

Oakwood Is Committed

Oakwood College, a fully accredited Christian college, is committed to the task of preparing young men and women to meet the challenge of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in times like these.

Mrs. E. G. White states very definitely that the Lord led in the establishment of Oakwood College at Huntsville, Alabama. Testimonies, Vol. 7, p. 231. She also said: "Especially should we reveal a spirit of beneficence at the time the yearly offering for the support of the colored work is taken up." Ibid., Vol. 9, p. 224.

The General Conference has made provision that an offering be taken annually in all the churches in North America for the expansion and further development of Oakwood, to meet the needs of a larger number of our Adventist youth.

This coeducational institution with its bi-racial faculty of dedicated Christian men and women is academically prepared and spiritually consecrated to the task of training the youth in theology, in education, and in the arts and sciences, that their witness for the truth may make a soul-saving impact upon the world.

The call for help that goes forth now to "lengthen thy stakes" was never more relevant.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank all for their generous gifts in the past and to solicit your continued interest and financial support when the offering for Oakwood College is taken on Sabbath, August 8.

University Offering Is Generous

The attention which our Union Conference papers gave to the medical education needs of Loma Linda University was no doubt an important contributing factor to the fine offering which was received on April 11, 1964. We would like to take the same means to thank everyone who contributed to this offering. The total reported to date was over one hundred thousand dollars, which exceeds by almost fifty per cent the offering taken a year ago.

With the ground broken for the new Medical Center and construction in progress to replace fire-damaged Risley Hall, this offering gives a fine boost to our program. We are anxious that the University shall offer the highest type of professional and graduate education to our own qualified young people, and we greatly appreciate the cooperation which the church members give in offerings, supportive attitudes, and in prayers for the advancement of the work here.

Academy Voice of Youth

At the Montana camp meeting in the Missionary Volunteer Department on Friday evening, July 3, Elder Larry Lewis interviewed a young lady whose name is Darlene Ehman, regarding the Voice of Youth series that was held by the Mt. Ellis young people this spring in the town of Three Forks, Montana. Elder Lewis asked Darlene, who was one of the speakers at this Voice of Youth series, a number of questions about the series. The interview ran something like this:

Elder Lewis: Darlene, how many people did you have at the first meeting, would you say?

Darlene: As I remember, there were twenty-five little kids and one sweet, little old lady.

Elder Lewis: How many adults did you have out the second night?

Darlene: One

Elder Lewis: How many adults on the third night?

Darlene: One

Elder Lewis: How many did you have out the last night?

Darlene: One

Elder Lewis: How many adults were baptized as a result of the meetings?

Darlene: One

What an enviable record—one hundred per cent of the adult non-Adventist audience attending this Voice of Youth series of meetings was baptized! How our evangelists would envy this record! All over this union our youth are proving that souls can be won and evangelism can be done by our young people. Let us see that there is a Voice of Youth series of meetings in every MV society in this union this year.

Band Instruments for Puerto Rico

Band instruments and equipment are urgently needed for the Antillian Union College in Puerto Rico. This is the college that recently moved from Cuba. There has been such a struggle to provide basic classrooms and dormitories, that there has been no music department other than some piano instruction.

A graduate of Walla Walla College and former worker in this Union, Gordon Olsen and his family, were called a year ago to work in Puerto Rico. He has returned to Walla Walla College for the summer, and is collecting instruments to take back to Puerto Rico to start a band at the College. The administration building is not even completed for the lack of funds, and most of the students come from very poor families whose income is only a few hundred dollars a year, so the band will have to depend completely on equipment that friends here can provide. Anything that has service left in it will be greatly appreciated. Sixty instruments of all kinds are needed. They will be loaned to the students so as many can learn to play as possible. Send immediately to Gordon L. Olsen, 412 S. E. Date St., College Place, Washington.

Camp Meeting Ordination

When you look back on a camp meeting session, many different things come to mind. The first Sabbath was made memorable by the ordination service.

Gary Patterson was ordained to the gospel ministry. Elder and Mrs. Patterson and Cynthia Rae are located in John Day. Elder and Mrs. Glen Patterson, Gary's parents, were present, and Elder Glen Patterson joined in the ordination service. Mrs. Gary Patterson's parents were also there to share in this occasion.

I am sure our members throughout the conference will pray for this young family that their dedicated service will be a credit to the cause of God.

MONTANA

Camp Meeting in Retrospect

The Montana Conference has just completed one of the finest camp meetings in its history. Many of our dear people who have attended camp meetings in Montana for years expressed their deep and sincere appreciation for the fine spiritual tone that was felt through the ten days. We have not returned to our homes as we came. Many have entered into a new spirit of consecration and dedication to the finishing of the work in their own lives as well as in God's vineyard. Victories have been gained and a new spiritual life has come to many who were in attendance. We thank God for His presence and protecting care. No serious accident happened on the grounds, and as far as we know all returned to their homes safely.

Elder L. M. Nelson of the MV Department of the General Conference opened the camp meeting Thursday night with a good old-fashioned Seventh-day Adventist sermon. Elder W. I. Amundsen of the General Conference gave a series of sermons on righteous living that was most helpful and greatly appreciated. Elder C. A. Scriven, our Union president, gave an excellent sermon on the first Friday night. All of the Union brethren attended a portion of the camp meeting; half of the Union staff attended the first part of the camp meeting and the other half attended the latter part. All gave very excellent help and we thank these good brethren.

Elder K. H. Wood, Jr., author of our devotional book for adults this year, and associate editor of the Review and Herald, gave some timely messages while he was with us. Elder W. M. Adams of the Religious Liberty Association brought to us some stirring things about what is happening in our own country as well as in the world, and that are a fulfillment of the last days' prophecies. These things always stir our hearts.

We were privileged to have two missionary families with us. Elder and Mrs. Vernon Bretsch and family spent the entire time at our meeting. Elder Harry Johnson spent a portion of the camp meeting time with us. These folks gave wonderful help. It was like coming home to them as they have relatives in the area whom they visited.

Mrs. Josephine C. Edwards was also a welcome guest. Young and old alike greatly enjoyed her stories and talks. We would like to say to all of these folks, "Come again, and come often." On the closing weekend we had the Voice of Prophecy "A" Team consisting of Elder H. M. S. Richards and the King's Heralds Quartet who brought great inspiration to our camp. Then, of course, the Montana Conference workers were all present and, as usual, their services were timely and really appreciated.

As an added feature to our program, we had a four-day cooking school which was well attended. Men and women alike enjoyed the good instruction and the fine foods that were prepared by a group of local laity and Elder and Mrs. Jespersen.

Our offerings were very good. People gave generously to the Sabbath School, to Foreign Missions and for local evangelism. Our Book and Bible House sales and food sales amounted to $7,373.06. On the last Sabbath an offering was taken to help Montana flood victims. While it is only a small portion of what our dear people lost, we hope that it will be of some help. This is to be dispersed soon.

We thank God for His goodness and mercies to us and for all of the blessings which come down from His bountiful hand. Let us not forget the good resolutions and the dedications that we made to God. Never again will we meet just as we did during the camp meeting, and we do not know how many more camp meetings we will be able to attend. May God keep us all faithful; may we work together to finish the work that soon we may go home to glory.

How Are We Doing?

Very well, thank you! We have only started and have nearly six books filled. I am referring to our campaign for a new piano for the girls' dormitory at Mount Ellis Academy. Remember, it takes only 286 Gold Bond Stamp Books! If you have none of these, Gold Strike and S & H Green Stamps are very acceptable and exchangeable. We hope you will be willing to give at least one stamp book.

When you turn in Gold Bond Stamps Books for merchandise, ask for your validated cover or donation certificate. These will give us valuable points.

Many thanks to those who are still faithfully sending in General Mills or Betty Crocker coupons. We are getting extra things that will be of untold use at the Academy.

Please remember our school in your

Some are sending stamps we have never heard of like Fleetway, Gold Seal, Gold Arrow, National, and National Red, Bonus Stamps, Blue Chip, Orange, Top and Security Stamps. If you are saving any of these, we would be happy to exchange or even give them to you.

UPPER COLUMBIA

Upper Columbia Academy Staff

This will serve to present to the constituency the most recent addition to the staff at Upper Columbia Academy. Mr. Wesley E. Paul comes to us from Plainview Academy at Redfield, South Dakota, to serve in the capacity of accountant and office manager.

At the beginning of the 1963-64 school year the Upper Columbia Conference called Mr. George Crumley to be the assistant treasurer of the conference. It was difficult at that time of the year to find someone to replace Mr. Crumley. The General Conference, however, was able to supply us with a returned missionary, Mr. Lawrence Sufficool, who carried the responsibility of accountant during the past school year. Mr. Sufficool has now gone to Forest Lake Academy and Upper Columbia Academy has called Mr. Paul to replace Mr. Crumley.

Mr. Paul attended the academy at Canadian Union College and took his college work both from Madison and Southern Missionary College. He graduated from Southern Missionary College in 1962 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration. His work experience has included being office manager of Madison Foods, purchasing clerk and, most recently, accountant and teacher at Plainview Academy.

Mr. Paul has already arrived on the campus and has taken up his responsibility here. His wife and two children will be arriving shortly. We extend a hearty welcome to this new staff member and his family.

VBS in Pullman

The Vacation Bible School held at the Adventist church in Pullman, Washington, June 29 through July 3, under the leadership of the Sabbath School superintendent, Donnice Ross, is now a pleasant memory. Seventeen children registered and only six were from Adventist homes. It was a small group in number but precious to the Lord and to the VBS teachers. Such well-behaved children and the interest they showed in all class work and other activities was a joy to all who worked with them.

Mrs. Ross was assisted by her husband, Gary, and assistant superintendent

Members of the Moscow church were Mrs. Joe Blanck and daughter, Norma Jean, who helped in the Primary department. ## An Added Dimension Excitement was running high one June day in Marshfield, Wisconsin, a few years ago. A visitor entering the town could not understand why the residents of the town gathered in the streets looking heavenward. Curiosity got the best of this visitor and he pulled into a service station, even though he really did not need any gas right then. "What's all the commotion about?" he asked.

The service station attendant explained that a pilotless plane was circling over the city. Everybody knew that sooner or later the plane would come down, when its fuel was exhausted. Where it would land, nobody knew. But should it come down in the town, no doubt considerable damage would result.

The attendant went on to explain that a mechanic working on the plane was putting the finishing touches on the repair job. Only one more place to service and that was the oil cup behind the propeller. To reach it he had to move the propeller. Nothing to that, he had done it a thousand times before. Nothing had ever gone wrong. There was only one possibility of danger. Pulling the propeller around was the way to start the engine, but for the engine to start the switch had to be turned on and, of course, the switch of this plane was off, or so the mechanic thought. Actually the switch was on.

The mechanic jerked the propeller around. With a swish and a roar, a great coughing up of the exhaust fumes, the engine came to life. The plane moved forward. Fortunately for the mechanic he was able to escape any injury from the turning propeller. The pilotless plane rolled on westward, cutting across the runway and heading straight for a group of farm buildings. The mechanic held his breath, waiting for the collision. But the plane was gathering speed and as it neared the edge of the field, it rose from the ground, passing not more than a few feet above the buildings. It continued to climb until it was about a mile high and then it turned, flying in a very large circle, maneuvering itself beautifully as if the pilot was actually inside.

For more than an hour it circled until finally the fuel did give out and the plane crashed, fortunately in a field of oats.

Perhaps there is a parallel between our educational program and this pilotless plane. Generally speaking, our academies have done a good job in preparing young people for one major aspect of life—entrance into college for higher education. Let us recognize that all students graduating from academy are not going to go on to college. While our denomination has a high percentage of graduates going on to higher education, there is still a significant percentage who do not go on to a formal college for advanced training. Here is a group who we have left more or less without a pilot to steer their craft.

Vocational training is a crying need in our denomination on the secondary as well as higher level. Into this Upper Columbia Academy intends to move in a strong way. The new industrial arts building under construction, which will be ready for occupancy with the opening of the school year in September, is the initial step to prepare the way for broader offerings in this field. This year we will be offering in the industrial area the following courses: Advanced Metals, Arts and Crafts, Auto Mechanics, General Metals, Machine Shop, Mechanical Drawing I and II, Small Appliance Repair, Welding and Woodwork I and II. These subjects will be taught under the two qualified instructors: Mr. Robert Freitas, in the area of wood products, and Mr. William Greenley, in the area of metals.

In broadening the offerings of the Industrial Arts program, there is really a two-fold purpose in mind. One is to provide an area of enrichment for those students who may look forward to advanced education and professional training; and, secondly, to provide a solid introduction into vocational training for those who do not necessarily care to pursue education in a liberal arts college. Even with the limited offerings in these fields that we have been able to provide over the past few years, we have been well pleased with some of the young men who have gone forth into industry and into trade schools prepared to make a success of their endeavors.

One of the most interesting classes as far as enrichment is concerned will be that offered in Arts and Crafts. Six subjects taught in six-week segments will include such areas as plastics, ceramics, art metals, photography, lapidary, and leathercraft. A student will be required to take this course for at least one semester and may take it for two. One semester will cover three areas and two semesters all six arts. We are anxiously looking forward to this coming year to inaugurate this broader field in vocational training.

The new building, 180 feet long, represents an investment of over $60,000. In addition to this there will be a demand for much in the way of equipment. We have some equipment but we are looking forward to expanding this so that we can make our vocational training program more meaningful. In the metals area we are definitely in need of a metal band saw and a surface sander. We are also in need of some photographic equipment such as enlargers, contact printers and development tanks and the like. Perhaps there are those among our constituents who may have some of this equipment which is no longer in use. The academy would certainly appreciate any assistance in helping us to equip this new industrial arts building as completely as possible.

We believe in this new endeavor and trust that it will fulfill a real need in the denomination for vocational training.

OREGON

Milo Academy News

Milo Academy honored fifty-seven members of the Class of 1964 at services of the ninth annual commencement on the weekend of May 29-31. During the Sunday morning exercises Professor J. H. Burns, English instructor at Walla Walla College, stressed world affairs and their impact on today's youth. Guest speaker for the consecration service was Elder C. J. Ritchie, Home Missionary secretary of the Oregon Conference. Burton Dietrich, class pastor, responded to the challenge presented. Elder George Knowles gave the baccalaureate sermon on Sabbath morning.

The generosity of the weekend guests was in evidence on Sunday morning of commencement when they learned that one senior could not graduate because of financial obligations to a school. In two hours' time over $700 was raised, making it possible for the fifty-seventh member to graduate with his class. The class and their sponsors felt that this was a direct answer to their prayers, for many of them prayed earnestly the night before that the Lord would open some avenue through which the needed funds would come.

In 1961 the boys and girls of the Oregon church schools, under the leadership of their teachers, raised $12,915.95 in Ingathering and in 1964 they raised $18,099.47, or an increase of 40 percent.

In the picture Elder Ritchie, Home Missionary Secretary of the Oregon Conference, presents to Earl Black, principal of Albany-Corvallis School, the third volume of the "Index to Writings of Mrs. Ellen G. White." Every school that reached its goal received the "Index." The first volume was given in 1962.

New Staff

According to Principal Lyle Cornforth, several new faculty members will join the staff of Milo Academy for the 1964-65 school year.

Coming from Canadian Union College are Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Wolfe and their family. Mr. Wolfe, who holds a Master of Music degree from Indiana University, is an accomplished violinist. His experience as choral and instrumental director will add strength to the music department.

An enlarged physical fitness program awaits Mr. Ray Miller, a recent graduate from Andrews University. Mr. Miller will head the physical education department and will promote a strong program in calisthenics.

Elder and Mrs. Joel Noble, M.A. from Andrews University, has served as educational secretary of the South Dakota Conference and as business manager of Maplewood Academy in Minnesota. He will teach both history and Bible.

Mrs. Edward Haynes, a graduate of Southern Missionary College and a teacher of English at Orangewood Academy in the Southern California Conference during the past year, will teach English. Mr. Haynes, a licensed journeyman, will be employed in Roseburg.

Assisting in the English and history departments will be Larry Huston from Grand Junction, Colorado. Mr. Huston, a recent graduate of Walla Walla College with a major in history, served as student dean in West Hall during the school year.

Mr. Ray Woodruff, also a graduate of Walla Walla College, who has kept the college diesel equipment in running condition for a number of years, will soon arrive with his wife and three children. He will continue to work with the rolling stock at the academy and to serve as school mechanic, thus replacing Mr. Ed Stelzmler who is connecting with Laurelwood Academy.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Koller and their two sons from La Sierra, California, are already on the campus. Mr. Koller, a licensed and experienced steam fitter, is taking over the responsibilities held by Mr. Carl Miner who has moved to Portland to serve as custodian at the Oregon Conference office.

Assisting Mr. Mittleider in the nursery is Mr. Donald Kellogg from Loma Linda, California. Mr. Kellogg holds a B.S. degree in plant science and taught chemistry at Loma Linda Academy last year. Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg with their two children arrived only a few days ago.

A number of other replacements will be made to fill vacancies of staff members who are moving to other schools. Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Crays who have served at Milo Academy for five years will soon leave for Auburn Academy where Mr. Crays will be registrar and commercial teacher, and Mrs. Crays will teach English. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Kearby have moved to Loma Linda, California, where Mr. Kearby will teach instrumental music. Also going to California are the Gerald Prathers and the Lyle Griffins. Mr. Griffin will serve as principal of the Ukiah, California, junior academy.

Twenty young people are employed at the academy this summer cleaning the dormitories, working at the farm, nursery, kitchen and on the grounds.

Albany Activities

◆Pathfinders and baptisms were of importance last month in Albany. Shortly after the Pathfinder Fair, a banquet was given in honor of the Albany Pathfinders, their leaders, instructors and counselors by the parents of the members. Colors of the club—red, gold, and blue—were carried out

ALASKA

The three young men pictured with their wives were ordained to the gospel ministry at Anchorage, Alaska, at the recent spring meeting held at the Alaska Methodist University Chapel.

Officiating were Elder C. A. Scriven, president of the North Pacific Union Conference, and Elder George Vandeman, Field Secretary from the General Conference.

Gary D. Strunk labored for three years in the Oregon Conference before coming north. He is now working in the city of Anchorage and also serves Palmer.

Francis L. Owens taught church school for a number of years before entering the ministry and is the pastor of the Sitka church.

Clyde D. Mundy also served in Oregon and is now laboring in the heart of Alaska at Fairbanks.

in the decorations as well as the food served.

To try to show their leaders, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Marshall, appreciation for the many trips they made with their car and other duties of club activities, the group presented them with a gift. The gift was a plastic jug cleverly decorated with the inscribed "Ye Old Gas Jug" and contained $10 in pennies.

Others honored were also devoted youth leaders. Teaching knitting class was Mrs. Herbert Hunter. Phil Haney instructed the woodworking class. Counselors were Mrs. Allen Kesinger and John Westling.

◆ The Albany church witnessed ten precious souls buried with their Lord in baptism, following early spring evangelistic meetings conducted by Elder E. G. Fresk and Floyd Matula.

One sister has already demonstrated her love for the Saviour by teaching the crafts at the just-closed Vacation Bible School. An excellent program was given by the school the evening of the last school day.

◆ Approximately 40 children attended VBS. A good percentage were non-Adventists.

The eight-day school was under the leadership of Mrs. Phil Haney, with Mrs. Allen Kesinger as her assistant. Junior leader was Mrs. Dee Philpott. Primary leader was Mrs. Marshall Butler. Kindergarten leader was Mrs. Allen Kesinger. Craft leader was Mrs. William Tapper. One non-Adventist mother was heard to remark program night, "I've never seen such lovely crafts." Each one participating is to be commended on the success of their efforts.

MRS. ED SETTLEMIER

Weddings

Larry Eugene Yount and Lynda Carol Buck were united in marriage on Sunday, April 26, at the Seventh-day Adventist church in Newport, Washington. They are presently making their home in College Place, Washington, where Mr. Yount plans to continue his education. Elder Ralph Wendt officiated at the ceremony.

Wedding vows were exchanged by Alfreda Karen Perry of La Sierra, California, and Robert Ellsworth Sutton of Cashmere, Washington, in a beautiful candlelight service on June 7. Elder Herman Bauman officiated at the wedding which took place in the Wenatchee Seventh-day Adventist church. The Suttons are living at College Place, where Bob is continuing his education at Walla Walla College. This fall he will serve as principal of the church school at Twin Falls, Idaho. Heavenly wishes and our prayers of blessing are extended to this newly established home.

Jonathan Lee Hall and Barbara Jean Strobel, both of College Place were united in marriage in the Village church in College Place on May 31. Elder R. E. Parks officiated. We wish the Lord's richest blessing on this newly established home.

Sunday afternoon, June 14, Cheryl Sue Crain and Joseph Marion Jensen were united in holy wedlock in the Auburn, Washington, church. They will be living in Walla Walla, Washington, as Joe continues his education at Walla Walla College. The brother of the groom, Elder William H. Jensen of Ketchikan, Alaska, officiated.

Every function and provision of the campground exhibited thorough organization and planning. The addition this year of an evening program for the primary-age children and early-teen Sabbath services proved a real blessing in ministry for youth.

Spiritual, mental, and physical food was provided commensurate with the hunger of the earnest seekers who came for the abundant showers of God's spirit.

W.W.C.M., the call letters of the wake-up broadcast, expressed the response of our people for this has been a "Wonderful Washington Camp Meeting."

Walla Walla College

Summer Senior Class

The senior class of 54 members recently organized on the Walla Walla College campus, half the officers being experienced teachers.

Heading the slate of offices is Norman Edwards, elementary education major who will continue teaching this fall, president. Shirley Silcox, a religion major, to work for the Voice of Prophecy this fall, vice president.

Other officers include Joyce (Mrs. Chester) Blake, home economics major who with her husband is at Columbia Academy, secretary; Robert Sutton, history major, who will be principal and upper grade teacher at the Twin Falls Junior Academy, treasurer; Donald French, English major, who will teach in his field of specialization at Canadian Union College, sergeant-at-arms; Melvin Shaw, elementary teaching major, chaplain; Dr. Eugene Winter, adviser.

In addition to the 54 candidates for bachelor's degrees, there are 10 candidates for the master's degree in education.

Commencement events for the summer session have been announced by Dr. William H. Shephard, president, for August 21-23.

Commencement speaker at 10 a.m. Sunday, August 23, will be Dr. Daniel Walther, professor of church history, Andrews University. Elder R. C. Remboldt president of the Upper Columbia Conference, will give the baccalaureate address. The consecration speaker is yet to be announced.

Study To Be a Nurse at Walla Walla College School of Nursing

"It is important that all who are interested in the satisfactions to be obtained from meeting the needs for nursing service should recognize the four levels of nursing education available and determine which level is most appropriate for their interests and satisfactions," writes Miss Wilma L. Leazer, dean of the School of Nursing.

Young men and women interested in the healing arts, and parents of such youth, are urged to read Miss Leazer's complete message which follows:

A critical situation of major concern to everyone exists with respect to nursing education. The United States is experiencing a severe shortage of nurses for, although the number of nurses has increased, the demands for nursing service have increased even faster.

The increased coverage of the population by voluntary insurance plan and public medical care programs and the increased complexity of nursing care brought about by the rapid advances in medical science have increased the hospitalization rate and therefore the demands on nurses. Doctors' offices and clinics, public and voluntary health agencies, nursing homes, and convalescent hospitals place a staggering demand for qualified individuals for nursing service.

The increased demand for nursing care and the added responsibilities placed on the professional nurse have increased the use of practical nurses and nurses' aides as members of the nursing team. The licensed practical nurse who completes the usual training period of one year is filling an increasingly important role in performing simple nursing functions. Nurses' aides who have limited on-the-job training are providing a valuable supplement to the services of professional and practical nurses.

As health institutions become more and more complex, nurses with a variety of levels of preparation will be needed. Professional nurses must assume leadership roles in nursing-teaching-managerial functions. This means that the professional nurse must have a better scientific preparation than ever before. Basic nursing education must provide not only technical skills, but also a depth of understanding so that nurses can deal with situations which are ever changing and becoming more complex.

The nursing profession has identified the following four levels of nursing competence: vocational nurse, graduate from practical or vocational nurse program; technical nurse, graduate from two-year Associate in Arts or three-year Diploma program; professional nurse, graduate from a four-year baccalaureate program; nurse with graduate specialization, professional nurse graduated from a Master's Degree program with a major in a clinical content area.

The report of a study by the Surgeon General's Consultant Group on Nursing (published February 1963) states, "Baccalaureate education is the best basic preparation for those staff nurses who have potential for leadership. But preparation for supervision, administration, teaching and clinical specialization requires post-baccalaureate education, in nursing as in other professional disciplines . . . Changes in the structure of nursing education will require greater flexibility and a break with entrenched patterns." This group identifies the greatest need in nursing to be in the field of teaching and other leadership positions. This need can be met only as emphasis is placed on baccalaureate education in nursing.

Information concerning the Walla Walla College baccalaureate program in nursing may be obtained by writing Miss Wilma L. Leazer, Walla Walla College School of Nursing, 6014 SE Yamhill, Portland, Oregon 97215.

WASHINGTON

W.W.C.M.

"In forty years of attending camp meeting, this has been the best experience of all," so testified a pioneer Seventh-day Adventist at an early morning devotional on the campus of Auburn Academy. For thirty-five years the camp meeting for Western Washington has been held in temporary and permanent facilities at the school. In recent years these accommodations have shown steady improvement.

As thrilled and proud as we are with Auburn, we are more grateful for the potential for spiritual growth that each camp meeting provides.

A particular highlight of this meeting has been the Bible Congress. This phase of the conference gave opportunity for both adult and youth campers to participate in worship, fellowship, and discussion.

The theme of the Congress was the Holy Spirit, power for witnessing. Speakers of the convocation who presented themes related to the outpouring and work of the Third Person of the Godhead included E. L. Minchin, Associate Secretary of the General Conference, and John W. Osborn, president of the Southeastern California Conference. Other special guests who ministered to the spiritual health of the camp congregation were Doctor Harold Shryock and Elder Paul Heubach of Loma Linda who led in a discussion of the balanced, happy Christian home. Elder R. A. Wilcox and Elder O. O. Mattison shared first-hand reports of the world vision of the Church and God's guiding hand over the work of His people.

Washington camp meetings have convened and blessed the people of the Puget Sound for more than sixty years; and truly as we look back on another gathering, we agree that this year has been no exception.

The appeals of the evening services were responded to by scores of young people who personally testified that camp meeting this year was a turning point in their lives. United prayers ascending daily as we return to our
