Promises, Promises

G. W. Morgan
President
Indiana Conference

COVER

The University Singers of Andrews University are planning a concert tour of several Caribbean islands during the Christmas holidays. The story and pictures are on pages four and five. Andrews University Public Relations Department staff photo.

Promises motivate people to a course of action that will purportedly bring a desired benefit. TV commercials promise everything from powders that grip your dentures to batteries that start your car. The used car salesman promises you a car in mint condition. The groom promises to be faithful to his bride, the food market promises you food that is tasty, fresh and nutritious, and the airline promises to take you safely to your destination—on schedule.

Almost all transactions are built on promises. We quickly learn that there are many degrees of reliability among those who make promises. The trick is to learn the degree of reliability and then be prepared to take the calculated risk that seems to fit our need.

Weather predictions are often accompanied by a percentage estimate of their reliability, but not all promises are accompanied by this kind of information.

There is the tragic story of Marjorie Jackson who thought that the wealth that her deceased husband had spent a lifetime in accumulating was a promise of happiness and fulfillment. After a vice president of one of Indiana's most prestigious banks embezzled $750,000 from her, she took her millions home and became an unhappy recluse. She was slain by the inevitable opportunist who saw in her an easy mark. Marjorie Jackson might have benefited from the wisdom of an oft-quoted proverb, "He is no fool who gives away what he cannot keep in order to gain what he cannot lose."

Such is the vanity of the human heart that it loves to hear flattering promises even though in a sober moment of reflection sheer logic would compel an admission that what had been uttered could not be completely true. Those who do not carefully choose to love the truth can be deluded into sincerely believing a lie. The love of truth must never be bartered away for the pleasure or applause of the moment.

In beautiful contrast to the often disappointing promises of men and broken promises of earthly wealth, position and pleasure, are the never-failing promises of God. "The promises spoken by the great Teacher will captivate the senses and animate the soul with a spiritual power that is divine."—Christ's Object Lessons, p. 132.

Faith is a transaction built on the promises of God. The reliability of His promises are estimated by our knowledge of His character, dependability and truthfulness. It is impossible for God to fail to keep his Word and so the only limit upon His promised benefits is our faith.

Every command of God is a promise that we can with His help do what He asks us to do and be what He purposes us to be. When assailed by temptation, we are not to look to circumstances or to our own weakness but to the strength and reliability of the Word of the living God.

Jesus used the same power that we have available to us: It is written. "Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust." 2 Peter 1:4.

The more we look at and take hold of the promises of God, the brighter they become. They are like flowers which God has placed all along our pathway to encourage us and assure us of His great power and love.

THE HEART OF THE LAKE UNION

A Traveling Witness

by Jan Chamberlain

"George Hubbard, journeyman pipe fitter, has driven around the world seven times just traveling back and forth to work," according to a page-one feature story in the Dow Chemical Company's magazine, Brinewell. Mr. Hubbard is a member of the Lake City, Michigan, Church.

On the road by 5:15 A.M. each workday en route from Lake City to the Midland Dow Chemical Plant, George travels 166 miles per day. "Round-trip travel time is three hours. He has logged 700,000 miles to date in workday trips to the plant," the article states.

He travels the first 33 miles of the trip alone and then joins a Dow car pool. George claims that he knows "every crack, corner and crease in that road."

When asked what he thinks about while on the road, George replied, "Sometimes I sing, sometimes I witness to my fellow passengers or I pray."

George is a practicing Christian seven days a week. In spite of his hours on the road he finds time after work to serve the Lord. As head deacon, youth coordinator and lay activities leader, he is always active in church programs.

Jan Chamberlain is communication secretary for the Lake City Church, and she teaches grades one to eight at the Houghton Lake Church School. She is married to Pastor Lyle Chamberlain.

campaign, Hubbard knows the residents of Lake City about as well as the highway to Midland. He inquires about those in need, then helps the young people deliver food baskets in town. He invites elderly and shut-in people to a holiday dinner at the community services center.

When something needs to be done at the church, George is usually the first one ready to help. On a recent church cleaning day he painted the basement floor, repaired the roof and cleaned the eaves troughs. He also helped beautify the church landscaping by digging around trees and shrubs and lining them with limestone.

Anytime the church needs new equipment George promotes the project until the funds are raised. His present aim is to raise $400 for a new movie projector and screen for Sabbath afternoon inspirational programs.

On Sabbaths George often visits his neighbors, shut-ins, hospital patients and others. In addition to church work, George gardens for his family of six at home, or enjoys activities outdoors with his two married sons.

George's C.B. handle is "Hub Cap"—a fitting description of the man who always answers yes to the Lord's work. George's life, revolving around the hub of church-related activities, demonstrates an example for others to follow. Who, like George, has driven the equivalent of seven times around the world and yet finds time to accomplish so much for the Lord?

Carols in the Caribbean

by Rita Waterman

What comes to mind when you hear the word Christmas? Home? Friends and relatives? Presents around the tree? That's what it meant for the University Singers—that is until this year.

This Yuletide season will find 33 of Andrews University's best vocalists and their accompanists on a three-week concert tour to seven Caribbean islands.

Rita Waterman, a senior communication major at Andrews University, interned last summer at Listen magazine.

That may sound inviting as you look forward to the bleak, snow-filled December world. But before getting envious of the group and their sunny prospects take a look at their itinerary: Nassau, Bahamas; Montego Bay, Jamaica; San Juan, Puerto Rico; Barbados, West Indies, and St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, are just a few of the places the singers will visit. In fact Christmas day while you are grabbing presents from under a tree they will be in transit, grabbing for their luggage at an airport.

The concert tour is the brainchild of Dr. Franklin L. Lusk, who has directed the University Singers for three years.

"Our purpose for this trip is to share the musical ministry of the singers with others—people outside the United States," he said.

Judging from the concert schedule the group will work hard to fulfill that objective. They have 15 concerts planned. Couple that with rehearsals and travel time and you can see that the group members won't be spending much of their time leisurely basking in the sun.

But they don't seem to mind. Ketsia Dorce, who lived in the Bahamas, is excited about visiting old friends, even if it is for a short time.

Besides bringing a blessing with their music, the singers feel that the concert tour will have an additional benefit for the Inter-American Division. Proceeds from the concerts will be used for local educational needs in the division, thus doubling the blessing the group will bring to others.

But the major problem facing the singers now is financial. The tour will cost more than $300 per person. The group is working feverishly to raise approximately $10,500 before November 28. Each member has a personal goal of $150.

Fund raising began last spring with the production of a record entitled, "The Coming King," available from any member for $5.50. They are also writing to friends and fellow church members for financial support.

The singers perform both religious and secular concerts. Their repertoire includes spirituals such as "Soon Ah Will Be Done" by William Davison, and "In Dat Great Gettin' Up Mornin'" by Jester Harriston, as well as some fairly new music such as Arthur Cunningham's "Two Prayers."

A few samples to the secular music are "Sing With Me Now" by Alan Smith, Emma Lou Diemer's "Dance, Dance, My Heart" and "Old Woman," a novelty number by Katherine Davis.

Among the religious pieces is the old favorite hymn, "Lift Up the Trumpet," arranged by Dr. Lusk. The group also sings "The Coming King," written by Andrews professor and composer Dr. Charles Hall.

"We have visited numerous churches and have sung for many people in the past. We are hoping they will remember the blessing they received from the program and will want to help so we can share that blessing with others," said Dr. Lusk.

Christmas—the word does bring a lot of things to mind. To the University Singers this year it means sharing—sharing their music and sharing themselves.

BIOLOGY STUDY TOUR OF SOUTH PACIFIC ANNOUNCED

An 11-week biology field study tour of the South Pacific, including Australia and New Zealand, will be sponsored by the Andrews University biology department during the summer of 1978.

Scheduled to begin on June 12, the field study will focus on the highly varied bird life, plant and animal geography and ecology of that part of the world. The Great Barrier Reef and the exotic islands of the South Pacific are the natural habitat of many rare species, according to Dr. Asa C. Thoresen of the biology department.

Up to 12 quarter credits of undergraduate or graduate credit in ornithology, biogeography, selected topics in biology, and environment may be earned by qualified students.

There will also be considerable opportunity to observe and learn many features of cultural and aesthetic interest about the countries and their people, says Thoresen.

Applications for the 20 places available on the tour must be received by December 30. The cost will be approximately $2,800, including tuition, travel, camp fees and food for the round trip from the West Coast of the United States.

For further information, call or write to the Biology Department, Andrews University, Berrien Springs, MI 49104.

ANDREWS STUDENTS SEEK RESEARCH PROJECTS

Many doctoral students in Andrews University's School of Graduate Studies are ready and eager to do research in areas that will benefit the church, according to Dr. Richard W. Schwarz, vice president for academic administration. They are committed, he says, not only to scholastic excellence, but also to being practical.

In order to meet degree requirements, each doctoral student must write and successfully defend a dissertation or project report on a significant topic. Choosing the right topic sometimes takes months. An important consideration is the usefulness of the proposed research area.

The Seventh-day Adventist Church has many needs for research, both experimental and descriptive. These needs are in churches, conferences, schools, hospitals and publishing houses. But the doctoral students are at Andrews and may not be aware of these specific needs.

Because of this Andrews is now asking church leaders around the world to send in descriptions of research projects that would benefit their particular area, or the entire church. Projects should be related to education or pastoral concerns.

All questions concerning this project and suggestions for research should be sent to Dr. Richard W. Schwarz, vice president for academic administration, Andrews University, Berrien Springs, MI 49104.

George Vandeman

CONNIE AND GEORGE VANDEMAN COME TO ANDREWS

It Is Written speaker, George Vandeman, and his daughter, Connie, will present a Friday evening vesper program at Andrews on November 18 at 7:30.

The program, sponsored by Andrews Christian Youth Action (A.C.Y.A.), will feature a 30-minute sacred concert by Miss Vandeman, followed by a short meditation by Elder Vandeman.

Miss Vandeman, a senior at Loma Linda University's College of Arts and Sciences, is a songwriter and recording artist.

On Sabbath afternoon, November 19, at 3 P.M., Vandeman will speak at the Pioneer Memorial Church on the work of It Is Written and its role in carrying the gospel to the public. A question and answer session will follow his presentation.

ANDREWS PROFESSORS ATTEND WORLD CURRICULUM CONFERENCE

Dr. Bernard M. Lall and his wife, Dr. Geeta R. Lall, both of Andrews' education department, attended the quadrennial session of the World Council of Curriculum and Instruction at Istanbul, Turkey, in August.

Among the problems discussed at the conference were illiteracy, lack of facilities, the development of viable educational programs and making formal education relevant to the students' needs.

In keeping with the conference's theme, "Lifelong Education," Dr. Bernard Lall presented a paper entitled, "Progress of Lifelong Education in the U.S.A." Dr. Geeta Lall presented a paper on "Ways Children Learn."

A series of articles by Dr. Geeta Lall on early childhood education recently appeared in the Review and Herald.

ENGLISH M.A. PROGRAM A SUCCESS

At least 32 graduates of Andrews' M.A. program in English are presently serving on the faculties of Seventh-day Adventist colleges around the world, says Dr. John O. Waller, chairman of Andrews' English department.

"We know of more than 90 former students in the organized work [of the church]," he says. This means that more than half of the 181 total graduates from the program are denominationally employed.

The current school year has the highest number of M.A. candidates ever enrolled in the English department—26.

All of the 1977 graduates with an M.A. in English who sought employment were placed, according to Dr. Waller.

"Our programs in the teaching of English as a second language are firmly establishing themselves," he says. "We haven't expected large enrollments in these specialized areas, but we offer the work to fill a real need in a rapidly expanding area. We expect to confer the first Master of Arts with this emphasis in June, having previously given three such M.A.T. degrees."

Kathleen McQueen, R.N., I.C.U.-C.C.U., treats a disaster "victim" in the delayed care area.

DISASTER DRILL

HINSDALE—Emergency personnel from Hinsdale Hospital and 10 surrounding communities participated with the hospital in a recent disaster drill in preparation for a possible real disaster in this area.

Realism was created in the mock accident by applying makeup to "victims" and positioning them at the scene of the accident, Oak Hill School. The victims were actual students at the school and were therefore strangers to the hospital personnel giving treatment.

An evaluation meeting following the drill revealed the need for improvement in some areas. These suggestions will be studied by the disaster committee and some of the ideas will be implemented in future drills and in the event of a real disaster. To satisfy state accreditation requirements, the hospital rehearses its disaster plan twice a year.

HOSPITAL RESTRUCTURES DEBT BY SALE OF BONDS

HINSDALE—The sale of $13 million in revenue bonds by the Village of Bolingbrook for Hinsdale Hospital will provide the hospital with funds to pay off the existing debt incurred during the south wing expansion program. Additional funds received from the bond sale will finance the Certificate of Need for pathology expansion and equipment acquisition.

The bonds were issued by the Village of Bolingbrook so that they would be nontaxable for federal income tax and so that the hospital would receive the 5.7 percent interest rate, according to Larry Schalk, hospital vice president. Part of the savings to the hospital will be $125,000 per year on existing interest expense.

CRUSADE OF MERCY CAMPAIGN BEGINS

HINSDALE—The annual Crusade of Mercy campaign at Hinsdale Hospital is officially underway. The hospital participates each year in this campaign, giving employees an opportunity to help build a better community through their support. Last year's contributions totaled $8,948.

This year's goal for the hospital is $9,500. The crusade benefits a network of hundreds of essential services in the area. Funds raised locally stay in the area supporting such agencies as the YMCA, YWCA, Scouts and Camp Fire Girls.

Irwin Hansen, president, Hinsdale Hospital, supports the crusade 100 percent and urges employees to demonstrate their community concern by making this year's campaign the best ever.

PROPOSAL FOR AFFILIATE HOSPITAL REVISED

HINSDALE—Hinsdale Hospital will continue to work with civic leaders in the Bolingbrook/Romeoville area to assure proper facilities to meet present and future health-care needs in this area, according to Irwin C. Hansen, president, Hinsdale Hospital.

The Illinois Health Facilities Planning Board recently voted 7 to 1 the "intent to deny" the hospital's request to build a 120-bed affiliate hospital in Bolingbrook. Consequently the hospital will revise its proposal and seek to build some other type of facility to meet the needs of this area.

Hinsdale Hospital submitted the proposal to the state subsequent to a request by the citizens of the area. "Based on the communities' invitation, our intent is to be responsive to these concerns and needs," says Hansen.

NEWS NOTES

- Due to pastoral changes this summer, says Robert Ammons, ministerial secretary of the Illinois Conference, many local elders and lay preachers had the opportunity to take speaking appointments at their churches. These men did an outstanding job. "We want to commend them for this extra-mile service," he said.

- A Sabbath School Workshop for the first quarter of 1978 for the leaders of cradle roll, kindergarten, primary, junior, earliteen, youth and adult divisions will be held Sunday, December 4, at 10:30 A.M. at the Brookfield Church located at the corner of Grand Boulevard and Lincoln Avenue in Brookfield. All Sabbath School leaders are invited.

- A benefit program for the Lake Shore Seventh-day Adventist Junior Academy was presented October 18 by members of the Chicago Conservatory College at the Spanish Central Church. Karen Elizabeth Rockwell, clarinetist, gave the concert, assisted by James Eckerling, pianist.

- Sixteen people made their decisions to be baptized on October 15 at the North Shore Church following the Century 21 Institute for Better Living conducted by Pastors Stanley Cottrell and Tom Shepherd. The first baptism is scheduled for November 12.

● An M.V. Youth Rally featuring E. Wayne Shepperd, youth director for the Lake Union Conference, and Jeffrey Wilson, youth director for the Illinois Conference, will be held at the North Shore Church, November 18 and 19. A special Investiture service will be conducted for those who have completed requirements for the Master Guide program.

WORK OPPORTUNITIES AT BROADVIEW

Jerri Nance is one of more than 90 students from Broadview Academy who takes a bus back and forth each day to work at the Harris Pine Mills plant in Geneva. These academy students earn almost 75 percent of their tuition and school expenses annually, according to Jerry Calvert, manager. Harris Pine Mills production consists of about 65 percent unfinished pine furniture and 35 percent hard woods and finished products. These items are sold to many of the major home-furnishing retail stores in a seven-state area, says Calvert. Visitors are always welcome to the Geneva plant, but please call (312) 232-4966 for an appointment. Students like Jerri need more opportunities for work and areas to learn various trades. That is why the one-percent plan was adopted for Broadview Academy to help raise the needed funds for students and an industrial arts building.

BEVERLY HILLS SILVER ANNIVERSARY

The Beverly Hills Church observed its 25th anniversary in Chicago on Sabbath, October 22. On May 12, 1952, ground was broken for the new Beverly Hills Church.

Previously known as the South Side Church, the members met for many years on Princeton Avenue. Organized on October 28, 1894, the church has met at several other locations besides Princeton Avenue and their present location at 94th and Justine.

During Sabbath School old and new members shared experiences and stories of the Beverly Hills Church history. Emma Wojcik, coordinator for the anniversary celebration, gave the history of the church and school progress including details of former members who have given outstanding denominational service. Mrs. Wojcik and her husband, John, were two of the first people to suggest 94th and Justine as a good location for the church 25 years ago.

Eston Allen, Sabbath School and religious liberty director for the Illinois Conference, gave the anniversary address. Elder Allen served as a ministerial intern for the Beverly Hills Church during its early years at the present location.

In his address Elder Allen focused on the necessity of constant Christian growth. "How much have you grown in 25 years?" he asked. He also warned against succumbing to a "spiritual high," but urged us to keep on striving.

Others who participated in the service were John Hayward, conference president; Melvin Rosen, conference educational superintendent, and Hampton White, pastor.

Following the morning service a potluck dinner was served. In the afternoon a film entitled, "To the Nations," was shown, and letters from former pastors and members were read. To end the day the oratorio,

"The Holy City" was performed by the combined choirs of St. Mary's Methodist Church and the Beverly Hills Church.

NEW HOOKUPS FOR CAMP MEETING

Forty-four new recreational vehicle hookups have been installed behind the gymnasium at Broadview Academy. "They replace those that were destroyed last year due to an electrical storm," says Ray Rouse, conference treasurer.

Installed by the electrical department of Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital, the new hookups will each have a recreational vehicle hookup as well as two regular plug-ins.

More than 3,000 feet of cable were laid two feet in the ground from the main line to a new transformer in the back of the gymnasium. There the cable will be divided up into the various units.

These units have been needed for a long time, and will provide additional trailer and camper space at camp meetings in the years to come.

LEWIS AND SMITH HONORED ON COMMUNITY RELATIONS DAY

This year two people, one from the community and one from the church, were honored for their contributions to the community of Rockford during worship services on Community Relations Day at the Rockford Church on October 15.

Joyce Friestad, communication secretary, said, "When they were nominated there was unanimous approval.

The two people are Leslie Lewis, president of the Winnebago County Interagency Council on Smoking and Disease and director of the Winnebago Heart Association, and William Smith, Pathfinder leader, school board chairman and local elder of the Rockford Church.

When presenting the plaques, Harold Flynt, pastor of the Rockford Church, mentioned that Mr. Lewis had worked for many humanitarian projects besides the ones in which he is presently involved. For several years the Winnebago County Interagency Council on Smoking and Disease has coordinated the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking in Rockford.

Mr. Smith has served the Rockford Church in many capacities. Besides his current church offices he has sung with the Vesper Voices with his wife, Louise, since the group began in 1971.

This group has given more than 140 free concerts to various churches, schools, hospitals, rest homes and a prison.

Following the presentations, David Gray, communication intern for the Illinois Conference, spoke on good community relations. After the worship service a fellowship lunch was served.

During the afternoon a presentation on "How Public Relations Can Help Every Member in the Church," was given by Mr. Gray, and the day ended with a vesper program of slides by Elder Flynt.

HEALTH SEMINAR HELD AT W.J.A.

A Come Alive Health Seminar was held at Waukegan Junior Academy on October 2. The seminar featured balanced nutrition, physical fitness, weight control and how to avoid a heart attack.

Donna Justinen of the Bolingbrook Church presented a food demonstration called "A Quick Lunch or Fruit Lunch." Roy Wightman, assistant administrator for health education and rehabilitation at the Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital and conference health services director, presented a film, "What Makes Millie Run," and gave a lecture entitled, "Do It Yourself Help."

Hoping to continue the health seminar on a monthly basis, the church has planned more meetings for November 6, December 4 and January 8.

MARANATHA TRIP TO MEXICO

Groups are now being formed by Maranatha Flights for two-week trips to southern Mexico to build Seventh-day Adventist churches. Last year a group was organized in Indiana for a similar trip to Guatemala. You may remember the report of the group at camp meeting.

February 5 to 19, 1978, has been reserved for a volunteer group of workers from Indiana to go to Mexico. We would like to find out if there is sufficient interest. About 30 to 35 people are needed who are willing to work. Building skills are helpful but not required. Please let me know if you are interested and we will send you details that are available at this time. Write to G. W. Morgan, Box 1950, Carmel, IN 46032.

PATHFINDER DAY AT CICERO

Sabbath, October 22, was Pathfinder Day at the Cicero Church. The church service began with 39 uniformed Pathfinders and their leaders and teachers marching in with the color guard.

Janet Clear, Pathfinder director, interviewed several of the Pathfinders and leaders who told the church of the activities of the club. Two of those interviewed were Christ Jordan and Leon Trubey. At the recent Pathfinder camporee, Leon made a perfect score in the camporee's field events. Leon, Chris, and Bruce Murphy were the winning team in the Bible contest on Sabbath afternoon at the camporee.

Also interviewed was Norman Clear, cook for the camp-out, who described all the advantages of the new chuck wagon which was recently built for the Pathfinders. He said that the conference has asked to use the wagon along with their disaster van to simplify the serving of food during disasters.

Teachers of the classes such as Christian Grooming and Manners, Seeds, Flower Arrangement and Indian Lore were interviewed and described the fun they have teaching these classes.

After a song by a girls' quintet, Cliff Hoffman, youth director for Indiana, gave a brief message on "Optimistic Christian Living."

NEW SCHOOL ADDED TO CONFERENCE

The Lake Region Conference education department and the Reid Memorial Church in East St. Louis, Illinois, opened a new school on September 7, 1977, with an enrollment of 24 for grades two to eight. The school has been named the Ramah Adventist School. Doris Smith is the teacher.

Reginald Barnes, conference education superintendent, and Fred Williams, conference communication director, visited the school in October and found an excellent spirit between students and teacher.

For several years the conference and church have felt a need for offering Christian education in that area. We thank God that this goal has been achieved.

The school committee is directed by Bonnie Reaves. Robert Smith, pastor, is to be commended for encouraging the church to open the school.

Classes are presently offered in the church fellowship hall. The enrollment trend indicates that permanent facilities must be provided for the school.

'LET THE HOUSE OF GOD BE BUILT...'

After more than 20 years of hoping and praying for a church, the Hyde Park Church of Chicago, Illinois, had a ground-breaking ceremony which culminated years of planning, saving and fund raising. The ceremony also marked the first appearance of C. D. Joseph in his official capacity as president of the Lake Region Conference.

In his remarks, Elder Joseph stated that this was the beginning of a new era. He said that though this building would be beautiful, this was not really the most important thing about Hyde Park's project. This facility would just be a base from which to launch an assault on sin, and be of service to the community.

Louise Lawson, president of the Illinois Service Federal Savings and Loan Association of Chicago, expressed satisfaction that her lending institution could be a part of this venture.

Also taking part in the ceremony were Isaac Palmer, treasurer of the Lake Region Conference; C. R. Graham, former pastor of the Hyde Park Church; E. Martin, representing Swann and Weiskoff Architects; Thomas Maycock, contractor, and members of the Hyde Park Church building committee.

The new church will be located about five blocks from its present structure. It will seat 400 people and will cost approximately $300,000. J. C. Wray, pastor, challenged those present on this historic occasion to join together to begin a new era in the history of the Hyde Park Church when a dream becomes a reality in August 1978.

• Kay Hill, health secretary for the Wright Church, finds her eating habits afford opportunities to witness to her fellow workers. The coffee substitutes she uses aroused interest and have led to discussions on healthful living. One woman now claims she has trouble eating meat because of the new facts she has learned about the subject. On visits to Berrien Springs, Mrs. Hill buys health foods to satisfy the requests and needs of several of her co-workers.

• A night school was held on October 11 for parents and friends of the Cedar Lake Church School. From 6:30 to 7:30 P.M. teachers taught their regular subjects to students in their own classrooms. Visitors were encouraged to come in, observe, and then visit another room. Parents seemed happy to have had this opportunity to see their school in operation.

ATTENTION SABBATH SCHOOL TEACHERS AND LEADERS

The Sabbath School department has announced their Sabbath School instructional seminars for the first quarter of 1978. These seminars will be of great help to all division leaders and teachers. Plan to attend the one in your area. All meetings begin promptly at 10 A.M.

The schedule follows: November 13 at the Ithaca Church, November 20 in Berrien Springs at the Ruth Murdoch Elementary Cafetorium, December 4 at the Kalamazoo Church, December 11 at the Pontiac Church School and December 18 at the Detroit Southfield School.

WHITE HAIR IS BEAUTIFUL

Bertha Stone of Battle Creek believes that white hair is beautiful. But then she found her first gray hairs only two years ago when she was 98!

In October she had two birthday parties to celebrate becoming a centenarian. On Sunday, October 9, a party was held at Battle Creek Academy and on the 11th, Mrs. Stone's actual birthday, another party was held in her honor at the Riverside Nursing Home in Battle Creek where she is the oldest resident.

When asked what her birthday wishes were she said one was to make a trip back to Holly, Michigan, where she lived for 62 years. She looks back on those days when she was able to make clothes for her children and grandchildren. She also made many quilts for the community services center in Holly and worked many hours at the center. Faulty eyesight now prevents her from doing any more sewing.

Mrs. Stone also wished to visit Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, where she has a married daughter. The last car she had, a 1931 Buick purchased by her late husband, Preston, is on display in Sault Ste. Marie. "I'd love to see that car again," she says.

Mrs. Stone took her first snomobile ride at the age of 95 when she was celebrating Christmas with grandchildren in Illinois.

She was born in New Ringgold, Pennsylvania, and came to Michigan with her parents when she was 9 years old. A few years ago Mrs. Stone moved to Battle Creek to live with her great-granddaughter, Mrs. Neal Vander Wall, a member of the Battle Creek Tabernacle.

Robert Woodward, director of social services of Jackson, cuts the ribbon for the new center while Vern Kilgren, right, president of the Jackson County Ministerial Association, holds on. Others present for the occasion were Wes McAllister, left, city manager; Arthur Covell, former Jackson pastor, now of Lansing; Elizabeth Schoun; Ola Robinson, former pastor of Jackson, now of Niles; Edith Luttmann, center director; Nedra Renshaw, president of the central federation; Captain Dennis Rowlinson of the Jackson Police Department; Marlene Cooper, coordinator, and Pastor Clarence E. sale for three years before the Jackson Church purchased it. The building included a large sanctuary, a two-story annex containing 22 rooms and a 60-car paved parking lot. With the help of a very interested realtor, the building was purchased in 1974 for only $15,000!

Prior to 1974 the community services workers had built up a fund which exceeded the purchase price. So with the remaining money and help from other sources, Jackson members were able to redecorate and furnish the building's interior.

But the community services members also hoped they could earn enough from the sale of their former community services building to pay the cost of demolishing the old sanctuary which was connected to the new building; however, no sale was made.

Marlene Cooper, then the center's director, asked W. M. Buckman, conference community services director, to assist her in seeking help from a local foundation. They contacted the foundation but their request was refused.

Later Mrs. Cooper heard about the Hurst Foundation and called Mr. Hurst's office. He asked to see the building, became interested in the work of the center and requested a letter stating the needs of the center. In January 1976 the foundation granted $15,000 to demolish the sanctuary, put a new front on the building and grade the front lot.

A get-acquainted luncheon was held on October 6 for civic leaders, the press and others who were interested in the work. Thirty people attended and enjoyed a vegetarian lunch. Elizabeth Schoun, Michigan Conference community services president, told the history of community services and the purpose for establishing such centers.

Following the luncheon plaques were presented to the Hurst Foundation and The Samuel Higby Camp Foundation, which gave $500 to purchase a new washer and dryer. The guests then toured the center and many favorable comments were made. This event occasioned prime-time news coverage by a local television station.

More than 70 volunteers worked on various projects to prepare the center for operation and open house.

The Methodist congregation which had owned the building has expressed appreciation that their former church would continue to be used for mission work, and some of the members have visited the center.

A Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking was conducted during the week of October 23, and four evening cooking classes, presented by Mrs. Clarence E. Larsen, are scheduled to begin November 7.

COMMUNITY SERVICES CENTER WORKERS SET RECORDS

Two community services center workers of the southwestern federation have set new records for their individual work. Edith Daniels, right, a member of the Kalamazoo Church, has just completed her 1,000th pair of mittens for use by her local center. She is shown with the center's director, Ona Holman. A non-Adventist working with the Cassopolis center has just completed her 900th pair of baby booties. The volunteer, Mrs. Newhouse, also makes shawls and sweater sets as part of the layettes the center gives to new mothers.

TWO MIDLAND MEMBERS MAKE WOOD CARVING OF THREE ANGELS

Weldon Card and Norman Moll of the Midland Church recently presented a wood sculpture which they had made of the three angels of Revelation 14 to the Midland Church congregation.

The idea came to them after they saw the cover page of the December 14, 1976, issue of the Lake Union Herald. It featured a sculpture which Alan Collins of Andrews University's art department had made for Union

Detail of the wood sculpture.

College in Nebraska. Mr. Card and Mr. Moll, who work with wood as a hobby, felt they could copy Collins' design for their church sanctuary.

The five-foot-diameter sculpture was hung on the wall behind the pulpit of the Midland Church. The two men had spent approximately 150 hours during a five-month period working together on the piece.

Mr. Card, a designer at Dow Chemical, is a member of the National Wood Carvers Association and an instructor in wood carving at the Midland Community Center. Mr. Moll is a research chemist at Dow.

Wisconsin Conference

Len McMillan, Correspondent

WHO AM I?

As the bus jolted on its way to Wisconsin Academy, my mind wandered back to the wonderful time we had just shared at Bible Camp, 1977.

Enthusiastically we bounded from the bus at Camp Wahdoon. The trip had been a long one, and we were looking forward to the meal that was waiting for us. With our stomachs satisfied, we were ready to settle down to the business for which we had come.

Len McMillan, conference youth director, divided us almost Communion by candlelight.

The youngest participants at the Bible Camp.

immediately into groups of eight using the random selection method. We soon found out that our groups included very few of our close friends. Each group then took some chairs and formed a small circle.

We discovered that our theme for this weekend was self-evaluation. We were handed worksheets with titles such as "How to Win at Monopoly." The initial inner response was fear of letting our peers know how we really felt about deep important issues, but after the early group sessions we were able to be relaxed and open with each other.

In the group format we were allowed a few moments to answer the questions on the sheet and then separated into groups of two, four and finally eight. We discussed our answers and why we answered the way we did. This helped us to understand ourselves and our fellow classmates better. It also gave us different viewpoints on a subject.

The questions were designed to help us find out who we are, where we are going and the direction our lives are taking.

The worksheets became more interesting as we began to delve into the lives of Bible characters and compare them to our own. These were all lessons of faith and how others had trusted God or failed to trust Him and what had happened in their lives as a result.

As we examined the lives of these Bible characters and saw their mistakes, we came to the realization that we often relate in the same way. But each time we studied a Bible character's shortcomings, we also studied his formula for success and realized, perhaps for the first time, that we, too, could be victorious.

At the close of each session, we prayed for the working of their formulas in our own lives. This sharing and praying for each other drew us so close together that God was able to touch our lives in a new and unique way. The group sessions created a bond of friendship that will never be broken. For the first time, some of us had shared something really meaningful and important to us with a fellow classmate.

As the Sabbath drew to a close, Elder McMillan announced that our last group activity on Saturday night would be a very special one. Each group would participate in a very personal communion service. He explained that for communion to have the fullest meaning, we must all be one in the spirit.

So we had until supper to search our hearts and make wrongs right. There were many happy tears shed and friendships renewed during this time. Our group got together and prayed individually for every member, and by evening we were ready and anxious to take part in the special communion with nothing separating us from God.

We sat in groups around a candlelit table with a large loaf of unleavened bread and a pitcher of grape juice representing Christ's broken body and spilled blood. Elder McMillan reminded us that we need a large portion of each, because we need a large portion of Christ in our lives. It helped us to realize that our sins are the ones that caused Christ's body to be broken and His blood to be shed.

We washed each other's feet as a symbol of washing away all strife and pride. Then as we passed the bread and the juice around the table, we expressed to the group what each emblem meant in our own lives. At the conclusion we joined hands and prayed. We felt very close to Jesus and to each other.

I'll never forget that night as I learned to appreciate my Saviour and my friends in a new and special way.

What's that? We have arrived at Wisconsin Academy. While I was deep in thought the miles slipped by, and now the time has come for me to put my thoughts into action. Bible Camp, 1977, has been a tremendous blessing to me. Lord, help me to share that blessing with my fellow students and faculty who could not attend.

FESTIVAL OF FAITH

Imagine the impact on the 150,000 people of Lincoln, Nebraska, of four days of enthusiastic witnessing by 5,000 dedicated Adventist youth under the influence of the Holy Spirit!

Young people from the Central, Lake, Northern and Southwestern unions will worship, learn and share in Lincoln during the Festival of Faith, March 29 to April 1, 1978. The Festival's objective is twofold: training and witnessing.

The classroom will be the Pershing Auditorium, almost under the shadow of the capitol's tower, and the laboratory will be the streets, campuses and residences of the city.

Workshops will deal with techniques of personal evangelism, street witnessing, secular campus ministry, music ministry, Christian writing, health evangelism and dark-county evangelism. Immediate experience will come as the participants go into the city to share their faith.

The public will be invited to evening meetings at the auditorium. Special features will include: Ron Halversen, pastor of the Keene, Texas, church, telling his own conversion story, From Gangs to God; the Andrews University Gymnics, and Ann Kiemel, author of I'm Out to Change My World.

The Festival of Faith will also launch a citywide evangelistic campaign with Desmond Hills, associate youth director of the General Conference, as speaker. The opening meeting will be at the Pershing Auditorium, and the campaign will continue in the new College View Church.

How do you get to be a delegate to the Festival of Faith? Ask your pastor, campus chaplain or conference youth director for details. Don't wait; plans are already being made.
