

A TIME OF SPECIAL NEED

GODFREY T. ANDERSON, PH. D.

President, Loma Linda University

An institution such as Loma Linda University has assets tangible and intangible. We recently lost through fire a substantial piece of material property, and found ourselves unexpectedly rich in friendship and good will. It happened when Risley Hall was virtually destroyed by fire on February 12.

G. T. Anderson

This building housed three teaching departments—biochemistry, pharmacology, and physiology, all of which were involved in heavy teaching schedules.

When the seriousness of the fire became apparent, equipment from nearby cities and towns was rushed in, and individuals came to our aid as well. The mayor of San Bernardino came and spent a couple of hours with us, and fire experts came thirty miles to lend a hand. A neighbor in Redlands brought his own truck and helped remove equipment to a safe distance. Students and teachers carried out records, equipment, and animals.

Since the fire we have been receiving messages of condolence and offers of help from our community friends in this area and even farther from the campus. The Sister Superior in a nearby Catholic hospital wrote, "It was with great sorrow that we learned of the loss of the laboratory research building on your campus. If we can help you in any way, please let us know. God's blessings on all your undertakings. His holy will be done."

Presidents of nearby universities and colleges offered to share classrooms and laboratory space with us when they were not in use by their own students. Business and manufacturing organizations offered to lend or donate equipment to partially replace what was lost.

We had not realized how many kind and helpful friends we had until our misfortune disclosed them.

We are no less cheered by the response of our own church friends who likewise want to give us a hand in this difficult time. Although the gifts may not be large in sum, the bills and checks which come in from sympathetic friends are a wonderful help and encouragement to us. A little lady who has spent her working life in one of our publishing houses tucked some bills into a note of regret and sent it to us to help in this time of special need.

Now that the annual offering devoted to the medical education phases of Loma Linda University is coming up soon, on April 11, we are hoping that our greater need at this time will stimulate a greater response from our church membership. The offering will be for the building fund.

Now that we plan to consolidate the entire medical school on the Loma Linda campus, as was voted by the Trustees, there will be an acute need for funds to provide an adequate medical center at Loma Linda. We are sure that the urgency of this need will appeal to our church membership.

Each year the total of this offering has increased, as the importance of this work has become more evident. Now we would like to hope for an offering in North America which will for the first time exceed a hundred thousand dollars on this special day.

With the handicap of a disastrous fire to overcome, the boost of an extra-large offering would carry the work forward with fresh impetus and bring new courage to our faculty and student body. We invite our entire church membership to join with us in the endeavor to educate our young people for careers of Christian service that the suffering of mankind may be alleviated and the gospel be carried to all who lack its light.

A SAFE INVESTMENT

J. C. KOZEL

Assistant Treasurer, General Conference, S.D.A.

Today a very large segment of the American people is keenly interested in investments. This interest is not limited to bankers, financiers, large corporations and professional people, but we find that it has spread to tradesmen, housewives and young people. The objectives are not always the same. Some are interested in a high yield; others, primarily in growth; while still others are interested in safety and stability.

There is a type of investment which we are free to recommend to every member of the Seventh-day Adventist church and also to the children of Seventh-day Adventist parents who have not yet become members. It is an investment for the Sabbath School during 1964. One of the best investments you can make is participation in a Sabbath School Investment project for this year. The yield will be high, the growth phenomenal and it will be a safe investment.

Have some of you wondered if possibly too much emphasis has been placed on Sabbath School Investment? Could it be that you have not actively participated in the program yourself? We are frank to admit that it is fascinating, and once you start a program of investing, it may become a habit, but what a wonderful thing it is to observe the blessing of God upon some project dedicated to the advancement of the gospel in all the world. What genuine pleasure and full satisfaction is derived from this type of investment.

The Sabbath School Investment program has grown to be "big business." In 1962 the amount received for the world mission budget through this avenue alone was just over one million dollars. At this present date the report for 1963 is not yet complete here at the General Conference office, but we have confidence to believe that the total will be at least one million one hundred thousand dollars; and the goal has been set for $1,250,000 for 1964. This will be reached and surpassed if everyone will make some type of Sabbath School investment.

In the Indian Ocean, east of Madagascar, is the small island of Reunion. It has belonged to France since 1642 and is known as the "Pearl of the Indian Ocean" because of its exotic charm. Although it covers an area of only 970 square miles, it has a population of 320,000. The third angel's message has reached this remote spot. Our mission was started in 1939 by Elder P. Girard, and today the membership is over 450. During the third quarter of 1963, 29 individuals were added to the church. We have only one ordained minister. Elder Adolphe Quirici, on the island who is the President as well as the Educational, Home Missionary, Public Relations, Radio-TV and Temperance Secretary of the Mission. Elder Quirici mentions some of their most urgent needs as follows:

1. A new church building in St. Denis, the capital of the island. (The present building, built during the last war is now too small.)
2. The establishment of a church school for the children of St. Denis.
3. The construction of a chapel in the Montagne district. (We have here 25 members plus 20 young people, but no place to meet.)
4. The organization of a church and erection of a building at St. Benoit. (Here there is a real interest with several families preparing for baptism.)

In closing Brother Quirici states: "To realize these projects we seek first of all the aid of the Lord, and then we ask all our members and friends to pray for us, not forgetting that material help will also encourage our work."

The Sabbath School Investment plan is a practical way to answer the appeal of our missionaries for additional workers and facilities to carry forward the work of the gospel to a speedy conclusion. In one of her last messages Ellen G. White wrote: "To those who love God sincerely and have means, I am bidden to say, Now is the time for you to invest your means in sustaining the work of God. Now is the time to uphold the hands of the ministers in their self-denying efforts to save perishing souls. When you meet in the heavenly courts the souls you have helped to save, will you not have a glorious reward?" Yes, dear brethren and sisters, this will be the enduring, eternal dividend from your investment which you make for the Cause of God in 1964.

Faith for Today Baptisms More Than Double in 1964

Faith for Today baptisms for the first two months of 1964 are more than twice the figures for the same period of 1963. The figure for January and February of this year is 345 compared with 167 for 1963 as reported by the Interest Department. Of these, two were in the North Pacific Union.

During 1963 seventy percent of Faith for Today's graduates in the North Pacific Union territory requested a visit from a Seventh-day Adventist representative.

Total graduates of the Faith for Today Bible courses since the telecast began now amount to over 82,000. More than 8,000 have written to our office telling us that the influence of this Adventist television program is responsible for their membership in the remnant church today.

We are sure there are hundreds of others whose baptisms have not been reported to us and there are even more who now know the Adventist message and, we believe, will join the church as earth's closing scenes begin to unfold.

Faith for Today Adds Needed Assistant

Joining Faith for Today as editorial and public relations assistant is Mrs. Van Knauss, who on January 26 became the wife of our organist. This addition to the staff is a special joy to James Joiner, editor of our publications, and Ernest N. Wendth, director of promotion and station relations, for Mrs. Knauss will bring much-needed help to both departments.

The former Pat Phillips of Oklahoma City, Mrs. Knauss was graduated from Southwestern Junior College Academy in 1959. Last June she received the B.A. degree from Union College with a major in English and a minor in secondary education.

Mrs. Knauss served as editor of both school papers, the Southwesterner and the Clock Tower, and was listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

We welcome Pat to our staff and wish God's blessings to rest upon her and Van as they work unitedly to advance the cause of Christ.

Enjoy Your Baby

"Our next-door neighbor says she never knew a woman who enjoyed her baby as much as I do mine," remarked a friend, cuddling the little one against her neck. "Why shouldn't I enjoy this precious child?"

Why, indeed? This happy mother had the wisdom to appreciate the bliss to be found in the companionship of her own child. Really, you know, babies are most adorable persons; and surely the brief infancy of one's own child deserves to be appreciated.

Kittens and most other young creatures are fun to watch, but human babies are the greatest fun of all. Almost from the first, they are conscious partners in the fun, too. Somebody who must have been thinking of this partnership in enjoyment has said that there is no other plaything as delightful as a baby. He could not, I am sure, have intended to suggest that a child should be a mere toy for an adult. Children treated in that way are most unfortunate. It is very different when a person, showing respect for a little one's personality and well-being, amuses the baby with a reasonable amount of play.

It is possible for us to serve as satisfactory playmates for our children, but, in order that they may get the fullest possible benefit, we should let them reawaken the spirit of spontaneous play in us.

A five-year old in our family watched her baby brother as he sat rapturously agaze before a riot of dooryard morning-glories. "I wish I could have Billy's picture right now," she whispered softly. This was a quite natural remark, young as she was, for in her home a camera was part of the everyday equipment. The surprising part came a moment later. As if by sudden illumination, she added, "I have his picture!"

The startled grownup looked at smiling Mary Ann and saw that she spoke the truth. And what a picture has been retained of both of those dear children!

Films may be lacking, but one can "catch" and keep a characteristic mental photograph that will be a joy to cherish. Each will be the more vivid and precious later on if well appreciated now.

We should respect each child's individuality and the right to long periods of quiet in which to develop strength of mind, nerves, and general physique, but also we should not neglect to play with these dear, ever-surprising little creatures while we have the opportunity—babyhood is short. Let us frankly enjoy our babies and let them enjoy us. That will be good for everyone. It means growing in the understanding of each other, day by day. Life for the adult will thus take on continual new joy, zest, and youthfulness, for babies are great adventurers in good times. They find fresh thrills in the most common experiences and help us to feel anew the glamour of life with them. If you have one, do enjoy your baby—now.

MARY S. STOVER

If you paid your child ONE DOLLAR every time you scolded him,

punished him for getting low marks in school,

broke your promise to him,
quarreled in his presence,
failed to answer his sincere question, favored the other children above him,
slapped him,

encouraged him to disobey his other parent,

punished or shamed him for bed-wetting,

nagged him for stuttering, threatened to leave him or give him away for being naughty, belittled his other parent,

told him he is bad,
forgot his birthday,

teased him about his girl (boy) friend, you would still be in debt to him. The child learns nothing worthwhile from these methods. To every parent God says, "Train up a child in the way he should go."

Tiny Thinkers

It was an exciting experience for five-year-old Ethel to leave in the early morning hours before daylight and go up in an airplane for the first time above the clouds and see only the stars in the sky. As it began getting light she asked her mother, "When are we going to see Jesus?" In her young mind travel in the sky meant only one thing—going to see Jesus.

Your Help Is Needed

Do you have copies of materials used by prominent Adventist evangelists of the past?

Advertising . . . sermons . . . newspaper clippings . . . photographs . . . recording . . . letters . . . or your personal recollections of these men, their methods, their personalities, their results.

All of these things can be of great service right now in the writing of an important historical study of Adventist evangelism, a study now in progress in cooperation with the General Conference Ministerial Association.

Items you submit can be returned if you wish or you may prefer to have them added to a special library collection on Adventist evangelism to be made available for future research studies.

Please send materials, with dates and places noted where possible, together with a brief statement of personal recollections you may have of Adventist evangelistic activity of the past, to:

"Signs" Visitation Pays

Back in 1946, Jose Salinas and his family lived in Corpus Christi, Texas. They were Roman Catholics, and since they read Spanish more readily than English, they were sent the El Centinela, the Signs magazine in Spanish. They were much impressed with the truth, but after two years of reading the Signs, it was discontinued. They took no steps toward the message at that time.

Beginning in 1960, previous to which date the Salinases moved to Lincoln, someone started sending them the Signs. Brother Salinas was then working in the Burlington railroad car shops. They were so much impressed by what they read, that they got in touch with the Piedmont Park church pastor, W. H. Elder, who gave them studies and baptized the entire family on September 1, 1962.

The Salinases are now on fire for God and naturally have a strong love for the Signs. When it came time to go out with the Visitation number last year, Brother Salinas took two bundles instead of one. In his enthusiastic way he called on his Visitation territory. He has already found one lady who has been reading a complimentary subscription to the Signs and appreciates receiving the magazine. Although not yet an Adventist, she told Brother Salinas that there was no question in her mind but that the Adventists have the truth, and sooner or later she will have to accept it. So far her main contact with the church has been through the Signs.

Ring door bells and presenting the 1964 April Visitation Signs may lead you to someone who is interested in the faith.

We appreciate very much this experience from Elder C. R. French, home missionary secretary of the Nebraska Conference.

New Worldwide MV Challenge

One hundred twenty years ago our spiritual forefathers, the Millerite Adventists, were in a tarrying time. The Lord had not come, as they had fully expected sometime during 1843. Then, as they studied deeply into the prophecy of the 2300 days in the book of Daniel, they began to see their message with more clarity and went forth preaching in the loud cry.

Just what our Lord meant in Matthew 24:37-39 when He spoke "... as the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be," I do not know. I am certain that there are some parallels, though probably not in the factor of Noah preaching for 120 years before the Flood came. However, we have had our tarrying time. Now, in times like these when the world stands closer to the brink of total disaster than it ever has before, we need to arise and preach this message with clarity and power. With these facts in mind, MV TARGET 3000 was created.

Evangelism by senior youth is not new. The new feature in MV TARGET 3000 is the worldwide challenge to every Adventist young person, and to every senior Missionary Volunteer Society for meaningful, planned, cooperative, spiritual witness in evangelism. The plans presented are simple, clear, and proved to win souls. The challenge to the senior MV Society can be met by a few members in the name of the whole society, but the basic challenge is to each individual member. Soul winning is individual, just as salvation is individual. Personal pleasure, personal desires, personal comfort must often be put aside when one engages in soul-winning. But this is not a comfortable day; these are tragic days. Nations and races within nations are in turmoil today. People are fearful. They are thinking of the future.

There are movements today—passionate movements, worthy movements—that challenge youth to give of themselves unstintingly, to suffer personally if necessary, that the movement may go forward. Let us clearly consider the task laid before us by God for these last days and put our own lives in order. Then let us individually and collectively accept the challenge of evangelism in MV TARGET 3000.

A New Book From Southern Publishing Association

Peewee, by Bertha Crow. Illustrated by Jim Padgett.

"Over by the burning barrel a tiny something was wiggling in the dust. Then it was still—very, very still. Jamie stood looking, trying to think what it was. He didn't want to frighten it away. He knew that a sudden movement might send it scurrying under the lumber pile by the fence. It moved again. It looked like a tiny blue-gray ball, but little blue-gray balls couldn't move all by themselves.

"Jamie picked up a stick and took a step closer. Carefully he touched the funny-looking thing. It wiggled, but didn't run away.

"I wonder what it can be," Jamie thought to himself."

Well, what it was turned out to be Peewee, a baby ground squirrel that brought real adventure and excitement to Jamie and his entire household. At first they thought it was a baby rat, then they thought it was a baby rabbit, then they decided that it was a mouse. One thing was certain: It didn't have any hair. And it was very cold.

Jamie loved Peewee from the very beginning. His brother Curt thought it was a pretty nice animal. And Mother's heart went out to the little baby ground squirrel that seemed to have been orphaned.

Only Daddy wasn't enthusiastic. "It'll grow up to eat my tomatoes," he exclaimed.

But Daddy was overruled and Peewee became part of the household. And the wonderful times they had with Peewee! And the troubles Peewee got into! And the time they had with Daddy who took several weeks in deciding that Peewee was okay.

Peewee brought laughter and tears, and his story ends in a mixture of sadness and gladness that will touch the heartstrings of any youngster. This new book from Southern Publishing Association should take high priority on any shopping list including books to be read to small children or to be read by them if they are under ten. $2.75.

Our Servicemen Count on Us

Did you know that all the free denominational papers, literature, Sabbath School quarterlies and other free material provided each of our servicemen costs $25 for each person on the list for two years?

Did you know the only source of funds for this purpose is the "Literature Fund Offering" taken in all of our churches only once every two years? The next offering for servicemen's literature will be Sabbath, May 9.

Many Seventh-day Adventist servicemen are availing themselves of the National Service Organization's policy of supplying missionary literature for use in sharing their faith with those interested in our message.

A Protestant chaplain writes, "The Seventh-day Adventist periodicals, particularly These Times, Signs of the Times, Listen, and The Message, are very attractive and informative. I am wondering if your organization has funds available to send me regular subscriptions."

One of our boys wrote, "For many weeks I have had the privilege of receiving The Review and Herald. Words can never express my gratitude to you and everyone responsible. I was definitely drifting away from Sabbath keeping. The Review and Herald has, in no small measure, helped to put me in the proper direction again."

Our servicemen can count on us in the literature offering on May 9.

Temperance Man of the Year

A science and mathematics teacher from the Alabama-Mississippi Conference has been named Temperance Man of the Year for 1963, the American Temperance Society recently announced.

Clifton Keller, 26, of Bass Memorial Academy in Lumberton, Mississippi, was selected for this award by the Society's panel of judges from nominations submitted by every union in North America. Sponsor of the academy ATS chapter, Keller enrolled every student and faculty member as active members of the American Temperance Society during the past school year.

And active is the word to describe his leadership. Throughout the year and currently, the student body has been fanning out through the states of Alabama, Mississippi, and northwest Florida in a concerted drive to make as many people as possible aware of the dangers of drinking and smoking.

To do this effectively, the groups used six temperance films and have scheduled to date over ninety showings. They visited some forty churches where they put on temperance programs, while covering over 8,000 miles during the course of these activities.

Schools surrounding the academy were visited from two to four times with special temperance presentations last year.

Under the leadership of Clifton Keller, Bass Memorial Academy won the Southern Union Conference temperance plaque for outstanding temperance activities. When the academy was entered in the national contest, it received that award also.

Last year the school broke all previous records for academy temperance activities in North America.

On campus students are preparing essays and posters and orations. During the last school year, students submitted eighty-four essays, eighty-four jingles, fifty-four posters, and gave ten orations under Keller's leadership. Also, they distributed over 3,000 temperance tracts and periodicals.

"Mr. Keller has been sponsoring a tremendous temperance program at Bass Memorial Academy and our entire field has felt the impact and been aroused to come to the forefront of the battle against the evils of tobacco, alcohol, and narcotics," states W. D. Wampler, temperance secretary.

Besides inspiring and coordinating many activities, Keller carries a heavy load of classroom teaching. The American Temperance Society salutes Clifton Keller for his outstanding work with the temperance message.

Advertising Budgets Sponsor VOP Daily Broadcasts

One Sunday morning last July, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Starkey of Chattanooga, Tennessee, were returning to their home from a business trip to Pensacola, Florida.

About halfway between Birmingham, Alabama, and Rome, Georgia, they tuned in a Birmingham station, to hear the Voice of Prophecy broadcast. After only a few minutes, however, it began to fade out as they drove along, and finally they lost contact entirely. Anxious to hear the rest of the broadcast, they tried to pick up the program from a Rome, Georgia, station. They could not find it, and for a very good reason—because the broadcast was not then on any station in Rome, Georgia.

During the remainder of their trip home, they talked together several times on how much they wished they could do something more worthwhile for The Voice of Prophecy. But, having just paid a heavy pledge to the church, with another coming due early in 1964, they felt they could do no more at that time.

Then a happy thought struck them. Let the Starkey Printing Company sponsor the Voice of Prophecy broadcast—and charge it to advertising!

They immediately contacted The Voice of Prophecy, as well as WROM, the best radio station in Rome, Georgia.

Arrangements were quickly made, and the weekly broadcast went on the air the following Sunday over WROM!

But the Starkeys felt that once a week was not enough. Having heard of the Voice of Prophecy Daily Broadcast plan, they became enthusiastic about getting the program released every day over WROM.

Through a telephone conversation with the station manager of WROM, they were informed that all religious broadcasts had been taken off the air during weekdays—Sunday was the only time available for religion. This was disappointing news to the Starkeys, but they did not give up. About two months later the station manager found it necessary to be on duty on a Sunday morning, and he listened to The Voice of Prophecy program as it was released from his own station. Its quality and content impressed him, and he continued listening every week to the Sunday morning broadcast!

During the latter months of 1963, Mr. Starkey called the station manager on several occasions, urging that time be made available for the Voice of Prophecy Daily Broadcast. At first the answer was, "No." A little later it was, "I'll see what can be worked out, but this is not a promise." A third telephone call brought encouragement—"I am trying to work it out." Mr. and Mrs. Starkey had been praying all through the months he had been listening to the Sunday broadcasts, and the Spirit of God was definitely working on the manager's heart.

Then, early in December, the Starkeys went to see WROM's manager in person, to receive his final answer. And this time it was "Yes!"

Since February, 1964, the Voice of Prophecy Daily Broadcast is heard at 1:30 every afternoon, Monday through Friday, over WROM, 710 kilocycles; and on Saturday and Sunday mornings at 7:30.

Thus multiplied thousands of families living in Rome, Georgia, and also in twenty-one other towns within a radius of 50 to 75 miles, are able to hear the message of salvation, subject by subject, every day of the week! Through the miracle of radio, this consistent, carefully-planned entry into the homes of so many soon makes the Voice of Prophecy radio group a friendly part of the community life. Some steady listeners have said they feel as if they already personally know Speaker H. M. S. Richards, the King's Herald, Del Delker, and Brad Braley.

"May the cost of sponsoring the Daily Broadcast be charged off as advertising and deducted as a business expense for income-tax purposes?" is a question now being asked. We have word that if an announcement is made both at the beginning and at the close of the broadcast, giving the firm's name and stating its sponsorship of the program, this constitutes legitimate business advertising expense, and may be deducted as such.

The Royal Cake Company of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, is sponsoring the Voice of Prophecy Daily Broadcast on a chain of stations in North Carolina in this same way.

Here is a feasible plan and opportunity for business establishments throughout the United States and Canada to open the channels of radio daily for the proclamation of vital Bible truths! Elder H. M. S. Richards is speaker on the Daily Broadcast series. With him are heard the King's Heralds, Del Delker, Brad Braley, and occasional guest artists.

To call attention to the Daily Broadcast, the Starkeys mailed more than 23,000 localized radio logs, which included the printed titles of the 156 sermon-topics to be heard throughout the six-month period. An application blank for enrolling in one of the free Voice of Prophecy Bible courses was also a part of the "Occupant" mailing piece.

Any business executive who desires further information about the Voice of Prophecy Daily Broadcast Plan, is invited to write to Elder I. E. Gillis, manager, The Voice of Prophecy, Box 1511, Glendale, California 91209.

Opportunities in Great Falls

Mr. and Mrs. Luther Harris are completing their fourth year as teachers of the elementary Seventh-day Adventist school in Great Falls. Both are graduates of Walla Walla College, and they have given a consistent demonstration of "the fourth dimension in education:" real love and respect for the children in their care. Mrs. Harris teaches grades one to four, while Mr. Harris has charge of grades five through eight. The school has shown a marked improvement under their supervision.

There is room for several more enrollees in the Great Falls Adventist school, and families who are considering a location in which to place their children in a Christian environment would do well to "look this way."

Great Falls is a progressive city—not too large—with varied opportunities for a livelihood. Three hospitals function here, including a large convalescent home. The new Deaconess Hospital, said to be one of the most modern in the Northwest, will be open in less than a year.

Last but not least, a friendly, missionary-minded Adventist church, organized sixty-eight years ago, would welcome additional families to assist in finishing the Lord's work in this area. So, again, we say "look this way" for the training of your children, for fellowship, and for service.

◆ Having passed the $1,200 goal for the projector campaign two weeks previously, the student body brought the campaign to a close on March 11 with a total of $1,533.70. The Tell Star's, junior and freshmen combined, were declared winners with over $700. The entire student body will profit by the successful campaign by having an extra day of spring vacation, Principal Smith has announced. Gene Jennings was awarded a $10 prize for having personally collected the most money, $58. Tom Emmerson was a close second with a total of $56.

To celebrate the successful termination, a short musical program was presented in chapel.

◆ Elder Marvin Reeder, Assistant Secretary Public Relations Department of the General Conference, spoke for chapel Friday, March 6, showing how the kindness of the Seventh-day Adventist institutional employees had led to monetary gifts to the denomination which had resulted in the establishment of the Kettering Hospital and the Porter Sanitarium. "I do not know if you will receive an earthly reward for doing your work well, but you will certainly receive a reward in the eternal kingdom," he admonished his student listeners.

Elder Reeder was assisted by B. M. Preston, public relations secretary for the North Pacific Union Conference, who introduced him, and by Elder A. J. Gordon, president of the Montana Conference, and Ernest Schaak, public relations secretary for the Montana Conference.

◆ The events preceding Christ's second coming were presented in pageant form by the Missionary Volunteer Society, Sabbath afternoon, March 7. Eighteen academy and five elementary students participated.

◆ The "Enchanted Spring," a musical variety benefit, was given by the senior class, Saturday night, March 7. The background for the program was a park scene; a spot light and different colored lights added to the effectiveness of the motif. After the program there was a short reception for the juniors, seniors, and their parents.

◆ The Saturday night program of March 21, "Melody Lane," promises to be unusual and delightfully feminine as the girls of Theta Tau Beta present, "A Salute to Steven Foster." You are invited to come and enjoy this fine entertainment. There will be an admission charge.

Adventures in Prophecy

The young people of Mount Ellis Academy under the leadership of Elder L. M. Lewis, Bible teacher, are presenting "Adventures in Prophecy" in a series of meetings in the Odd Fellows Hall in Three Forks. The opening meeting was Friday night, March 13, and they will close Saturday night, April 4. Meetings are held every Tuesday, Friday, and Saturday evenings at 7:30.

If anyone knows of interested persons living in the area, it would be appreciated if their names could be sent to Elder Lewis at Mount Ellis Academy.

Great Falls, Montana, church school. Grades 5 to 8 with Luther Harris, teacher; and grades 1 to 4 with Mrs. Luther Harris, teacher.

We trust this will be an inspiration to the young people participating as well as to those who attend.

IDAHO

Ye Olde Town Hall

Yes, that is the name over the door of the hall where the Missionary Volunteers of Boise and Eagle churches are holding an evangelistic effort in Idaho City, Idaho, under the direction of Dr. Donald M. Mack and Elder Dell Phelps.

Idaho City is an old settlement some 40 miles north and east of Boise.

One Adventist family lives in town and have built up a fine climate for further work. A group of Missionary Volunteers visited every home and invited the people to the meetings. They will be held each Saturday and Sunday evenings for the next few weeks.

In years past much gold has been mined in this area. Pray with us that much pure gold for God's kingdom may result from these meetings.

Growing Curriculum for Your Son or Daughter at Gem State Academy

Your academy is pleased to announce that there will be a continuing enrichment of course offerings for your son or daughter for the school year 1964-65. In addition to the regular vocational and pre-occupational courses already available to students for elective or specialization credit in such areas as Home Arts, Business, Music (for teaching or music ministry careers) the school is calling attention to two major additions. As you no doubt know, Gem State Academy has one of the broadest offerings available in the Pacific Northwest academies in the area of industrial arts. To further strengthen this field, it is the plan to add a course called Cooperative Work Experience (Vocational guidance). This subject will carry 5 semester periods credit (1/2 unit) and will permit your son or daughter to explore interest areas for possible vocational choice. Obviously, the nature of the course does not limit it to students in the industrial arts department.

It will be of special interest to many students that in addition to the regular courses in bookkeeping, mathematics for business, typing and shorthand, there will be a specialized course in business machines and office practice. This experience will be especially valuable to girls or boys who may wish to go directly into office work without major training beyond high school. It will also be of value as an introduction to the college programs offered in business and secretarial science. It should also be pointed out that such training will be invaluable in helping to earn one's way in part in college.

It is the purpose of your school to provide the best educational opportunities for your youth. Remember, it is not too early to plan for the coming school term. Applications are already coming in for the school year 1964-65. The academy is looking forward to another major increase in enrollment and it would be wise to make room and work reservations early. Write to principal or registrar for application forms.

Gem State Academy Building Fund, February 1964

For this month we are bringing a different type of report of our Academy Building Fund. We are listing the churches in order of the percentage of the goal reached. You will notice that our churches stretch all the way from 8% to 205%.

Five churches are over the assigned goal. It is interesting to note that each one of these victory churches is still giving each month. As a conference we have reached 65% of the goal. Several churches are very close. Will your church be the next one over the goal?

During February $1,464.32 came in to make our conference total $36,197.79. Thank you very much for your wonderful help. You will be proud of our completed plant because you have had a part in its building.

We want to press on till every church is over the goal. We can build only as funds come in from week to week. Check the position of your church. Have you helped all you could?

Invitations Bring People

Mrs. Lyman Shaw invited fifty-eight and Mrs. Ken Dunton invited forty-three! Other members of the Pocatello Sabbath School invited their loved ones, neighbors, friends and business acquaintances. Where? To their beautiful new church for Sabbath School Rally Day on Sabbath, March 14.

The invitation is what brings the people. The Pocatello Sabbath School, with an average attendance of approximately sixty-five, had thirty-one visitors for Sabbath School on Rally Day. Another six came for church, making a total of thirty-seven visitors. This is more than fifty per cent of the attendance! Sabbath School members had the pleasure of seeking folk with whom they work day by day responding to their invitations and worshipping with them on the Sabbath day. Some of the visitors were young people—both high school and college students.

Many of these visitors had never attended a Seventh-day Adventist church before. Some were former Sabbath School and church members. How it thrills the hearts of the Sabbath School members to hear remarks such as this, "I am going to come back to church again and be rebaptized." Others expressed such thoughts as these, "I wouldn't have missed this for anything. I certainly have enjoyed every minute of the program and have gained a real blessing today."

Mrs. Ken Dunton and the Sabbath School division leaders had prepared an excellent program for all present that day. Special music was given for Sabbath School and church by Elders Harry and Harold Gray. Elder George W. Liscombe, president of the Idaho Conference, presented a thrilling and challenging sermon. After the worship service all of the visitors were invited to stay for a pot-luck dinner. This social event was a pleasant climax to the morning.

The new church at Pocatello is located in a fine section of town and is both attractive and comfortable. The spirit of evangelistic zeal and the interest in the hearts of the Pocatello church members to see their church pews full is the most attractive thing about the church. They are inviting people to come—are you?

Academy and Church Development Plans

Sunday, March 15, at 10 a.m., 350 members and workers of the Washington Conference met in the chapel at Auburn Academy to discuss plans for the completion of the rebuilding of the school. During the past three years $700,000 has been spent in the construction of a new boys' dormitory housing 178 students, a new cafeteria which accommodates 300 diners at one time, and to rebuild the girls' dormitory which when completed will care for 130 girls. Construction of a worship chapel for the girls is well under way which will cost another $15,000.

Funds for the construction of these buildings came from the academy, the Conference and the churches of the Washington Conference. The three-year Church Development Service program in the Conference provided about fifty per cent of the total. The academy from monies usually spent for repair and depreciation gave $100,000, and the local and Union conferences provided the balance.

The building of a new administration building and an academy church will complete the remodeling of the academy which is located on a campus totaling about thirty acres four miles east of Auburn.

After touring the present administration building, plans were presented which envisioned the completion of a new administration building by October of this year, with a new church to follow as funds can be secured.

The workers and church members (representing the church boards) voted to approve the plan recommended by the conference committee which included a new three-year C.D.S. program to raise $300,000 for Auburn Academy, and a like amount for special needy church buildings and church school projects. Other church projects will be added by local churches in determining the local church's goal for the new C.D.S. program. It is also requested that where the present C.D.S. campaign closes before the new program can be developed, those now making payments to C.D.S. continue these payments until the new program is launched. It is understood that any funds turned in between the two programs will count toward the church's new C.D.S. goal.

Spanish Students Write Letters for Sabbath School

Students in Auburn Academy's Spanish II class have found a unique way to combine learning activity with spiritual endeavor.

By sending letters written in Spanish to various mission stations of the South American Division, Spanish students are helping the Academy Sabbath School to learn more of mission life and qualifications for mission service. The letters ask missionaries about living conditions, terms of service, educational requirements for mission life, housing, special needs, and facilities.

Although not enough time has lapsed for replies to the inquiries, twelve letters are answered, the results will be shared with Sabbath School members so that they will become more aware of needs in the mission field.

The writing project is under the supervision of Elder Vernon Berry, language teacher and a former missionary to South America. Although the formal letters are the first for the students, they are doing quite well, according to Elder Berry. Certain denominational clichés pose a problem in the correspondence.

Sabbath School officers who are promoting the project include Rosalie Anderson and David Thorn, superintendents; Marie Anderson and Brent Gardner, secretaries; Verley George and Helen Thorburn, receptionists; Ron Donahey and Anita Long, song leaders; Linda Powell and Judy Olcott, pianists; Teryl Lofgren and Karen Cloakey, organists.

To Our Many, Many Dear Friends

Your kind expressions of sympathy, your loving gifts of money, cards, food and many prayers at the time of the deaths of my beloved husband and son—Horace and Frankie Gates, and also the death of my brother, Floyd Worden—are deeply appreciated and gratefully acknowledged.

Many cards and gifts have had no names attached—or addresses—and so I acknowledge them now. The many hundreds of cards and letters of comfort I am endeavoring to answer personally, but it will take a long time to accomplish them.

The Lord has been very close to us. Jesus will soon come and we will all be reunited at Jesus' feet. Please continue to pray for us.

Highland Park Church Cooking Class

Bless my little kitchen, Lord,
I love its every nook,
And bless me as I do my work,
Wash pots and pans and cook,

May the meals that I prepare,
Be seasoned from above
With Thy blessing and Thy grace,
But most of all Thy love.

As we partake of earthly food,
The table Thou has spread,
We'll not forget to thank Thee, Lord,
For all our daily bread.

So bless my little kitchen, Lord,
And those who enter in;
May they find naught but joy and peace
And happiness therein. Amen.

This was the prayer Mrs. N. R. Dower read at the opening of the cooking class she held for the Highland Park church February 24-27.

Pastor and Mrs. Lyman so graciously gave the use of their home. The Highland Park Junior Dorcas sponsored and assisted Mrs. Dower. The Rainier and Highland Park ladies made an average attendance of thirty to thirty-five each night.

Along with the demonstrations of eggless and meatless and low cholesterol cooking, Mrs. Dower in her most gracious way dropped here and there spiritual passages that inspired each wife and mother to make her kitchen a better place for building a good foundation for her family.

Opportunity Knocks Again

Omar Khayyam, the old Persian poet, wisely wrote, "The moving finger writes and having writ, moves on."

We are writing our record day by day by the things we do. Now is our opportunity to do great things for God. Remember that greatness is made up of many small things. Since the Signs of the Times was ordained of God and since its inception has been maintained by God, through man, we should avail ourselves of the privilege of sending them now, realizing that when we subscribe for a friend or loved one, a fresh pulpit is erected in that home every month of the year. What a tremendous opportunity we have for becoming channels of blessing to our fellow men.

Signs of the Times has great eye appeal as well as heart appeal. Just this past week after giving it to a friend, he remarked, after perusing its pages, how very excellent the material was. If only he knew how excellent it really is, I believe it could change his life. I am sending him the Signs as part of my personal project for '64.

APRIL IS SIGNS MONTH! Every member of the Upper Columbia Conference should plan at the very outset how many Signs subscriptions you can afford to send. You should also decide to whom you want to send them. This way when the opportunity is given to you in your churches it need not be a lengthy, drawn-out affair. May I appeal to each one of you to respond intelligently and wholeheartedly on the first Sabbath Signs is presented in April.

Second MV Bible Conference

The second MV Bible Conference for our Senior Missionary Volunteers will be held at Camp MiVoden, Hayden Lake, Idaho, on May 8-10. This Conference proved to be a spiritual highlight for our teen young people a year ago.

Guest speakers at the Bible Conference will include Elder E. L. Minchin, General Conference and formerly associate MV Secretary. Elder J. Paul Grove will be the Conference Bible instructor. Elder Grove is the associate Professor of Bible at Walla Walla College. Elder Ed Webb of the Union will be with us. There will also be a number of our ministers and teachers who will lead out in group Bible sessions.

The delegates are to be chosen from each MV Society, from our academies and from Walla Walla College. The age limit is academy or high school age, to 30 years. We have to limit the attendance to 125 delegates. We, therefore, urge that all who plan to come, representing their MV Society, make their application at the earliest possible date. While we shall endeavor to equalize our delegation to the entire Conference, we know there will be some areas which will not have delegates to send. Therefore, we shall accept applications in order of their arrival.

The cost of our Bible Conference will be $7, to cover registration, food and lodging. Applications are being sent to all churches.

Our first gathering will be for supper on Friday, May 8, at 6:00 p.m. Registration will be from three o'clock on. The Conference will end with lunch on Sunday, May 10.

Summer Camp Dates

Again our young people are eagerly looking forward to a week or two at our wonderful Camp MiVoden on Hayden Lake. The summer ahead is to see a special season of camping that is to truly manifest the spirit of Operation Orion. Not only will our camps enrich the lives of our own dear youth, but we hope to have many coming to camp who have learned this truth through our Conference-wide Orion program.

The dates for the camps are as follows:

- Teen Boys, July 5-12
- Junior Boys, July 12-19
- Junior Girls, July 19-26
- Teen Girls, July 26-Aug. 2

Application blanks and descriptive folders for our 1964 camping program, will be sent to all churches by the middle of April. We trust that your family summer plans will permit your camp-age young people the blessings and benefits of a week at beautiful Camp MiVoden.

Sharp Sickles

Our prayers, like sharp sickles, are to reach out constantly, helping to gather in an ever-increasing harvest of precious souls. As evangelistic efforts are held by the ministers, church members must unite in the soul-winning work by making themselves personally responsible for one or more individuals who are sincerely seeking salvation. Church members should not only invite certain friends or interested people to attend the meetings, but actually see to it that those who have been invited are either taken to the meetings or helped in other ways to make it possible for them to be at the meetings.

When this much has been done and the interested ones come to the meetings, or are seriously studying God's message for this time, then those who are really helping certain individuals along the way to salvation, should pray most earnestly for the interested ones. Prayers in such cases become real instruments in God's hands. They will be like sharp sickles, reaching out and gathering in the golden harvest for God's Kingdom.

At this time a large number of evangelistic efforts are going on in various parts of the Conference; other efforts are planned to begin during the remaining days of March. Since January twelve efforts have been, or are now being, held: Grants Pass, Ashland, Albany, St. Helens, McMinnville, Hopewell, Sharon, Pioneer, The Dalles, Cedar Creek, Cornelius, and Madras. The following ones are booked to begin during the remainder of the month of March: Tabernacle, Montavilla, Garibaldi, Sandy, and Lents.

It is the experience of the conference that they have insufficient help in following up and working with the many interested people who are sincerely seeking spiritual help. It is up to the lay members of the Church to provide the needed help. The spiritually awake, and properly trained church members are the only ones who can give the kind of help that is needed. They can radiate the personal love, and give the thousands of helping hands that keep people coming, and enjoying the blessings that await those who are following in the footsteps of their Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

Let us arouse from our deadly complacency in the churches, and be at the glorious work of helping the gospel ministers gather in the precious sheaves for God's Kingdom. When we give ourselves in personal, helpful, and loving service for the salvation of others our prayers will indeed be like sharp sickles, reaching out to gather in the harvest for God.

H. L. RUDY

Christian Stewardship

A startling yet profound truth is expressed concerning financial matters as follows: "Many professed Christians put off the claims of Jesus in life, and insult Him by giving Him a mere pittance at death."

The messenger of the Lord writes further, "It often happens that an active businessman is cut down without a moment's warning, and on examination his business is found to be in a most perplexing condition. In the effort to settle his estate, the lawyers' fees eat up a large share, if not all, of the property, while his wife and children and the cause of Christ are robbed."

If you, the reader, should be doing something about your affairs, please hesitate no longer. Your Conference officers are prepared to advise you in this important matter.

The end of March closes the first quarter of 1964. This is a good time to deposit reserve funds in the Conference treasury where this money can give strength to God's work. May we hear from you?

So you think you're too young, or too tired, or too busy, or too old to plan an investment project? Consider Mrs. Louise Folkenberg. She is 81 years old, a member of Portland's St. Johns church. And Mrs. Folkenberg averages $100 per year for investment. How? She makes and sells aprons and dolls from scraps donated to her.

(Mrs. Folkenberg was a member of the third class of nurses to graduate from Portland Sanitarium and Hospital.)

Do you need an idea of what you can do? See your investment secretary.

Columbia Academy

After a February 26 inspection and conference with Principal H. T. Ochs, the Columbia Academy board, chair-manned by H. L. Rudy, voted $50,000 for general improvement and for the first stage of a three-stage campus development program.

The three-stage program includes:

1. Major improvements in the girls' dormitory (to be completed this year).
2. The building of a new cafeteria with better cooking facilities.
3. The conversion of the present dining room to girls' dormitory rooms. (Improvements two and three will follow in sequence.)

The largest sum for the first stage of improvements will add a new shower and restroom wing to the girls' dormitory. The present showers and restrooms, which the board judged inadequate, will be converted into living quarters making more room in the now crowded dormitory.

Under-layment and tile will replace wooden floors throughout the entire girls' dormitory, and all the halls, stairways and landings will be completely carpeted.

"These improvements are badly needed," says Mrs. Charlotte Syphers, dean of women. "The floors will make it easier for the girls to keep their rooms in good shape and the carpeted halls will make quiet study periods much easier to maintain, besides adding to general good decorum in the building."

Of the $50,000 voted, the Union Conference will give $10,000 and the Oregon Conference $30,000 to the remodeling program. The remaining $10,000, supplied by the Oregon Conference will go to numerous campus departments. The audio-visual equipment will be boosted with the addition of a tape recorder and overhead projector. The home economics department will receive new plastic tote trays complete with a housing cabinet; the library card file will be expanded to include a new fifteen drawer section; the secretarial department will get a new adding machine; the music department will receive a new grand piano; and there will be new lighting and other basic structural improvements.

Following the board meeting the academy played host to a board-faculty dinner. The pep band and Contando, under the direction of Don Latsha and Miss Gladys Robison, entertained with numbers ranging from the "Old Settler's Song" sung by the Contando to the lively "Look Me Over" played by the pep band.

"In the last six years," says Elder Rudy, "I have seen Columbia's acreage doubled, a new gym and music conservatory built, the administration building completely remodeled and several smaller improvements made. Under the new building program, your plant will develop into an ideal sized academy."

Present at the board meeting were: H. L. Rudy, V. J. Jester, A. J. Peckham, F. W. Avery, Preston Smith, G. R. Lashier, E. C. Thompson, A. T. Ritz, H. R. Nelson, C. A. Scriven, L. W. Crooker, J. T. Porter, R. C. Remboldt, and H. T. Ochs.

Changes in Education Requirements

Beginning this summer, changes in the curriculum for elementary education majors will become effective, says Dr. R. E. Silver, chairman, department of education, Walla Walla College.

Christian educators stress the fact that the years spent in the elementary grades are the most important school years of a person's life. It is in the elementary schools that a firm foundation is laid for future education. S.D.A.'s then must conclude that church school teachers need the best training they can possibly get, both in the principles of the Adventist faith and in the basic skills and subject matter taught at the elementary level. It is with these facts in mind that changes have been made in the elementary teacher education program at Walla Walla College.

Under the new program, elementary teachers will take a basic course in modern mathematics. This twelve-credit course called Survey of Mathematics will give the complete preparation necessary to teach the mathematics now coming into the elementary curriculum.

Because of the increasing emphasis on science, the elementary teachers will be required to have both biological and physical science. These changes raise the total math and science requirement from the present 23 credits to 36. However, twelve credits may be deferred until after the bachelor of science degree.

Subject areas will be further strengthened by a requirement that elementary teachers have two minors or a major in addition to their professional courses. These 54 credits together with nine in geography, literature, and speech will comprise the elementary teaching major. To meet requirements for Washington State Provisional Certificate at the end of four years, the elementary teacher will have 25 credits in the language arts, 12 in history, 18 or more in religion, and 24 in math and science. Some of these credits may count toward one of the required minors, or both minors may be completely different subjects such as secretarial science or home economics.

During the fifth year, after teaching experience, 45 additional credits are required for the Standard Certificate. The teacher must complete this work within six years after graduation. The fifth year will include 12 additional credits in science, six in social science, three in health, and twelve in professional courses. Additional work in other areas may be required or elected according to individual needs.

WWC's program of elementary teacher training is in the forefront, Dr. Silver notes. Good reports come from surveys of work now being done by the teachers training at WWC.

No state has higher requirements than Washington, according to Dr. Silver. Now with the strengthening of math and science requirements, WWC is in the forefront of teacher training and is following the inspired mandate that SDA schools should be the head.

Summer Session, 1964

More than 100 courses—34 of them in education—will be available at Walla Walla College's summer session June 15 to August 21, according to Dr. H. L. Rasmussen, summer session director.

The complete program with courses in 16 departments gives students an opportunity to shorten the college program by summer school attendance. Course content and credit are identical to that of the courses during the regular school year and lead to B.A. and B.S. degrees. M.A. degree programs in both education and biology are offered at WWC with a wide selection of courses available during the summer.

Classes are scheduled from 7:30 throughout the day and evening, concluding at 9:30 p.m. Evening and late afternoon classes provide an opportunity for a limited study program.

Dr. Robert Silver, chairman of the education department, announces that Dr. T. W. Walters, Professors Bernice Searle, J. Wesley Rhodes, Andrew Leonie, and Instructors Duane Ragan and Robert Stahlnecker, all of the education department faculty, will be on the summer session staff. Augmenting the staff will be Principal Albert Butherus, Clifford Lawson and Evaine Fehr from the Rogers School staff. From off-campus Dale Wagner, Robert Ludeman, and Mrs. Walter Werth, specialists in areas of secondary school teaching, all from Upper Columbia Academy, will teach methods courses. Principal Harold Ochs of Columbia Academy will teach Northwest History and methods in social science.

Cooperating with the education department in charge of the demonstration school at the Rogers School will be Miss Lois Teel and Mrs. Raymond Ferguson, Rogers School teachers. Mrs. Kenneth Groves, library assistant at WWC, will have charge of the curriculum library in addition to teaching.

Elementary French, four and a half credits each term, will be offered this summer session, says Miss Agnes Sorenson, chairman of the department of modern languages.

Freshmen, particularly those who will need a summer work program, should apply early and receive an acceptance before coming to WWC. All freshmen who have approved summer work programs and are in residence on the WWC campus must enroll for one two-hour course. Such courses, given in the evening, are free to freshmen.

Rosario Beach Biological Station

Under the direction of Dr. Harold Coffin, a wide range of both undergraduate and graduate courses will be offered at the Rosario Beach Biological Station, near Anacortes, Washington.

Also at the Station from the WWC biological department will be Dr. John F. Stout and Donald F. Blake, teaching in their specialized fields. Joe Willey, who is now completing work for the master's degree, will teach General Biology—a course extending through the two terms of the summer session.

Other courses listed are Invertebrate Zoology, Animal Behavior, Comparative Physiology, Ecology, Ornithology, Marine Invertebrates, and Ichthyology.

Guest professor at the Biological Station has been announced as Dr. Bruce Halstead, director of World Life Research Institute, Colton, California.
