Point Them to Jesus

Jesus said, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." John 3:3. This conversation with Nicodemus not only seeks to explain the mystery of spiritual regeneration but also serves to remind the church that new believers are spiritual babes.

At a very tender age I learned that babies do not thrive on a harsh diet. While my mother worked in the garden she entrusted me to watch over infant twins, my brothers, who were side by side in their crib on the front porch. Understanding their cries to mean food, I pulled two fresh onions from the garden and placed them, dirt and all, one in each open mouth. The screams to follow brought mother's quick attention and an improved diet of warm milk!

The Lake Union Conference family is currently enjoying a good increase in spiritual newborns. This encouraging news leads me to wonder how these new believers are being treated by their older brothers and sisters. Do we treat them with tenderness and love, or do we unthinkingly force-feed strong food?

Speaking of new believers, the scriptures teach, "You are babies, newborn in God's family, and you should be crying out for unadulterated spiritual milk to make you grow up to salvation! And so you will, if you have already tasted the goodness of the Lord." 1 Peter 2:2, 3. Phillips. In due course the Apostle Paul makes clear that spiritual growth does in turn call for stronger spiritual food and a clearer discernment between good and evil Hebrews 5:12-14.

How is it then that older brothers and sisters expect spiritual babes to eat and act like grownups? Is it possible that newborns in the family of God must at times also cope with juvenile antics? Do we feel new believers should be measured by the same progress made by older members? What does it mean—"True sanctification is a daily work, continuing as long as life shall last."—The Sanctified Life, p. 9.

Why did the Apostle Paul admonish each believer to "work out your own salvation with fear and trembling." Philippians 2:12. Do we accomplish this by the well-intentioned guidelines of man or is it through a daily relationship with Jesus. The answer comes back, "The sanctification of the soul is accomplished through steadfastly beholding Him [Christ] by faith as the only-begotten Son of God, full of grace and truth. The power of truth is to transform heart and character."—Seventh-day Adventist Bible Commentary, vol. 6, p. 1117.

We must guard against the human tendency to measure others by our progress or even worse, to serve as their consciences. The family of God is a fellowship of individual souls, each accountable directly to God. God sent His son to ransom each one and offer a perfect example of how to live. As each member seeks to emulate the life of his Saviour, he will in turn strike courage in the heart of his brother or sister.

As a teenager in our church back home, I was often perplexed by the emphasis of what I now understand to be human invention. Serving as conscience for that church, two misguided members introduced soybeans as essential to a proper diet. They also promoted boiled cream in the place of butter. At that time soybeans had not developed to the very edible quality we enjoy today, and I will never understand the improvement of boiled cream over butter. However, one thing soon became clear. In the minds of many, spiritual growth was directly equated with the eating of these two gastronomical innovations. To not tolerate the prescribed diet was to deny spiritual values. The end result was a grotesque sense of guilt and an utterly discouraged church.

God is blessing His family with many new members. As older brothers and sisters, let us encourage them with love and point them to Jesus.

THE HEART OF THE LAKE UNION

A Helping Hand

by Crystal Drake

"For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in: Naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me." Matthew 25:35 and 36.

This is the theme of the Chicago Better Living Center. It all began in 1974 as an idea of Horace L. Jones, then pastor of Independence Boulevard Church, to revive the community outreach program.

Elder Jones extended an invitation to Margaret Rauls to serve as director of the center. She accepted and with her direction, creativeness and determination the Better Living Center has made it possible to reach men and women through education, youth outreach, evangelistic outreach, a medical clinic, and the distribution of food and clothing.

Dr. Walter C. Thompson donates his time to the center as a family practice physician every Monday. Margaret Rauls serves as the nurse in the clinic.

The center is staffed with one full-time worker, 11 young people and volunteers from the community.

Typing classes and sewing classes are held weekly. Nutrition classes are held to teach homemakers how to economically prepare well-balanced meals for their families. The Chicago Better Living Center has also held General Educational Development Test (G.E.D.) preparatory classes.

The youth outreach program consists of 50 workers sponsored through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (C.E.T.A.) during the summer months. These young people help with maintenance, work as assistant directors, serve as receptionists, tutor other young people and instruct craft classes. They are taught how to take temperatures and blood pressure and to keep medical records.

The center has sponsored numerous recreational activities for young people within the community. A clean-up program was staffed through this program to rid the community of debris and to beautify the lawns of the home-owners. Hikes, camp-outs, visits to nursing homes and a library are only a few of the provisions in the youth outreach program.

For the past four years the Better Living Center has sponsored children to attend the Lake Region junior camp. Last year 69 children from the community participated in this program. Mrs. Rauls says her goal is to prepare these young people for future lifetime employment.

A prison was visited to expose the young people to the conditions a prisoner must endure and to serve as a deterrent to crime.

Because of the outstanding work done through the Better Living Center, the Sun Times, a Chicago newspaper, sponsored the center in their "Neediest Family Program" during the Christmas season. With donations from the Burlington Northern Railroad, the center was able to distribute more than $3,000 worth of toys and other items to needy families.

Approximately 800 people are seen each year for medical aid and examinations. Clothing distributions amount to an estimated $3,000 per year and food distribution an additional $2,000.

Possibly the greatest accomplishment of the Chicago Better Living Center is the evangelistic outreach program. As a direct result of the efforts of the center, 50 people have been baptized.

"... Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Matthew 25:40.

ANDREWS AIRPARK DEDICATION—

Wings for the Message

by Kevin McClanahan

Two buildings at the Andrews Airpark, the center for the largest mission aviation program in the world, were dedicated and officially opened in public ceremonies Sunday, May 6.

According to statistics compiled by the Mission Aviation Fellowship, the Seventh-day Adventist church operates the largest fleet of mission aircraft among all churches and mission societies.

Since 1976, Andrews Airpark has been designated by the church as the center for training mission pilots and mechanics and for the purchasing and outfitting of mission aircraft.

William E. Smith, director of the Adventist Aviation Center and Andrews University Airpark, said about 60 of the total 120 planes operated by the church are stationed outside North America, with many in Central Africa, the central and northern part of South America, central Inter-America, Borneo and New Guinea.

The remaining aircraft are operated in North America, serving various functions such as flight training and medical transportation.

Both buildings named in the official opening and dedication are currently in use.

The airport terminal building, which contains the receiver and transmitter for communication with aircraft, offices for airport personnel, a maintenance shop, Cessna dealership, air taxi (charter) operation and flight service, was named the J. L. Tucker Building.

Elder Tucker is the founder and speaker of The Quiet Hour radiobroadcasts. With the help of the program, J. L. Tucker and his son, LaVerne, associate speaker, have been responsible for the purchase of 51 of the 120 aircraft operated by the Seventh-day Adventist church.

Elder Tucker founded The Quiet Hour in 1937 in Portland, Oregon. Moves to Berkeley and Oakland, California, and Berrien Springs were made as The Quiet Hour developed and increased its audience.

It was officially organized as a nonprofit religious corporation in Michigan and settled in its permanent headquarters in Redlands, California.

In 1966, The Quiet Hour sent its first mission plane to Papua, New Guinea. Since that time, the program has sent a total of 51 aircraft and a number of mission boats, motorcycles, jeeps, tractors and Bibles to mission lands.

LaVerne Tucker joined The Quiet Hour staff in 1971 as associate speaker. Both J. L. and LaVerne Tucker took part in the May 6 ceremony.

Kevin L. McClanahan is an editorial assistant in the Andrews University public relations department.

The building in which the Andrews College of Technology offers courses in airplane mechanics was named in memory of Robert E. Seamount, who was active in the mission aviation program of the church until his death in 1976.

Elder Seamount was an Adventist pilot and pastor in Puget Sound, Washington, as well as a member of the King's Heralds Quartet. He later served as a mission pilot in South America.

In the early 1960's, Elder Seamount joined the staff of the Texas Conference. In addition to his work there, he purchased and delivered mission aircraft and sometimes checked out pilots on a "free-lance" basis for the General Conference.

When Elder Seamount died, the General Conference voted to formalize and centralize its mission aviation program at Andrews.

Among those involved in the dedication and open house of the buildings were Joseph G. Smoot, president of Andrews University, and Lowell Bock, vice chairman of the university's board of trustees and president of the Lake Union Conference.

Donald H. Clausen, congressman from California's second district, was the featured speaker. He is a member of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee and the Interior and Insular Affairs Committee.

In 1978 Congressman Clausen was awarded the Frank G. Brewer Trophy by the Society of Aerospace Education for his contribution to the Airport and Airways Development Act, which was passed in 1976. The act makes Federal Aviation Administration (F.A.A.) information available to the private aviation sector.

In the late 1960's, Congressman Clausen was chairman of the Governor's Task Force on Aerospace Education for Governor Ronald Reagan of California. He gave a copy of the task force's report to Joseph G. Smoot and members of the Andrews Airpark advisory board.

In aviation education, Congressman Clausen helped initiate a flight-training program at Delnorte County High School in California and an aviation program at Pacific Union College.

The associate secretary of the General Conference, David H. Baasch, spoke about mission aviation prior to the dedication of two mission planes by LaVerne Tucker and M. S. Nigri, general vice president of the General Conference.

One plane, a Cessna 206 Stationaire, is to go to the Solomon Islands. The other, a Cessna 185, is destined for Sarawak, Borneo. These two planes are the most widely used single-engine aircraft. The Piper Aztec is the primary multi-engine plane in the mission program, according to Mr. Smith.

"These aircraft have proven to be rugged, capable of carrying big loads and are very powerful. They have an excellent flight record," he said.

He added that a mission aviation program demands more of its aircraft than most stateside flying, creating additional challenges for airport personnel.

"Many times aircraft have to be modified to make them more effective as mission planes," Mr. Smith said. "For instance, not all parts of the world carry all types of radios. We have to take into account where the plane is going before we install a communication system."

He added that in order to cope with this problem, Andrews mechanics have been certified to install many of the leading systems available.

The airport also has the authority to install the Robertson STOL, a device that makes it possible to take off and land in a relatively short space.

Extra fuel tanks are mounted for transoceanic flights, and body structure can be modified to allow additional space for supplies and cargo.

Once an airplane has been purchased and modified for overseas use, it must be delivered to the pilot in the field. Mr. Smith and other officials at the airport often deliver aircraft, returning to Andrews by commercial carrier.

"We sometimes 'ferry' a plane to the mission field. This gets us acquainted with some of the problems involved in certain areas and it gives us an understanding of how to outfit the next plane going out," said Mr. Smith.

Ferrying also gives the airpark personnel the opportunity to help mission pilots keep up to date with new methods and techniques.

In February, for instance, Mr. Smith and chief flight instructor Harry Lloyd ferried a plane to Papua, New Guinea, then stopped in Sarawak, Borneo, to conduct an in-service seminar for the mission pilots in that area.

Larry Dalson of Buchanan, Michigan, demonstrated his motorized hang-glider at the airshow. The terminal building just behind the crowd was named after J. L. Tucker. The Robert E. Seamount Building is behind the terminal.

Mr. Smith said this type of continuing education is designed to keep bush pilots aware of the latest technology and policies, thereby ensuring the quality of their flying and the maintenance of their aircraft.

The primary emphasis on education, of course, is at Andrews, where the program originates.

The man responsible for maintaining the quality of all aircraft and the physical facilities at the airport is R. A. George, airport base manager and F.A.A. maintenance shop director. With his direction, the maintenance shop at Andrews has met the standards of the F.A.A. and was awarded repair station certification in 1978.

Andrews' flight school is certified under part 141 of the Federal Aviation Regulations, approved school standards, according to Harry Lloyd, chief flight instructor.

Mr. Smith said 80 percent of a school's graduates must pass the F.A.A. test the first time in order for the school to maintain 141 licensing. The test consists of both written and flight examinations, which Mr. Smith said is a "very rigorous system."

"Our flight school has one of the highest performance rates in this part of the country," said Mr. Smith. "About 95 percent of our students pass the F.A.A. test the first time they take it."

Andrews offers both two- and four-year courses in aviation, after which the student can be certified by passing the F.A.A. examination.

Students enrolled in the two-year course can take either flight training or airplane mechanics, receiving an associate degree in industrial technology.

Those who take airplane mechanics study the airframe or body of the plane during the first year of training, and the power plant or engine during the second.

This August, the first group enrolled in the program will complete the airframe portion, which has been fully accredited by the F.A.A. During the fall quarter of school, those students finishing airframe training will begin the power plant segment.

A four-year degree in aviation technology offers more extensive training to those students who may wish to work in such areas as flight instruction or airport management.

By the time a student graduates from this course, he has had the opportunity to achieve all flight ratings, including the instructor's rating, and the mechanic's ratings and has taken classes in business, qualifying him to operate a business in some aspect of aviation.

The special dedicatory weekend also included meetings of the Andrews University Aviation Advisory Council, General Conference Aviation Committee and Adventist Aviation Association, as well as a mini-airshow, pilot fly-in, and motorized hang-gliding exhibition.

The complex now stands more ready than ever before to render service to Andrews students, the surrounding community, and the mission work of the church for the world at large.

GRADUATE GUILD HOLDS FIRST GRADUATION SERVICE

Andrews University's Graduate Guild held its first graduation service in the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary on May 20.

Pauline Maxwell, sponsor of the club from September 1976 to December 1978, awarded the seven general and five advanced certificates of achievement, assisted by Linda Parrish, Guild president.

The certificates signify coursework in each of the four areas of Children and Youth, Helping People, Health, and Personal Development.

Also presented to members of the Graduate Guild were 27 home nutrition instructor's certificates by home economics professor, Dr. Alice Marsh and Dr. Fonda Chaffee, home economics department chairman.

The certificates are granted by the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists upon the completion of a 30-hour course and will become permanent after participation in three cooking schools.

In addition, the home economics instructors presented 33 permanent home instructor's certificates.

Dr. Thomas H. Blincoe, dean of the theological seminary, gave the charge for the ceremony, stressing the importance of personal development as fostered by Guild classes.

Dr. Ruth Murdoch, professor of educational psychology, related the history of the club.

Organized in 1953, the Graduate Guild is an organization for wives of seminary and graduate students at Andrews University.

In addition to free classes, the Guild provides several other services for its members. Captains are elected for each campus apartment building to provide "direct, daily contact with the Guild."

The "Just-A-Second Boutique," headed by June Bowen, provides an exchange system of clothing, household and miscellaneous items to serve Andrews students from more than 75 countries.

Each spring the Graduate Guild sponsors an international food fair, using proceeds for projects on the Andrews University campus and overseas missions.

More than 5,000 people attended this year's fair, which featured specialty foods from 13 world areas.

FIRST STUDENT EMPLOYEE AWARD GIVEN

Patricia Anderson

Patricia Anderson, a senior health major from Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin, was voted Student Employee of the Year for 1978-79. She is the first person to win the new award.

Miss Anderson, who works in the student finance office, was selected from among more than 60 nominees from campus work departments by a special committee formed by the student labor and housing office.

"It's really hard to say enough nice things about Patsi," says Esther Hare, her boss. "She's so efficient and faithful."

Patsi has worked for student finance the entire time she has been a student at Andrews.

Her cumulative grade-point average stands at 4.0—straight A's.

Patsi is a 1975 graduate of Wisconsin Academy.

CONTINUING EDUCATION SEMINAR HELD IN MARSHFIELD

MID AMERICAN—Mid American's Marshfield Convalescent Center recently co-sponsored a physician continuing education seminar, "Medical Problems in the Elderly Patient."

Participating in sponsorship with the Marshfield Convalescent Center were the Marshfield Clinic and the Marshfield Medical Foundation.

The seminar was attended by approximately 80 health professionals from central Wisconsin.

James Struthers, M.D., medical director of the Marshfield Convalescent Center and Robert G. Meharry, administrator of the facility, served as moderators. Participating faculty members included physicians and other healthcare professionals from the Marshfield Clinic.

Topics covered included general medicine approach to the senior citizen, urinary tract infections, emotional problems in the elderly, surgery in the elderly, arthritis in the senior citizen, common neurological problems in the elderly, and a round table symposium on rehabilitation.

The program was approved for 4-3/4 hours of credit from the Wisconsin Academy of Family Physicians.

DOWNERS GROVE NEWS NOTES

• Servant, a newly organized youth singing group, gave their first performance at Downers Grove Church on Sabbath, April 28. Dave Ross, spokesman for the group, will schedule any summer dates for area churches. Two members will attend Adventist colleges this fall.

• On Sabbath, May 5, six men were ordained as deacons at Downers Grove: Don Johnson, Don Jensen, Wally Torkel, Roger Worrell, Marlin Eineke and Dave Ross. Assisting Pastor John Baldwin in the service were Robert Ammons, conference lay activities leader, and former pastor, Rodney Dale. For vespers the congregation was treated to a nature presentation, "The Psalms Around Us," by Don Van Polen.

• Roy Wightman, vice president of Hinsdale Hospital, presented a program entitled "Coffee" on Sabbath, May 12, for vespers. During the program Ed Robinson, a lawyer and hospital administrator, sang a solo.

QUINCY CENTER HAS NEW DIRECTOR

Elsie Wiemerslage officially took over the director's duties at the Adventist Community Center in Quincy on Monday, May 14. Mrs. Wiemerslage has been administrative housekeeper at Blessing Hospital and Good Samaritan nursing home in Quincy. As director of the center she succeeds Sharon Hurt, who will be employed at Little Grassy Lake, Illinois, for the summer.

NEWS NOTE

• Big week was the biggest ever with a total processed sales of $46,543, reports Ralph Sellers, conference publishing director. This figure compares with $28,196 for big week in 1978. Literature evangelists and assistants, Bill Whitely, Saul Agosto, Len Hickman, Guillermo Zenner, Gordon Pollitt, Tom Brito and Eugene Torres, all brought in more than $2,000. Elder Sellers and union publishing director John Bernet canvassed in each area of the conference during the week. Other totals included: 1,766 hours, 817 demonstrations, 3,148 pieces of free literature distributed, 500 Bible course enrollments, 572 prayers offered, 22 Bible studies given and 3 baptisms reported so far.

• Saturday, April 28, a farewell social was held in the Indiana Academy gym for two longtime members, Esther Little and Billy Keller, who have recently moved to Keene, Texas, to be near Mrs. Little's son, Bob. Billy and Esther were honored by poems and songs and gifts of appreciation by their fellow members.

TWO YOUTH BAPTIZED IN GARY

Sabbath, April 14, was a high day at the Glen Park Church, because the members and visitors witnessed the baptism of two young men. Jeff Adair, right, and Ken Zale, left, are both students at the local church school. Jeff is already sensing a call to the gospel ministry, and Ken is thinking of a career in mechanics, possibly in a remote denominational outpost. Carl Johnson, center, district pastor, prepared these boys for baptism in a weekly doctrinal study class at the school.

FAITHFULNESS WINS PEOPLE

Faithfulness in Sabbath observance by a young Adventist student attending a United Brethren College in Huntington, Indiana, eventually led to the baptism of two people, including the treasurer of a local Protestant church. Here is how it happened.

Joseph Fider, a native of Jamaica, came to the United States in 1969 to attend Huntington College. While a student there he attended the local Adventist church and witnessed for his faith whenever he could.

He refused to work on Sabbath at the local printing firm where he worked while a student. The print-shop owner, who is also a Protestant minister, was baffled when he offered Joe extra money to work on Sabbath and was turned down.

The minister mentioned this strange behavior by an obviously needy college student to his church treasurer, Jean Dolby. She began noticing the conduct of the young man.

Joe further perplexed school officials when graduation time came. Huntington College officials made special provision for him to receive his diploma because he couldn't attend Sabbath graduation exercises. Mrs. Dolby heard about this experience from her pastor, Joe's employer.

Some time later Mrs. Dolby picked up a copy of the book Planet In Rebellion by George Vandeman at a garage sale. She read it carefully, finding that the things she had seen Joseph Fider practicing were in the Bible. Discussions with her pastor and others failed to provide the satisfaction her inquiring mind was seeking.

Then an It Is Written Seminar was conducted in Huntington last summer by students from Andrews University Seminary.

Mrs. Dolby and her son, Jeff, received handbills and were soon attending every night. Those conducting the meetings were surprised to find that after only attending a few meetings, Mrs. Dolby was already making plans to join the Adventist church.

Before the end of the meetings, Mrs. Dolby had told her employer that she would need to have Sabbaths off. She had seen the faithfulness of Joseph Fider in keeping the Sabbath and the Lord was calling her to do the same.

On July 22, 1978, Mrs. Dolby and her son, Jeff Alred, were baptized, the first fruits of the evangelistic meetings held by seminarians James Stevens, David Slee and Ray Philips.

"Jeff is a student at Indiana Academy now," explains Huntington first elder Philip Lutz, "and he's planning to be a minister. He has already spoken during the 11 o'clock hour on Sabbath at both Fort Wayne and Huntington, and did very well," he added.

Mrs. Dolby is an active member of the small Huntington Church, giving Bible studies, teaching Sabbath School classes and helping in every way she can.

"It wasn't until a couple of months after Mrs. Dolby was baptized that Joseph Fider, currently first elder of the Hannah Street Adventist Church in Fort Wayne, learned of her experience and baptism," said Mr. Lutz. "When he was invited to speak at Huntington and met Mrs. Dolby and her son last fall, there were some moving moments.

"We rejoice at what the Lord was able to do through the faithfulness of Joe Fider," comments Mr. Lutz. "He is currently working on a master's degree at a Catholic college in Fort Wayne, and it will be interesting to see what happens as a result."

PATHFINDERS VISIT WEATHER SERVICE

On March 22 the weather class of the Cicero Pathfinder Club took a tour through the National Weather Service office located at the Indianapolis International Airport.

Otto Kolditz, an employee, showed the class the radar system and the various instruments used in collecting and recording weather data.

He explained how forecasts are made, flood stages throughout the state are determined, and weather warnings and watches are issued.

Since this is a government office, Mr. Kolditz supplied the group with government publications on weather and related matters.

AIRPLANE RIDE REWARDS INGATHERERS

In endeavoring to make Ingathering more enjoyable and fun at Glendale, Kermit Taylor promised "an hour in the air over Indiana" to the three youth attending Indianapolis Junior Academy and two adults who raised the most money.

Michele Hartson, who in her first year raised more than $170; Bobby Passmore, $155, and Jeff Jewett, $130, won the flight. Runners-up were Kim Prather, Delbert Bateman Jr. and Angela Hammans.

Bobby Passmore and Michele Hartson are ready to take to the air with Kermit Taylor.

On April 30 the youth went to the McCordsville Airport for a ride in Kermit Taylor's Gulf-Stream American Tiger.

Hazel Kerley, who raised more than $230 at shopping malls, and Ed Horner, who raised more than $220 as a door-to-door worker, will soon take to the air.

The Glendale Church members raised the largest amount ever by claiming the promise, "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord of hosts." Zechariah 4:6.

NEW MEMBERS ADDED TO VALPARAISO CHURCH

Not long ago the Valparaiso Church finished construction on a new church building. On Sabbath, April 12, five new members joined the church after baptism. This is the second baptismal service in the new church.

Among those baptized were Dawna Coleman, Bonnie Nicholas, and Rodney, Paul and Jack Hines. This group attended the pastor's Friday-evening Bible classes and the Reach Out For Life evangelistic series.

Mr. and Mrs. Hines have encouraged their sons to project a positive Christian witness. Bonnie's mother, Karen, has strengthened her daughter's determination to stand firm for principle amid the tests she has met in the public school regarding her faith.

Dawna Coleman accepted this message as a result of the witness of two church members, Wayne Ratcliff and Rosemary Hines. Mr. Ratcliff, of the Gary Glen Park Church, first met Mrs. Coleman when he went to do a plumbing job for her. She asked him to work for her on Sabbath. When he explained why he could not, she began to ask him questions.

Mr. Ratcliff left some Bible lessons for Mrs. Coleman and gave her name to Rosemary Hines, a member of the Valparaiso Church. Rosemary faithfully studied the Bible with Mrs. Coleman, and invited her to Sabbath services and the evangelistic meetings. After attending the meetings Mrs. Coleman decided to be baptized.

NEWS NOTES

- A community service award was presented by the Benton Harbor Fairplain Church to the manager of the local radio station. Kent Slocum was selected, Pastor Lee Grady reports, because of his continued interest in the growth and welfare of the twin cities of St. Joseph and Benton Harbor. The presentation was made during Sabbath morning services, May 12.

- Claude N. Keiser of the Berrien Springs Village Church celebrated his 90th birthday on May 4. He graduated from Adelphian Academy and in 1912 from Emmanuel Missionary College. He served for many years as secretary treasurer for various institutions and local conferences.

- A four-session cooking school conducted by the Marquette Church attracted many people and made several friends for the church. Delores Williams, Kathy Williams, Lynee Hamm, Betty Alkins and Rhonda Schneider directed the presentations.

- The recently held Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking at Shelby resulted in at least 11 of the 14 smokers who attended claiming good results. A survey conducted at the beginning of the program indicated that the group had already spent more than $66,000 on their cigarette habit.

- At a recent church board meeting the Benton Harbor Fairplain Church voted to select a committee to locate and purchase property for a new church and school.

Children gathered at the evangelistic meetings for the primary group.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS HELD FOR EARLITEEN, JUNIOR AND PRIMARY CHILDREN

An unusual 10-night evangelistic series for youth was conducted in the Pioneer Memorial Church, February 25 to March 11, 1979.

Anthony Castelbuono, youth pastor, and a corps of 30 volunteer assistants held two simultaneous meetings in the church for two different age groups.

The first group was for primary and junior children, grades two to five; the second, for earliteens, grades six to eight.

The services featured Bible films, stories, music and the highlight of the evening, an illustrated lecture by Pastor Castelbuono. In language these young minds could grasp, he told the story of Joseph to present the doctrines of the church.

The attendance ranged from 229 to 404, filling the two rooms where they met.

In the earliteen group, 47 expressed a desire to be baptized.

The meetings were a special supplement to the Bible studies that Elder Castelbuono gives to students for two years in grades five and six, culminating in baptism after the sixth grade.

Similar studies are also given to the seventh- and eighth-graders who are not yet church members.

The unanimous decision of the young people was, "Let's have another evangelistic series next year!"

OLIVE HANOVER HONORED BY FELLOW CHURCH MEMBERS

The 99th birthday of Olive Hanover of the Linden Church was remembered by her fellow church members as they presented her with a beautiful azalea plant. Born in Galien, Michigan, on February 22, 1880, she married in 1906 and lived in Buchanan for many years. She became an Adventist about 50 years ago, and is "a warm, friendly Christian" who missed attending church last winter three times, but only because of the weather. She says she has had only one severe illness in her life, the Spanish flu in 1918. She now resides in rural Howell with her daughter, Hildred Thornburgh.

CEDAR LAKE ACADEMY MUSIC DEPARTMENT UPDATE

The four musical groups of Cedar Lake Academy's music department have been busy this year with a combined total of 40 concerts and 25 off-campus trips.

Department chairman Steve Hall said the 81-member band was the largest of these groups.

The 50-member choir, directed by Gail Hall, performed throughout Michigan from Traverse City to Andrews University in 11 concerts.

The 16-member Madrigals, with Nada Milenkovic as their director, had 23 off-campus performances.

During spring break in April the group enjoyed a very special trip beginning with a morning-long workshop at Andrews Academy, and ending with an Easter performance at a Chicago television station.

An even bigger trip, as far as distance is concerned, was taken by the 12-member brass ensemble. They toured through Ohio, Tennessee and Georgia.

Add 30 other off-campus performances, including visits to Broadview and Indiana Academies, and you have a well-traveled music department.

Looking ahead to next year, the department has several attractions, including lowered music lesson charges—$8 a month instead of $17.

With the coming of a new teacher, Randy Day, presently at Collegedale Academy, to teach piano and organ, there will be a new and exciting addition to the program—strings, such as violin, viola, cello and string bass and a string ensemble.

SAULT SAINTE MARIE CHURCH HOLDS 5-DAY PLAN

A Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking was sponsored by the Sault Sainte Marie Church during the week of April 23 through 27 at the Bayliss Public Library of the city. Twenty-seven people, shown above, registered for the group therapy, and all but three finished the plan. Twenty-three claimed to have broken the tobacco habit by the last night. Pastor Phil Hopkins teamed up with Harry Selby, a church member who is head of the X-ray department of a local hospital. Representatives from the county health department, American Cancer Society and the Michigan Lung Association also gave assistance. A victory dinner was held for those who quit and their spouses. Three more stop-smoking plans are scheduled by the Sault Sainte Marie and Newberry churches for this year, reports Elder Hopkins.

FESTIVAL OF THE WORD HELD AT BATTLE CREEK

More than 300 youth from around Michigan attended the "Festival of the Word" youth rally at Battle Creek Academy, May 5.

Smuts van Rooyen, assistant professor of religion at Andrews University, was the guest speaker and presented a message of God's love and acceptance to those attending the services. His challenge was to "believe God's great love and allow it to change your life."

The Andrews University Gymnics provided excellent music and leadership during the weekend. They directed the Sabbath School and in the afternoon took the young people out for a community religious survey.

As a result, 44 individuals requested Bible studies. Wayne Hicks, coordinator for the youth rally and associate pastor at the Battle Creek Tabernacle, will follow up these interests with neighborhood Bible study groups.

The rally ended with a Gymnics performance on Saturday night. According to Don Williams Jr., senior youth coordinator for the conference, plans are already being made for next year's rally.

CROSS-COUNTRY SKIS PURCHASED WITH SPECIAL OFFERING

Thanks to the generosity of Michigan's Pathfinder leaders, 20 pairs of cross-country skis and accessories were purchased for winter fun at Camp Au Sable.

Pathfinder leaders had been informed that a special offering was to be taken at the annual workshop held at Au Sable this year in mid-March.

About 230 of these leaders attending the weekend nature study program contributed all but $150 for the ski fund. A Michigan doctor made up the difference.

The skis, poles, bindings and shoes were obtained at a discount from a professional ski shop at Ann Arbor, the owner of which is a cousin of the Adventist doctor who gave the extra financial help.

Dick Willis, who works for the State Highway Department, took time off from work to accompany Elder Fleming to Ann Arbor to pick up the skiing equipment, and with the use of the shop's special equipment put the bindings on the skis.

The equipment is now at the camp waiting for the snows of next winter to bring fun to many of Au Sable's visitors.

NEWS NOTE

• A Heartbeat program was offered to the residents of Stevens Point, April 22, 23, and May 8. About 45 people attended and had blood drawn to determine the risk of heart attack. Wes Olfert of River Pines Health Services, Dr. Donald Casebolt of Stevens Point, Charles Biggs of Watertown, Wisconsin, and Marlene Burgeson of Stevens Point assisted with the program.

THE REWARDS OF LITERATURE EVANGELISM

More than a year ago I visited a young couple, Peter and Remy, whom the Lord had impressed to purchase The Desire of Ages, Your Bible and You, and a family Bible. At the time they were beginning studies with a Jehovah's Witness.

Later I asked a layman to try giving Bible studies to this couple, and he did. As the studies progressed, the young husband invited his Uncle Richard and Aunt Cynthia to the studies. The Lord wrought a real conviction in the hearts of the uncle and aunt. They chose to join God's remnant church by baptism in the fall of 1978.

As new Christians Richard and Cynthia shared their newfound love for Christ with Richard's brother, Mike. On Sabbath, April 7, 1979, Mike was baptized and began a new life. He is now considering becoming a minister.

Later Richard and Mike's mother requested baptism. Peter and Remy are still studying.

What great things the Lord has done! As literature evangelists, we simply sow the gospel seed. The Lord, working in the hearts of a faithful layman and this family, has done it all.

Fellow workers, if you only sell one volume or one piece of literature, do not be discouraged. "For thou knowest not whether shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good." Ecclesiastes 11:6.

The first part of the verse gives the secret, "In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand: . . ."

May we all be faithful seed sowers and some day, with Jesus, rejoice in the abundant harvest for His glory.

Terry Dicken, Literature Evangelist

50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

On May 2, 1979, Robert and Martha Andrus of Madison celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. A celebration to commemorate this event was held May 13 at the home of their daughter, Gloria McDonough. The Andruses were married at the Adventist church in Chetek. They have five children, Robert, Rodney and Ralph of Oconomowoc; Ronald of Knoxville, Tennessee, and Gloria McDonough of Stoughton. Mr. and Mrs. Andrus are employed by the Wisconsin Conference in custodial work.

OXFORD DORCAS SOCIETY

The Oxford Dorcas Society consists of seven active members, ages 62 to 90.

During 1978 they sorted, repaired and packed 146 boxes of clothing for shipment to the New York warehouse.

There is never a lack of clothing because people in the surrounding community know of the work of the society and contribute generously. Some of the clothing which is received is used for local needs when there is a fire or other calamity.

Help

Money could be saved each month if Herald readers would send in their own address changes. The Postal Service charges 25 cents each for the hundreds of address changes we receive each month. Use the form on the back page which includes your former address on a computer label.

IN THE WARMTH OF HIS LOVE, Brad and Olive Braley. Chapel/Bridge Records, Mountain View, California. $5.98, album; $6.98, tape.

This new album with the organ/piano duo of Brad and Olive Braley features favorites played in their many public appearances.

Malinki of Malawi

Josephine Cunningham Edwards

MALINKI OF MALAWI, by Josephine C. Edwards. Pacific Press Publishing Association, Mountain View, California. $3.50.

This is a story of the struggle of Malinki and his mother for their existence in Africa. But it is more than the struggle for existence; it shows the courage and strength of one born in slavery to forge ahead and make a better life.

OUR REAL ROOTS, compiled by Leo R. Van Dolson. Review and Herald Publishing Association, Washington, D.C. $7.95.

For several years Ministry magazine has included a section where scientists from a wide variety of specialized disciplines have presented well-reasoned and documented support for faith in a biblical creation. While he was an editor of that magazine, Leo Van Dolson, Ph.D., M.P.H., compiled and edited Our Real Roots as a representative selection of the best articles on the subject. Physics, biology, astronomy, anthropology and geology all make their contribution to the total picture.

World Church News

FROM EVERY NATION

The United States of America is known around the world as a cosmopolitan nation because peoples from every country have immigrated here.

With them, of course, have come their great diversity of languages and cultures.

America has become great because of the wealth of heritage these people have shared with its citizens.

The varied background and languages have, however, created a challenge to the completion of the Gospel commission. A challenge? Yes.

Impossible? Not a bit for the all-powerful God of the Universe.

As His stewards—trustees—each Adventist on this continent has the privilege of giving to the North American missions offering on June 16, 1979.

People living in the Lake Union territory—with its many multi-ethnic cities—will be greatly benefited as this offering will be blessed and multiplied by God.

They are here from every nation. But the burden of Christ and His followers is that they all may be one. A united people. All citizens of the kingdom of heaven.

P.U.C. DEVELOPS TEXT INFORMATION CENTER

A computer-assisted text research project known as the Adventist Religious Text Information Center (ARTIC) will soon be initiated at Pacific Union College.

Fred Veltman, chairman of the college's religion department, says, "Our plans are to collect data for church officials, scholars and lay people of the Seventh-day Adventist Church which can be readily available to help solve methodological and theological issues for which extensive research of biblical writings and Ellen G. White's books is required."

The first steps will involve an analysis of the types and extent of information usually desired by Adventist students of the Bible and E. G. White writings.

Once this has been accomplished, Elder Veltman and his staff, working with the computer science department, plan to develop a computer program which will permit the accumulated religious text material to be retrieved and analyzed carefully and systematically.

The religious text research proposal was authorized by the College Board of Trustees earlier this year, according to Dr. Gordon Madgwick, academic dean.

P.P.A. SEEKS MANUSCRIPTS

The Pacific Press Publishing Association is searching for the best manuscripts that can be written by clear-thinking, sensitive authors, so that the power of the Gospel can more fully accomplish its purpose.

Manuscripts will be judged in six categories: Health; Seventh-day Adventist Doctrine; Christian Biography; Christian Home; What Being a Seventh-day Adventist Has Meant to Me, or Christian Self-improvement; and Creationism.

The winner in each category will receive $1,000 and the runner-up, $500.

Three equally important criteria will guide the judges: quality of writing, timeliness, and positive Christian edification in harmony with the principles of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Each manuscript will be assigned a number and will be read anonymously; manuscripts not specifically awarded may be accepted for publication.

Only unpublished manuscripts are eligible and should not exceed 250 double-spaced, typewritten pages, or be less than 64 pages. Categories may be unawarded if no manuscript is judged qualified.

Deadline is a postmark on or before February 15, 1980. Send manuscript to: SEARCH, Pacific Press Publishing Association, 1350 Villa Street, Mountain View, CA 94042.

CHRISTIANS ARE RELUCTANT TO TALK FAITH

A lot of Christians are reluctant to talk about their faith to people outside the church. This was brought out in a recent survey among members of the Lutheran Church in America, and it has been a damper on religious vitality in modern society. According to an analysis of the Lutheran Church in America survey, the lack of excitement about their faith is the highest barrier to be found around any church congregation.

A.B.S. TO PUBLISH CHILDREN'S GOOD NEWS BIBLE

A special children's edition of the Good News Bible will be part of the American Bible Society's plans to produce and distribute Scriptures aimed at young audiences throughout 1979. This program will coincide with the United Nations—proclaimed International Year of the Child. The new children's Bible is scheduled for publication in April. The American Bible Society's goal is to reach every child in the United States with the Word of God this year.
