

GOD'S INFANTRY MEN

C. A. SCRIVEN, President

North Pacific Union Conference

In this nuclear age, with its atomic and hydrogen bombs, guided missiles, and every conceivable instrument invented by man for the destruction of the human family, the infantry man still plays a part in modern warfare. In Africa, in Vietnam, and wherever nations or people face one another in conflict the foot soldier still plays his part. And so it is in the warfare against evil.

With the far-reaching influence of our television and radio programs, our medical work, our public evangelistic efforts, and the many other avenues of soul-winning service brought into play in this conflict against evil, there is still that effective instrument chosen of God, the gospel infantry man, to make a major contribution in the finishing of the work.

You are familiar with the fact that largely through our publishing work is to be accomplished the mission of that other angel of Revelation 18 "that lightens the earth with his glory." In the distribution of the printed page the infantry man, the evangelistic colporteur, is a vital link throughout the world. These consecrated men and women who go from door to door, carrying our truth-filled literature, are truly soldiers of the Cross. They are

Come Help Us

This is what just one Literature Evangelist can accomplish in just one year:

He CAN visit 2500 non-Adventist homes.

He CAN pray in 200 of these homes.

He CAN sell our literature in 500 of these.

He CAN leave free literature in every one.

He CAN enroll 1,250 persons in a Bible course.

He CAN furnish the conference with names for follow-up work.

In the light of what one colporteur can accomplish in one year, is it any wonder the servant of the Lord said, "We have no time to lose, we must encourage this work." C.M. p. 14.

God has spoken plainly and clearly, "The Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come." Rev. 22:17. You have seen, you have heard. Now won't you come and help us say "COME" to the judgment-bound souls here in the Northwest.

If you feel you are not doing enough for the Lord and would like to investigate the possibilities of Literature Evangelism, please fill out this inquiry and mail to Publishing Department, 1544 S. E. Hawthorne, Portland, Oregon 97214.

MY FATHER'S BUSINESS

L. W. CROOKER, Secretary-Treasurer

North Pacific Union Conference

In this modern age there are many different lines of business in which people are engaged. Some people like construction work, while others may prefer manufacturing or distribution of goods. There are many skills along the professional line which attract interested people. There are those who devote their time to the drilling of wells to provide a supply of good fresh water, a commodity which is very important, to care for man's needs.

However, more important than other types of business is the work of bringing the waters of salvation to man lost in sin. The work of the colporteur ministry cannot be separated from the winning of souls to Christ. What a thrill it is to see a sin-hardened soul buried with his Lord in baptism, and arise to walk in the Christian way!

A glance at the soul-winning report of our colporteurs for the first seven months of 1964 shows that twelve precious souls found their Saviour and were baptized as the result of the literature work. This loyal band of workers offered 9,764 prayers in the homes of the people, the influence of which only eternity will reveal. During this period, our colporteurs placed in the homes of our North Pacific Union territory 52,874 pieces of truth-

Alcohol and Teen-agers

Washington, D.C.—Virtually all top researchers in the field of alcohol problems are agreed upon one point—society has no room for drinking teen-agers.

So stated Herbert H. Hill, executive director of the Alcohol Problems Association, Seattle, Wash., before students at the Washington Institute of Scientific Studies for the Prevention of Alcoholism. "I have yet to find any difference of opinion on this one issue," Hill stated in a lecture of the ninth annual session at American University.

Speaking on the subject of alcohol education, Hill said researchers arrive at this conclusion, not to spoil all the fun, but because the adolescent period of life is the time when the person is confronted with the greatest problems of adjustment he will ever have to face.

Hill noted that a person without anything in his hand at a social occasion feels awkward. "So put a glass in the hands of those people. Whether it is milk, water, fruit juice, or soda pop, it will produce the same response that a high ball or cocktail will produce. It is an icebreaker," he stated.

"The first effect of alcohol is in the number one area of the brain. It dulls the judgment, impairs the conscience, destroys the effects of learning, and releases self-controls, restraints, and inhibitions," said Hill.

Hill said the second effect of alcohol is in the number two area of the brain, and has to do with motor sensory functions. To emphasize his point that after a few drinks a fellow has poor judgment, Hill said, "All you have to do is go to a cocktail party and see a fellow putting his arm around the wrong girl. Why does he do it? He has poor judgment. If you see some of the girls they put their arms around, you know they have poor judgment," he noted.

The third effect of alcohol affects the number three area of the brain, stated Hill. "If a person takes enough alcohol into his system to produce total anesthesia, circulation, digestion and respiration cease to function. Obviously so does he.

"Then at that point you can ask, 'Was this fellow stimulated?' No, he is dead," he stated.

Hill said he thought alcohol education should begin in elementary schools at least by the fourth grade. Noting that drinking already is a serious problem in colleges and high schools, he said "the best education is done in the elementary levels."

The Institutes of Scientific Studies are sponsored by the National Committee for the Prevention of Alcoholism, Washington, D.C. Two are presently held annually in the United States, one on the East Coast at Washington, D.C., and one on the West Coast near Los Angeles, California.

New Books You'll Enjoy

AUTHOR: Wilber Alexander, Ph.D.
TITLE: The Strange Estrangement
Paperback, 96 pages.

Is the Bible obsolete? Can its principles, established in an era of comparative simplicity, be practically applied to contemporary religious experience?

The prophet Isaiah came to the nation of Israel at a time when sin had created a bitter estrangement between them and heaven. Upon him alone was laid the responsibility of bringing his people back to God.

However, before Isaiah could effectively reveal God to his fellow men, he must necessarily endure a heart searching period of self-discovery. It was at this time of lowliness, when he entered the temple in an attitude of worship, that God revealed himself personally to the prophet.

The estrangement of Israel was strange indeed. They had, from the very beginning of time, more tangible and demonstrable evidences of the concern and protection of God than have been given to any nation of the world, before or since.

What a pointed parallel exists between us and the people of Israel! As the author puts it: "Strange it is that we possess so much revelation and information about God and yet do not know or understand God better than we do, particularly to know how He looks upon the sin that comes between us and Him."

However complicated our estrangement, God is waiting with an answer. In this little volume, Dr. Alexander, a Seventh-day Adventist student, teacher and minister, has achieved an astute interpretation of the message of Isaiah for Twentieth Century saints.

Summer Seniors Receive Degrees

A challenge of "promises to keep"—promises inherent in Christian education—was presented by Dr. Daniel Walther, professor of church history at Andrews University and commencement speaker at WWC, August 23.

Dr. William H. Shephard, president, conferred degrees to climax the summer session college program for degree candidates.

Of the twelve receiving the Master of Arts degree, seven are already preparing for the opening of the next school year at their respective teaching positions in denominational schools and one is to continue an administrative nursing career.

The summer-session senior class represented majors from nine areas. Many are entering denominational service. For instance, of the 16 receiving the B.S. degree with a major in teaching, 12 will be teaching Seventh-day Adventist schools. Eight are completing work for the B.S. degree with a major in nursing and most will continue nursing in sanitariums and hospitals. Other majors represented were industrial education, business administration, home economics, religion, zoology, English and history.

Candidates for the Bachelor of Arts degree were: Brenda Biegler, Joyce Blake, Jeanette Clark, Gary Evans, Don French, Donna Gluck, Gust Haugen, Jr., Bernie Lang, Deana Lewellen, Marilee McCoy, Wallace Mandigo, Darryl Prettyman, Shirley Silcox, Bob Sutton, Sharon Tison, Dale Von Bergen.

Receiving Bachelor of Science degrees were: Sherril Andrews, Gary Bartsch, Geraldine Boundey, Dale Crane, Marlene Dalke, Lois Duncan, Norman Edwards, Richard Ensey, Jr., Ellen Ewert, Donna Fikes, Theodore

Dan Myers received the Bachelor of Music degree in absentia.

Twelve Master of Arts degrees were conferred by President Shephard: Mary Acton, Geraldine Angerman, James Chubb, Luther Corn, Mary Esary, Florence Hafner, Edith Haley, Clarence Kendrick, Carrol Lyman, Gilbert Mohr, Mart Mooers, Bill Pearson.

indeed soldiers in the Lord's army. Many of them today are worthy of the highest decoration. When the war is over and the last battle has been fought, and the medals are passed out by our great Commander, there will stand before Him a great army of Christian colporteurs who will receive their eternal reward. With them will stand scores and hundreds of precious souls who have been won through their ministry.

We would invite many of you here in the North Pacific Union to consider enlistment in this segment of God's army and thus help to finish the work in our section of the vineyard.

Is God calling you to have a part in this important and rewarding work? If the answer is yes, you should get in touch with your local conference publishing secretary without delay. ## Weddings

On the evening of August 9, the Lents Seventh-day Adventist church of Portland was the scene of the lovely wedding of Miss Dorothy Von Bergen and Gary Wiss. The ceremony was read by Chaplain L. E. Russell. May the Lord's blessing rest in abundance on this new home.

In a simple but impressive ceremony in the Myrtle Creek Seventh-day Adventist church, Olive Mae Kitchen and Fred V. Cook, both of Medford, Oregon, were united in marriage May 17. May the Lord abundantly bless as these two lives are united in dedication and service.

In a charming wedding solemnized in the home of Brother and Sister Alfred Sayler in Seattle, Caroline Merkel and Earl E. Raver were united in holy wedlock; affirming their vows before Elder L. E. Lyman, in the presence of several relatives.

Charlene Holston and Gary Bartsch were united in marriage in Portland, Oregon, on August 30. The groom's uncle, Elder Clifford R. Harrison of Arlington, California, performed the ceremony. Gary is now working at Laurelcraft Industries, a division of Laurelwood Academy. Charlene will continue her education at Portland State while they make their home in Gaston.

Wedding vows were exchanged by Mary Wall of Kremlin, Montana, and Loren Starr of Blachly, Oregon, at a candlelight service on June 18. Elder Eldon E. Stratton officiated at the ceremony which took place in the Christian church at Havre, Montana. Loren graduated this summer from Walla Walla School of Nursing and will continue working at this profession while Mary completes her final year in the same vocation.

Ronald Ernest Rehling and Phyllis Marie Ross were united in marriage as they spoke their vows in a beautiful candlelight ceremony on the evening of August 2 at Buffalo, Wyoming. Mrs. Rehling will continue her nurse's training and Mr. Rehling will resume his studies at Portland State College. May the rich blessings of heaven be visited upon this Christian home. Elder John D. Trude officiated at the ceremony.

Sharon Stevens of Chehalis, Washington, became the bride of Paul Dinkmeier also of Chehalis, June 18, at a candlelight service in the Chehalis Seventh-day Adventist church. Elder Ralph D. McGann, pastor of the church, conducted the wedding ceremony. The young couple have set up their home near Olympia, Washington, where they are both employed. This is a new home dedicated to the Christian ideals of the scripture.

Elder Patterson Is Selected For State-wide Duty

Some months ago Elder Glenn Patterson, at that time pastor of the Auburn church and district, was invited by the Upper Columbia and Washington Conferences to devote his full time to Religious Liberty work in the State of Washington. This was done in view of the very real emergency that exists in connection with a new and determined drive to enact Sunday Closing Laws in our State Legislature. Brother Patterson has been visiting these State Senators and Representatives and others of influence in their homes, their places of business, or wherever he could find them, and has made some very valuable contacts. We are sure that our people will want to remember him in their prayers as he accepts the challenge of championing the cause of religious freedom in our wonderful State.

Religious Liberty in the State of Washington

Meeting new people is always interesting but especially so when they are the people who make, interpret or execute the laws. I have found that they are usually anxious to know, not only both sides of a question, but also how their constituents feel about it. One legislator told me that he votes according to the reaction of his voters. I think that is generally so unless the legislator feels there is a principle at stake. That is why it is so important to keep in touch with your senators and representatives, and when you write, it is best to keep it short and to the point, preferably in your own handwriting.

Last week one senator told me that he has at times wished he could change his vote when he found out too late what was really involved. It has been refreshing in some instances to find out the high esteem in which some men hold Adventists, largely because they have Adventist neighbors or have had a business contact with one of our members. Some are very familiar with the work of Seventh-day Adventists not only here but abroad and are very favorably impressed.

I hope that you will make sure that the attorneys in your area have the Liberty Magazine for I find that many attorneys keep them on file for future legal reference. This week I found one senator who has a 20-year file of the Liberty Magazine.

A public school teacher, who is a senator's wife, told me that of all the publications they receive they feel that Liberty is the best. She reads it thoroughly and marks and clips special articles for her husband's use, as well as for her own use in teaching and making speeches.

One supreme court judge told a friend that he appreciates the stand Seventh-day Adventists take, and that to his mind, the Adventists are the only ones who know what is going on, and what the real issues are.

A news editor who is also a state legislator, told me that the thing that worries him is that the people do not know enough about the issues that arise to make intelligent decisions or comments. He said that articles in Liberty Magazine had changed his point of view several times. He also appreciates that facts are well documented. He has kept a large file on the different topics or issues discussed. He seems well informed and is willing to take a stand for what he believes to be right even if it hurts him politically. Here is a large reason why we need to contact and encourage these men of influence. They appreciate knowing you and why you have certain ideas. A word of appreciation or commendation to your local legislators, when they have done something worthy, would help a great deal when you have to come at some future time for their help.

Your local city attorney is the one who is usually asked to write your local laws, and he is, therefore, one of your most important men to receive Liberty and to keep in touch with the principles of civil and religious liberties.

Washington Evangelism

We are very happy to welcome to our evangelistic team Mrs. Edythe Cain and Trevor Delafield. We are sure that they will prove to be a valuable asset to the program of evangelism in the Washington Conference.

Mrs. Edythe Cain

We appreciate, also, the eager support of Pastor and Mrs. Knauff of the Olympia district. We are looking forward to working with them in this soul-winning endeavor.

In a special commencement program at the Olympia church on August 7, over 80 students who attended the Vacation Bible School were awarded graduation certificates by Elder G. E. Patterson. Each of the three age groups, who completed the Bible school work, presented parts of the program in connection with the graduation ceremony. Songs, recitations and Bible memory work were given. The parents viewed a display of some of the crafts and nature collections on which the children had been working.

Vacation Bible School

Thirty-three workers participated in the annual Vacation Bible School of the Kirkland-Bellevue district, held June 14 to 24 at Kirkland Junior Academy. A total enrollment of 142 children included 51 non-Adventists, with an average attendance of 110 daily.

A daily feature was the "Early Bird" display of a pet of one of the children. Birds and flowers were studied during the nature time, and a story and chorus time was enjoyed under Elder Danny Matthews' leadership.

The academy workshop was converted into the craft room where the juniors made bird feeders out of milk cartons, and made lovely felt scrap pictures. Craft leader, Hazel Cooley, also taught breadmaking. Loaves were baked and frozen to be displayed at the closing program on June 24.

Staff leaders included Ruth Dorsey, director; Esther Young, juniors; Jean Dorr, primary; Norma Dutterow, kindergarten; and Hazel Cooley, crafts.

A Green Campus for A New School

Any new school campus goes through a period of "moving in" which makes the lawns less than attractive for a few months. A completely new set of buildings at Gem State Academy was graced last year by the beginnings of an expansive lawn planting by Elder Melvin Brass and student workers. This summer literally acres of lawn have been seeded and carefully tended by the campus crew of Gem State Academy.

A large play area including two ball diamonds have been seeded to special "athletic field" grasses which can withstand considerable wear and tear. Grounds space near the buildings have been seeded to blue grass and Dutch clover. The newly poured tennis courts are in this section of the campus.

Mr. John Hamilton, the dean of boys, is already making plans for the planting of shrubs and trees as funds might be available this fall and next spring.

Patrons and friends of the school will note the added beauty of the campus as they visit the school in the coming months.

Academy to Sponsor An Orchestra

Seldom does an academy tackle the major music task of developing an orchestra because string instruments, the basic part of such a group, are usually left for private instruction at more mature years. At other times there is a dearth of trained leadership at the secondary level.

Gem State Academy is fortunate in having a music department member who is not only interested in orchestral development, but who has a rich background in participation and direction, including the responsibility of associate director of the Thalia Symphonic Orchestra, Seattle, and assistant director of the Port Angeles Orchestra. Mr. McCoy plans to have an orchestra functioning shortly after the opening of the school year and all young people who are interested in stringed instruments and/or orchestra experience should plan to see Mr. McCoy at registration time, September 7. It will be helpful to know that Thelma McCoy is also an instructor in strings. Her instrument is the cello and she will give private lessons under the sponsorship of the Gem State Academy Music Department.

When asked about this new organization recently, Mr. McCoy made the following statement: "String instruction for advanced players as well as beginners will be offered. If students are interested in playing or learning to play the violin, viola, cello or string bass, Gem State Academy now offers this opportunity."

Come and join the orchestra!

Camp Lost and Found

There are always numerous items of clothing left at our summer camps. This year was no exception. Some of you have already written for your missing items. If they were found and turned in to us, we will send them to you upon request. All we ask is that you send us the postage.

Items not claimed this year will be laundered and sent to the Holbrook Indian Mission School.

Items left at camp include: jackets, trousers, shirts, under garments, swim wear, towels, shoes and socks, toilet articles, etc.

Write to the MV Department, West 1025 Indiana Avenue, Spokane, Washington 99205.

Building Progress at U.C.A.

The two primary building projects of the summer are moving along nicely. The Industrial Arts Building, a major undertaking in itself, being under the direction of the two industrial arts instructors—Mr. Freitas and Mr. Greenley—will be in operation with the opening of the school year. There will, no doubt, be a number of things that will still have to be completed after the school year starts, but the building will be sufficiently finished to be ready for use. The accompanying photographs show both interior and exterior progress.

The second building project is that of a faculty home constructed by five students in the Building and Design Class. This is the third in a row of houses built by students, under a teacher supervisor, over the past three years. Provision is made whereby the student earns academic credit as well as financial credit toward the entrance fee of the new school year. The value of

Brewster School Is Enlarging

The Brewster Seventh-day Adventist school is getting a new look for its 9th and 10th grades. Finishing touches are being put on the new classroom which is located at the rear of the auditorium, just behind the rooms for grades 1-8, and the place is taking on an attractive "schoolish" appearance.

Mr. Paul Tooley, principal of the Brewster school, has a lively program in mind for the young people, and speaks particularly of developing strong vocational and physical education programs along with the regular curriculum in Christian education. He entertains hopes of organizing musical groups, also, and is looking forward to a possible eight registrants in the freshman and sophomore classes. A registration of between 30 and 40 is anticipated for the 10 grades.

Mrs. Tooley will be teaching grades 1-4, and at the helm for grades 5-8 will be Earl Brockman whose bride, Ginger Johnson, will be teaching music with special interest in piano and vibraharp.

Since the 9th and 10th grades were added to the elementary school here in 1958, the group have met in a comfortable and homey daylight basement room at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Harold Stout. Miss Marie Hansen, veteran educator who has been on the faculty of several colleges and academies, guided the students in preparation for continuing at boarding academies. Much appreciation has been expressed for her devotion to her students and her work, and after 29 years of teaching, she is taking a leave of absence from the active program.

"We are pleased with our teacher enthusiasm," reports Dr. Fred Schnibbe, chairman of the school board, "and are looking forward to an excellent school year." He suggests that there may be other families looking for a good school area in which to settle, and invites such to look into the possibilities at Brewster for Christian education.

WWV Academy Registration to Start

Elder Stephen W. Young, principal and business manager of Walla Walla Valley Academy, invites area youth who want a Christian education to register for school at the new Hussey Street plant September 2 (freshmen and sophomores) and September 3 (juniors and seniors).

All faculty members have been announced and are on the job, says Principal Young. In fact, the Academy is a center of activity as construction, inside finishing, assembling of equipment, and perfecting of details are under way.

The administrative center located centrally, facing Hussey Street will be the place to begin registration. Hours both days will be 8:30 a.m. until noon, and 1:30 p.m. until 5:00. All faculty members will be on the campus to assist in counseling, arrangement of programs and actual registration.

Administrative officials include Principal Young; Mrs. David Wilber, registrar and secretary to the principal; W. A. Coffeen, guidance director; and Elder E. I. Edstrom, spiritual activities' committee chairman.

Lyle Clarambeau has been announced as accountant and will also teach business machines.

Other new faculty members include Miss Brenda Biegler, librarian; David Kellogg, science and mathematics; Floyd Murdoch, history, social studies; Mrs. Floyd Murdoch, English, languages; G. T. Whitehead, vocational arts; Mrs. G. T. Whitehead, secretarial science, home economics; and Richard Harter, band.

Teachers who remain on the staff from Walla Walla College Academy include Elder Edstrom, religion; Mrs. J. J. Hooper, English, German; M. L. Robertson, vocal music; P. C. Tym, mathematics, history; Donald K. Van Tassel, physical education, biology.

when Mrs. White wrote. In other words, the public schools are doing so much better, etc. Then he mentioned why he believed in church school. The testimony of this young man, a product of our church schools, is very significant. He stated that without a Christian education he would be out in the world today. Instead he is now preparing for a place in the Lord's work.

Surely as parents we must heed the counsel—send your children to church school, academy, or Walla Walla College.

Office Calls

Whenever I have the opportunity to be in my office I get many telephone calls and visits from salesmen, pastors, teachers, parents, and other friends. But none in recent times thrilled me as the young man who called today.

H. R. Nelson

He is a student at Walla Walla College. He wanted to speak to me about the talk he was to give in his church the following Sabbath. He planned to talk on Christian Education. His burden seemed to be that parents too often did not consider church school too important. They said conditions were different in the public schools now than

Another Branch Sabbath School Started

A branch Sabbath School has recently been started at Oakridge, Oregon, which is about 50 miles southeast of Eugene, Springfield and Deerhorn, and a little over 40 miles directly east of Cottage Grove. This new Branch Sabbath School, being conducted for the benefit of those not of our faith, has come into being through the combined efforts of Sabbath School and Missionary Volunteer Society members in the Deerhorn and Cottage Grove churches.

The Lord is blessing the faithful effort of Mr. and Mrs. David Lloyd and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Parmenter of the Deerhorn MV Society, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Van Blaricom of Cottage Grove as they drive over a hundred miles each Sabbath to conduct this Branch Sabbath School. We are happy to report that the attendance now is around thirty each Sabbath.

Workers Together With God

What a privilege to be in the publishing phase of our work, and especially to be a literature evangelist. I am happy to be connected with our literature evangelists in supplying them with their literature needs, and for both of us to be effective in the work God has chosen us to do, we must be

"workers together with God."

The results of our work can to some degree be seen here and now as we witness the souls that accept Jesus Christ as their saviour and join the ranks to help finish the work. What a power is in our literature, and how diligently we should work to scatter it "like the leaves of autumn" while it is yet day. What we need is more hands, feet, and willing hearts to scatter it. Will you respond? Jesus did.

Idaho's Progressive Literature Ministry

Time marches on. And with this marching comes reminiscing. And with this reminiscing comes amazement and astonishment. For God has done remarkable things in Idaho this past decade and a half. Especially is this so in the field of literature distribution by our faithful and dedicated literature evangelists.

In these past fifteen years our colporters have distributed over $800,000 worth of books and magazines. In 1949 total sales amounted to $5,225.93. Our highest single year since then was in 1958 when $120,268.17 was sold. Within our field we have a population of some 600,000 people. Every year we find more and more homes adding to their libraries Seventh-day Adventist truth-filled books. Every year we find souls garnered into the fold by the way of these door-to-door consecrated book men and women.

As we see the day approaching, there is demand for more diligence, for more workers, for a more determined effort to reach more souls by the way of the printed page and the literature ministry. We want to thank the Lord for past accomplishments, but at the same time we ask for wisdom to meet the challenge of sowing more abundantly so that a greater harvest may be reaped for the Master's Kingdom.

Not For Everyone

"If there is one work more important than another, it is that of getting publications before the public, thus leading them to search the Scriptures."—Testimonies, Vol. 4, p. 390.

Would you like to have a part in this great soul-saving work? You can—more workers are needed. Wealth is not guaranteed. Fame is not assured. You will have tired muscles and aching feet. You will meet biting dogs, discourteous people and competition from the TV. So what good do you get out of it? The greatest satisfaction in the world—that of seeing souls saved for the Kingdom of God through your efforts. And you have this assurance, "We have nothing to fear for the future, except as we shall forget the way the Lord has led us, and His teaching in our past history."

What are the qualifications for service in the literature ministry? A smooth tongue and a quick wit might help, but they are not necessary. A strong physique and a handsome face might be useful, but they are not essential. Perseverence, a strong will, self-discipline, and a consecrated heart are indispensable.

We have this instruction from the Spirit of Prophecy, "In all parts of the field canvassers should be selected, not from the floating element in society, not from among men and women who are good for nothing else and have made a success of nothing, but from among those who have good address, tact, keen foresight, and ability."

Is the Holy Spirit impressing you to join in "spreading the printed page like the leaves of autumn"? Resist no longer: time is running out. Let us finish the work while it is yet day.

Satisfaction

When a literature evangelist comes into the office with a gleam that cannot be hidden, it generally is not that he wrote up a sizable contract, but is the result of finding someone who has expressed a definite interest in the message. Here is a reward that perhaps is not experienced in many fields of endeavor. With time so short, let each pray that these sincere souls may be found by our faithful literature evangelists.

The Greatest Satisfaction

There is no work that gives greater satisfaction than to be a literature evangelist.

We are living in times when we must work never before, for there are thousands of homes that should be contacted that will not have the privilege of hearing the spoken word.

From the Pacific Press family I would like to extend greetings to all of our publishing department leaders and literature evangelists in the North Pacific Union. Not a day passes but our workers in the office and factory pray for your success in the literature ministry. It is a privilege to have a part in the preparation and distribution of the printed page. We are always cheered and inspired to learn of someone in whose home you have had the opportunity to pray and where literature has opened the way for acceptance of the truth. We pledge you our cooperation in your soul-saving efforts.

Elder J. L. McElhany, former president of the General Conference, once said: "I had a choice between a college education and a canvassing experience, and I could choose but one, I would choose canvassing."

Important Missionary Work

I often wonder what my life would be like if my three teen-age girls were smoking, drinking and dancing like so many worldly girls. What a multitude of troubles I have been spared because a literature evangelist sold us some books fourteen years ago.

Like Streams of Light

All around the world the pages of our truth-filled books, periodicals and tracts are finding the way into the homes of those who are honest in heart. From all parts of the globe come the stories of conversions through our literature. The work was started in Australia because of a tract that was left stuck onto one of the pickets of an iron fence along one of the streets. The work has grown to where Australia is now an important part of the world-wide work. But it was started with that one small tract!

Our publishing houses are working around the clock to provide the literature that is needed at this time. The literature, like streams of light, is beamed out to the far corners of the earth to tell all of the wonderful love of a living God. Our inventories are the highest in the history of the denomination. But, the literature in our store rooms will not and cannot win one soul until it is carried into the homes. What are you doing for Christ? Is He calling you to come and work for Him? If so, do not delay! You are needed now! Now is the accepted time!

Yes, the colporteur work is a very important work, and I am thankful that many years ago God inspired George King to begin selling our truth-filled books to non-Adventists.

Why not ask God if this is the missionary work you should be doing?

The Far-Reaching Influence Of the Press

"The press is a powerful means to move the minds and hearts of the people . . . The press is a powerful instrumentality which God has ordained to be combined with the energies of the living preacher to bring the truth before all nations, kindreds, tongues, and peoples. Many minds can be reached in no other way."—Christian Experience, pp. 225-227. (1922)

The literature evangelists in the Idaho Conference believe in this important work and faithfully visiting the homes of the people. However, there is need for many more. If God should lay a burden upon your heart to share your faith the literature evangelist way, will you not say with Isaiah of old, "Here am I, send me."

Sowing The Gospel Seed Through Literature

"Behold, I will send for many fishers, saith the Lord, and they shall fish them; and after will I send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them from every mountain, and from every hill, and out of the holes of the rocks." Jer. 16:16. The Lord says, I will send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them from every mountain, and from every hill, and out of the holes of the rocks. This line of work evidently partakes of the nature of a hunt. The hunter goes to the hills, the forests, and the mountains. His methods are based on the aggressive principle. He chooses the long trail, the weary marches, the danger of the wilderness, and exposure from heat and cold and storms; but with the assurance born of experience and skill, he presses his search and brings home his prize.

How perfect a picture is this of our faithful literature evangelists here in Montana. With a good supply of books and tracts as their weapons of warfare, they go from town to town, over the mountains, through the valleys, searching out the people in their homes, giving the gospel message through the printed page.

Truly the harvest is great in Montana and throughout the North Pacific Union, but the laborers are few.

FLOYD RAMSEY

Publishing Secretary
Montana Conference

Top Priority

"The Literature Evangelist work rightly conducted is equal to the gospel ministry." Therefore the qualifications are similar—consecration and love for God, freedom from self and selfishness, a love for people, not only willingness to work, but being anxious to work. Tact, poise, and good judgment must dwell in a happy, healthy, vibrant body that is able to stand nervous fatigue and mental weariness. God has promised to give a fitness to those who submit themselves to be used. Oregon needs you. Can you, will you qualify? Earthly possessions will soon be strangely meaningless. Saving souls should now have top priority.

V. J. RICE

Publishing Secretary
Oregon Conference

Thousands of Voices

"By thousands of voices, all over the earth, the warning will be given. Miracles will be wrought, the sick will be healed, and signs and wonders will follow the believers. Satan also works with lying wonders, even bringing down fire from heaven in the sight of men. Thus the inhabitants of the earth will be brought to take their stand."—Colporteur Ministry, pp. 151-152.

I am sure every child of God would like to have part in the Lord's great plan of salvation and to have their voices ring out the message of a soon-coming Saviour.

Sabbath, September 5, has been set aside by the General Conference as the Literature Evangelist Rally Day throughout the world. A day when the minister's voice will ring out loud and clear from the pulpit telling about the great need for literature evangelists.

There are many dear souls who are longing for more light from God's Holy Word. As you hear the appeal on Sabbath, September 5, for more literature evangelists in the field of Upper Columbia Conference, won't you say: "Here am I, Lord, send me."

Butte, Montana, Baptisms

On August 8, two more were added to the Butte church by baptism. Marilyn Fallang and Chere Pridemore followed the example of Jesus by being baptized in a stream. The Butte district met in their annual outdoor services this year at Whitehouse Campground in Deer Lodge National Forest. The morning service was climaxed by the baptisms of the two young people in the Boulder River. We heartily welcome these new members of our great family.

The Butte district will have the privilege of having our newly-acquired Conference evangelist, Elder John Boyd, to lead out in evangelism for the coming year. Present plans are for a series in Butte, beginning in September. We invite anyone having names of persons in Butte and vicinity who have been church members in the past, or who are prospective members, to send them to us and then pray for them and for us in our efforts to claim them for God.

Send names to:

Mount Ellis Academy

New additions to the faculty of Mount Ellis Academy include Elder Harold K. Dawson as Bible teacher and pastor, and Miss Evelyn Chickering as teacher of home economics.

The Dawsons come to us from Miles City, Montana, where he has been the pastor the past four years. Their sons, Kent and Dan, graduates of Mount Ellis Academy, will attend Walla Walla College this winter.

Miss Chickering taught school at Pasco, Washington, the previous term. She has been attending classes this summer at Washington State University, Pullman, Washington. Both Elder Dawson and Miss Chickering are graduates of Walla Walla College, he with a major in Biblical Languages and she with a major in Home Economics.

Elder Larry Lewis, who has taught Bible and acted as school counselor during the past four years, is leaving us for a year to continue his education at Andrews University. We will miss him and his family greatly. At the same time we will be happy to welcome the two very fine people who are coming to work with us.

Prospective Students: We still have room for a few more students, especially boys. Please contact us soon if you plan to come. Only a few more days remain until registration and the beginning of school. All new students will get a free tour of Yellowstone Park and the entire school group will have the opportunity to take part in the traditional Mount Ellis Climb. Other special recreation which you may enjoy here is swimming in the nearby hot springs, camping, and skiing on our own hill. You may even take skiing for credit with certified ski instructors.

In addition to the good times, you will receive quality instruction from qualified Christian teachers. You may take part in and enjoy the devotional and religious services. You may have work to reduce the cost of attendance. Remember, this is the third consecutive year that our regular charges have remained the same in spite of rising costs.

Registration: September 6 and 7.

Miles City Effort

Sabbath, August 8, was a high day for the members of the Miles City district. It was the final day of a series of evangelistic meetings held by Elders Harold K. Dawson and Larry M. Lewis, and members from throughout the district came in for the services of the day and evening.

An unusually pleasant summer day made the fellowship of a pot-luck dinner in the park near the church even more enjoyable.

Elder Lewis, who had carried the responsibility of the music for the meetings arranged a special musical program for the afternoon with Jeanie Bryant and Pat Groshelle coming from Billings to help the local young people.

After the evening service, members of the five congregations of the district presented gifts and messages of appreciation to Elder and Mrs. Dawson in recognition of their four years of service in the district. Elder Dawson is soon to join the staff of Mount Ellis Academy.

Elder Lewis was also presented a gift in recognition of his fine help and interest in the series of meetings. A baptism was announced for the following Sabbath.

Jordan Vacation Bible School

The Jordan Seventh-day Adventist church has never lacked for ambition or originality. I realized this again on Sabbath, August 1, as I witnessed the Vacation Bible School graduation exercises. Although I had come to minister, it was I who was ministered unto as the children, over two-thirds of whom were not Seventh-day Adventists, gave their parts. How strange, yet wonderful, that non-Adventist children should take a portion of a Seventh-day Adventist church service.

Each of the twenty-six children attending the school was enrolled in a Vacation Bible School club which will meet four times during the next year. Those meetings will include a "Gift-sending Party," "Christmas Program," "Waffle Supper," and "Nature Hike." In this way, Mrs. Mamie McKeever, the director, plans to make the vacation Bible School a continuous evangelistic program.

Almost every Jordan church member contributed to the school, but special thanks go to three new teachers, Jackie Hogenson, Virginia Bieber, and Janice Wiebold. Two of these young people were non-members who volunteered to help, and gave wonderful service.

A Thrilling Experience

The sun is setting on the most beautiful Sabbath day I have ever spent; in fact it is the most beautiful day of my life. Why? I'll be happy to tell you why. I am a student literature evangelist in Eastern Montana—this is my first summer in this work. (That in itself is a full story of God's leading, but suffice it to say that there was no doubt in my mind that God was telling me to canvass this summer—now I know why, and I think you will too, when I am through.)

The schedule of the Publishing Department Secretary's visits to the students told me that Floyd Ramsey would spend July 6 and 7 working with me. Monday morning, July 6, I was awaiting Mr. Ramsey's visit with eagerness, because his visits are always a lift and an inspiration to us students—and they give us the needed incentive to keep working perhaps a little harder.

When Mr. Ramsey knocked on the door of the home in which I am living, he suggested that we do something different. He had some requests for information that the full time worker had been unable to take. Lest these be neglected, we went to follow these up. Three hundred twenty-five miles later, after a full day and several good contacts, we ended up in Broadus—looking for our last prospect, a Paul Larson. Since the evening was not yet past, we decided to visit the Larsons and return to our usual work on Tuesday.

However, we found no one in town who knew where the Larsons lived, or had even heard of them, so we went to a motel to get a good night's rest. The next morning, after the period of devotions and communion with God, which is so vital to begin the day, we went to the post office, hoping that they would tell us how to find the family we sought. (I later learned that they usually will give this information only to government agencies.) The Postmaster very kindly gave us the directions to this home—forty miles from town. One of the clerks added that it would be a full day's excursion. In my travels no eighty miles had taken all day, and it seemed almost impossible that this was likely, but I kept my doubts to myself.

As we got into the car Mr. Ramsey said, "You know Hal, if Christ were here He'd go out there. We can."

"Yes," I replied, "and He would have walked. We have a car, we ought to go."

Some thirty miles from town we missed the road and got off for about half an hour. After correcting this mistake, we drove into the Larson's yard. I glanced at my watch—it said 11:20. We had left town at 9 o'clock.

Imagine our surprise when Mrs. Larson said she did not know a thing about the card or The Bible Story! She hastened to add, however, that she had been away for a couple of weeks—therefore, we had better wait until Paul came in at noon. She graciously asked us to join them for dinner and told us that most everyone else that comes by won't stay for fear it might rain and they could not get out. We agreed to stay.

When Paul came in he was obviously surprised to see us. He told us that he had expected a reply to his card by mail. As Mr. Ramsey began to give him the canvass, he said, "I know about your books."

We learned that he had had Adventist connections, but Mr. Ramsey, seemingly a little slow on Paul's interest, continued to point out the wonderful features of The Bible Story.

Paul pressed his interest with, "That's all right, I'll take them."

Dinner was now ready, and we sat to a most delicious meal. At the end of the meal, Mr. Ramsey repeated our conversation concerning the interest Christ would take in such an isolated family. Then followed prayer—which we endeavor to offer in each home. Mr. Ramsey's parting words were, "You know, Paul, this old world is going to come to an end pretty fast."

The only reply was a thoughtful, "I know it."

Then Mr. Ramsey and I left, our hearts glowing with warmth from this wonderful visit. If ever we could sing "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," we could certainly put meaning into it on our way back to town. Somehow those forty miles seemed much shorter this time.

I added this family to my prayer list of those who had bought, and all but forgot the incident.

On Friday, August 7, I found a letter in my box from Elder Dawson, pastor of the Miles City district, stating that Paul and Nancy Larson were to be baptized on August 15.

Today I listened to a most thrilling story of how God had directed Paul's life. One outstanding feature of this story was our visit which culminated in baptism six weeks later. This baptism I witnessed today, and though the ceremony was the same as every baptism, this was the most beautiful I have ever attended—because in a small way I had influenced the decision. The natural result was rejoicing that God had chosen us as His vessels. This forced me to step before God's throne in prayer and reconsecrate my life for full service to His cause.

Elder Dawson's words express my feeling: "An experience like this makes us appreciate our literature work." Much more forcibly is God's purpose in leading me into the canvassing work impressed upon my mind. I would not trade this summer—of which this Sabbath is most meaningful—for any summer in the past. The Lord willing, I will spend more summers in this important missionary endeavor. I wonder now, why I have been so long in joining God in this work.

NEW BRANCH SABBATH SCHOOL

Years ago we had a church organization in Oakridge. Our old church building, which has not been occupied for a long time, has been repainted by members from Cottage Grove and Deerhorn, assisted by some of the people in Oakridge, and is being used for this Branch Sabbath School. It is our hope and prayer that from this beginning, the Oakridge church may be reorganized and grow, and that many souls in that area may find this message and be prepared for the coming of Jesus.

Stayton District MV Meeting

Members of the Mill City and Stayton churches met at the Salem Water Park in Stayton on Sabbath afternoon, August 8, for a district Missionary Volunteer meeting. Following a pot-luck luncheon, Mrs. Elsie Ausmus, Stayton MV leader, organized the participants into two groups for a nature hike.

Two nature trails had been laid out the day before by David Strickland and Elder Robert Letcher. Ten locations had been established on each trail, and at each location was an envelope containing two questions—one on a Bible topic, and one a nature question, the same questions for both groups. When the group had answered the questions, the leader of the group then read the next clue and they proceeded to the area indicated and searched for the next envelope. Each trail led back to the meeting area.

When both groups had returned, the regular MV meeting began with a song service conducted by Mrs. Marjorie Moreno, with Marie Wall at the portable organ. A flute solo by Jeanne Port, "How Great Thou Art," was beautifully played to the added accompaniment of the Santiam River close by. A saw solo was presented by A. K. Elvedahl from Portland, who also closely held the attention of all as he brought some new and old facts about the great field of astronomy.

Many of the people present expressed their appreciation for the opportunity of spending the precious hours of the Sabbath in a beautiful setting where the loving care of the Creator seemed ever so near.

MRS. ROBERT LETCHER

Governor Visits Fair Booth

Washington's Governor Albert O. Rossellini was an unexpected visitor at the fair booth sponsored by the Kelso-Longview Seventh-day Adventist church on August 13. The attractive booth which featured religious liberty as its theme, and displayed copies of the Liberty magazine on its walls, caught the Governor's eye. After shaking hands with the two youth attendants—Miss Linda Smith, a student at Columbia Academy, and Jim Nesbit, a junior at Laurelwood Academy—the Governor stated that he had written articles for Liberty magazine, and that he received two copies personally, one at his office and the other at his home.

Another legislator, State Representative Arlie DeJarnatt, stopped by the booth Saturday night and expressed his appreciation to the church for sending him Liberty and said that he had used material from it.

That the blessing of God attended this form of evangelism was attested to by the hundreds of pieces of literature distributed, and the many personal contacts made. One lady who had attended church school years before said that she wanted to send her child to our school. Another said that her husband had not smoked since seeing the cancerous lung on display at our temperance booth last year. Another asked for the Bible correspondence course saying that her brother had taken the course while in prison, and another requested a subscription to the Signs which was also distributed.

Members of the missionary committee, John Williams, chairman, Mrs. Arthur Coleman, and Mrs. Grace Sanderson, led out in planning, preparing, and directing the booth which was designed by Miss Shirley Burton, Oregon Conference Public Relations director. Liberty magazines were supplied by the conference Religious Liberty Department, H. A. Peckham, secretary. Richard Enders, Jr., assisted in setting up the display.

Staffing the booth for the 4-day Columbia Empire fair were Mrs. Dan Hiebert, Mrs. C. R. Sverdrup, Mrs. Richard Enders, Sr., Mrs. Darrell Hall, Mrs. Frank Teufert, Mrs. Ella Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Bauer, Miss Nancy Wicklund, Mrs. Mike Balkan, Miss Linda Smith, Jim Nesbit, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowman, Donald Hogarty, Richard Dasher, and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Bartlett. Please pray that the seeds of truth sown may spring up in an abundant harvest.

NORTH PACIFIC UNION GLEANER

A High Calling

Many denominational employees began their service in the work of God as literature evangelists. Ministers, missionaries, doctors, teachers and a host of other workers have been helped toward success because they have had experience in the work of the literature ministry. Some with college training have joined a host of laymen in making the colporteur work a life work. There is no higher calling. It is missionary work of the first order. In earth's late hour, many could be doing a greater work for God than they are now doing. The literature ministry may be the answer. Why not respond?

A. J. GORDON
President, Montana Conference

Dedicated Personalities

Has God called you to the literature ministry? Have you responded to that call? If not, why not? There are many of our people who should be devoting their full time to the spread of this message through the printed page. No avenue of soul winning that is open to us has greater potential for success than truth-filled books and magazines. Yet, as effective as they are and as productive of results as the Lord has stated they will be, they are helpless to get out by themselves. They need legs and voices and dedicated personalities to get them from the shelves of our publishing houses and Book and Bible Houses into the homes of the people. Will you be their legs? Will you be their voices to introduce them and their message of truth to the people? Is God calling you to this work? Have you a willing heart to respond? May God bless you as you personally answer these questions.

President, Washington Conference

Summer Work Rewards Student Colporteurs

Judy Brown is 17 years old and will be a senior at Walla Walla Valley Academy this coming school year. She is one of the 25 student colporteurs working the field comprising the Upper Columbia Conference. This is Judy's first experience in this venture but admits she enjoys it and it doing much better than she anticipated.

After canvassing five weeks she has received orders in the amount of $501.41. Judy is looking forward to earning a scholarship for the coming school year. She has numerous interesting stories that she relates in her typical vivacious manner. It is possible that others like Judy could spend their summer months or perhaps full time in the colporteur field in a very profitable way, both spiritual and economical.

Our Publishing Department leaders, Elder W. G. Wallace and Brother Paul Clear, are anxious to counsel with and assist anyone who feels called to this work.

R. C. REMBOLDT
President, Upper Columbia Conference

Judy Brown, student colporteur.

Sent by God

"There was a man sent from God, whose name was John. The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the Light, that all men through him might believe." John 1:6, 7. Truly today it can be said that our literature evangelists are "sent of God." It is this sense of being on a mission for God that makes a man or woman engaged in this work so powerful a representative for the Truth.

God has put Seventh-day Adventists into the world to witness for Him. More men and women are needed who will go as did John of old to be "sent of God." The literature ministry calls. Will you respond?

GEORGE W. LISCOMBE
President, Idaho Conference

Motivations

It is asserted that literature evangelism is a work equal to that of the gospel minister. This we sincerely believe. However, there are definite conditions to be met. The main point of equality is in soul winning. Where literature evangelism is fully motivated by the honesty, sincerity, devotion and dedication that result in soul winning, then and not until then is the comparison valid.

Both the work of the gospel minister and the work of the literature evangelist will end in failure and disgrace to the cause of God without the right motivation. Anyone desiring to enter either must honestly examine his motives for doing so. True motivation matched with the necessary ability and talents will result in a quality of work that can be blessed with the saving of precious souls for God's everlasting Kingdom.

H. L. RUDY
President, Oregon Conference
