COMMUNICATION is an interchange of thoughts or opinions imparted by words, letters, or messages. Without communication, the world would come to a standstill—a Babel would exist.

Communication with the Lord through His word is the key to our spiritual survival. Communication of plans with employees is the key to an effective team working relationship. Communication with the family is the heart of home happiness. Communication with friends adds a depth of living which no money can buy. If communication is free, why is it so costly?

The wise man counsels that there is "a time to keep silence, and a time to speak" (Ecclesiastes 3:7). Perhaps, we could add it takes the wisdom of Solomon to balance the two! That adage was illustrated vividly to me on Father's Day.

In a restaurant, a family of five dressed in leisure clothes, sat at a nearby table sharing delectables a plenty. The tone was joyful. I was alone, absorbed in thoughts of my own two lovely daughters, one on the West Coast, the other on the East Coast, with my wife some distance away.

Unexpectedly, the scene across the room changed. The father raised his voice that many could hear to begin a tirade of "communication" to his early-teen daughter. He emphatically stated that she talked too much, that she should respond only when spoken to, that she should and would soon learn that friends would be fewer as her constant talking lengthened.

Silence and sourness captivated the young lady as Dad made his point many times over. In fact, the Father's Day family celebration seemed to end abruptly. Who was right, dad or daughter? Communication—if it is free, why is it so costly?

Can we agree that communication costs the following?:

- A discipline to care with mutual respect and mutual forbearance tucked in common courtesy,
- A discipline to listen when everyone knows his own words are more important,
- A discipline of time when life is so busy, too busy to spare a moment to communicate (the I'll-do-it-later syndrome).

If God were to appear and grade our communication skills, how would we measure up? With room for improvement, let us take courage. We have Heaven's Communicator within reach:

"When we are humble and contrite, we stand where God can and will manifest Himself to us . . . . The Lord Jesus knows just what His children need, how much divine power we will appropriate for the blessing of humanity; and He bestows upon us all that we will employ in blessing others and ennobling our own souls" (Ellen G. White, How to Get Along With Others, pp. 30, 31).

Today is a new day, time for a new start, a new commitment. Let us accept His counsel and practice His communication:

"Let your speech always be with grace, seasoned with salt, that you may know how you ought to answer each one" (Colossians 4:6, New King James Version).

Let freedom ring!

by Vernon Alger

As we celebrate the freedom enjoyed in this country, let us give special thanks for the liberty found in Christ Jesus.

EVER since President Cleveland dedicated her on October 28, 1886, she has stood at the entrance to one of America's busiest harbors and has greeted more than 17 million immigrants.

The Statue of Liberty is a beacon of freedom that has been seen throughout the world. The message upon her is a sonnet written by Emma Lazarus entitled "The New Colossus," which says:

Give me your tired, your poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore.
Send these, the homeless, tempest-
tost to me,
I lift my lamp beside the golden door!

The Statue of Liberty is the symbol of freedom.

A few years ago, it was noticed that this lady of freedom was beginning to show her age. Many parts of the statue were weather worn, and it was no longer safe to climb to her crown to enjoy the magnificent view. A committee was formed to remedy this condition, and after a $70 million renovation, the Statue of Liberty will be rededicated as a part of this coming Fourth of July celebration.

The presidents of the United States and France will be there as will a flotilla of 24 tall ships, 250 other sailing vessels, 50 naval vessels from 35 countries and 40,000 private, pleasure boats. There will be millions of celebrants on Manhattan Island, and camping will be permitted in areas which have not seen a tent since pioneer days.

Forty thousand new citizens are scheduled to be sworn in on Ellis Island as part of the celebration. Many famous immigrants will receive the Medal of Liberty from President Reagan.

As the celebration occurs for the rededication of the Statue of Liberty, we need to rededicate ourselves to the "statute of liberty." God's law, the statute of true liberty, is summarized in Luke 10:27: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself."

This statute of liberty has a call to those in bondage to come into liberty: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light" (Matthew 11:28-30).

The Bible is full of references to the liberty found in Christ Jesus. The following are taken from the New King James Version:

"I will walk at Liberty, For I seek your precepts" (Psalm 119:45).

"Now the Lord is the Spirit; and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is Liberty" (2 Corinthians 3:17).

"Stand fast therefore in the liberty by which Christ has made us free, and do not be entangled again with a yoke of bondage" (Galatians 5:1).

"... the perfect law of liberty" (James 1:25).

"... our liberty which we have in Christ Jesus" (Galatians 2:4).

We need to understand that it is only as we decide to come into the love of Jesus and obey His law that we can enjoy true freedom. We are then free from the bondage of sin. Ellen White put it very well in Education, page 291:

"The youth have an inborn love of liberty; they desire freedom; and they need to understand that these inestimable blessings are to be enjoyed only in obedience to the law of God. This law is the preserver of true freedom and liberty. It points out and prohibits those things that degrade and enslave, and thus to the obedient it affords protection from the power of evil."

This Fourth of July, as we celebrate the freedoms which we enjoy in this country, let's not forget to give thanks for the true liberty from sin which we experience through Christ Jesus.

A secret no more

Melvin Shiere praises God every day for directing him to "see" the Greater Light. Melvin's conversion story will warm your heart and encourage you to consider giving a special gift when the Christian Record Braille Foundation Offering is received in your church.

DO you know the best-kept secret in the Lake Union? Or the Seventh-day Adventist Church?

"I'm amazed at how many Adventists are unaware that Christian Record Braille Foundation is a General Conference institution of the Seventh-day Adventist Church," says Vernon Bretsch, president of Christian Record. "We see evidence of this fact while visiting and sharing with the membership in North America what the ministry of Christian Record is all about."

Since assuming the leadership of Christian Record last August, Mr. Bretsch's primary thrust has been implementing the objectives of Harvest 90 and better acquainting Adventists with Christian Record's unique ministry.

July 12 has been designated as Christian Record annual offering day. Those on the World Budget are encouraged to contribute to The Plan. Funds received go to provide sectarian materials—Sabbath School lessons, Bible correspondence courses and Spirit of Prophecy books—to blind and deaf Adventists and others wanting to know more about our faith.

"Nearly one out of every 10 persons in this world is handicapped. Just think of the soul-winning potential during Harvest 90," Mr. Bretsch says. "As the church reaches out to these persons through the free services Christian Record provides and as the Holy Spirit directs, I'm certain that many, many once-handicapped individuals will be found in the New Jerusalem."

In the Lake Union, Christian Record is currently serving more than 13,000 blind and deaf people. Some 13 district representatives in this four-state region personally visit the blind in their homes, offering encouragement, reading services, praying with them and extending the invitation to accept the One who will someday open their eyes and ears to a glorious eternity.

Melvin Shiere is just one blind Seventh-day Adventist from the Lake Union who praises God for directing him to "see" the Greater Light—Jesus Christ.

Born blind in one eye and severely impaired in the other, Melvin was totally blind by age 6. Blindness, however, wasn't his major obstacle as a child. His parents were both chronic alcoholics. His mother died when he was 7 years old, and things went from bad to worse.

Eventually, his father no longer wanted to take care of him. Melvin recalls that between age 8 and 16 he must have been in more than 13 foster homes. Shifting from one home to the next, made Melvin much more confused about life and religion. On his own he kept studying different religions including Catholicism, Hinduism, Buddhism and Confucianism.

When Melvin reached 16, yet another foster home was arranged for him in Columbus, Wisconsin, with Chuck and Ramona Trudy. He was the couple's first foster child. Chuck was serving as assistant farm manager at Wisconsin Academy.

Impressed with the Trudys' kindness, Melvin began attending Wisconsin Academy. During the summer before the start of his junior year, he was baptized in the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Problems still plagued the teenager. Funds were minimal, and he wasn't able to enroll in the academy the next year. He went to public school.

Due to Melvin's wrestling ability, the coach agreed to change all the Sabbath matches if he would wrestle. This worked for a while but, during the state meets, the coach thought Melvin would give in and wrestle on Sabbath.

"I finally had to quit the team. Nobody would speak to me, but I was witnessing for God," Melvin said.

Melvin's engagement to a high-school sweetheart ended abruptly after he finished his secondary education. His life was at a low point. Suicide seemed to be the only way out.

"Before I could leap off a viaduct in Milwaukee, a man grabbed me and talked to me, calming me down," Melvin said. He told me that in two years I would be the happiest person in the world."

A year and a half later Melvin met his future wife, Mary. He firmly believes God sent that man at the right time to intervene in sparing his life.

Now, the parents of two children, Melvin and Mary moved to Lincoln where he is pursuing a degree in psychology at the University of Nebraska.

Not only is Melvin thankful to God, he also expresses appreciation for the services supplied to him from Christian Record Braille Foundation.

Christian Record helped plant the seed in Melvin's life, the Trudy family helped nurture that seed and the Holy Spirit did the rest. That's what the ministry of Christian Record is all about.

Now, you know the rest of the story. Christian Record Braille Foundation—a secret no more.

David, Trisha, Teresa and Krista Livermore

'It's a miracle'

If the name David Livermore sounds familiar, you may remember his story from a 1982 "No One But You" slide/tape program. At that time he was conducting a jail ministry in Escanaba, Michigan, during his off-hours as a railroad worker. A few months ago, a series of miracles led David to Andrews University where he is preparing to be a pastor.

FOR David Livermore, the possibility of studying for the ministry at Andrews University was, at best, a long shot.

The 34-year-old railroad worker from Escanaba, Michigan, could find many reasons why it wasn't "practical." He and his wife Teresa had good jobs; their two daughters were settled in school, and they owned a home in an area where the housing market moves slowly.

Yet, when Andrews' spring quarter began this past March, David was enrolled as a full-time student, excited about the way God led him to Berrien Springs. "It's a miracle for me to be here at Andrews," David says.

The background of the miracle began when David, after finishing high school and a year of college, took a job with a local railroad company in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. Away from home and associating with a rough group of older men, David soon began drinking heavily. By the time he was 22, he was an alcoholic, deeply involved with drugs and smoking four packs of cigarettes a day.

Still, he was a faithful employee, working seven nights a week continuously for two years as a conductor. Later, through the influence of his wife, who had begun Bible studies with a neighbor, David plunged into Bible study himself, taking advantage of the long hours in the caboose of his train. David and Teresa were baptized into the Adventist Church in 1979.

With some adjustments in his work responsibilities because of Sabbath conflicts, David was still able to keep his job with the railroad. At the same time, the Livermores immediately became active in the local church.

David volunteered to direct the jail ministry for the Delta County Jail in Escanaba.

This no-pay position found him spending many hours each week, meeting with new prisoners, coordinating visits by clergymen of their faith and conducting non-denominational Bible studies.

Enjoyment of his jail ministry got David interested in pursuing a college degree—perhaps in social work. He took classes for a year at a community college and then transferred to Northern Michigan University. But college was difficult because of a constantly changing work schedule.

Teresa suggested that David get information about Andrews, with the idea that he prepare for the ministry. David was reluctant to even try. There seemed to be too many obstacles. His family was well settled and comfortable. Pulling up stakes and starting all over so he could go to college seemed a lot to ask. And what about their house?

"We had been trying to sell the house for four years," David says. "I prayed, 'Lord, if you want me to be a pastor, I have to sell my house.' Two and a half weeks later, we sold it."

Then, there was the problem of his job. After more than 15 years with the railroad company, it was hard to quit. Once again, he left the matter in God's hands.

A short time later, David received a letter from his employer, informing him that his railroad company was merging with another one. The new company had too many employees. Would David consider letting the company "buy" his job for $15,000 of severance pay?

The offer convinced David that God wanted him at Andrews. In December of this past year, he drove down to Berrien Springs to look things over. He met Carl Coffman, professor of religion. "We talked for three hours, and he made me feel so comfortable with my decision to study for the ministry," David says. "His support was just what I needed to make the move."

The Livermores moved to Berrien Springs just in time for David to start classes in the spring quarter this year. Now, enrolled in the summer session, David's enthusiasm is brimming. "I love Andrews," he says. "I feel it's giving me another chance at life."

Supporting a family while going to school full time is never an easy task. David works 20 hours a week at College Wood Products. Teresa works there full time.

When David completes his religion major in 1987, he will begin pastoring in Wisconsin. This important step into the ministry became official at the May 20 Wisconsin Conference Executive Committee meeting when David was hired as a ministerial intern.

"I want to be a consistent Christian who can light spiritual fires under people I meet," David says. "I just love sharing what Jesus has done for me. If I can keep Jesus as my power source, there is nothing we can't do."

Hands across Adventism: Part II

by Jerry Lastine

IN the June 17 Herald, you read about Harry Warner in the article entitled "Hands across Adventism." In this week's final segment, you will meet Mike Moore and Linda Kumm.

Mike Moore grew up in an Adventist home, attended the Adventist network of schools and was baptized at age 10, following a crusade by Fordyce Detamore.

Raised in a very structured religious program, Mike said, "We never were encouraged to think through the principles of God's Word, but were given the this-do-and-that-don't-do formula for success."

Enjoying early accomplishment in his health-care career, Mike began to question things in the church structure.

His professional relationships outside the church opened new horizons. His cynicism was met by legalism in the church, and he plunged into a world of chaos over church-related issues.

"There seemed to be a facade in the church, leadership controlling people like the Pharisees in Christ's time . . . too much talk and too little listening," were Mike's reflections of those troublesome times. "People would talk about you but not to you."

Mike had married his academy sweetheart by his junior year in college. Family worship, Sabbath dinners with friends and family singing around the piano on Friday night were practiced.

"We kept our sinking marriage afloat for appearance sake," he said, "but after two children and a few more months, this marriage fractured." Mike believes the divorce was caused by immaturity and "no one really listening to our needs."

Mike wrote to his pastor asking that his name be dropped and stating that he didn't want a pastor's visit. He said: "By what seemed like return mail, I was assured by the pastor that the church would honor my requests. I was stunned by how easy it was to walk away from the church I loved but questioned."

Mike believes the Holy Spirit used three people to bring him back to the church: (1) His ex-wife who had remarried but never lost faith in him. (2) A former employer in an Adventist hospital who "called every three or four months to see how I was." (3) Anna May Vaughan from Kettering Hospital in Ohio.

"I was attending a National Health Care Professionals meeting in California and, after my presentation, Anna May recognized me," Mike said.

"She asked if there was anything she could do to help me, then said: 'When you left the church, Mike, you were different from many of the members. You know the church has a real struggle caring for its different people. Mike, what you've got to learn is to lean heavier on God.'"

"That was my turning point," Mike said. "Perhaps the church would accept me for what I am after all."

"The 'Do Not Enter' sign seems to hang on the church door, especially to those of us with a past in the church. I began the painful process of 'coming back.' But after the timely counsel of Anna May, nothing irritated me," Mike declared, "because I was at peace with myself, thankful to be out of the wilderness."

His one plea to his larger church family is, "Let's tolerate people, listen ing to their questions and making room for creativity and individual thinking."

Linda has always lived in southern Indiana. The oldest daughter in a family of five, her earliest memories of attending church and parochial school were negative.

Problems with self-identity, alcoholic parents and teen-year conflicts drove Linda away from home at age 19. In that same year, she became an unwed mother and lived in a housing project. Linda soon found herself with two children and in a live-in relationship.

"Bars became a way of life because people there seem to listen and care," Linda recalls. But it was the Christian witnessing of some Baptists in her housing project that sparked an interest in a better way.

Then, one day in her doctor's office, Linda noticed The Bible Story book and inquiry cards and responded. Literature evangelist, John Jones, quickly followed the lead. Bible studies answered many of Linda's questions. Adventism met her expectations, and Linda was baptized in the New Albany Church in 1975.

Linda was drawn into a group of young Christians in the church who were searching for identity. Seeds of legalism began to grow. Her group of friends began to live by laws, E. G. White's writings, vegetarianism and influences from a comet theologian from Australia.

"We were so proud to be tobaccoless, porkless and sugarless—but we were also joyless!" Linda recalled. "We really got bogged down in legalism. It's like being in a big hole with no way out."

Her new pastor tried unsuccessfully to explain justification by faith. And she attended camp meeting.

After camp meeting, her group of friends became more critical of the church. "We just drifted back into the world," she admits.

Linda remembers how patient the church was with her. She was visited often. "But I was turned off and very lonesome," she says.

Linda met Allen in a bar in July 1980. He was lonely, too, and four months later she became Linda Kumm. Linda remembers the day they were partying by a lake, and the Lord spoke to her.

Together, the Kumms began attending a friendly and loving Church of God. Her appetite for more Bible doctrine, an answer to the question of death and deeper insights into Revelation, prompted Linda and Allen to visit the Jeffersonville, Indiana, Adventist Church.

"The Holy Spirit brought me back on just the right Sabbath," Linda recalls. "Sheilla Bessinger's testimony told me God wanted me back into the Adventist Church."

Allen, an environmental technologist, was baptized August 17, 1985. Linda was rebaptized three months later. "The Lord gave us each other, and we're growing in our love for the Lord," Linda declared.

When asked what her deepest desires are, Linda said: "I have a burden to work and pray for my Christian friends who drifted out when I did. The Lord is coming so soon!"

Now, Linda has another reason to praise God. During the Indiana Camp Meeting this summer, one of her "drop-out" friends made a decision to return to membership in the Adventist Church.

Searching for common threads from these interviews, I found indescribable loneliness. When cries for help were made, there was no one to listen. As one person expressed it, "Listeners not lecturers" are needed. Fannie Crosby's insight in her gospel hymn, "Rescue the Perishing," says it all:

"Down in the human heart,
crushed by the tempter,
Feelings lie buried
that grace can restore;
Touched by a loving heart,
Wakened by kindness, chords that were broken will vibrate once more . . .
Jesus will save."

Seminars are available to teach churches how to develop listening skills and learn ways to prevent or reclaim dropouts. Contact the Indiana Conference communication director for details.

Hands across Adventism, reaching out for Jesus, listening and loving and understanding will make Harvest 90 a living reality.

Adventist television active as tool in Harvest 90 goals

by David B. Smith

ADVENTIST television is playing a key role in Harvest 90," says George Vandeman, speaker/director for "It Is Written."

Opportunities exist for the denomination to effectively use the media in a major way during this evangelistic campaign to 'move the Caring Church into action,' " he says.

George Vandeman, speaker/director for the "It Is Written" program, interviews Dr. Oswald C. J. Hoffman, speaker of "The Lutheran Hour," for the "What I Like About the Lutherans" telecast.

One of the church's main goals is to double the number of accessions that were achieved during the 1,000 Days of Reaping. "Already, our weekly programs, combined with effective local follow-up, are making an impact," says Royce Williams, director of field services for the telecast.

"A full 80 percent of those responding to our recent, prophecy miniseries asked to be included in an upcoming Revelation Seminar provided by their local Adventist church," says Mr. Williams. "We know that thousands of these people will someday soon be new church members."

"It Is Written's" follow-up, 1987 miniseries on rescuers of neglected truth is already in the works. Weekly episodes include "What I Like About the Lutherans," "What I Like About the Methodists" and "What I Like About the Charismatics."

Each program will include an interview with a key religious leader of the featured denomination. Scheduled guests include Dr. Oswald C. J. Hoffman, speaker of "The Lutheran Hour"; Dr. James Ault, president of the Council of Bishops of the United Methodist Church and Dr. John Draper, former president of the Southern Baptist Convention.

The series will conclude with two special programs describing how the Seventh-day Adventist Church has gathered various gems of light, the neglected truths championed through the centuries, to complete the Reformation. Interview guest, Neal Wilson, president of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, shares his convictions about the unique world view that Adventism offers.

"This much-needed, new series will build bridges as it reaches out to people from all denominations and walks of life," says Pastor Vandeman. "Many people will understand for the first time how founders of their own denomination helped to rescue neglected truth."

Television ministry also supports the Harvest 90 goal of stimulating "renewal and personal growth through Bible study, intercessory prayer, fellowship and worship." A number of telecasts on fundamentals of practical Christianity are currently being researched for production.

"These are the 'neglected truths' for so many right in our own church family," Pastor Vandeman explains. "We hope to be one of God's tools, not only to reach out to the world during Harvest 90, but to serve the spiritual needs of our members as well during this important time."

The name "Mike Moore" was used to protect the member's confidentiality.

David B. Smith is director of public relations for "It Is Written."

Andrews University

Home business workshop offered at Andrews University

Andrews University—Andrews University's Lifelong Learning program will sponsor a workshop on starting a home-based business July 21 through August 1, 1986.

Taught by Colleen Steck, chairman-elect of the department of home economics, the workshop will include information on developing a business plan, legal and financial aspects, and risks and pitfalls in small business organization. It will emphasize using skills from the homemaking occupation.

Classes will meet 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Monday, Wednesday and Friday; 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., Monday and Wednesday. Those interested in taking the course for graduate or undergraduate credit can pay by the credit hour.

Call the Lifelong Learning office at 616-471-3286 for reservations and more information.

Gymnics delight school children

Andrews University—Andrews University's enrollment jumped from approximately 3,000 students to almost 5,000 students on April 21.

The university welcomed "honorary freshmen" from 19 Berrien County elementary schools on campus for the first annual, special Gymnics' performance for local schools.

Hundreds of young, aspiring gymnastic performers crowded Johnson Auditorium. This gathering may represent the most Berrien County school children and greatest number of its schools represented in one place for an educational program.

David Faehner, vice president for university advancement said, "We hope that, as children from our community watched the Gymnics perform, they were inspired to see that God has placed within each of us the potential and possibility to do many things that at first glance might seem impossible."

"We organized this program as a community service for Berrien County schools, and we were delighted with the results," said Ronald Knott, associate director of public relations at Andrews. "We had to turn several schools away after reaching our attendance limit."

"Another year we hope to have more than one program so we can accommodate more schools," said Mr. Knott. "Andrews has the only four-year college program in the county, and that brings with it community-service obligations we are happy to fulfill," he said. "This program is one way we are trying."

The first Gymnics' home show for Berrien County elementary school children drew nearly 2,000 students.

Andrews students paint house free of charge for senior citizen

Andrews University—With 120 volunteered hours, nearly $200 of paint donated, brushes, ladders and scrapers loaned, Andrews University students helped give the home of Naomi Weaver, 73, of Berrien Center, Michigan, a new look on April 27. Mrs. Weaver has lived in Berrien Center more than 45 years and says: "I was surprised and very glad when Andrews contacted me through the Berrien County Senior Citizens Center about painting my house. When I found out it would be free, I thought it was great." "Project SPRING, Students Painting Residences in Need Gladly, was successful because community members and students were willing to donate time and equipment to paint the Weaver home," said Mark Fenton, SPRING coordinator.

Andrews rewards two faculty members for teaching excellence

Andrews University—C. Warren Becker, professor of music (right), and Oystein LaBianca, assistant professor of anthropology, received the faculty award for teaching excellence at the annual board of trustees banquet in February. They were honored for their Christian influence in the classroom, for the success of students who have studied under them and for their commitment to research. Dr. Becker joined the Andrews faculty in 1959. Although officially retired, he was recently appointed chairman of the music department. Mr. LaBianca, a member of the faculty since 1981, is chairman of the behavioral sciences department. Recipients, chosen by a committee representing the faculty, receive a cash award. Within the next year, Dr. Becker and Mr. LaBianca will present to their colleagues a paper on some facet of Christian education and their suggestions for improving Andrews University.

Illinois Conference

Illinois Conference news note

• The spring Week of Prayer at Broadview Academy was conducted by Pastor William Brace, evangelist from the Southern New England Conference. "Consider Him," the theme chosen for the week, focused on Jesus and His sacrifice. Commitments made during the week were confirmed during the Friday evening communion service conducted by Principal Harold Oetman, Pastor Brace and Vice Principal Carl Wessman. Students who provided special music and prayer were: Michelle Garcia, Chrissy Mina, Royce Graham, Robert Fish, Adelene Estrada, Mary Estrada, Renee Brewer, Michelle White, Jeremy Jordan, Rumi Shepherd, Melissa Redd, Lizbeth Rodriguez, Richard Ladson, Mi Sook Kim, Albert Santana, Brian Bogel, Lili Janic, Nancy Nelson, Misty Weir, Steve Kim, Steve Lewin, Angie Creamean, Susan Chough, Karen Chambers, Cory Cottrell, Aristede Dukes and Tim Pittenger. The spirit and theme of the week was reinforced during the following weeks of morning chapels as several students shared the blessings received.

Waukegan students conduct church service

Illinois—Members of the Waukegan Church had a special reason to praise

God for Christian education on April 19 when students from the Waukegan Junior Academy conducted the entire worship service.

The theme for this special service was "Early Adventist History." The congregation was given an opportunity to test its knowledge of early Adventist history in a quiz given by the students. Various students recited poems and the school choir sang three special numbers.

Daniel Thomas, Dorinda West and Cliff Kangas III gave sermonettes on Adventist pioneers: Uriah Smith, Katherine Lindsey and Joseph Bates.

Adventist pioneers would have been proud these young people who are following in their footsteps.

Laity and pastor unite to finish the work

Illinois—Four Revelation Seminars are being conducted this summer in Mount Vernon by laity and Eugene R. Taylor uniting.

Dan Landrum, a computer businessman, is conducting a Revelation Seminar in the Mount Vernon library. Pastor Taylor is conducting a seminar in the Mount Vernon Park Community Room.

Helen Shaw and Leslie Kemp, a farmer, are conducting seminars in their homes in Mount Vernon. Programs held two nights a week, began June 17 and will continue until September 9.

The pastor believes these meetings fulfill what Ellen White saw in vision when she said:

"In all fields, nigh and afar off, men will be called from the plow and from the more common commercial business vocations that largely occupy the mind, and will be educated in connection with men of experience. As they learn to labor effectively they will proclaim the truth with power" (Testimonies for the Church, vol. 9, p. 96).

If you have friends or relatives in the Mount Vernon area, send their names to Pastor Eugene R. Taylor, Route 1, Box 143, Richview, IL 62877.

The outreach team will be sent invitations to the Revelation Seminars and to fall evangelistic meetings to be held in the Best Western Motel in Mount Vernon. The evangelistic meetings will start September 19 and will feature Bible prophecy lectures on three screens.

Good News Players enhance worship

Illinois—The Good News Players, a Bolingbrook youth group, presented "His Last Days" during the worship service on April 29. Playing to a packed church, the 25 members pantomimed the events of Christ's life from His triumphal entry into Jerusalem to His resurrection. Accompanying the narration was contemporary Christian music composed by Dallas Holm. Since the group's inception last fall, the players have acted out many themes relating to Pastor Robert Schiefer's sermons. Kevin Brown and Ann Schiefer led out in these presentations. Pictured, from left, are Roger Knecht, Kevin Brown and Richard Murmann.

Indiana Conference

G. W. Morgan remembered

Indiana—G. W. Morgan passed to his rest at home in Oshawa, Ontario, Canada, June 17.

Elder Morgan had been ill for several months. Funeral Services were held June 19 at the Bowmanville Church near Oshawa. Survivors include his wife, Ioma, and sons Clifford, Timothy and Douglas.

Elder Morgan was born in 1923. He served as a pastor, departmental leader and president of the Nebraska, Indiana and Ontario conferences. He served as president of the Indiana Conference from January 1975 through May 1981.

Twenty-five women socialized at the Shelbyville Church Women's Luncheon held in Carole Blackburn's home.

Shelbyville, Indiana, luncheon attracts 25 community women

Indiana—Women of the Shelbyville Church sponsored a Sabbath luncheon on March 1 as an evangelistic outreach for women of the community.

The luncheon was held in Carole Blackburn's home in Morristown, Indiana. One-third of those in attendance were guests of church members.

Barbara Jo King, a columnist for The Republic, a Columbus, Indiana, newspaper was guest speaker. "Let's Make Friends With Ourselves" was the theme of her talk. "Your strongest confidence comes from your right relationship with God," she said. "Assume responsibilities; know what your place is in the home, the community, the church, and fill it."

She entertained the group with her experiences as a wife, mother, divorcee, grandmother and with her observations of others. "Surround yourselves with positive people, people who care about you and who love Jesus," she urged. "Carry yourself with confidence."

Mrs. King's first contact with

Lake Region Conference

Lake Region Conference news notes

- The Conant Gardens Church in Detroit hosted the Michigan area Youth Federation on Friday, April 25. Malcolm Jessup conducted song service. The opening song was "When We All Get to Heaven," and Henry Walker read Ephesians 12:1-8. The First Love Trio sang "Just Because He Loves Me" and "Teach Me Master." Pamela Lindsey, flutist, played "He Will Come." Welcome remarks were given by Youth Federation leader, Helen Bryant. Phillip C. Willis Sr. gave the spoken Word. In closing, Heather Willis sang the rededication song, "Live for Jesus." Church officers lit a candle that symbolized rededication to Christ. On Sabbath, Youth Federation services were held at the Greater Grace Church in Detroit.

- The Mount Sinai Church of Peoria, Illinois, pastored by Samuel Thomas Jr., hosted the Lebanon Church of Decatur and the Bible Chapel of Springfield on Sabbath, March 15.

Both churches had been invited for services by the Sabbath School department. Odies Standifer is Sabbath School superintendent. The guest churches conducted the entire worship service. The mission story was presented in song by Brother and Sister Philip Sisti of the Bible Chapel Church. Paula Irby sang a solo. Hugh Crarey, local elder for the Springfield-Decatur District, delivered the morning message entitled "Attitude to Altitude." Following the Divine worship service, members and guests enjoyed dinner in the church fellowship hall. In the afternoon, members from the three churches were featured in a musical. Paula Irby presented a vocal and piano selection. Other vocalists were Charline Bradley, Scotia Porter, and Brother and Sister Philip Sisti. William Foster of the Decatur Church presented a vocal and guitar selection. A duet selection was presented by Jean and Rodney Still, members of the Peoria Church.

- Community Guest Day was held at the Ephesus Church in Marion, Indiana, April 26. Pastor Hosie Hatchett gave a special lesson study about the seal of God as found in Revelation 7. The Divine worship service included special music by visiting soloist, Mark Hatchett, and Ann Shaw and Beverly Benson of the Indianapolis Capitol City Church. The Ephesus Church welcomed a number of guests and visitors from the Indianapolis East Side Church, the Philadelphia Church of Muncie, Indiana, and other churches in the city. Samuel Flagg delivered the Sabbath sermon. His message was entitled "Who Is in Control." Elder Flagg is the director of stewardship, religious liberty and wills and legacies for the Lake Region Conference. Pastor Hosie Hatchett offered the benediction. The program ended with a fellowship dinner held in the entertainment room of Hill Top Towers in Marion. Women of the Ephesus Church formed the dinner committee. Hermia Hatchett, the pastor's wife, and Savannah Buford, assistant Sabbath School superintendent, served as hostesses.

Senior Citizens Day at Conant Gardens Church

Lake Region—The "Young-at-heart" senior citizens of the Conant Gardens Church performed the Sabbath School preliminaries for Senior Citizens Day April 12, 1986.

Brother and Sister Charles Lee sang "Never Grow Old." Roberta Thomas sang "Shady Green Pastures."

Zadock Reid, the former pastor and primary builder of the church, spoke for the Divine service. Pastor Reid was elated to find the long-overdue portrait of himself hanging in the church. Under the portrait is a plaque bearing an excerpt from Pastor Reid's speech written by his wife, Ruth:

"As I recall the beginning, I cannot help but exclaim, WHAT HATH GOD WROUGHT?! The Lord has certainly honored the faithfulness, perseverance and sacrifice of time, labor and means of his [sic] people."

Following the Divine worship service, senior citizens and Pastor Reid were served a five-course meal in the fellowship hall.

Etta Douglas, Iolene Harris, Nancy Kelly, Carol McCullough, Ellouise Nugent, Vivian Rich-Tinsley and Matilda Martin comprised the Senior Citizens Day committee.

Matilda Martin, communication secretary, and her co-workers said the many hours of planning and preparing for this program were rewarded with smiles and words of appreciation. Many attendees said this day will never be forgotten. A Senior Citizens Day for 1987 has been requested.

Michigan Conference

A perfect score for fair participation alone is 85 points. These points are added to points acquired during the year.

Rain, which canceled the outdoor parade, failed to dampen the spirits of those present because there was so much going on in the Civic Center. Nearly every club had a nicely decorated booth with working demonstrations. Drill teams marched, the Cedar Lake Academy Aerokhanas performed and the Pinewood Derby was the largest ever.

At the close of the day, Michigan

Michigan Pathfinders go to the fair

Michigan—Forty-seven clubs at the Pathfinder Fair received the special award for accumulating 200 points in activities during the year.

The award is a beautiful mounted blue and black Morpho butterfly from Brazil.

Members of all 51 Pathfinder clubs who attended the fair received an onyx sphere mounted on a marble base. Points are earned at the fair by participation in the various activities.

Kalamazoo Pathfinders marched in the fancy drill portion of the Pathfinder Fair.

Getting it all together in bandages can be quite a problem. This first aid demonstration was one of many activities at the Michigan Pathfinder Fair.

Conference President, Glenn Aufderhar, congratulated the Pathfinders for their hard work and encouraged them to continue their involvement in Christian activities. Merrill Fleming, conference Pathfinder director, presented awards. Charles Case, associate director for church ministries in the Lake Union, and conference secretary, Arnold Swanson, assisted in the presentations.

Trust services offers guarantee

Michigan—By transferring assets to the conference, members may enter into a Gift Annuity agreement which provides a lifetime guaranteed income.

Assets include cash, stocks, bonds and readily marketable real estate.

The life income is at a fixed rate, depending on the age of the donor.

This plan is especially attractive to members who are interested in leaving some portion of their estates to the Lord's work at death but do not believe they are yet able to part with the income from such assets.

The federal government allows a substantial portion of the transferred assets to be taken as a charitable contribution in the year of the gift. Any unused portion of the allowed contribution can be carried over for five additional years.

The government also permits a tax exemption for a sizable part of the life income payments, depending on the age of the donor. There are other benefits as well.

For more information, write or phone your conference director of trust services for a free brochure entitled The Charitable Gift Annuity.

Wisconsin Conference

Wisconsin Conference news notes

● Wisconsin Conference pastors and office personnel met April 23 and 24 at Green Lake Conference Center, to determine ways local church planning can be encouraged by the conference. A devotional by Jere Wallack, president, challenged leaders to "go for it"—to move ahead as God's Spirit leads and not allowing the "yes-buts" to deter us. Small groups of pastors exchanged ideas. Pastors and conference consultants discussed how services and resources should be managed for local needs. A close spirit of harmony and unity resulted.

● Ryan Kneesel from the LaCrosse Seventh-day Adventist Elementary School won first prize in fifth-grade entries in a poster-slogan contest. The competition was sponsored by the American Lung Association of Wisconsin to promote May as Clean Air Month. Frieda Mattson is Ryan's teacher. His poster will be displayed at the state fair in August.

Tomah members reap results of Bible studies

Wisconsin—Tomah Church Bible teachers and new members, from left, are George Ullrich, Debbie Reynolds, Bessie Rockwell, Darlene Maulsby, Violet "Grandma" Johnson and Pastor Ken Peters. Darlene's rebaptism represents a total commitment to Christ. These additions to the church family on February 1 resulted from individual and group studies given by George Ullrich, Bessie Rockwell and Pastor Peters. Violet's daughter and Debbie's mother are preparing for baptism in the near future.

Mexican earthquake victim baptized in Los Angeles

Editor's Note: The January 28, 1986, issue of the Herald carried the story of Lorena Maribel Sanchez Reyes being flown to the White Memorial Hospital in Los Angeles for help. Read the rest of the story, reprinted from the May 19, 1986, issue of the Pacific Union Recorder.

Los Angeles, Calif.—Lorena Maribel Sanchez Reyes, age 18, had a promise to keep—a promise made while she lay trapped in the rubble of her collapsed high school following the Mexican earthquake last September.

The sanctuary of the Spanish American Church in Los Angeles was filled to capacity February 8 as Lorena Maribel once again related her ordeal of having been buried alive for four days.

"At first, I prayed to God for calmness and ability to live through the ordeal," she said. "But, as the pain grew, I prayed that if God had some purpose for my life, He would let me live, but if not, He would let me die."

Her hopes of being rescued were raised when, after 36 hours of entrapment, she received water and oxygen lines from rescue teams frantically working above.

"I prayed and promised God that if I lived I would be baptized. I really wanted to be baptized. I spent four days beneath the rubble, but God is so good. He spared my life and allowed me today to fulfill my promise."

Lorena Maribel Sanchez Reyes

Maribel spoke from a wheelchair. Both of her legs were gangrenous by the time she was rescued. Her left leg was amputated above the knee, her right, below the knee.

Present at the baptism were Lorena Maribel's parents, who had been brought to the United States courtesy of Western Airlines and the Southern California Conference. Michael Holm, owner of Beverly Orthopedic Laboratory, Inc., was also in the audience. He and his family had donated two artificial legs to Maribel.

Michael Jackson, president of WMMC, which had donated free care and rehabilitation at their facilities for Maribel, spoke of the inspiration which the young Mexican girl had been to all who had come in contact with her.

"We had no idea how much we were going to be blessed by helping her," he said. "Maribel's courage has given us courage and her dedication has helped us to rededicate ourselves."

Maribel was placed in a wooden chair and carried to the baptistry. As she was baptized, her mother sang a song of God's faithfulness, and then Maribel kept her promise.

Without Fear or Favor

"I feel sorry for God," 80-year-old M. L. Andreasen began a 1:30 p.m. camp meeting sermon. After that, no one slept while he helped his eager hearers "Think Things Through." That had been the motto behind his desk as he taught in the early Seventh-day Adventist Seminary, when he inspired his co-teachers at Union College to achieve pioneer college accreditation, when he spent weeks in the home of Ellen White at Elmshaven, when he shepherded the conference flock in Minnesota, when he first began to keep the Sabbath, and even as a boy when he had observed infant baptism.

The book, Without Fear or Favor, by Virginia Steinweg is described by the Review and Herald Publishing Association as a "stand-out biography." It expands upon these and many more aspects of the fascinating life of M. L. Andreasen, scholar and administrator. It also faithfully portrays the clouds in his evening sky. A special sale price makes the book available to all. Stop by your local ABC.
