

INVITATION-BY-MAIL MONTH

BY DARREN L. MICHAEL

Radio-TV Department, Canadian Union

Enrolling one person each month in the Faith for Today or Voice of Prophecy Bible correspondence courses probably seemed like a rather modest goal earlier this year. But, along about now it might just seem a trifle hard to maintain!

Almost all of us, regardless of the state of our physical health, possess friends with whom we correspond from time to time. Time, distance, economic factors and physical disabilities might prevent that personal contact which is such a prized element in every friendship and pleasant human relationship. But, the mail enables us to transcend those restricting boundaries. For a few cents it is possible to bridge the restless oceans and the vast land masses of this world.

Now, here is the opportunity for some year-round witnessing available to every literature-minded Seventh-day Adventist. A friendly, warm letter of invitation this month can launch a continent-wide program of faith sharing. Not even church, conference or national borders can restrict this form of evangelism. Everybody who can write or dictate a letter can participate in Target—Application.

Almost every excuse offered for not doing person-to-person missionary work can be refuted by this method. Faltering speech, nervousness and bashfulness at meeting people, the fear of a direct rebuff or snub, bad weather, local prejudice and a legion of other crippled and malformed alibis can be dismissed by this simple, straightforward means of personal witnessing.

"But, I do not know how to compose a letter that would lead a friend to enroll in one of the Bible courses," you whisper as you struggle to recruit an excuse to take the place of the vanquished host so recently sent packing! Well, try this on for size, but be sure to make it your own letter—not a cold, lifeless stereotype that will repel instead of attract:

Dear . . .

It has been quite a while since I wrote you, but you know how things are with all the activities normally associated with summer, on top of the usual program. I am not trying to make excuses, just giving you the facts.

We were listening to the radio (or watching TV) the other day, I believe it was on Sunday, and heard about something that I thought would interest you. I guess you are still active in church and Sunday school work. Well, this was a free correspondence course of Bible lessons that the announcer said had been used by thousands of people. I am enclosing an enrollment card which I think might interest you and hope you will enroll. This is a course offered by the well-known Voice of Prophecy (or Faith for Today) program which our church helps to sponsor. I would be especially interested in your comments on these lessons because coming from an objective viewpoint, your views would be particularly interesting.

Then go on to add items of interest concerning members of the family, what you have been doing, etc.

Now, you can write an even better letter than that. Prove it by doing just that! And if you do it right now you will be well on your way toward reaching your Target—Application goal for 1960. Keep up the habit and without stepping outside your door you can be helping to share your faith.

Youth Congress Report No. 4

SHINING RAILS AND SHINING FACES

BY JOHN H. HANCOCK

As I looked down the long North Pacific Railroad roadbed from my position in the engineer's cab of our big Diesel locomotive, the steel rails seemed to glisten in the morning sunlight. These were the shining rails that pointed the way to Atlantic City and the "Festival of the Holy Scriptures." Somehow the shining rails almost seem symbolic. I thought of the words of the Scriptures that "the path of the just is as the shining light that shineth more and more unto the perfect day."

As the huge Diesel ate up mile after mile of our distance between the Pacific and the Atlantic Coasts, it became more and more apparent that the shine on the faces of the 422 young people riding on this special train would far exceed that of the glisten on the shining rails. I was proud to be called the leader of such a fine group of youth. In the past articles, I have told you a few stories and side glances of how these young people impressed those with whom they came in contact in Atlantic City, Chicago and Washington, D. C. The acid test, however, of these young people's consistent Christian example came during the days and nights they were together with the train crew of the "Youth Congress Special." It was here that some of our outstanding share-your-faith experiences actually took place.

Soon after we had boarded the train in Bozeman for the trip to Chicago, we discovered that our Pullman porter had gone to a Seventh-day Adventist church school in Chicago and also that as a boy he and his parents occasionally went to our church. Previously he had membership in several of the church denominations but told us that he had never actually been satisfied. Through the conversations of the young people, this porter was much more interested in our faith. Two of our colored delegates from the Washington Conference secured this porter's name and address, then gave him a cordial invitation to attend our colored church in Seattle. He promised to look them up. The contact will be followed through by our youth in Seattle.

It was not an uncommon sight to see the various trained attendants reading the Bibles of our delegates and conversing with them in matters of religion. When we left the train in Chicago, one of the attendants told a group of our youth, "Since being with you young people, I have given up smoking. I have talked with several of the young ladies about this and they have convinced me."

After one of our dinner hours, I talked with the steward of one of the dining cars and he told me, "I have served thousands of conventions and thousands of individuals on this train but this group of young people is without question the finest group that I have ever had the privilege of serving." Without question, the influence of the lives of our young people will live on in the memories of these crewmen with whom they came in contact briefly.

When we arrived at Mt. Ellis Academy for the first weekend, our special train was taken to Livingston and held over on the siding until Saturday night. The representative of the Northern Pacific Railroad at Bozeman told me that when our cars arrived at Livingston they were all to be inspected—according to procedure—and then cleaned for the rest of the trip. When the inspectors looked them over, however, they found the cars to be so clean and tidy that a special telegram was sent to headquarters in St. Paul to the effect that they need not be concerned about getting a crew to clean this train. It further stated that the train was clean and needed very little attention. They were used to having to sweep up cigarette stubs, papers and debris. I was proud of our young people and the obvious effect which their deportment and care of the train equipment had upon the officials. These may sound like little things but they are so important in our relationship with the public.

When we arrived in Washington, D.C., we were transported to Atlantic City by eleven new air-conditioned busses. It was interesting to note that during this four-hour trip many of the bus drivers requested our young people to sing hymns and spiritual songs for them. I was greatly surprised to find that the bus driver, in whose bus I rode, was a nephew of Elder F. M. Wilcox, who for so many years was editor of the Review and Herald. He knew a great deal about our church and seemed to have a warm spot in his heart for our message. We sang, "What a Friend We Have In Jesus," with him as we rolled along the expressway. He then told us a number of interesting things about our churches and our work in the Washington area. Before we bade him goodbye, the young people shared some of their literature with him and in as friendly a way as possible invited him to join the fellowship of our church.

Yes, these were the young people of the shining way with faces aglow ready to share their faith wherever they went. Surely, only eternity itself will reveal the results of this great experience of the young people of North America. As the leader of their group from North Pacific Union, I can truthfully state that this group of young people are among the finest that I have ever had the privilege to help chaperone. Not once did a serious problem arise with these young people. Their deportment was above reproach and we praise God for the influence which He helped each of them to exert in behalf of Christ and His love.

An Open Letter From Elder Minchin

At the time of the Festival of the Holy Scriptures at Atlantic City, one of the great moments of the Youth Congress came on Wednesday night when many hundreds of earnest, dedicated young men arose spontaneously to consecrate themselves to the sacred work of the gospel ministry. In the crowd we failed to secure the names and addresses of these young men.

Elder Minchin is now very anxious to keep in touch with these young men who responded to the call and has asked us to please post the following notice in order that these young people might be contacted.

"We have an urgent request to make of you. Would every youth who responded send his name and address to me at the General Conference office immediately? We want to encourage and advise you. Some, no doubt, are already preparing for the ministry. Others felt the call and responded, but they are not too sure yet whether their gifts lead in that direction. They need counsel and guidance. Many should be seriously concerned about getting to the academy or college as soon as possible to pursue their preparation.

"I appeal to every young man who stood in God's presence that night and solemnly sang, 'Spirit of the Living God, fall afresh on me,' not to lose the heavenly vision. You are a mighty potential for God for the finishing of His work.

"Please write immediately, and if you know of some who responded, but who may not see this request, send in their names and addresses also.

"May this be the beginning of a wonderful fellowship, and of a new flow of spirit-filled young men into the sacred work of the gospel ministry."

(signed) Your friend and brother,
E. L. Minchin

We trust that the young men who did go forward on Wednesday night at the Festival of the Holy Scriptures will feel free to write to Elder Minchin. We know that the Spirit of God was deeply moving upon the hearts of all our youth and surely we do not want to have any turn away from this great moment of decision. Elder Minchin's address is 6840 Eastern Avenue, N.W., Takoma Park, Washington 12, D. C.

Courtesy Camp A Success

On Sunday morning, July 10, forty-two youngsters registered at our Courtesy Camp (underprivileged children's camp) at Camp MiVoden to spend five days of camping provided by our Dorcas Societies in the Upper Columbia Conference.

Along with enjoying the fine food provided by Mrs. Dave Fowler and her corps of helpers, the children had a wonderful time boating and swimming in addition to nature study and crafts. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed the enthusiastic singing and exciting stories around the campfire each night. We were fortunate in that the weather was ideal during the entire camp.

The spiritual tone of the camp made a favorable impression also on these youngsters who came from non-Adventist homes throughout the conference. The children joined in the prayer bands and took advantage of the spiritual leadership given by their counselors and the chaplain each day.

An interesting comment from one girl was, "I want to come back next year to this camp. I've had so much fun. How much does it cost?"

We believe this camp was a success and hope that we will be able to conduct another such camp next year. Please pray for these youngsters that appreciated so much the good time that they had at Camp MiVoden.

The Teen-ager in the Home

The teen age is the practice time for carrying adult responsibilities. What a teen-ager contributes to his home now indicates what he will contribute to his own home later. If he adds nothing but sorrow, heartache and trouble to the members of his family today, he will likely add sorrow, heartache and trouble to the members of his family tomorrow. If he brings joy and happiness to the hearts of his parents and inspires his brothers and sisters to achieve noble aims, he will more than likely radiate sunshine in his own home and inspire his family to accomplish worthy deeds.

The teen-ager is now in a position to make a real substantial contribution to the success of the home. He is wise enough to avoid those influences that would weaken the home, strong enough to carry responsibility, and old enough to be accepted by thinking men and women. Some of the ways he contributes to the success of the home are:

- Adds happiness to the home
- Can drive the car safely
- Can plan and cook the meals
- Can care for his own clothes
- Takes pride in keeping home neat and attractive
- Can carry responsibility for younger children
- Can manage home on family budget
- Meets family appointments promptly
- Counsels with parents
- Adds prestige to the family name

"One of the surest safeguards for the young is useful occupation. Had they been trained to industrious habits, so that all their hours were usefully employed, they would have no time for repining their lot or for idle day-dreaming. They would be in little danger of forming vicious habits or associations."—Adventist Home, p. 284.

Hints to Mothers

Do you have to find everything for your pre-schooler? He would like to find his own clothes and toys if he knew where to look for them. Why not cut out pictures from magazines and decorate the dresser drawers with their contents—a picture of socks where his socks are, pajamas where they may be found, etc.

"IT IS THE PRIVILEGE OF PARENTS TO TAKE THEIR CHILDREN WITH THEM TO THE GATES OF THE CITY OF GOD."

—Child Guidance, p. 13.

CHILD GUIDANCE

A teen-ager likes to take adult responsibility.

(Dinner is on the table. The teen-age daughter is inviting the family to the meal she cooked herself. She is pleased, the family is happy.)

(Mother is waiting on the table. She looks tired. The teen-age girl turns up her nose at the food. The boy is complaining.)

Try This

Every teen-ager should be able to take the food allowance and prepare all the meals for a week.

Not This

The less a teen-ager does around the house the more he gripes and grows.

Washington Conference Camp Meeting

At this writing the Washington Conference camp meeting is moving toward its second weekend. One thing that can be truly said about Washington Adventists is that they like to attend camp meeting.

G. E. Vandeman

More than 425 family tents were pitched. There are 70 privately owned tents and 90 trailer houses, besides the rooms in two academy dormitories at Auburn. Unfortunately this accommodation for more than 2,500 faithful believers is inadequate—some late-comers were turned away. The locating committee reports that facilities are stretched to the limit.

The main auditorium seats 4,050 people; the youth tent seats 900, the junior tent 617, the primary 320, the kindergarten 403 and the cradle roll room holds 177. All these facilities were taxed to capacity on the first Sabbath. It is estimated that the total attendance on that day was more than 6,500.

Featured speakers were Elder W. B. Ochs in the main auditorium and Elder George E. Vandeman in the youth tent. The Sabbath offerings totaled $7,447.88 for missions.

Two other highlights of the first Sabbath were the religious liberty message by Elder Melvin W. Adams and the ordination of two ministers: Norman Chamberlain, who will be Bible teacher at Auburn Academy and pastor of the academy church; and Ernest Waters, pastor of the Snoqualmie-Isaquaah-Carnation district.

The camp meeting is rather old-fashioned in a beautifully modern way: the evening meetings are entirely evangelistic and open to the public. They have been advertised evangelistically in the newspapers. The speaker for each of the ten meetings is Elder

George E. Vandeman, "It Is Written" evangelist whose program has been aired for 39 weeks on KTNT-TV.

The auditorium is almost completely filled each evening.

There is a good spirit manifest and the Lord is near to all in attendance.

Walla Walla College

WWC Food Service Department Activities

The Walla Walla College food service will be serving meals at Sunset Lake, the new campsite for the Washington Conference youth activities, from August 7-28.

Much time and thought has been given to the planning and preparation of this program in its first year in order to insure its success, says Clinton Wall, Director of Food Service. Miss Dorothy Syme, who has also managed the summer food service at the College Biological Station at Rosario, will head the food service staff at Sunset Lake. Assisting her will be Mrs. William Jensen, Miss Mary Schelhorn and Archie Walter. Approximately 150 persons will be served, 25 of whom will be camp staff members.

"We welcome this opportunity to serve meals that are nutritious and satisfying," says Mr. Wall, "for what children learn to eat when they are young they tend to enjoy the remainder of their lives."

Mr. Wall spent approximately a week at Camp MiVoden, Hayden Lake, assisting in the modernization of the food service area and equipment preceding the opening of junior camps last week. "Since food is one of the most important items for any camp outing, it is important that proper facilities be available to the staff who feed our youth," says Mr. Wall.

Social Events for 1960-61 Announced

The program of social events for 1960-61 announced by Professor J. G. Mehling, chairman of the social activities committee, will include the appearance of outstanding personalities and offer a wide variety of entertainment.

Highlighting the lyceum series will be the United States Navy Band in two performances in Columbia Auditorium, October 2. This nationally famous organization will be heard in a three o'clock afternoon matinee and an eight o'clock Sunday evening concert.

Also in October the world famous Russian Cossacks Chorus will be featured.

Fall quarter attractions for students and friends will also include a student hike, the sport social, the widely popular "Our Amateur Hour," and an appearance of a television personality in comment and characterization.

The winter quarter will bring to the campus Neil Douglas with an illustrated lecture on Turkey and the Middle East as well as an authenticated illustrated lecture on Nepal by an outstanding traveler-lecturer.

Local talent will be featured in the Mid-winter Event and an additional program on the lyceum series is yet to be scheduled.

The spring quarter will feature the Walla Walla College Concert Band, the Concert Orchestra and Alumni Homecoming. Lyceums scheduled for that quarter will include Don Cooper's rollicking, illustrated lecture on the Alcan Highway, and Stan Midgley's popular travelogue with his inimitable humorous narration depicting, this time, a trip through California. The women of Aleph Gimel Ain will be planning an outstanding "Hour of Charm" to round out the spring quarter attractions.

A more detailed list of dates and events will be published from time to time in these columns.

Montana

In the accompanying picture, Karin McClarty and Mrs. David W. Nelson, both of Kalispell, Montana, are holding famous old Bibles found in the Spotlight on the Bible surveys.

Karin McClarty holds a Bible published in 1850, which belonged to the Benjamin Franklin family. It was owned by M. H. Franklin and was given to Mrs. David W. Nelson by Arthur and Helen Franklin. Mrs. Nelson is holding a Swedish Bible published in 1754, which comes from the Montbatten family. Both of these Bibles were on display at the Kalispell church early this spring.

Columbia Academy Receives Accreditation

Principal Harold T. Ochs of Columbia Academy has received word from the State Board of Education at Olympia, Washington, that Columbia Academy now meets the standards for regular accreditation as a high school in the State of Washington. The Academy Board and the school administration rejoice in this up-grading and recognition of our Seventh-day Adventist school program.

The following paragraph is an excerpt from the letter received from Lloyd J. Andrews, the president of the State Board of Education:

"We are pleased to inform you that the State Board of Education at its June 20-21, 1960, meeting, granted standard accreditation to Columbia Academy, effective at the beginning of the 1960-61 school year . . ."

Table Service for Gem State Academy

It is time for another report. During camp meeting at Caldwell many remembered to bring their Twin Star and Betty Crocker coupons. One lady brought 1,025 points. Hardly a day passes but that I receive coupons by mail. Ten dollars and ten cents in cash was received. What wonderful people you are!

Letters have come from Pennsylvania, Texas, California, and all states of the North Pacific Union including Alaska. Thank you! I have been able to send in orders every week. I wish every one of you could see my display of Twin Star stainless steel. We have two-thirds of our cherished dream for 140 place settings. I feel it is something like a miracle for the project was started only three months ago.

Please continue to send your coupons and a little cash if you can, for each piece. I am sure the youth attending our academy this Fall will be thrilled and grateful for your wonderful response. May I hear from you soon?
