vandeman meetings in 1966. She became acquainted with Ann Ranney at the E. E. Cleveland meetings in 1972. Mrs. Ranney interpreted the sermons for the Adventist deaf from the Metropolitan Church in Southfield, Michigan.

At the conclusion of the crusade, Joyce sometimes took Mrs. Jones to the Metropolitan Church where she could hear the message and renew her friendship with Ann Ranney and the deaf from that church.

Then Mrs. Ranney transferred to another church and it became evident to Joyce that she would have to become proficient as an interpreter or find someone who was proficient.

Two people immediately came to her mind: Bill Stovall from the Metropolitan Church and Genevieve Jordan from Bethany Baptist Church. Mrs. Jordan was a friend of Lillie Jones.

Joyce called both of them and they agreed to go to the Detroit Center Church the next Sabbath. But during the week Joyce practiced "signing" and started learning new signs—just in case.

Bill Stovall walked in right on time to interpret the Sabbath School lesson as Joyce taught it. Genevieve Jordan did not come that Sabbath so Stovall interpreted the sermon for Mrs. Jones.

Several weeks later Mrs. Jones was again able to attend church. Stovall was present for Sabbath School and Mrs. Jordan was there for the worship service. Mrs. Jordan has had 30 years of experience as an interpreter for the deaf.

As of this date Mrs. Jones has not taken her stand although she is convinced of the seventh-day Sabbath.

We continue to pray for her and Mrs. Jordan.

Bill Stovall and Joyce Jones hope that the Advent message can be presented to many more deaf people so that they can be brought into the church. The deaf have been too long neglected in the Advent ministry. Your help and prayers are solicited.

MIZPAH SCHOOL GRADUATE AWARDED $500

George Moore Jr., an eighth-grade graduate from Mizpah School, Gary, Indiana, was awarded a $500 scholarship to attend Shiloh Academy. George was the president of his class and an honor student. His family was present when Principal Carolyn Palmer presented the award. The Moores have eight children. An older daughter has completed eight years at Mizpah and three children are still in church school.

YOUTH SLAIN AT BIBLE CATHEDRAL

On July 21, tragedy struck the Bible Cathedral where Pastor J. P. Lewis was conducting an evangelistic crusade on the northeast side of Detroit. Frank James Moore, serving as tentmaster, was bludgeoned to death sometime between midnight and daybreak while he slept near the pulpit.

Moore, 22, was baptized December 11, 1976. He was a Vacation Bible School instructor, question-and-answer man and Bible worker for the tent meetings. He was also one of the main speakers at a recent Voice of Youth evangelistic meeting at the Detroit Center Church.

Fellow members of the Conant Gardens Church described Moore as dedicated, well liked and meek. A police investigation failed to disclose a motive for the slaying or the assailant's identity.

A conference-wide photo workshop is scheduled for Au Sable, October 14 to 16.

Its emphasis will be to help any photographer, regardless of his camera, learn how to make his pictures "worth a thousand words." He will be taught how to create story-telling photos which could be used to spread the story of Christ's love for man. This might include nature pictures as well as those of value to Adventist publications or local news media.

Since space at the workshop is limited, preference will go to communication secretaries currently in office and official church photographers. Other applicants will be accepted as space allows.

A letter to pastors and first elders is in preparation requesting that they appoint someone who could give photographic coverage to official church functions. This would be of value to the local church for various reasons which will be explained in the letter. Any of these duly named individuals would be given preference to attend the photo workshop.

Special guest lecturers with a rich background in photography will be present, and all presentations on the Sabbath will be in harmony with the sacred hours. For further information write immediately to PHOTO WEEKEND, Michigan Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, Box 19009, Lansing, MI 48901.

BAPTISM RESULT OF HOSPITAL VISIT

A recent privately held baptism at the Detroit, Michigan, Metropolitan Church united Etta Crittenden with the remnant people of God. She wanted to be baptized in her new church, but was too weak to attend regular services. The baptism was held privately with Pastor Bruce Babienko officiating, and was witnessed by those who had a part in her unique story.

Mrs. Crittenden shared a room at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit, Michigan, with a member of the Detroit Metropolitan Church. When Laurie Dixon, Bible instructor for the church, went to visit the church member, she spoke and prayed with Mrs. Crittenden. She also asked if she could visit in her home when she was released from the hospital. It was this contact that generated Mrs. Crittenden's interest in Seventh-day Adventists and Bible studies followed.

Mrs. Crittenden's health began to fail and her treks to the hospital became more frequent. Then it became necessary for someone to help her in her home. Mrs. Dixon called Reatha Little, a member of the Troy, Michigan, Church, to ask if she was available to care for this elderly woman a few hours each day.

Mrs. Little had returned home from camp meeting with "blessings filling her heart" and determined to do more for her Lord. Mrs. Dixon's phone call seemed to offer the first opportunity of witnessing.

Soon Mrs. Crittenden was released from the hospital and Mrs. Little was on hand to prepare hot meals and to care for the patient's needs. Even though Mrs. Little is 74 years old she is well trained in caring for the sick. She graduated from the Seventh-day Adventist Home Nursing Service which is directed and taught by Edith Lawrence of Pontiac.

Two years ago Mrs. Lawrence, a registered nurse with a B.S. in nursing education, was impressed to begin the course to train Adventist laymen in home care of the sick, convalescing and elderly. The class meets once a week on Sundays for 12 weeks.

Students are taught to care for their patients physically, and also to spread the sunshine of God's love and point the way to Jesus.

As Mrs. Lawrence says: "We are sharing, caring and showing the love of Jesus as we minister to others. We are following in the footsteps of the Saviour who spent more time healing than preaching."

This is the first baptism that has resulted from Mrs. Lawrence's program, but it shows the results of teamwork so necessary to winning souls. The story has not ended yet: Mrs. Crittenden's niece in Pontiac is taking Bible studies as a result of her aunt's interest in the church and has expressed a desire to be baptized.

SABBATH SCHOOL SEMINAR PLANNED

A seminar for Sabbath School officers will be held at Au Sable, September 23 to 25, reports Clyde C. Groomer, conference Sabbath School director.

Special guests who will be giving inspiration and instruction, Groomer added, are Howard Rampton and R. C. Barger of the General Conference Sabbath School department; A. W. Bauer of the Lake Union Sabbath School department, and the staff of the Michigan Conference sabbath school and child evangelism departments.

During the course of the weekend specific help will be given to superintendents, secretaries, investment leaders and children's division coordinators. Practical workshops and open discussions will also be held.

Groomer is urging all those to attend who are interested in making their Sabbath School "an effective agency for the finishing of the work." The cost is $15 per delegate which may be paid by the church. Each person should bring his own bedding and personal items. See your local pastor or Sabbath School superintendent for full information.

MEETINGS PLANNED TO HELP CHURCH OFFICERS

The Michigan Conference officers have made plans for a series of church officers meetings to begin October 8 in Escanaba. These afternoon sessions are planned to benefit all members who will have church responsibilities for the new church calendar year.

The other meetings will take place November 19 at Cadillac, December 3 at Kalamazoo, December 10 at First Flint and December 17 at Ann Arbor.

Directors of the various conference departments will be present to explain to their local counterparts the challenges and responsibilities of their work. Members holding any church office are encouraged to attend. They may attend the meeting of their choice and further information can be obtained from local pastors.

NEWS NOTES

- The Sheboygan, Wisconsin, Church School recently began its second school year with 10 students, doubling the previous year's enrollment. Teacher Floyd Ahlers and his students are anxious to move from the basement of their old church to new quarters. The new church currently under construction in Sheboygan is truly an answer to prayer and the members are praising the Lord for the progress they are making.

- A Five-Day Plan was conducted August 21 through August 25 at St. Mary's Hospital, Rhinelander, Wisconsin. Dr. O. B. Beardsley and Pastor Don Roth conducted the plan at the request of many smokers. One woman attending said that she would like to join the Adventist church. A total of 53 registered.

EPICUREAN EVANGELISM

"What are you eating? Sure smells good."

"You say that's not meat?"

"How can you survive on just vegetables?"

So goes the conversation at noon in the occupational therapy department of Bethesda Lutheran Home, a treatment and residential center for 600 developmentally disabled people in Watertown, Wisconsin.

The questions are directed at Occupational Therapist Althea Buckingham, a member of the Watertown Seventh-day Adventist Church. Wanting to capitalize on her fellow employees' interest in her "strange" diet, Mrs. Buckingham planned a housewarming for friends at her new apartment. Then she invited her daughter Debby Wade, a home economist and home nutrition instructor, to prepare a vegetarian meal.

Thursday evening, August 11, a dozen of Mrs. Buckingham's friends joined her and the Wades for the meal. After everyone had sampled the variety of foods offered, the Wades demonstrated the preparation of two vegetarian dishes and answered questions.

A comment made by a Lutheran minister in attendance was typical of the response of most of the guests. "If this is what vegetarianism is, I could sure go for it."

Others expressed a desire to learn how to prepare more of the recipes. On the strength of this response, the Watertown Church is planning to conduct a nutrition/cooking school later this fall for the public.

Remember The Simple

Pleasures?

We do.

That's why Loma Linda Foods is looking back, remembering the good old days.

Sure, our technology and our scientific research are as current as tomorrow's news.

But we remember where we came from too.

We were born in a simpler time, a time when people were close to the earth, when food was naturally good.

That's the feeling behind our new trademark, which we're now introducing to the public. You'll be seeing this design on almost all Loma Linda's products.

Since the turn of the century, we've been producing quality food products for people like you, people who are concerned about their health and their eating enjoyment.

So if you sometimes grow nostalgic for a time when eating was more than adding water to instant everything, think of Loma Linda Foods.

We remember.
