VOLUME LXXVII, NUMBER 23

Wisconsin Rapids church members purchased this larger, modern building in 1985.

The former Wisconsin Rapids Church was built in the 1930's and sold in 1985.

How Does a Church Grow?

WISCONSIN—Two years ago, the Wisconsin Rapids Church had a membership of 60 warm, friendly, interested members. However, church growth seemed stymied due to the size of the church which had been built in the 1930's for a smaller congregation.

The members decided to modernize their church. Yet, growth still seemed at a standstill due to a shortage of space. As new people came to the services, seating became even more limited. The group was frustrated because they had already borrowed funds for remodeling and still owed a small balance on that loan.

At a business meeting in the fall of 1984, the Wisconsin Rapids members gathered to discuss what could be done to solve their lack of space. A member reported that a larger, newer church, including a parsonage, was available for $90,000.

Wisconsin Rapids members evaluated the balance on their loan, the age of their present church building and its value, the funds that would be available through the Wisconsin Expansion offering and their borrowing power based on their tithe. They recognized that purchase was possible.

Hope, faith and courage replaced discouragement as the church started to think how the Lord had blessed them in the past. They submitted a lower purchase offer for the church and were able to complete details for purchase.

They were also able to sell their own church building. A loan from the Lake Union Revolving Fund for the difference made this transaction possible.

What has happened since the congregation has moved into the newer, larger church? Their membership has grown to 80 active members. Classrooms and a fellowship room for church dinners are available in the basement. The building can accommodate the public for health-related programs and Revelation Seminars.

The warm, friendly family atmosphere in the smaller church has been enhanced. And the treasurer reports that the church has been able to make double loan payments.

A Lake Union Revolving Fund loan is available only to churches and schools and only as funds are available. With current interest rates, this is a good investment of funds. It is also a good investment in the spiritual interest rate of new church members throughout the Lake Union Conference, like those in the Wisconsin Rapids Church.

If you would like to make continued growth possible for churches here in the Lake Union, contact the Lake Union Conference treasurer or your local conference treasurer for additional information.

Annual Council Highlight Report

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Administrative officers from around the world met in Washington, D.C., October 8 through 17 to develop plans for the denomination and to set up the budget for next year. Highlights included:

North American leaders committed their fields to introducing 225,149 persons to Christ and Adventism by 1990, during Harvest '90.

Neal Wilson, president of the General Conference, reported that a federal Court of Appeals has ruled in favor of the church in a suit brought by a woman who was not hired as an associate in pastoral care for the Sligo Church in Takoma Park, Maryland. The opinion read, "The guidance of the state cannot substitute for that of the Holy Spirit."

Call letters for the Adventist World Radio—Asia were voted as KSDA.

Leo Ranzolin, former youth director of the General Conference, was moved to the secretariat replacing Robert Jacobs, who is the new president of the Adventist Media Center in Thousand Oaks, California.

Ralph Watts, president of the Southern California Conference, was selected as director of the Adventist Development and Relief Agency (A.D.R.A.).

Thanksgiving Offering Set for November 9

WASHINGTON, D.C.—"Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men! And let them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving, and declare his works with rejoicing" (Psalms 107:21, 22).

The psalmist expressed a beautiful philosophy of Christian living in this passage!

On Sabbath, November 9, as we close the Week of Prayer, God's Seventh-day Adventist family, of nearly five million around the world, will join in a special offering of thanksgiving.

As we reflect on the bounties we enjoy, it would be well for each of us to sing that old song, "Count your many blessings, Name them one by one; Count your many blessings, See what God hath done" (Chorus Melodies No. 2, p. 71).

Through the years, some have faithfully followed the practice of dedicating a week's earnings to God as an offering of gratitude for His manifold blessings. And we might ask ourselves: "Would such a gift be too large a sacrifice, considering the blessings we have received during the past year? What would such a gift mean toward the proclamation of God's message?"

Hundreds of missionary families are now on the front lines of mission service. Many are truly sacrificing as they witness and as they see God's power changing the hearts of men and women.

From personal acquaintance I think of a young doctor who, with his beautiful wife and three children, left a thriving practice in the United States and went to a small hospital in the jungles of Bolivia. I think of that prosperous builder in southern California who, with his wife (a registered nurse) and four-year-old daughter, went to an outpost mission station in the jungles of Peru.

And there are so many, many more members of the Adventist family—dedicated and talented, and certain that their greatest joy will be in serving others less fortunate and in lifting them closer to our Saviour.

Giving starves covetousness. Giving is the foundation principle of heaven. May God move mightily upon our hearts as we plan for a sacrificial offering on November 9.

Guam Radio Station Update

WASHINGTON, D.C.—After the "wettest wet season" on the island of Guam in years (14 inches during August alone), the Jim Neighbors Equipment Company unloaded a D-8 Caterpillar bulldozer at the access road entrance to the new Adventist World Radio (A.W.R.)—Asia property on Facpi Point on September 11.

A week later, about 500 feet of the roadway had been compacted and rolled into shape. Payloaders began dumping crushed coral, Guam's special brand of "gravel," for roadmaking, anticipating completion of the 2,368-foot access from Guam Highway 2 to the transmitter and broadcast center site on Mt. Lamlam by early October.

During the week of September 15, Allen Steele, A.W.R. manager, completed the purchase of two six-acre tracts of land adjacent to the 28 acres already owned by A.W.R. The additional 12 acres will provide space to erect two 300-foot-wide antennas for northern Asia, providing the best signal thrust to northern China, the Koreans, Japan and Siberia.

An Important Link in God's Chain

Do you remember, as a youngster, Mom or Dad taking you to the local playground, placing you on a swing, then pushing you higher and higher?

As a child, you probably never stopped to think about the importance of every link in the chain on that swing. You were most likely having too much fun to concern yourself with the anatomy of a swing.

Consider, for a moment, the consequences had even one link become separated from another. A broken link could have suddenly transformed you into a miniature torpedo—or a heap on the ground.

Each link in a chain is not very large and by itself may not seem all that important. But when joined with other links, a chain is formed and many useful tasks can be accomplished.

Links and chains can be likened to our place in God's master plan. Each of us is a link in His chain, and together we have a part in reaching out to others. And, in God's work, each of us is important in maintaining the strength in His chain.

The current "No One But You" slide-tape program showing in churches throughout the Lake Union, tells about the importance of links in God's chain.

One story shared in the fourth quarter program takes place in the Vassar, Michigan, area. In this story, Thelma Herzberg was one of the first links. Her prayerful desire to witness led her to Phyllis Bundy. For several years, Phyllis fought the Holy Spirit until, one Saturday morning, she called Thelma inquiring, "How do I get to your church?"

Phyllis and her husband, Doug, are now members of the Vassar Church. Their car dealership in Clio, Michigan, is their witnessing headquarters. Through their contacts, many individuals have joined the church.

Beverly Johnson

In the program, you will see how the Bundys' witnessing contacts became church members and how these new links in God's chain are already bringing others to Christ.

The second story in the "No One But You" program takes viewers to the shores of Lake Superior in the upper peninsula of Michigan where a growing company of believers, despite the cold weather, are radiating God's warmth to those around them.

Through this story you will meet the Johnson family from Ontonagon, Michigan. You'll see how God started a chain reaction through Beverly Johnson at a time when there were no active Adventists in the area. Today there is a congregation of 35 members.

Speaking of links in God's chain, we on the Herald staff believe the "No

One But You" program, itself, is a special link. Each link—each story—shared each quarter is a source of strength to God's people, links in His chain.

If your church is not currently receiving the "No One But You" program, we would suggest you to talk to your pastor. Encourage him to contact your local conference office or the Lake Union Herald office, for additional information.

More than 300 churches in the Lake Union territory receive the "No One But You" program. But there are numerous churches not being strengthened by the blessings of this multimedia ministry.

"No One But You" helps church members realize their uniqueness and their importance in the entire picture of God's plan for the links in His chain. That's why we're encouraging every church to subscribe to this special program.

Yes, each church member in the Lake Union is an important link in God's chain. And don't forget, as a link in God's chain, you are special. No one but you can reach out to others in your unique, caring way.

Today, watch for that special opportunity. You may be the link to help someone grasp a tighter hold on the hand of Jesus.

Ms. Crawford plans to use this knowledge and skill with her Bible work and in her Positive Thinking/Mind Development workshops. These workshops have helped many individuals from all walks of life set goals,

Evansville Members Learn Memory Verses

INDIANA—On June 29, Ruth Helzerman, Evansville Sabbath School superintendent, challenged Sabbath School members to learn memory verses for the third quarter.

Members entering the church on July 6 were met by Mrs. Helzerman's two daughters, Shelley and Marcey. The girls distributed fruit to those who had learned their memory verse and leaves to those who had not. Members placed these items on a barren tree.

The fruit symbolized "Bearing Fruit for Jesus," the theme for the quarter.

More than 85 percent of the members accepted Mrs. Helzerman's challenge. On the closing Sabbath, 61 members placed fruit on the tree. In the Thirteenth Sabbath program, members praised God for challenges and blessings and dedicated themselves to bearing fruit for Jesus.

Jerry Lastine, communication director of the Indiana Conference, gave each participant a blue ribbon prepared by Mrs. Helzerman.

One visitor remarked: "I thought this idea was so childish, until I saw it and participated in it. Now I think it is great. I feel so good about myself for learning a new verse of Scripture."

Sunday afternoon, Sabbath School members gathered in the parking lot for games, ice cream and fellowship.

Seniors Participate in A.U.'s Gifted Student Program

ANDREWS UNIVERSITY—"Back to school" meant a new adventure for 11 seniors from five high schools in the Berrien Springs, Michigan, area. These students are participating in the Gifted Student Program offered this year by Andrews University.

The program, a component of the Society of Andrews Scholars, offers seniors with outstanding academic records and recommendations from their schools, the opportunity to take one approved course per academic quarter at a greatly-reduced cost. These students also have free access to the swimming pool, gymnasium and library.

Dr. Robert Pierson, associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, says the purpose of the program is fourfold:

To provide a service to the broader community; to encourage high school seniors to pursue higher education; to offer an educational challenge to those students who have completed course offerings in a specific discipline on the secondary level and to interest students in higher education specifically at Andrews University.

The principals of the participating schools authorized their guidance counselors to identify seniors who would qualify for the Gifted Student Program. The counselors then helped the students fill out the needed paperwork and recommended them to the Andrews admissions committee. The admissions committee gave the final approval of these students.

Participating this year are Edward Eddington, Buchanan High School; Darrin Jillson, Matt McGath, Thomas Williams, Shane Lewis and David Stroud, Berrien Springs High School; Mandi Miller and Fred Brauchler, Lake Shore High School; Chris Coon, St. Joseph High School; Hak-Jae Chung and Brenda Rowland, Andrews Academy.

Speech and Hearing Clinic Adds Diagnostic Equipment

ANDREWS UNIVERSITY—The Andrews University Speech and Hearing Clinic is using a new portable sound room and several other new pieces of equipment for community service programs.

Dr. Roy Hartbauer, director of the clinic, said that clinic personnel used the new portable sound room to screen 1,965 people at the Berrien County Youth Fair this summer and will use it for other screenings at area hospitals, health-care centers and shopping malls.

He said that the new video equipment at the clinic will be used for taping therapy sessions, to aid in diagnostic work-ups and to assist in student supervision. In addition, it will increase student observation of therapy sessions.

The equipment was purchased with funds raised by the Andrews chapter of the National Student Speech, Language, and Hearing Association.

Two diagnostic audiometers were an unsolicited gift from the research division of Gallaudet College, a federally-funded college for the deaf in Washington, D.C. The audiometers will be used by students in advanced clinical courses. Clinic income funded purchase of a hearing aid analyzer to be used for determining the functional capability of hearing aids.

The Speech and Hearing Clinic is a teaching facility for majors in communication disorders as well as a full access clinic. The clinic offers complete diagnostic and therapy services for speech, language and hearing disorders.

University Wind Ensemble Visits European Cities

ANDREWS UNIVERSITY—The Andrews University Wind Ensemble, with Barbara Favorito, conductor, performed sacred and secular music in selected European cities during their summer concert tour.

The tour included concerts at the Adventist Seminar Marienhoehe in Darmstadt, West Germany; the Seminaire Adventiste du Saleve in Collonges-sous-Saleve, France; the Advent Mission Church in Salzburg, Austria; the Advent Jugend in Augsburg, West Germany, and the Gospel Facility Hall in Amsterdam, Holland, the Netherlands.

In England, the ensemble toured Newbold College in Bracknell, Berkshire; the Holloway Seventh-day Adventist Church in London and the London Central Adventist Church.

"Our goal was to serve as Christian ambassadors for Andrews University and the church," said Miss Favorito. "The Wind Ensemble members learned to live and work together with this goal in mind."

The 40-member ensemble laid plans for the tour two years ago, and the spirit was, "We all go or none of us go," said Miss Favorito.

The group raised money by selling stationery, candy and pillows; holding a jog-a-thon; decorating and delivering valentine message cookies; collecting offerings at their concerts and asking businesses and professionals for sponsorships.

The concerts were held in both Adventist and non-Adventist communities. "Because of its worldwide scope, many European Adventists identify with Andrews as one of their schools," said Miss Favorito. "Now Andrews is the face of a smiling, loving, Christian young person."

Sightseeing points of interest for Wind Ensemble members included the cathedral in Koln, Germany; St. Pierre Cathedral in Geneva, Switzerland; St. Paul's Cathedral in London, the Reformation Wall, Hitler's Eagles Nest, the concentration camp at Dachau, the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace.

The group also took a boat ride on the canals of Amsterdam and visited Anne Frank's home. Their tours plus some shopping trips gave tour members a firsthand, cross-culture education.

"Without a doubt, we got as much as we gave," said Miss Favorito. "To watch and experience the caring, consideration and Christian love among the Wind Ensemble members will always be one of the highlights of my career. The students lived what Christian education is all about," she concluded.

Lives Touched at Cadillac Fair

MICHIGAN—The Cadillac, Michigan, Church conducted stress and health-age tests for hundreds of people in their booth at the Cadillac Fair, August 12 to 17.

Smoking Sam located at the entrance of the booth, attracted 19 people who signed up for a Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking.

The fair display was held in the ABC bookmobile. One night a roof vent and a window in the bookmobile were left open during a rainstorm. Not one drop of rain fell inside, although two or three inches of rain covered the ground. Hundreds of books were given away.

A mother with six children took free literature from the bookmobile. Shortly after she returned home and read it, she phoned Jim Micheff, pastor of the Cadillac Church. "She cried and said that she had never realized Bible truth, and that she would attend church the next Sabbath," reported Pastor Micheff. Mary Lou Kline, communication secretary, said that when one of the six children was asked if he would like to go to heaven, the child replied, "Yes, I have been praying that Jesus will take us."

Helen Ward Thompson is vice president for academic administration at Loma Linda University. The three other delegates are from Kenya: Sarah Muga, a biology teacher at Jamhuri High School; Dinah A. Amayo, vice principal of Kenya High School; and Elijah Njagi, executive director of the Central Kenya Field of the East African Union Mission.

Led by Dr. Thompson, the delegates commended the church for its "recognition of the biblical principle that men and women are equal, partners in Christ."

The church was also praised for spreading the good news of Christ's soon return at world gatherings which gives another dimension to that witness.

Recommended is the establishment of a service at General Conference headquarters, "with corresponding services at the division, union, and conference levels, for women's concerns."

The report says health, education and employment needs of women need attention. Delegates called for the church to take an active role in helping women become aware of their potential for service and to be aggressive in relation to employment for them.

Emphasis was given to health and nutrition-related discussions. Other topics included literacy, women-headed households, migrant women, and poverty-caused prostitution.

The Tiniest Wonder

THOUSAND OAKS, CALIF.—

David Jones, producer of the "It Is Written" television broadcast, has prepared a colorful, close-up glimpse into the creative and complex ant kingdom. This telecast titled "The Tiniest Wonder" explores the world of sauva ants of the Amazon that clean and cultivate the luxuriant forest floor; weaver ants that swing, Tarzan-style, from leaf to leaf in their nest-building; an ant colony's suicide mission that conquers a pool of water and a barrier of glue to reach a chocolate cake, and sentry ants that cause their bodies to explode, warning other ants of danger.

"This intriguing world of ants tells me so much about our Creator," says George Vandeman, speaker for the "It

Is Written" program.

This presentation will be broadcast nationwide Sunday, November 10. Check local listings for the time and channel in your area.

World Church News Notes

- The Adventist World Radio—Asia staff thanks those who contributed furnishings for student missionary houses. Several hundred dollars were saved. Financial gifts will benefit the new station on Guam when you mark your check and/or your tithe envelope, "General Conference Session Offering." This is the entry used in church bookkeeping ledgers.

- The newly merged General Conference church ministries department functioned as a unit for the first time on August 26, when most of its 40 plus staff gathered at Coolfont Re-Creation center near Berkley Springs, West Virginia, for a "planagement" week. "Most of the department's personnel come from the five former departments: Sabbath School, lay activities, youth, stewardship, and home and family services," explains department director Delmer W. Holbrook. The Coolfont meetings included intensive management seminars and planning sessions. Lynn Martell, North American church ministries director, said, "The session was helpful in beginning to clarify our mutual goals. North America wants to honor its commitment to the world field while continuing to meet the special needs of leaders." Local church leaders who need to order supplies should continue to contact the departments at the local conference office.

- At the annual meeting of Maranatha Flights International, held at Campion Academy, Colorado, in July, members chose a new theme song from three selections presented by Adventist Composers, Arrangers and Poets (A.C.A.P.) The winning theme song, entitled "Maranatha," was written by Kathryn C. Wilson of Rapidan, Virginia. Runner-ups were Dorothy Matar, Fillmore, California (second place), and Linda Quillin, Cadillac, Michigan (third place). The three winning songs were selected from more than 50 entries submitted. A.C.A.P. is a self-supporting organization dedicated to assisting and encouraging Adventists to improve their skills in writing gospel music and sacred verse. More information about the organization can be obtained by writing A.C.A.P., Inc., P.O. Box 11, Days Creek, OR 97429, or by calling 503-825-3647.

- On August 5, 1985, a program called ASAP (Family Treatment of Chemical Dependency) opened its doors on East Clara Street in Port Hueneme, California, to treat adolescents exclusively, in a specially designed program. The facilities are staffed with experienced professionals, and a family treatment program is emphasized. The staff works with teenagers to help them experience personal growth, recognize the need for sobriety and participate in family repair. Teens, parents or friends with questions are invited to contact ASAP at Anacapa Adventist Hospital by calling 805-488-3661 for information.

- General Conference President Neal C. Wilson reported on vice presidential assignments and elections made during the General Conference session. Departmental liaison officer and advisor for health/temperance and public affairs/religious liberty is Wallace O. Coe. Other officers and their departmental assignments are: Robert J. Kloosterhuis, publishing; Kenneth J. Mittleider, church ministries and ministerial; and Calvin B. Rock, education. Recognizing the communication department as a service to administration, Elder Wilson will oversee that staff directly—including Adventist World Radio (A.W.R.). In another departure from practice but with an eye to efficiency, Enoch Oliveira will serve as the resident administrative officer. Graduated from Brazil College and with a master's of divinity from Andrews University, as well as an honorary doctor of divinity from the same school, Elder Oliveira is fluent in English, Portuguese and Spanish. The vice presidents will also chair a variety of management boards and will chair General Conference executive committees on a rotating basis. Leading in a trimmer staff, the presidential area of administrators has five general vice presidents—one less than in past years.

- In the November issue of Writer's Digest, a special-interest publication that bills itself "the world's leading magazine for writers," has rated Signs of the Times among the top 100 markets in the country for writers, giving it the most points of any periodical, secular or religious, fiction or non-fiction. Along with a picture of a recent Signs cover, the write-up summarized the magazine's publication policies, rates of payment, the kinds of articles Signs uses, and the number purchased each year.

The Master's program in Physical Therapy is just one way that Andrews University teaches caring people how to care.

Teaching a handicapped child how to walk.

Helping an injured truck driver regain the use of a broken arm so he can return to work—and provide for his wife and children.

Giving an elderly woman the confidence to know that her broken hip will heal—with proper treatment and time.

Physical therapists know how to do these things. And they do them every day. That is what makes a physical therapist such a caring person and physical therapy such a caring profession.

At Andrews University, we're teaching students how to help people in these uniquely caring ways. And our new master's degree in physical therapy makes Andrews the only Adventist school offering an entry-level graduate program in this vital medical profession.

This should come as no surprise. The master's degree in physical therapy is just the latest addition to Andrews' wide selection of graduate programs in the caring professions. Professions like nursing, education, counseling, and ministry.

So if you want to teach handicapped children how to walk, or if you want to become a caring professional in some other important discipline that touches the lives and hearts of human beings, call us toll-free on the Andrews In-Line and find out more about how Andrews can teach you how to care. Nationwide 1-800-253-2874. Mexican Victims Helped After Quake

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Seventh-day Adventists continue to share time and money to assist the Mexican people.

Eliasib Sanchez, Central Mexican Conference president, told Conrad Visser, A.D.R.A. representative, that he believes "at least 150 people were rescued by Adventist volunteers."

The 300 A.D.R.A. volunteers, who helped with rescue and clean up for the first 18 days following the earthquake coordinate the A.D.R.A. feeding program in Mexico City.

Plans call for rebuilding at least 50 homes in Ciudad Guzman, a city of approximately 100,000 people in Jalisco province, where 80 percent of the single family houses were destroyed. However, A.D.R.A. would like to increase that number to 100 or more provided sufficient funds are donated. Each house will cost approximately $5,000.

Haroldo Seidl, an A.D.R.A. staff member; Gracie Schaeffler, vice president for patient care, and Eunice Diaz, director of health promotion, both at White Memorial Medical Center (W.M.M.C.), have confirmed a total of six Adventist deaths and seven missing Adventists.

A literature evangelist left his wife at Juarez Hospital the morning of the quake. He doesn't know if the delivery was ever completed. A lady who has inherited her sister's two children to raise with her own has no house in which to establish a home. And an elderly Adventist couple have lost all their belongings in Guzman.

Meanwhile, Mexican church development and relief officials have assumed responsibility for feeding about 5,000 persons for the next six weeks. Pastor Sanchez says estimated costs of this project, is U.S. $63,000.

The Inter-American Division has sent $15,000 to add to the Mexican Union's $5,000. Euro-Africa has voted $25,000. Pacific Union Conference congregations and hospitals have donated more than $100,000 cash.

White Memorial officials offered a $10,000 challenge during a telethon of the Spanish International Network (SIN) which netted over $5 million for all relief efforts from the United States alone. A.D.R.A.'s board has voted $61,000 for immediate relief.

In addition, the six hospitals of Adventist Health System/West in southern California donated medicines from their own warehouse stocks. Adventist hospitals were mobilized after Tom Bradley, mayor of Los Angeles, California, called Paul Tharp, vice president for marketing and public relations at W.M.M.C., suggesting that Adventists were the ones who could provide this service.

All Adventist meeting places remained packed during the period when the city was swayed by aftershocks that registered five on the Richter scale. And 10,000 members in 60 congregations are doubling their efforts to simultaneously begin 1,000 city-wide lay evangelistic campaigns. Their goal is 1,500 baptisms.

"We look at the earthquake as another sign of Jesus' soon-coming," says Elder Sanchez, "and our laymen are eager to tell the city about it."

Your name, address and the name of your home church are required. Letters will not be published if you request anonymity.

I went to the store for some strawberry preserves. On my way home, a young blond man about 25 years old asked me if I could "spare a few minutes." I saw he had Christian literature, but thought, "I am a Seventh-day Adventist. What can he tell me?" and told him, "I am Christian. I already go to a church which I love." Undaunted, he said, "Wait a minute—you say you are a Christian. . . ." So, the conversation went on. He asked what church I went to, where it was located and what we believed. I told him.

He had a Bible containing the Psalms and the New Testament. We discussed the Sabbath, the state of the dead, the origin of evil, conditions before Jesus comes—which include earthquakes and air disasters every day, signs that Satan is busy because he knows his time is short—and the millennium. Afterward I thought, "What if I had gone on by?" Sometimes, I wonder if we Adventists are so arrogant that we think we know it all and brush these people off, failing to think of reverse faith-sharing which is us witnessing to them?

He went on his way. I ran to my home, got a copy of a pamphlet which I love to give out, An Hour With Your Bible, caught up with him a block away and gave it to him.

The only thing I know about this young man is that he goes to a Baptist church on George and Cicero in Chicago and that his name is Tim. But the thing that haunts me is what if I had just gone on by in my "arrogance," thinking that nothing he could give me could possibly help ME, forgetting that I may have been able to help him? One thing he asked me during the conversation was if I go out and pass out literature. I had to confess, "No, I am usually too scared. I use other ways." And he said, "You should be doing it [going out]. This [message] should be told." Just something to think about.

Harvest 90: Back to Basics

Glenn D. Aufderhar
President
Michigan Conference

Knut Rockne, head coach at the University of Notre Dame, held the record as the winningest coach in college football for many years. He held no secret practices, had no trick plays. But he accepted nothing short of excellence in the basics.

American education flirted for a decade or more with the enriched curriculum concept which included many good things of exotic interest. But students who came through the so-called enrichment process were weak in basic skills.

In the public market, finely-honed skills in reading, writing and arithmetic still make for success. Intelligent America was shocked into sobriety by the report, "a nation at risk." Thus, competing in the world of nations demanded a return to basics in education.

The Seventh-day Adventist Church is at risk for many of the same reasons. As a church in North America, we have so many good programs and tools that the General Conference cannot count them accurately. But we have failed to coach excellence in the basics.

As a church, our failure has been so monumental that we now have difficulty even recognizing what is essential to the survival, health and growth of the church.

Adventists have a wealth of tools available that are a credit to our God. Unfortunately, these good things sometimes distract us from the best things provided by Divinity.

Even though a sharpened scalpel is a critical tool in surgery, most of us would not choose a surgeon who spent more time sharpening his scalpel than studying anatomy and physiology.

If we are to experience growth, we must have revival and reformation which result from a return to the basics. What are the basics without which no church nor Christian can long survive: In my opinion, they are: (1) Prayer (2) Bible Study (3) Fellowship (4) Sharing.

Once, when I was asked to teach a class, I declined saying, "I don't know the subject matter well enough." My supervisor replied, "That is why I asked you to teach." He went on to explain, saying: "Until you teach, you don't know. In teaching, you learn more than your students."

Is that why God asks us, each one of us, to bring someone else to Him? A radio station in Guam is fine. Signs of the Times magazine is super. But sending an offering to maintain radio time or mailing a magazine is not a substitute for personally bringing a soul to Christ.

Harvest 90 will be as successful as each of us make it by personal involvement in advancement of the Kingdom.

Drinking ice cream through a straw was a moment to savor for seven-year-old Ryan Helzerman of Evansville, Indiana, as he participated recently in a Sabbath School parking-lot party on a warm, fall day. Ryan was the youngest member of the Evansville Church to recite all third quarter memory verses during a special Thirteenth Sabbath program.
