Martinsville Members Baptized in Pond

INDIANA—The 28-member Martinsville, Indiana, Church set up chairs in the aisles to accommodate the 80 people who attended the first nights of their Revelation Seminar. Forty people completed the course. Three baptisms were the immediate result, with many seeds planted for future reaping. Above, Pastor Ed Barnett stands with Earl and Pat Huffman after their baptism in a pond on the property of Jo Ann Clephane, a church member. Barbara Bennett was also baptized in the pond; she was the 15th member baptized at this site.

Pioneer Days Acquaint City With Adventists

MICHIGAN—On May 25 and 26 Battle Creek area Seventh-day Adventists donned clothing from the 1800's and joined the city in celebrating Pioneer Days at Leila Arboretum and Kingman Museum.

Church services were held in a tent on Sabbath and Sunday morning at 10:30. Elder Wayne Olson presented the sermon while Ralph Benedict and Bill Straight presided as elders.

Duff Stoltz arranged and directed the church service, and his wife, Joyce, played the old pump organ.

The Battle Creek health message was portrayed in a skit written by Mildred Olson, English teacher at Battle Creek Academy. The skit was given four times each afternoon.

This is the third year Battle Creek members have used Pioneer Days to help acquaint the city with early Adventist contributions to better living.

Andrews Academy Named Among Nation's Top Schools

MICHIGAN—Andrews Academy is among 277 schools named by the Department of Education as the nation's finest.

The school was one of 65 private and 212 public schools picked for national recognition in the annual Schools of Excellence program.

Andrews Academy is operated by Andrews University and has about 300 students in grades 9 to 12.

R. T. Orrison, Andrews Academy principal, said: "We are very pleased that Andrews Academy has been selected for this special recognition. The selection indicates that the school is founded on a well-designed philosophy, and that its program is structured to meet specific objectives based on that philosophy."

The exemplary school designation is a complement to the Nation at Risk report on the quality of education in the United States. Former Secretary of Education Terrel Bell first developed a plan to recognize public schools, then created the Exemplary Private School Recognition Project.

Dr. Orrison said that Andrews Academy received a mail-o-gram on June 21, 1985, notifying the school of the designation and advising that a letter with further explanation and details of an award ceremony in Washington, D.C., would follow.

When the school was nominated for the award in March, school officials said that in the past four years at Andrews some 89 percent of the school's graduates pursued a college education, fewer than one percent of the students dropped out of school, and on any given day 97.5 percent of the students are in attendance.

Andrews Academy is one of two private and seven public schools in Michigan to receive the national recognition in 1985.

Andrews Academy and the other private schools were selected by the Council for American Private Education (C.A.P.E.) from 257 senior high schools. The private schools selected are in 27 states and Puerto Rico. C.A.P.E. received a Department of Education grant to carry out the program.

Schools are ranked based on 14 attributes of success and seven indicators of effective programs that include: clear academic goals, order and discipline, high expectations for students, student performance on standard achievement and minimum competency tests, attendance rates, awards won by students, and number of students who go on to post secondary schools, enlist in the military, or find employment.

Final Approval Received For Guam Broadcast Center

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Only the rains stand in the way of construction on Adventist World Radio—Asia facilities in Guam, since zoning variance approval was granted July 25.

Action by the Territorial Planning Commission (T.P.C.) culminates two months of hearings and interviews by the full commission and subcommittees.

"In a few days we will have our formal building permits, so we can start grading the road," says Allen Steele, A.W.R.—Asia's general manager.

Long-awaited governmental approval came at the height of Guam's rainy season. "The red clay at the station site near the southern village of Agat is impassable on a rainy day, and then it takes three days of sunshine to dry out the soil sufficiently for successful grading," Dr. Steele explains.

T.P.C.'s okay follows by 10 months the granting of a construction permit by the Federal Communications Commission for the 24-hour Adventist broadcast center.

Initially there will be four 300-foot antennas and two 100,000-watt transmitters.

Capable of broadcasting the gospel message by shortwave to all of Asia—Siberia to Sri Lanka—the station is being funded by Adventists around the world.

Still about $700,000 short of the $5 million goal, the project is expected to begin actual construction in late August when Bob Etchell arrives to head building crews. Mr. Etchell is first elder of the Healdsburg, California, congregation.

Programming is already being developed under the direction of Andrea Steele by students at Asian Adventist colleges, and an engineering staff is being put together by Butch McBride.

Both the governor and Agat commissioner strongly endorsed the presence of A.W.R. on Guam.

Dr. Robert Maddox Speaks at Shiloh Church

LAKE REGION—Robert L. Maddox Jr., executive director of Americans United for the Separation of Church and State, was recently the guest speaker at the Shiloh Church in Chicago during the divine worship services.

Shiloh was celebrating a special day emphasizing the importance of religious liberty.

Dr. Maddox, a baptist minister and author of several books, is best known for his book entitled Preacher at the White House. This book is an account of his experiences in the White House during the Jimmy Carter administration when he served as a speech writer and liaison to the religious community.

During his sermon at Shiloh, his greatest emphasis was upon the importance of citizens in the United States becoming more concerned about maintaining their religious liberties. According to Dr. Maddox, too many

Dr. Robert L. Maddox Jr., executive director of Americans United for the Separation of Church and State, recently worshiped with the Shiloh congregation in Chicago when he was guest speaker for their Religious Liberty Day.

Americans are taking religious freedoms for granted and do not realize that slowly but surely, if they allow it to happen, religious liberty will be a thing of the past.

Dr. Maddox spent 20 years in the pulpit as pastor of a number of southern churches. He has been a frequent guest on both radio and television talk shows and news-related programs.

The Joy of Soul Winning

Ellen White writes in Evangelism, page 115, "The formation of small companies [bands] as a basis of Christian effort is a plan that has been presented before me by One who cannot err."

She continues, "The more closely we imitate the harmony and order of the angelic host, the more successful will be the efforts of these heavenly agents in our behalf."

Ray and Madlyn Hamblin, featured in this year's NO ONE BUT YOU program, "One Tiny Snowflake," admit they have experienced the value of these words. The Hamblins work with a small band in a Revelation Seminar ministry at the Adrian, Michigan, Church.

The team has conducted four Revelation Seminars since they organized two years ago. Their fifth seminar begins on September 16. As a result of their ministry, 11 individuals have joined the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Recently the Hamblins shared some insights into the success of their seminar team. They are quick to say, "We attribute any success to the power of prayer, the working of the Holy Spirit, and the joy our team members receive in winning souls to Christ."

There has also been a lot of strategic planning and simple hard work to make their Revelation Seminar effective. The Hamblins speak of this planning in terms of choosing a team, the church's role, and the pastor's role.

Madlyn and Ray Hamblin

Choosing a team

"When we chose our team members, we felt impressed to ask certain people. We tried to use people—older people, young couples, and singles—with a variety of talents."

"Two older women were asked to answer the telephones; something they could do without leaving their homes. One of the women's talents came alive with this job—she is a retired secretary. Loretta Montgomery was not only very helpful in answering questions about the seminar, she filled out cards we used to perfection. She also attended our seminar classes on a regular basis along with her non-Adventist daughter. Her daughter was the first seminar student to be baptized."

"We also asked two young couples to help us. One couple had been recently baptized and the other couple were their special friends. They enjoyed working together."

"An appeal was made at our church for anyone who was interested in helping to meet with us after the service. We did not turn down anyone who wanted to help—we used them in some way or another."

"I might also add that a few weeks before each seminar begins our staff meets on a Saturday night for a special evening of orientation and socializing."

"We meet and have sundown worship together and then discuss our roles at the seminar. We make it very clear what each person is to do. We ask for questions, we share testimonies, sing, and pray together."

"Then we have a light meal and spend the rest of the evening socializing and playing games. Through this association we have grown as church members and team members. As a result, we have become a very close-knit group."

The Church's Role

"Before each seminar we take a few minutes during the church service to give the members an update on how plans are progressing. We take this opportunity to ask for additional volunteers."

"The church also holds special prayer meetings for the group. It is a moving experience to kneel in church and hear so many people praying for you."

"The support of the church members is vital. Without this support we would not have accomplished what we have."

"Many of the church members support us by their regular attendance at the seminars. They show themselves friendly and helpful to the extent of even providing transportation for people who might need a ride to the meetings. One non-Adventist couple was so impressed with the friendliness of church members Paul and Thera Wolf, they sent them a card of thanks."

The Pastor's Role

"Once again the book Evangelism presents an important thought. Mrs. White writes on page 114, 'As ministers put forth calm, steady, devoted effort to educate the church members to engage in personal work for souls wherever there are favorable openings, success will mark their labors.'

"Prior to our first seminar, Elder Albert Parker, our pastor, helped church members identify their talents by presenting a series of Sabbath sermons on spiritual gifts. Then we took the spiritual gifts test. Members were encouraged to become involved with the seminar in their areas of expertise."

"Elder Parker also supports our Revelation Seminars by his presence. During the actual seminar meetings, he takes a back seat. He also leaves his black suit at home. Elder Parker only answers questions when we get into difficulty, or when he is specifically asked."

"However, it is always interesting to watch as the class progresses, for the pastor's role becomes stronger and stronger. Students begin to identify with his spiritual leadership, and gradually there is a shift in allegiance from us to the pastor."

Yes, there is a lot of hard work in conducting Revelation Seminars. But the Hamblins won't hesitate a moment to say it's worth all the time and effort. The benefits are endless for them."

Most of all they have the incomparable joy of seeing lives dedicated to the Lord.

Biology Teacher Sights 701st Bird

ANDREWS UNIVERSITY—C. Roy Smith, a birdwatcher for nearly 40 years, recently returned from a trip where he spotted his 701st bird.

Mr. Smith left for the Alaskan island of Attu, the westernmost island of the Aleutian chain, on May 17. He returned home on June 10.

When he left for Attu, only 29 people in the United States had sighted more than 700 birds.

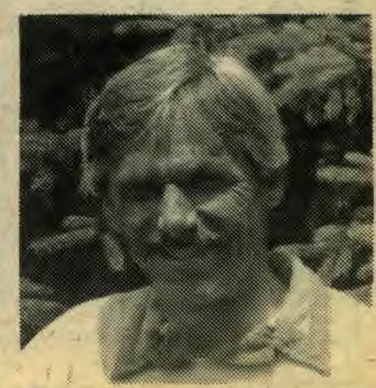

The sightings made on Attu allowed Mr. Smith to add to his list several Asiatic species that had been blown off course during their migrations.

Other birds on his list include South and Central American species he sighted while in the southwestern portions of the United States.

Mr. Smith has been a biology teacher at Andrews Academy since 1961. He received a master of science degree in biology from the University of Michigan and taught in the Adventist school system in Massachusetts and Illinois before coming to Andrews.

He is a member of the National Association of Biology Teachers, the American Ornithologists Union, the Wilson Ornithological Society, the Cooper Ornithological Society and the American Birding Association.

A Seven-Step Plan To Abundant Living

INDIANA—Seven-year-old Glen, his life hovering in the balance, lay unconscious in the hospital for over two weeks, the victim of a terrible accident due to his deliberate disregard of parental warnings not to ride his bike on the highway.

Fortunately, God heard the many prayers sent up in Glen's behalf, and spared his life. But his recovery took many long months of suffering, and to learn to walk again Glen had to begin with crawling. So complete was his recovery that once into high school Glen was able to participate in various sports. But in spite of all this activity and a strong social life, Glen sensed something was missing.

With high school and one year of college behind him, Glen needed a summer job. While selling family photograph plans, he met a young couple who befriended him, and best of all, introduced him to their best friend, Jesus, through Bible studies.

Finding a new life in Christ, which took away the empty feeling he had experienced, Glen wanted to share his story and help others find the more abundant life he has found in Jesus.

As a way of doing this, Glen has developed what he calls The Seven-Step Path to More Abundant Life. This plan shows how to step across the bridge that spans the gulf separating man from God. That bridge is Jesus, and the steps are as follows:

1. Discover God's Love and God's Plan for Your Life. (Jeremiah 31:3; John 3:16, and John 10:10—Select different people to read aloud the texts given at the end of each step.)

2. Understand That Sin Has Separated Man From God. (Isaiah 59:2; Romans 3:23; 1 John 3:4)

3. Discover That Jesus Is the Only One Who Can Bridge the Gulf That Sin Has Made. (John 14:6; Isaiah 53:4-6, 12)

4. Know That Jesus, the Word, Unites Us to God by Means of His Promises. (John 1:1; John 1:14; 2 Peter 1:4)

5. Realize Jesus Calls This Unity With God a New Birth, the Great Need of Every Person. (John 3:3)

6. Claim His Promises. "Whatever gift He promises, is in the promise itself . . . If we receive the promise, we have the gift." (Education, page 253; Luke 8:11; 1 John 1:9)

7. Ask Christ to Wash Away Your Sins and Give You a New Heart, Then Believe. "What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them." (Mark 11:24; Ezekiel 36:26, 27; Isaiah 1:18; Hebrews 10:16)

When the Holy Spirit has begun a new life in your heart, you will know the great joy and satisfaction that comes from serving Jesus Christ.

This relationship with Christ provides the rest, stability, confidence and knowledge that all of your present and future needs will be provided. The outcome of this type of relationship is truly abundant living.

Prairie View Adds New Members After Seminars

ILLINOIS—Three people were baptized as a result of a series of outreach meetings presented by the Prairie View church members in Monmouth, Illinois. After a Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking and an Eight Days to Resolving Stress program, many attendees took advantage of How to Make Christianity Real, a seminar which introduced the basic gospel message in a practical way. Next, a Revelation Seminar was conducted by Pastor Bradford Newton (right). More than 40 people attended the eight-week seminar. Those baptized were, from left, Wylda Neidy, Helen Ross and Barbara Harrison. "Right now these new Adventists and interests from the meetings are attending a follow-up summer Bible class at the church on Thursday evenings," said Pastor Newton.

Cadillac Welcomes Three New Members

MICHIGAN—A baptism held in the Cadillac, Michigan, Church on June 1 included Ken Leyder, left. His baptism "was the answer to years of earnest prayer by his wife, Catherine, and many others," said Mary Lou Kline, communication secretary. Ken's name had been placed in the Cadillac Church prayer box, and the whole church was interceding in his behalf. Robyn Grover, center, has taken several sets of Bible studies and finally decided to publicly confess her faith through the act of baptism. Jeff Duncan, who stands with Pastor James Micheff, attends a Christian school and made his decision shortly after the recent conversion of his father.

Michigan Conference News Notes

- During the past school year 19 students from Andrews Academy qualified for the Presidential Physical Fitness Award. To receive the award students must pass six tests of their physical capabilities at the 85th percentile or better. The six tests are a one and one-half mile run, one minute of sit-ups, pull-ups for boys or flexed-arm hangs for girls, the shuttle run, the 50-yard dash and the standing broad jump. Academy seniors who won the award were Charles Ahn, Lucy Baltazar, Tonya Di Biase, Gina Gray, Bill Loudin, Laurie Stankovich and Bart Stimac. Junior winners were Darryl Allen, Ivan Davis, Teresa Hubbell, Gail Rogers, Brenda Rowland, Janice Weathersby and Stephanie Wilham. Robert Connor was the only sophomore to win the award this year. The freshman class had four winners:

- Shelley Swanson, Nathan Sumner, Sheryce Henley and Rhonda Davis.
- Pastor Fred Adams and 40 lay ministers of the Detroit Oakwood Church conducted a Revelation Seminar that resulted in the baptism of 15 people. The visitation was conducted solely by the lay ministers.
- The Muskegon Church hosted a farewell dinner in honor of Abbie R. Tupes who has been an active member for 60 years. "She is much loved and affectionately called Mom Tupes by many," said Doris E. Emmons, communication secretary. Mrs. Tupes served in several different offices before she became church treasurer for 25 consecutive years. Since the recent death of her husband, Earl, she has decided to move to Loma Linda, California, where she will live near her daughters.

Campers Enjoy Fellowship At Grand Ledge

MICHIGAN—Bobby McCowan, a recently baptized member of the Muskegon, Michigan, Church, volunteered to work July 19 to 27 at the Michigan Camp Meeting security office.

"My days were completely full," Mr. McCowan said, "and I got something out of everything I did." He attended three seminars and the morning meetings. His only disappointment was not having enough time to do the other things he wanted to do.

Don Hunt is a member of the Battle Creek, Michigan, Church and currently resides in Mt. Vernon, Ohio, but he wouldn't miss Michigan Camp Meeting. He was born in 1888 and remembers going to Michigan Camp Meeting with his parents before he could button his own clothes.

Now, more than 90 years later, Mr. Hunt still finds an abundant blessing waiting for him when he arrives on the campgrounds in Grand Ledge.

Each of the 4,000 campers who spent the full eight days at camp meeting found something enjoyable to do. For many, it was the meetings in the main auditorium.

It was hard to get up early for the morning meetings. But hundreds decided the devotionals on the power of the Holy Spirit were a bigger blessing than the extra hour of sleep. The speaker was William Liversidge, ministerial director for the Columbia Union Conference.

Mark Smalley, a member of the Muskegon Church, said the early morning meetings were the most inspirational part of his day.

Another special blessing came from the evening meetings by C. Mervyn Maxwell, professor of church history at Andrews Theological Seminary. "Maxwell is a theologian," said Gomer Evans, a member of the Holly, Michigan, Church. "But he makes our church history come alive as he speaks. It's as if he knew all those people personally."

Many campers enjoyed the variety the workshops added to their week. The workshops focused on the practical aspects of life and included how to study the Bible, health and temperance, and single living.

But Michigan Camp Meeting is not just for adults. The children and youth divisions—from cradle roll to senior youth—had programs and activities planned to meet their needs and interests.

Children of all ages, and even many children at heart, sat spellbound in the junior and primary tents as Josephine Cunningham Edwards told stories from her rich experiences in the mission field.

The senior youth had an active program. Fun-loving song services and early morning devotions were led by Uncle Bert Anderson, director of corporate health services at Florida Hospital. Doug Martin, chaplain at Spring Valley Academy, in Centerville, Ohio, spoke for the evening services.

The weekends were a time for many more Michigan church members to enjoy the camp meeting. More than 10,000 people were on the campgrounds to share in the weekend camp meeting experience.

Port Huron Bike-a-thon

MICHIGAN—Port Huron, Michigan, primary and junior class members earned more than half their camp fee to Camp Au Sable this summer by participating in a bike-a-thon. The group rode 10 miles on a Sunday morning in May. Smaller children were allowed to have parents or other juniors do some of the laps for them. The riding was done in a private area at the Intermediate School in Marysville, Michigan, for the sake of safety. "It proved to be a fun activity with all the children pulling for each other," said Lo Ann Whiting, junior department leader, Port Huron Blue Water Church.

Lakeview and Edmore Receive New Members

Hinsdale Hospital Classes Help New Mothers Adjust

HINSDALE, ILL.—New mothers require much learning and adjusting, says Joyce Allers, a registered nurse at Hinsdale Hospital located near Chicago, Illinois.

Mrs. Allers is a mother of four children and teaches mothers what to expect during their infants' first year of physical and emotional development.

The two-session course offers practical information on child care such as when to add what foods to the diet, general health care, how to baby-proof a house, and what games and toys to use.

According to Mrs. Allers, class discussions offer assistance in other more delicate areas such as the choice to return to work or to stay at home with the infant.

Mrs. Allers believes there are no absolute answers to the questions, but hopes the course will help mothers explore the options and identify the solution that best suits their individual situations.

"We encourage new mothers to discuss their feelings and to interact with each other," she says. "To know that they're not alone in their circumstances helps them deal with the tremendous life-style changes having a baby brings."

• A survey conducted in the West German Union in February concerning the new Sabbath School lesson format revealed that 81.7 percent of the church members felt the biblical material was "helpful, profitable, and very good." Ninety-two percent were satisfied with the concept of studying a whole Bible book, and 80.3 percent said the lessons were relevant. Many suggestions were also received.

• During the 41st session of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights held in Geneva, February 4 to March 15, Adventists B. B. Beach and G. Rossi drew attention to glaring and systematic violations of religious liberty in many countries around the world. Elders Beach and Rossi, representing the International Religious Liberty Association, reported on countries that, although they are members of the United Nations, clearly deny the right to religious liberty—sometimes even in their constitutions. The Adventist spokesmen asked the commission to take measures to see that each United Nations member's legislation be in harmony with the organization's endorsement of freedom of thought, conscience, religion and belief for everyone.

• A study of statistical reports has laid to rest the commonly held belief that the Mormon Church is growing much faster than the Seventh-day Adventist Church. One hundred and twenty years after incorporation (1863), Seventh-day Adventist membership was 4,140,206. The same number of years after incorporation (1830), Mormon membership was 1,111,314. Simply put, the Adventists had gained 3,028,892 more members than had the Mormons during the same amount of time; they had grown 373 percent faster. The yearly rate of growth for Mormons during a recent three years was: 1981, 6 percent; 1982, 5 percent, and 1983, 5 percent. The growth rate for the Adventists was: 1981, 5 percent; 1982, 6 percent, and 1983, 6 percent.

The graduation program for the Bible school students was held at the Ephesus Church. The program began with the opening prayer from Pastor Hosie Hatchett, and Caroline greeted parents, relatives, and guests of the children.

The Bible school students and the audience participated in the procession of the Christian and national flags.

Among the guests present were Chaplain and Mrs. Joseph Powell from Oakwood College, Huntsville, Alabama.

Other participants on the program included the kindergarten class, which sang "Jesus Loves Me," and the primary and junior students who recited Bible verses from memory.

Each student from each division received a certificate for completing the requirements of the Vacation Bible School.

After the program, guests, parents and relatives of the students visited in the church basement where the students' crafts were on display.

Adventist Church Continues Ministering to Refugees

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Ever since World War I the Seventh-day Adventist Church has been involved in ministering to refugees around the world. Such is still the case.

Though conducted by various departments within the denomination at different times, in early 1984 the refugee program was officially placed under the aegis of the North American Division. At that time a committee was formed with Robert Dale as chairman.

Perry Pedersen was designated as secretary of the committee and was given the responsibility for directing the refugee program. He and his assistant Rosemary Entz act as liaisons between the Adventist denomination and other agencies, and between parties within the denomination for the processing of refugees.

The primary refugee agency with which the Adventist Church cooperates in refugee resettlement is Church World Service of New York. The names of refugees needing sponsors are received from those willing to be sponsors or else from the Church World Service, which receives names from the United States State Department, Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization Service.

This bureau conducts screenings of applicants in refugee camps all over the world. Each applicant is screened at least three different times by three different committees over a period of many months and must meet rigid requirements before being cleared for United States entry.

By the time the church receives the cases, the refugees have been in camps for many months or years, unable to help themselves or live a normal life. Their plight is often pitiful and desperate. Therefore, it is of utmost importance that sponsors be located for them just as soon as possible.

The Adventist Church is only one agency among many voluntary resettlement entities at work in America and throughout the world helping the refugees. All agencies feel the need for more people to become involved in sponsorship.

The North American Division Refugee Committee therefore urgently recommends to all Seventh-day Adventist churches in North America the ministry to refugees. Without question it is an unparalleled opportunity to demonstrate the love of God to the homeless and destitute and to have a part in bringing them new hope.

Not only can we help them in the process of adjustment and rebuilding their lives here in an environment of freedom, but we can point them to the most blessed hope of all—the hope of an eternal home in God's kingdom, where there will be no more war, no more fear, death, hunger, or separation from loved ones.

Isn't this our great commission? Isn't it for the purpose of blessing others that God has entrusted to us our material wealth and goods, our freedom, and with it our opportunities for self-development and fulfillment?

Anyone wishing information on sponsorship is invited to read the articles on the plight of the refugees published in the 1985 Adventist Layman magazine, first and third quarter editions. They may also contact their conference personal ministries director, or Perry Pedersen at the General Conference, Department of Church Ministries, 6840 Eastern Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20012; 202-722-6146, or phone Rosemary Entz at 202-722-6149.

An Open Letter To 'It Is Written'

THOUSAND OAKS, CALIF.—At a Media Center Board meeting, a letter from Carl Rennhack of New York was read to the assembled members. Perhaps excerpts from its message will warm your hearts as it warmed theirs. The letter was addressed to Pastor George Vandeman, "It Is Written" speaker.

Elder George Vandeman

"On St. Patrick's Day, 1984, after leafletting for Senator Gary Hart's presidential campaign at the parade in Manhattan, I came home and opened that week's TV Guide.

"By chance I saw the advertisement for the March 18 'It Is Written' broadcast, 'Seventh-day Adventists, Who Are They? What do Adventists really believe? Why do they live from four to six years longer than the general population?'

"I thought, Why? Well, I know that Seventh-day Adventists don't drink, so maybe it seems longer!

"Nevertheless, I watched the broadcast. I expected to get a few laughs from some Bible-pounding fanatics; instead, I saw and heard soft-spoken, articulate people, not the least of whom was yourself.

"In the belief that the price was right, I ordered the book (excerpts from The Cry of a Lonely Planet) that was offered at the broadcast's end.

"On the last Tuesday in May, I received some items from Andrews University, notably the 27 fundamental beliefs issue of the Adventist Review. I'd not requested them, but decided to look through them anyway.

"This former agnostic/atheist was surprised, but by no means disappointed, to learn that Seventh-day Adventists do not believe in an eternally burning hell. I had heard all my life that Christ preached eternal torment of the wicked. It was eye-opening to read what the Bible says on the subject.

"The following Sunday I visited the Seventh-day Adventist Information Center and bookstore on Manhattan's West 40th Street. Michael Daum, the young man in charge, listened sympathetically and answered my questions.

"I bought, among other items, Ralph Blodgett's pamphlet, 'Hell: Will the Wicked Burn Forever?', and Phyllis Bailey's pamphlet, 'Fascinating Facts About the Bible.'

"During June I met Naomi Sica, director of information services at West 40th Street, and I attended services and prayer meetings at the Ridgewood, Queens, Church, and classes at the Flushing, Queens, Seventh-day Adventist Center.

"I was invited to Camp Berkshire the next Sabbath, where the Greater New York Conference holds its summer week-long meetings.

"It was inspiring to see hundreds of Seventh-day Adventists learning and worshipping together. I also spoke with Pastor Walter Isensee who answered my questions about some things I'd read in the Bible.

"In early August, a week after I attended my first communion service, I told Pastor Gerald Mattenson of the Ridgewood Church that I wanted to be baptized. I attended his Sabbath School class and studied on my own. I was baptized on October 20.

"While in the baptismal tank, I told church members and guests that watching 'It Is Written' was one of the things that led to my baptism.

"It's strange to think that all this has happened because I expected to get a few laughs from some Bible-pounding fanatics."

Pitcairn Islanders Hear Good News

NEWBURY PARK, CALIF.—Imagine living in a community of 50 persons, nearly all inter-related, and no other community within several hundred miles.

There is radio, but no television; a post office, but mail only once every three months; electricity for seven hours a day, and one store that gets deliveries three or four times a year.

The community is Pitcairn, a volcanic island of only 1,120 acres, located some 3,600 miles south of San Diego.

Ben and Irma Christian, both descendants of the Bounty mutineer Fletcher Christian, talked about their island home in a recent visit to the Voice of Prophecy. Mr. and Mrs. Christian are among only a half dozen Pitcairners who have visited the United States in the past 50 years.

The best news on Pitcairn this year was the appointment of a physician to serve the isolated island. Government administrators in New Zealand agreed to send physicians on a temporary three-month basis, with another one arriving whenever the current one leaves.

Until now, the only medical person on the island was the pastor's wife. Pitcairn may be the only place in the world that accepts a pastor only if his wife is a nurse.

Also coming to the island this year is telephone service that will link the residents with the rest of the globe. An engineer is presently on Pitcairn to install an antenna for the telephone hookup.

A defect in the antenna he brought is forcing him to stay a month or two until a ship brings a replacement part. When completed, the telephone link with New Zealand will allow islanders to call and receive calls without going through a shortwave radio connection.

Ben and Irma say that having regular telephone service and a physician on the island will help relieve the feeling of isolation. But traveling to or from the island is not simple.

Ben and Irma Christian display carved and woven items made by themselves and other residents of Pitcairn Island. The sale of such products, along with postage stamps, provides the major source of revenue for the islanders, who are descendants of the H.M.S. Bounty mutineers of 1789-90.

Their own trip involved 10 days on a Norwegian tanker that took them to New Zealand. From there, they flew to Hawaii and then southern California. They will fly back to New Zealand to await a container ship that will return them to Pitcairn.

While in Hawaii in May, Irma passed the examination for the novice radio license. Enroute home, she will stop in Hawaii to take the exam for a general class radio license, so that she can assist Tom Christian, Pitcairn's chief radio officer, in shortwave contacts with New Zealand, the United States, and other countries.

Revenue for Pitcairn comes chiefly from the sale of commemorative postage stamps, carvings, and items woven from plant materials. From miro wood, orangewood, tau wood and coconut wood, Ben Christian carves birds, fish, sharks, turtles, canes and vases. Irma makes baskets and sun hats from dried and pressed leaves and stems.

Irma is planning to prepare a small dictionary of the words and phrases that make up the Pitcairn dialect, a mixture of English and Tahitian along with local idioms. Sales of the dictionary will bring in some additional income.

A few common phrases include "Wut a way you?" which means "How are you?" and "Humuch people levan on Pitkern?" which is "How many people live on Pitcairn?"

The answer to the last question is, fewer and fewer. Only 50 persons remain on the island today. Most youth leave Pitcairn for high school and college education in New Zealand. Few ever return. More than 200 former Pitcairners live in New Zealand.

But those who have lived on the tiny Pacific island all their lives have no desire to move away. After a half year of traveling, Ben and Irma Christian looked forward to getting back home. They stepped ashore the last week of July.

Correction Notice: In the July 16, 1985, issue of the Lake Union Herald, an error appeared in the editorial written by Everett E. Cumbo. In the seventh paragraph, the fourth sentence should read, "This means that an average of 2.74 people were baptized every day."

At Andrews a great education is never enough.

Most of our nation's colleges think a great education is good enough.

We don't. Like other Adventist colleges we think there's more. A lot more.

Naturally, we at Andrews take pride in offering some of the finest degree programs in Adventist education.

And of course we're happy with the high percentage of job placement among our graduating students.

But that's just the beginning. Because Andrews is a Seventh-day Adventist university, religious life is central to what an Andrews education is all about.

Throughout your life you may have heard of "higher education—higher values." At Andrews, you experience it.

There's a genuine friendliness that permeates our campus.

It includes people who are willing to reach out and help in all kinds of ways.

People who care about you as a student and a person.

People who work together.

People who pray together.

You see, at Andrews, throughout every activity and every course, you'll be immersed in an educational experience along side people who share your commitment to Christ, and who believe, like you do, in the infinite worth of an Adventist education.

So why go to college and just get a great education when you can attend Andrews University and get a great education... and then some.

In the Master's Service

R. A. Thompson
President
Indiana Conference

A Mighty task is before us. The Church was established to carry on Christ's work. Everything a church or a conference does should reflect this overall objective. Multitudes of people are going down to Christless graves every day without any knowledge of our soon-coming Saviour. Every one of our churches should be making plans to reach people in the community with the message of hope. "Wherever a church is established, all the members should engage actively in missionary work. They should visit every family in the neighborhood, and know their spiritual condition" (Christian Service, p. 12, emphasis added).

Every member of the church is needed. The Apostle Paul made clear that all of us are important to God. "Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular" (1 Corinthians 12:27, emphasis added). God needs the talents He has given to each one of us to reach the heart of someone in spiritual darkness, and He has promised to go with us to the end of the world. Our work here upon earth is even equated with our place in heaven. "Not more surely is the place prepared for us in the heavenly mansions than is the special place designated on earth where we are to work for God" (Christ's Object Lessons, p. 327). May I appeal to every member to find that special place God has appointed and be found faithful in the task.

We must study and use Christ's method in our work. He adapted His message to the mental ability of His hearers, He labored to remove prejudice, He used the Scriptures for answers, He gave the people a complete message and went from door to door in his ministry. "Our Saviour went from house to house, healing the sick, comforting the mourners, soothing the afflicted, speaking peace to the disconsolate" (Christian Service, p. 114). "It was the simplicity and earnestness with which Christ labored and spoke that drew so many to Him" (Evangelism, p. 53). If Jesus our Saviour was willing to go from house to house, we should also be making plans to visit every home near our churches. Let's plan to take some literature and with warmth and enthusiasm invite people to visit our churches.

Missionary visits will lead to Bible studies. There are multitudes of people who are confused by the many voices being heard in the religious world today. They are literally "looking wistfully toward heaven," hoping for something to bring meaning to their lives. There are always some in every community who will gladly study the Scriptures with us if we ask them in an appealing manner. "If the teachers of the Word are willing, the Lord will . . . guide them to the homes of those who need and desire the truth . . ." (Evangelism, p. 434, emphasis added). We will never be led to those homes who need and desire the truth unless we are actively seeking the lost sheep.

The Holy Spirit will supply the needed power. God never asks us to do something in our own strength. When we take up the work we have been called to do, God will do His part. "The Holy Spirit will come to all who are begging for the bread of life to give to their neighbors. . . . When we give ourselves wholly to God, and in our work follow His directions, He makes Himself responsible for its accomplishment. He would not have us to conjecture as to the success of our honest endeavors. Not once should we even think of failure. We are to cooperate with One who knows no failure" (Christian Service, pp. 252, 261, 262).
