WILL you allow me, please, just a brief personal word? It seems so strange, yet so very comfortable, to be writing a guest editorial in the Herald.

For eight years, it was my privilege to edit the Herald. Now, after just an 18-month absence, it is exciting to be back in the Lake Union and back on the editorial page of the journal that will always be very special to me.

During the three months that we have been in Wisconsin, my wife, Nancy, and I have heard so many thrilling stories of God's leading through the varied ministries of the dedicated members of this conference. Space does not allow a review of them all, but let me share a few.

The students in the church schools throughout Wisconsin are involved in a variety of witnessing activities. These include conducting nursing home services, visiting shut-ins, making and sending greeting cards, writing letters to ill people, making Christmas gifts for hospitalized children, making and delivering holiday food baskets, shoveling snow for the elderly, planting flowers to share with sick members in the spring, raking leaves and doing community clean-up projects.

The list goes on and on!

Recently, the students in Madison went to the school's day-care rooms. There, they each selected a youngster and took him back to their own classroom and conducted worship with each preschooler. Most of the day-care students are not from Adventist homes, and their parents were very impressed by the spiritual attention given their children.

Milwaukee students are producing a cassette program which they are sharing with shut-ins. The student choir sings, and several students read for the recording.

The older pupils in the Richland Center School have brought a sewing machine to school and are repairing clothing for the local community services center. They are also making bread for shut-ins in their homes.

Before the winter snows came, youngsters in the Raymond Junior Academy went to the park in nearby Union Grove on Sabbath afternoons. There, they gathered children who were playing and held a story hour, right in the park.

You see, for these young Wisconsin witnesses, sharing their faith is becoming a way of life.

"A little child shall lead them," Jesus said.

Come, let us follow!

Listen magazine shows teenagers better, more healthful ways to find fulfillment through alternatives to drug and alcohol use.

Listen works!

by Gary B. Swanson

THE editors of Listen magazine received several poems written by a 14-year-old Indiana girl. One poem included these first few lines:

Death with its boldness comes out with his shiny black cape.
The cape of peaceful and restless blackness of death.
Life with the humbleness of all-knowing slips in quietly.
Life has no cape, for life has nothing to hide.
Now the duel has begun,
the duel for me.

The weapons are chosen—friends, parents, problems, and solutions.
Death strikes first . . .

She wrote in another poem:

Why won't anyone listen?
Don't they care?
So why not end it now,
Just make it all end
So I'll never have to worry again?

Taken together, the poems seemed like a call for help. And Listen responded. The editors gave her name and address to the assistant superintendent of schools for her hometown and expressed concern that she seemed to be seeking help.

Though there were four large schools where the teenager could be enrolled, the assistant superintendent said she would try to find out if the girl needed counseling. Three days later, the Listen offices received a letter from an associate principal at one of those schools.

"We, as a school, did intervene," the principal wrote, "and found cause for prompt action. Presently, the student and her mother are aware of your efforts and are comforted that someone cared. Your prompt action to a very serious situation made it possible for us to possibly circumvent a tragic loss."

Although statistics indicate that, over recent months, youths are beginning to see the hazards of drug and alcohol use, there is still cause for a great deal of concern regarding abuse in this area.

And the church seems to be awakening to the fact that the scourge of alcohol and drug use is in our midst. Hardly a church member exists anymore who does not know of a family, or is part of a family, that has been touched by this tragic problem.

During the past two years, the Seventh-day Adventist membership has shown a renewed support of the ministry Listen magazine has developed in the 37 years of its publication.

More and more church members are seeing the importance of providing Listen's positive drug-prevention message for their own young people as well as for other teenagers in their communities.

The winner of four national awards in writing and design, Listen has become the most widely-respected magazine of its kind. Governmental agencies, parents groups and educators have been endorsing the message of Listen as one of the most promising prevention tools in the battle against drug use.

Accenting positive alternatives to drug use, rather than the more traditional negative scare tactics, Listen shows readers that there are better, more healthful ways to find fulfillment than through potentially destructive behavior. And teenagers respond in positive ways.

With the generous sponsorship of our church members during its annual campaign, Listen is helping teenagers make intelligent, informed decisions about the use of alcohol and drugs as well as the other unique problems they face. Listen works!

Every day, like astronauts, we go out into an alien environment. But if we have "put the blood on the doorpost" and have taught our children "when they lie down and when they rise up" (evening and morning worship), then we are giving God permission to keep our whole family in a heavenly atmosphere. The family altar— hedge of protection

by John and Millie Youngberg

THREE desperate drug-runners, armed to the teeth, cursing, stood beside their wrecked twin-engine plane on a remote mission airstrip.

John and Millie Youngberg are directors of the Family Life Workshop. He is chairman of the department of religious education, and she is professor of reading education at Andrews University.

Who had put the dugout canoe across the strip and crumpled their landing gear? Their contacts crouched helplessly nearby in the jungle, guarding their sacks full of narcotics.

The desperados tried to plan a way of escape before the soldiers arrived. Then, they heard the drone of the mission plane overhead. When the mission plane arrived, they would overpower the pilot, hijack his plane and escape!

Gage Calwell loved the Peruvian jungle. When an interest in the Gospel developed in a new area, he would instruct the people how to clear an airstrip so he could bring needed medical attention and teach them about Jesus. After a strip had been hacked out of the jungle next to one of the Amazon River tributaries, he visited there often.

Soon, he learned that he was not the only visitor. A twin-engine plane was making unscheduled landings. It would come in just over the treetops and swoop in for a landing. In seconds, unidentified men would load sacks on board—and zoom, the plane was gone.

"Stretch a chain across the strip," Pastor Calwell told the new converts. "Maybe that will discourage the drug-runners. When I come, I'll buzz the field a time or two, and you can remove the chain." The jungle people could not find a long-enough chain; so, they decided to use a canoe.

Another day had just dawned at the mission air station. Before breakfast, Dad and Mother Calwell gathered their four children. They sang a song, and their pet macaw added her voice.

Dad read a psalm, and together they knelt at their family altar. He prayed, "We claim the merits of the blood of Jesus today over every member of our family and claim the victory in Him. Amen."

After breakfast, Dad went to the hangar and readied the aircraft while the older children studied their school correspondence lessons. Today, the mission director and the treasurer for this part of Peru were joining Dad for a flight into the interior.

It was not long before they were winging their way through blue skies. As they neared the jungle landing strip, a cloud impeded their approach. Pastor Calwell circled. It was raining heavily in that area.

Spotty showers were common in the jungle. It would only be a few minutes before the wind would sweep the area clear.

They circled for 15 minutes. There was something strange about this cloud. It just hung there, right above the landing strip.

"Gentlemen," Pastor Calwell shouted above the roar of the motor, "we can't get down right now. We'll fly on to another mission station and come back this way later in the afternoon."

Hours later, they neared the jungle airstrip again. Unbelievably, the cloud was still there, pouring out heavy rainfall although the country around was quite clear. Reluctantly, Pastor Calwell pointed the plane's nose toward home and said, "Next time you come, I'll take you there."

That evening, the Calwells gathered at their family altar, and Dad told the story of the strange cloud. Weeks later, they learned the rest of the story.

Again, the family praised God for His watchcare and goodness. Eleven-year-old Nancy said, "I want to repeat my memory verse for you." She began and, one by one, they all joined in:

"For he shall give his angels charge over you, To keep you in all your ways. They shall bear you up in their hands, Lest you dash your foot against a stone" (Psalms 91:11-12, New King James Version).

Why do we have family worship? Is it primarily to protect us from accident or material loss?

Family worship is not a magic wand, nor is it a guarantee of protection. Sometimes, our all-wise Heavenly Father permits serious accidents to befall His trusting children. Of greater importance than physical safety is spiritual protection.

Satan and his angels are trying to surround us and our children with their hellish influence. Every day, like astronauts, we go out into an alien environment. But if we have "put the blood on the doorpost" and have taught our children "when they lie down and when they rise up" (evening and morning worship), then we are giving God permission to keep our whole family in a heavenly atmosphere.

Why do we have family worship?

1. It is the most natural thing in the world for Christians to want to adore their God. The family lives together. Why should it not adore and praise God together?

2. We gather at the family altar to renew the covenant. We need to hear ourselves saying that our family chooses to be on God's side. Thus, our family becomes like Noah's ark—a place of refuge which the fury of life's storms cannot overcome.

3. We come to the family altar to sacrifice. There, we claim the merits of the sacrifice of Christ that has won the victory. Through His blood, we seize that victory for our family.

4. We gather our children around us morning and evening to instruct them in the Christian way and pass on to them our spiritual heritage.

5. We meet at the family altar to celebrate our joys—birthdays, spiritual anniversaries, God's leading in our past, special family events—and our sorrows.

An 11-year-old boy from a family that regularly celebrated worships was being hounded by friends at school and play about why he was so different. One day, out of the anguish of his youthful heart, he said, "Dad, if you're right; then, everybody else is wrong!"

His home was almost the only one he knew that did not have a television set. But the family had read 32 books in the last two years. Like Noah, his father might not be able to save the world, but he was gathering his own family into the ark of safety.

Are you gathering your children into the ark of safety? Are you daily putting the "blood on the doorposts" as a witness to an onlooking universe that Jesus is Lord of your lives and that, at the family altar, you claim you are on His side in the great controversy between Christ and Satan?

"For he shall give his angels charge over you, To keep you in all your ways. They shall bear you up in their hands, Lest you dash your foot against a stone" (Psalms 91:11-12, New King James Version). (Photo by David Butler)

'The Caring Church'— more than just a motto

Lake Union—Recently, a church administrator from another part of the country made reference to the phrase "the Caring Church" by saying, "Today, we realize how superficial a motto can become if it remains only a motto."

As our current "No One But You" (NOBY) slide-tape program was in production, I observed, "These stories are vivid examples of Seventh-day Adventists in the Lake Union who represent the Caring Church."

Included in this winter program, "The Master's Gloves," is a story written and photographed by Jerry Lastine, communication director for the Indiana Conference.

Elder Lastine wrote about Doris Meyer of Hartford City, Indiana, who cares for 14 handicapped individuals who live in her home. In fact, recently she legally adopted two of the children.

During the past 21 years, Doris has opened her home and her heart to about 90 handicapped individuals ranging in age from 2 months to 26 years. Doris, who became a Seventh-day Adventist five years ago, has already been instrumental in the baptism of several of her "family" members.

Reflecting on the weekend he spent photographing Doris and her family, Elder Lastine said: "I wouldn't trade that weekend for anything. Seeing such love in action really touched my heart."

And when Doris speaks of the Marion, Indiana, Church where she and her family attend, she says, "There is so much love and caring in that church until I can't put it into words."

The second story in the current NOBY takes place in Owosso, Michigan. Glenn Hill, communication director of the Michigan Conference, had the opportunity to cover this segment of the program telling the story of Otis and Kathyne Stewart.

Like Doris Meyer, the Stewarts have opened their home to others. Three foster adults live with the Stewarts, and Otis says, "We love them as though they were our own sons."

Last year, the Stewarts' hearts were touched as they learned about the starving children in Ethiopia. As a result, the Owosso Church elder and his wife sold wheat from their farm enabling them to donate $10,000 to the Adventist Development and Relief Agency. A.D.R.A. then purchased $10,000 worth of wheat closer to the area of need and delivered it to Ethiopia.

Kathyne and Otis Stewart

In addition, the Stewarts donated a tractor to help Ethiopians grow their own food and $3,000 to help build an improved water system at Ethiopia Adventist College.

The Stewarts' philosophy of helping others is summed up in their words: "God sent us into the world to represent Him. The Lord has blessed us, and it has been our prayer not to think of ourselves, lest we forget the needs of others."

It is Lake Union members like Doris Meyer and Otis and Kathyne Stewart who make the Caring Church more than just a motto. They make our church a living reality of love in action.

Bethel, Wisconsin, Church continues Thanksgiving tradition of 35 years

Wisconsin—Atha Steffen, a Bethel, Wisconsin, Church member, reports that 185 people attended the Bethel Thanksgiving celebration. The meal has been a tradition for 35 years. Students from Bethel Junior Academy sang during the evening program.

Milwaukee Northwest Church enacts Christ's birth

Wisconsin—Violet Haley, communication secretary of the Milwaukee Northwest Church, reports their congregation presented "The Story of the Birth of Jesus Christ" on December 21. The manger held the 3-day-old son of Hans and Candy Jakobsons. Carols highlighted the drama which was enacted by the children of the church. Gobles Junior Academy Teachers honored at banquet

Michigan—Because 1985 was The Year of the Teacher, the Home and School Association of Gobles Junior Academy honored their teachers with a banquet on Sunday evening, December 15.

Teachers honored were Gordon Evans (grades 1-3), Bob Patterson (grades 4-6), Tom Lechleitner (homeroom teacher for grades 7-8), Renee Coffee (homeroom teacher for grades 9-10) and Tom Coffee, principal.

The Home and School Association has also sponsored other programs. Dr. Ross Campbell's film series, "How to Really Love Your Teenager" was shown. Erma Jane Cook spoke about nutrition and children's behavior. James and John Kim presented a violin/cello concert. The Kalamazoo Ringers Christmas bell choir was featured.

Alvena Evans, home and school leader for the Gobles-Pinedale Church, reports that the upcoming program on March 15 will feature Dr. E. Stanley Chace from Andrews University.

International dinner benefits Troy Adventist Academy

Michigan—Troy Adventist Academy hosted an international dinner on October 27 as part of its open house.

The food donated was sold for more than $800 at booths that featured the fare of several countries. All proceeds received that day will be used to purchase more computers for the school.

This year, the school is in a new building and has enrolled 89 students in grades 1 through 10. Clarence Newton is principal.

Armour Potter, Troy pastor, and his wife, Donna, modeled garb of the Middle East. They had served there for five years.

Breathe-Free training seminars held at three Michigan locations

Michigan—Three training seminars were conducted in 1985 for the Breathe-Free Plan to Stop Smoking, the newly-revised Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking.

Nearly 80 persons participated in the training programs held in October and November in three Michigan locations: Camp Au Sable in Grayling, the Lake Union Conference office in Berrien Springs and the Metropolitan Church in Plymouth.

Arthur Weaver, a doctor and professor of surgery at Wayne State University in Detroit, and Herald Habenicht, a physician who specializes in allergies at University Medical Specialties, P.C. in Berrien Springs, presented current medical information on the effects of smoking.

Health and temperance department instructors were Stoy Proctor, director of the North American Division, and his co-worker Rudolf Klimes, Bryce Pascoe, director for the Columbia Union Conference, and John Swanson, director for the Michigan Conference.

Features of the new plan include emphasis on self-image, self-esteem and self-respect. In general, smokers today have clung to their habit despite evidence of its injurious effects because they do not know how to cope without nicotine. Now, more attention is focused on the advantages of lifestyle modification than on physical consequences.

Negative approaches are believed to have an adverse effect on lifestyle change. The revised plan is upbeat, optimistic and positive, yet informative.

Expansion to eight sessions reflects research indicating that it takes two to three weeks to change a habit successfully and at least two weeks for the body to excrete active nicotine.

Despite the revisions, many Five-Day Plan principles are intact, including abstinence from alcohol, caffeine, saturated fats and highly-spiced foods.

To help improve the loss rate, the new plan has incorporated follow-up contacts at intervals of three, six and twelve months.

Comments of participants in the Michigan Conference seminar: "It was excellent!"

"I enjoyed the role playing."

"I liked being able to be involved."

"I'm a doctor and feel that the breathe-free program is more flexible by not dictating physician roles. This is very important for churches with limited resources and personnel. I am enthusiastic about the program."

If you are interested in attending a training seminar, contact the Michigan Conference health and temperance department for dates and locations.

Hillsdale Community Services Center gets a boost from public donor

A faithful Ingathering witness

Michigan—Leanoire Carson discusses some of her Ingathering contacts with Pastor Paul Howell. A lifetime member of the Hillsdale Seventh-day Adventist Church, Sister Carson, age 79, solicited $679.67 for Ingathering in 1985. She says that when she places Ingathering literature in the home, the Lord takes care of the offering. Pastor Howell says: "Sister Carson really loves the Lord, and He helps in her work. I wish that each church member in the Michigan Conference would be as faithful a witness."

Connersville members reach 180 percent of Ingathering goal

Indiana—Hubert and Ada Schmalfeldt let nothing hinder their enthusiasm for the 1985 Ingathering campaign. They have faithfully ingathered for 38 years in the Connersville area, even though they now live in Sarasota, Florida.

"Hubert insisted we come back to Connersville to ingather this fall," Ada remarked as she spoke of the serious illness that 79-year-old Hubert survived in 1985.

The Schmalfeldts arrived in Indiana and worked nearly three hours for six nights. Ada said that she was amazed to see how Hubert's health improved as ingathering progressed.

"The 32-member Connersville Church raised 180 percent of their Ingathering campaign goal," reported John Hart, personal ministries leader, "and dedicated people like Hubert and Ada made that possible."

When asked what ingathering means to him, Hubert replied: "Ingathering means working for the Lord. In doing His work, I'm blessed and fulfilled."

Sixty-seven-year-old Ada answered the same question: "It's hard for me to get out, but once I'm out I enjoy being there. I feel good helping others. I know I'm helping to spread the Gospel."

With the Ingathering campaign completed, Frances Van Hart, communication secretary, reports that the Schmalfeldts have returned to Florida to await the call to ingather in Indiana next fall.

Illinois Conference

Illinois Conference news note

• Seven persons were baptized at the Springfield Church on November 16, as a result of an evangelistic series conducted by Art Swinson, conference evangelist. Two couples, Gary and Debbie Ambuehl and Adrian and Cathy Cohee, were baptized as well as Cathy's sister and niece, Viola and Stephanie Kennett. They were joined in baptism by Peggy Luparell. The new members were welcomed into the family of God by each member and became better acquainted with them at a fellowship dinner held after the services. Some new members had previously attended a Revelation seminar. Others who attended the meetings are still studying the Bible.

Broadview Academy students brighten Christmas for refugees

Illinois—The students of Broadview Academy shared their Christmas holiday spirit by giving a party for Cambodian and Vietnamese refugees.

Santa Claus, played by school principal Harold Oetman, passed out presents sponsored by Broadview students. They were rewarded by looks of delight from the children as they opened their presents.

Jackie De Groot reports that many of the students enjoyed themselves. "It was a time to have fun, but it was also a sharing time with others less fortunate than ourselves. It was a chance for us to give others just a little of our love."

MiSook Kim, a senior at Broadview said, "It made me feel good to realize that by giving even just a small gift to show that you care can give someone so much happiness."

Lynda Chough, a Broadview Academy student, becomes better acquainted with one of the refugees who attended the Broadview Christmas party.

Andrews University

Tedd Pearce named vice president of Andrews Industries

Andrews University—Terrance Newmyer, Andrews Industries president, announced that Tedd Pearce has been named vice president for finance.

Mr. Pearce fills the position which has been vacant since Norman Trubey died last summer.

"Mr. Pearce brings a strong background in finances to the industries," said Mr. Newmyer. Prior to accepting the Andrews Industries position, he was involved in private enterprise as a consultant and as an auditor for Touche Ross and Company.

He is responsible for financial decisions for each business under the Andrews Industries umbrella, including Apple Valley Market, Apple Valley Bakery, Flower Loft, Family Center, Berrien Bindery, University Printers, College Wood Products, College Wood Products Factory Furniture Store, Cum Laude Motel and Cirtec Systems.

Mr. Pearce holds a bachelor's degree in accounting and general business from Phillips University in Enid, Oklahoma. He is from Canon City, Colorado, and started his career as an account manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone.

College Wood Products experienced growth of more than 150 percent during the first six months of fiscal 1986, compared to the same period a year ago. Mr. Pearce says he believes he can contribute to the overall growth that Andrews Industries is experiencing.

He said that employing Andrews University students is the main mission of Andrews Industries and that student earnings in the industries are up by more than 60 percent from a year ago.

Mr. Pearce and his wife, Jeannie, live in Oronoko Township. They have four children.

Tedd Pearce is the new vice president of Andrews Industries.

Samuele Bacchiocchi writes new book on Sabbathkeeping

Andrews University—The Sabbath in the New Testament is the latest book on the Sabbath authored by Samuele Bacchiocchi, professor of theology in the department of religion at Andrews University.

Four basic reasons for believing in the permanence of the principle and practice of Sabbathkeeping in the New Testament are presented in four separate chapters which comprise the first half of the book.

Excerpts from these four chapters have been published in Ministry magazine and other religious journals.

Dr. Bacchiocchi says that readers will especially enjoy the second half of the book where he answers the most frequently asked questions about the Sabbath.

Some of the practical questions answered include: Which activities are appropriate or inappropriate on the Sabbath? How can a pastor rest on the Sabbath when his workload is greater than on weekdays?

Questions of a theological or historical nature include: Why is the seventh day not called "Sabbath" in Genesis 2:2-3? Why is there no mention of Sabbathkeeping for the whole patriarchal period? Does Isaiah 66:23 teach that the day of the new moon will be observed in the new earth with the Sabbath? If God wanted Christians to observe the Sabbath, why did He not re-enact the Fourth Commandment in the New Testament?

The book includes 20 of the Bacchiocchi family's favorite Italian recipes for Sabbath meals prepared by his wife, Anna.

"I have persuaded her to share 'secret' recipes of our favorite lasagna, cannelloni, spaghetti and other dishes," Dr. Bacchiocchi says, "because many women have asked me for them after listening to my lecture in which I compare the weekdays without the Sabbath to spaghetti without the sauce."

Dr. Bacchiocchi says he hopes that these delicious dishes will add some gusto to the celebration of the Sabbath.

The Sabbath in the New Testament is on sale at Adventist Book Centers.

Three Gymnics cited for heroism in Hawaii

Andrews University—Three students received citations for heroism from municipal authorities in Kauai, Hawaii, during Christmas break when they saved a young child from drowning.

The students are members of the Andrews University Gymnics who were on a 28-day performance tour of the Hawaiian Islands. The incident occurred at the Kahili Seventh-day Adventist School where the Gymnics were participating in a building project.

While playing with friends on the school grounds, 2-year-old Leilani Robinson fell into a deep pond. Cries for help brought Bucky Reed, an Andrews Academy junior, to the scene.

Mr. Reed brought the child to shore where he was joined by two Andrews University students: Edwin Eberhardt, a senior physical education major, and Nancy Acosta, a freshman physical therapy student. Finding no pulse in the child, the rescuers began cardiopulmonary resuscitation and succeeded in reviving her.

After spending two days in an intensive care unit, Leilani was released from the hospital in time to enjoy the Gymnics' last performance on the Hawaiian Islands and to receive a special Christmas gift from members of the team.

Local church members gave the three students a plaque with the following inscription:

"December 31, 1985. Nancy Acosta, Ed Eberhardt and Bucky Reed of Andrews University Gymnics rescued and resuscitated from drowning Leilani Robinson, age 2, at Kahili Adventist School. Mahalo Nui Loa (Thank you and God bless). Seventh-day Adventists of Kauai."

Andrews University students selected to Who's Who publication

Andrews University—The 1986 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges includes the names of 42 Andrews University students selected as outstanding national leaders.

Students are chosen for the honor based on outstanding academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities as well as their potential for continued success.

They join a group of students selected from more than 1,400 institutions of higher learning in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and several foreign nations.

Hanson, Johann Johannsson, Marion Jones, Ricky Jones, Martin Kendall, Grace Kim and Keith Knepel.

World Church News

Highlights from around the General Conference

Washington—The General Conference committee for Women's Ministries newest members are Elizabeth Sterndale, director of nurses for North America, and Marjorie Felder, administrative assistant in trust services. Miss Sterndale has been at the General Conference four years, moving from Harding Hospital. Miss Felder taught at Oakwood College in Huntsville, Alabama, before joining the General Conference staff six years ago.

Adventist World Radio-Asia was voted to be the first General Conference institution outside of North America. The legal body for Guam is called Adventist Broadcasting Service, Inc. The news center will receive two modern, 100-kilowatt transmitters in late spring 1986 through a contract signed with a company in France.

Charles L. Brooks, an associate in the Church Ministries Department, will spend a portion of his time nurturing the ministry of church music. Asked to associate with him in a committee are Karen Flowers and D. W. Holbrook who are also in the church ministries department and Harold Lickey, Oliver S. Beltz Chair of Sacred Music, Andrews University Theological Seminary.

The Euro-Africa and South Pacific divisions will receive the Mission Extension Offering for 1986. The Southern Asia and Trans-European divisions will be the offering beneficiaries in 1987.

Black Adventists hold posts in church leadership positions

Washington—Eight of the top 22 elective posts for Seventh-day Adventist Church leadership in North America were filled by Black members elected during the 54th International Conference in New Orleans.

Heading the list is Charles E. Bradford, who will serve a second five-year term as president. Elder Bradford has served at the church world headquarters in Washington since 1970 when he was elected associate secretary. As president for North America since 1979, he is also a vice president of the world church.

Also elected were Robert L. Woodfork, associate secretary; Frank L. Jones, assistant treasurer; Warren S. Banfield, field secretary and human relations director; Samuel D. Meyers, associate director of church ministries; William C. Scales Jr., secretary of the ministerial association, and Owen A. Troy, director of communication.

Elder Jones first was elected assistant world treasurer in 1977. Elder Banfield was asked to head the office of human relations in 1978, after serving two years as associate director in the department for Black affairs.

All others are beginning their second terms in North America.

In addition, Black Adventists were also elected to administrative offices of the General Conference. G. Ralph Thompson was re-elected secretary of the world church. Born in Barbados, Elder Thompson will serve his second term.

Calvin Rock, former president of Oakwood College in Huntsville, Alabama, was voted one of five general vice presidents. The one-time Youth of the Year honored by the City of Los Angeles, has a doctoral degree from Vanderbilt University.

Others re-elected were Charles D. Brooks, general field secretary; Richard Barron, and Charles L. Brooks, associates in church ministries; Victor S. Griffiths, associate for education, and DeWitt S. Williams, associate in the health and temperance department.

Robert Smith was chosen an associate publishing director, transferring from the Review and Herald Publishing Association in Hagerstown, Maryland, where he has been in charge of literature sales the last eight years.

For the first time in church history, a Black African will be a general field secretary of the world church. He is Mathew A. Bediako, former president of the West African Union Mission in Accra, Ghana.

Two Black Africans—Bekele Heye and Jacob J. Nortey—were asked to serve as presidents of divisions with offices in Harare, Zimbabwe and Abidjan, Ivory Coast. Both are vice presidents of the worldwide church.

Seventh-day Adventist membership is a little more than 4.5 million. Of this total, 3.8 million (83 percent) are now outside of North America—nearly one million in Africa alone.

The five states of the Pacific southwest were for many years the largest union; the largest now is the East African Union Mission with headquarters in Nairobi, Kenya. This union has a membership of almost 206,000.

"Unity is not uniformity," Elder Bradford says. "In all of its variety and diversity of people, there is, however, a basic unity in all those things which are not peripheral. Binding us all together is God's great love and our sense of family in His household."

'It Is Written' adds new staff

Thousand Oaks, Calif.—"It Is Written" has added three key staff members.

"We're privileged to be welcoming these individuals to the team at this important time in our ministry," says speaker/director George Vandeman.

Dr. Ruben Sanchez has accepted responsibilities as director of development. His background includes literature evangelism work in southern California, pastoral experience in Illinois and Oregon and 11 years experience in radio ministry.

Dr. Sanchez has a Ph.D. in religious education and has authored a number of books and magazine articles. His contributions to the church have recently been catalogued in volume three of Who's Who in Religion.

He comes to It Is Written from "La Voz de la Esperanza," the Spanish "Voice of Prophecy," where he served for four years as the director of the Bible school, public relations, and development.

Martin Weber, formerly with the development department of the "Voice of Prophecy," will serve as assistant to George Vandeman. He has served in Southeastern California Conference churches and has worked as a conference evangelist in the Mountain View Conference.

Pastor Webber authored Some Call It Heresy, released by the Review and Herald Publishing Association. He worked with George Vandeman in preparing scripts for the eight-week miniseries on the prophecies of Revelation, "The Rise and Fall of Antichrist," which began in January.

David B. Smith is the new director of public relations. A writer and editor, formerly with Concerned Communications Christian publishing group in Arroyo Grande, California, he has experience in Christian education and seminar evangelism.

Yesterday, I received the new Lake Union Herald black and white magazine. I like it. It is much easier to read than the tabloid. If it would help with expenses, I would be happy to have all issues of the Herald in black and white. Sure the issues in color are attractive, but they're also more expensive. I don't look at the color—I read the words, and they're all in black anyway. I like the Lake Union Herald. I'm glad our conference sends it to the members.

Millie Jenkins
Hartford City, Indiana

Editor's Note: Our advertisers request four-color advertising. The amount they pay for this service not only enriches the beauty of the Herald covers, it decreases the overall cost of the Herald. Thus, the subsidy is reduced for each conference that contributes to sending the Herald to each home in the Lake Union.

I am so glad to see the black and white Herald magazine replacing the newsprint tabloid. It was difficult to read, clumsy to handle and the pictures did not print well. Thanks for the change. I would also like to note that the columns which are justified on the right side as well as on the left, look much more professional than the ragged right which has been in your color issue. I would like to see the justified lines in all issues if possible. Blessings to you in all your good work.

John A. Kroncke, Pastor
Michigan Conference

Your new Lake Union Herald is all that we have asked for. It looks great, reads easily and is attractively laid out. The pictures are well produced and the cover is every bit as attractive as the color edition. Congratulations, and thank you.

Jerry Lastine, Communication Director
Indiana Conference

Thank you for your January 14 editorial. This editorial is so easy to understand. It does the heart good. That is the kind of article we need in the Lake Union Herald. We are very happy that it is now the plan that all who receive the Herald will also get the first issue of the Adventist Review each month. We know that keeping the periodicals filled with inspirational material is not easy.
