New Statistics Show Non-Smokers Live Longer

At age 35, a male member of the tobacco-free Seventh-day Adventist Church can expect to live six years longer than his counterpart in the general population.

This bonus in life expectancy in the adult years is greater than the life extension resulting from all the advances of medical science in the past 40 years, a research statistician told the American Public Health Association in Miami, Fla., recently.

Jan W. Kuzma, Ph.D., assistant professor of biostatistics in the Loma Linda University School of Public Health, described a study comparing California Seventh-day Adventists with the general California population. At every age level in the study, covering the years from 35 to 85, the non-smoking subjects had a life expectancy greater than did other Californians of the same age.

The report, co-authored by Frank R. Lemon, M.D., associate professor of preventative medicine and public health, and Richard T. Walden, M.D., professor of medicine and public health at the university's School of Medicine, Loma Linda, Calif., dealt with 34,217 Seventh-day Adventists 35 years of age and older. Life tables for the group were constructed for the period 1960-62 and compared with standard statistical tables provided by the California State Department of Public Health.

The general-population statistics used in the study represented all residents of the state, including smokers, and even the Seventh-day Adventists themselves.

"It seems clear that the life expectancy difference would have been even more dramatic had the second group comprised only regular smokers, rather than a mixed population group," Dr. Kuzma declared.

At 35, the average Californian male looks forward to another 36.1 years of life. The male Seventh-day Adventist, at the same age, has 42.3 years of life ahead, a gain of 6.2 years over his "average" counterpart. At age 40, the comparable life expectancies are 31.2 years for the male Californian and 37.7 years for the male Adventist.

For females, the differences are somewhat less, but Seventh-day Adventist women in every age level studied also have their "average" California counterparts in life expectancy. At 35, the typical California woman has an expected 41.5 years of life, her Seventh-day Adventist sister an expectancy of 45.1 years—3.6 years longer.

Of the general population, about 53 percent of men and 25 percent of women were found to be current, regular cigarette smokers in a 1956 survey by the U. S. Public Health Service. This greater percentage of men smokers could readily account for the variance in life-expectancy differentials for the men's and women's groups, according to Dr. Kuzma.

Factors of race, occupation, geographical distribution, etc., were analyzed and found to be not significant in the study, he reported. Earlier studies comparing statistics for Seventh-day Adventists and the general population since 1958 showed that the members of the non-smoking church group experienced fewer deaths from lung cancer, pulmonary emphysema and other lung diseases, and from coronary heart disease. The new study is the first showing that they actually live longer, considering all causes of death.

The church group's 1.6 million members believe that care of physical health is important to the practice of good religion.

R. S. Watts, General Conference Vice President and Chairman of the Home Study Institute Board, enrolls as the first student in "Asian Backgrounds"—a course providing deep understanding into life in the East.

Dr. Wilbur Nelson, specialist in Asian studies and member of the Religion Department of Pacific Union College, is author of the new study in "Asian Backgrounds" as well as the teacher for the course.

Asian Backgrounds

Home Study Institute's newest course is a study of the customs, religious thinking of the people living on the earth's largest continent—the home of more than half the people on earth. Asian Backgrounds is designed to give future mission appointees a preparation for their work in India, China, and Japan as well as the smaller countries of Asia.

Although offered as a two-semester hour enrichment course for the college student, it is also recommended as an adult education course providing for the average layman an opportunity to better acquaint himself with the countries to which his mission offerings are going.

Dr. Wilbur Nelson, author of the course, is presently Associate Professor of Religion and History at Pacific Union College. He spent a number of years in the various mission fields of the Asian Continent and is well qualified as an instructor for this course.

For further information concerning Asian Backgrounds, write to Home Study Institute, Tacoma Park, Washington, D. C. 20012.

Trans-A-Word Puzzles

Looking for something different? Then try TRANS-A-WORD PUZZLES.

For anyone who enjoys working puzzles—crossword or otherwise—Southern Publishing Association has just released a whole book featuring a puzzle for each week of the year, with answer lists in the back. TRANS-A-WORD PUZZLES is the outgrowth of a long-time hobby of the author, Myron Harvey, of Nashville, Tennessee. Many of his puzzles have appeared in The Youth's Instructor from time to time.

teen definitions, and across from each is a set of numbered blanks. By way of a hint, one letter is already supplied. As you fill the blanks, you transfer the letters to the blanks with corresponding numbers in the lower area. Completed, a choice quotation from the book especially for youth, Messages to Young People, takes shape. To stimulate greater interest in this outstanding guidebook for youth is the author's purpose in preparing such a unique collection.

Young people who enjoy word games will discover in this new soft cover volume of 64 pages a stimulating pastime, with the bonus of a choice quotation earned upon completion. Older juniors may well find the solving of these puzzles within their range, and dad and mother just might decide that working them is a lot of fun too, once they get a taste.

At $1.95 you can treat yourself to this new book and give several away for gifts.

News Conference

Features Simulated Turkey

Over 40 representatives from radio, television, and the press attended a news conference sponsored by a Seventh-day Adventist food company on November 8.

Held at the Americana Hotel in New York City, the conference featured Worthington Foods' new turkey-style Holiday Roast. "Members of the press were intrigued at this and other vegetable protein meat simulations," said Michael A. Jones, WF public relations manager.

Some of the media represented were United Press International, Life, Redbook, Seventeen, Newsweek, N. Y. Times, American Home, N. Y. Daily News, Better Homes and Gardens, N. Y. Post, McCall's, Scientific American, House and Garden, and many others. All who attended learned of Seventh-day Adventists' dietary convictions and the news conference was considered eminently successful.

Jones said equipment problems have prevented complete distribution of Holiday Roast to all areas. He said complete distribution of this new product by Worthington is expected shortly.

Special Care Unit Opens

Happiness came in three attractive packages recently for our fine staff on ortho-surgical floor. It came in the form of a new nurses' station with a new medicine room adjoining it.

A most valuable addition to this complex was a new 44-bed "Special Care Unit." This unit is very similar to the former Intensive Care Units of other nursing plans. The facility is complete with the latest in electronic monitoring equipment in the form of Birtcher monitors.

Specially trained personnel are responsible for this area. Heart patients, serious accidents, and serious surgery type patients will use this facility.

Thrift Shoppe News

Our Thrift Shoppe has now been open for three and one-half months. Results to date? One soul baptized thus far, says Mrs. Leo St. Clair, store manager and key individual in the seed sowing on our first harvest soul. This, plus nearly $2,000 grossed to date, makes this facility a valuable addition to God's work in Walla Walla.

The officers of the Hospital Auxiliary and the administration of the hospital wish to make known the relationship between our Dorcas So-cities and the Thrift Shoppe. While the Thrift Shoppe was created for soul winning and fund raising for the hospital needs, it also is to be used by the Dorcas groups for items they may lack for emergency or needy situations. With the Dorcas groups and the Thrift Shoppe cooperation, the community needs will be better served.

Plans are now being laid for a united effort by the aforementioned groups for disasters—plans for uniforms, for vehicles, for help and supplies—so that our community will be ready for any disaster.

Medical Self-Help Training Course

For some time now the Brookings and Gold Beach Seventh-day Adventist churches have been making a two-fold study of the book of Revelation and the Spirit of Prophecy concerning the coming crises upon this world.

Increase in disasters of all types and our need to be prepared for such crises prompted the lay activities leader of the Brookings church, Dr. Roy S. Preston, to provide a Medical Self-Help Training Course for the church members and the community. He arranged to have the general manager of the local Ambulance Association be the featured lecturer. Material and motion pictures are prepared by the joint efforts of the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare and the U. S. Department of Defense.

The course consists of ten topics covering the emergency procedures to be followed in nuclear war disasters, artificial respiration, bleeding and bandaging, fractures and splinting, transportation of the injured, burns, shock, mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, nursing care of the sick and injured, and infant and child care.

In having the church sponsor this course, many community people have come to know Seventh-day Adventists as community-minded people. Friendships have been made and barriers broken down. It has been made a part of the evangelistic outreach of the church. This is a program that is recommended to all our churches as a community service and also as a way to be better prepared for the coming crises.

"We took the TV Bible Class lessons last year and received one of the beautiful white Bibles. We have enjoyed it very much. We enjoyed the first course so much we decided to take the second course when it began on TV.

"At the time we started these lessons this year we were not Christians although we did believe to a degree. We most certainly did not believe the Seventh-day Adventist way. So far as we were concerned that was out.

"But Pastor Tom Stafford kept visiting us. When Pastor E. G. Fresk joined him for a series of meetings, we decided to attend. We became so interested we looked into the Sabbath question thoroughly consulting dictionaries and different reference books. We found how wrong we had been all these years.

Adventist Pilots' Association

Even as Aviation Month International is being observed, Seventh-day Adventists around the world are placing new importance upon flying in missions service. Medical help is being hurried to remote areas through flying doctors and other service personnel.

Currently there are four mission planes operating in South America, three in Africa, two in the South Pacific, one in Sarawak, another in the Philippines, one in Alaska, and one in Mexico. And these planes have been the means of saving countless lives, not to mention shrinking distances between mission stations and putting once-isolated missionaries a little more in touch with the outside world.

Nearly every denominational college has a flying club, and one is now offering a bachelor of science degree in aeronautics. The primary objective is mission flying.

Realizing the times and new era of missions extension and services through emphasis on aeronautics, the Adventist Pilots' Association is organized to promote such an outreach. Seasonal fly-ins are held for 115 Adventist pilots in the Northwest.

All programs revolve around three objectives: 1. to promote within our denomination greater interest and participation in the field of air travel as a feasible and efficient means of advancing the work of the church throughout the world; 2. to encourage greater flight proficiency among our pilot members and non-members with particular emphasis upon flight safety; and 3. to assist by any means at our disposal in developing flight training programs within our educational systems and in our denomination at large.

Your Northwest chapter of Adventist Pilots' Association solicits your support. Before the next fly-in, send your yearly membership dues of $5 to L. M. Cowin, Secretary-treasurer; 1755 17th Avenue, West; Eugene, Oregon 97402.

Thanksgiving in the Auburn-Federal Way District

At this Thanksgiving season we rejoice in recounting the blessings of God here in the Auburn-Federal Way district during the past year. We thank God for the steady growth in membership in both the Auburn City church and the Federal Way church. The present membership of the Auburn City church is 547, and the Federal Way church membership is now 140.

The facilities in the Auburn City church are being taxed to the limit, and study is being made as to the best plan for expansion of our church facilities. The former Mormon Church property adjacent to our property is now being purchased and can be incorporated in future building plans. Just recently some of the faithful

LAY ADVISORY COMMITTEE

The Washington Conference constituency voted on July 12 that a Lay Advisory Committee be appointed by the Conference Committee by selecting one individual from each district. The committee was selected and the first meeting was held at Auburn Academy on Sunday, November 5.

At this first meeting the areas of discussion were evangelism, finance, involvement of the laity in the total church program, how we might more effectively reach certain groups, etc. Two committees were appointed from within the group to give study to specific areas of concern and the reports of these committees will be considered at the next meeting of the Lay Advisory Committee early in 1968.

The accompanying picture of the group was taken on the day of the first meeting. The Conference Committee members were invited to be in attendance, and Elders Hackett and Webb were also present from our Union Conference.

We believe this committee will be a great blessing and will originate and develop ideas that will enhance and expand the work of the church in the Washington Conference.

members of the Auburn church painted the inside of the sanctuary, the foyer and halls, and earlier the trim on the outside of the building was also repainted. We were happy for these improvements as we had planned an evangelistic series of meetings to be held at the Auburn City church.

The Auburn and Federal Way churches joined in a series of 18 evangelistic meetings entitled "Good News For You," and the book Good News for You, by A. S. Maxwell, was offered to all guests who attended ten or more of the meetings. Pastor and Mrs. Gordon Mattison and Mrs. Edythe Cain, Conference Bible instructor, assisted Pastor William C. Risley in conducting this series of meetings. With the blessing of God eleven souls have been baptized, and many others will be baptized in the near future. This brings our total baptisms to 23 thus far this year.

Baptismal classes will be conducted in both the Buena Vista church school here in Auburn and the Federal Way

Immediately following the close of the evangelistic meetings we were greatly blessed through the ministry of Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Stoehr. Dr. Stoehr conducted the fall Week of Prayer for our district, holding night meetings Sunday through Friday and the worship service on both Sabbath mornings.

Soon we will be starting our In-gathering campaign. The pastor, along with several of the lay members, will solicit the business district in Auburn, and plans are being made for our caroling program to be completed in three evenings. We know that God will bless our efforts as we cooperate and work together to further His work in our area.

Washington Conference Launches Unique Nutrition Education Program

In response to the Lord's command, "Deal thy bread to the hungry," the Washington Conference combined forces of the Lay Activities and Medical Departments in a widely varied nutrition education program to meet the interests of every individual. The areas stressed are low cost, emergency, and limited diets.

Low Cost: One does not have to live on Skid Row to appreciate truly delicious food at unbelievably low cost. Who would not jump at the opportunity of reducing the food budget one-third or more if nutritive quality, attractive appearance, and taste appeal did not have to be sacrificed. Add to all this ease and speed in preparation, simplicity and healthful methods of cookery, and the use of quality foodstuffs.

The capacity crowd that filled the Health and Welfare Center in downtown Seattle were enthusiastic in their approval of the waffles that cost only a few pennies, furnished almost enough good quality protein per waffle for an entire meal, were very light and delicious, and were very quick to prepare. The savory hash, prepared from scratch in a matter of minutes rated high in popularity. It provides a tasty wholesome entree at a cost of from two to four cents per serving.

The Dorcas Federation members in the various areas sampled a variety of low-cost foods and were shown techniques of preparation by Mrs. Edyth Cottrell who originated many of the recipes and adapted others from recipes old and new from at home and abroad. The criteria: 1. Use of simple, available, unrefined foods. 2. Improvement of vegetable proteins through supplementation. 3. Simple healthful methods of preparation.

Emergency Diet: All should know how to prepare tasty, wholesome foods from the limited foodstuffs available in times of extreme shortages and emergency; and with a minimum amount of heat. The health and well-being of a family may depend upon this knowledge. The best part of it is that one does not have to wait for disaster to benefit from these methods; they may be a time saver for the busy housewife, are most useful for gracious outdoor living, and provide many helpful shortcuts in cooking along the trail.

Limited Diets: Some of the emergency methods together with foods for those on limited diets were demonstrated to the workers' wives and their helpers in the very attractive home economics laboratory at Auburn Academy as a part of our camp meeting program. That there may be variety unlimited for those on limited diets was ably demonstrated by Mrs. Cottrell. No milk, eggs, or wheat allowed; whatever can one have to eat, you may ask. There is a pleasant surprise in store for you: Pizza pie, waffles—a dozen varieties, cookies, pies, entrees, the variety is truly almost unlimited.

It would be well for each to become proficient in preparing tasty nutritious foods in the areas of Low Cost, Emergency, and Limited Diets; and to make use of every opportunity of sharing this knowledge with others, in the neighborhood, your own circle of friends, or wherever the need arises. Just the sharing of prepared food, or a recipe, or a simple demonstration in your own home to a few neighbors. Truly this would constitute "dealing thy bread" and will provide countless opportunities for sharing the Bread of Life.

Mrs. Edyth Y. Cottrell, who has been leading out in this program, is author of Stretching the Food Dollar, new and enlarged edition, 1966, which Mrs. Edyth Cottrell, assisted by Mrs. Don Crowder, demonstrates cookery at SDA camp meeting nutrition school.

20-Year Anniversary

All former members and friends of Green Lake church are invited to celebrate our twenty-year anniversary, Sabbath, December 9. Elder Wesley I. Centralia Church Dedication

November 11 was a time of rejoicing for the Centralia church as members and friends dedicated their recently completed house of worship in a day-long celebration.

A capacity crowd at the eleven o'clock worship service heard our Conference president, W. J. Blacker, present an earnest appeal for a great upsurge in Christian witnessing to meet the challenge of the world's need in the evil days to which we have come.

Many former members of the Centralia congregation were present and they joined us in the noonday potluck dinner.

At 3 p.m. came the dedication service, in which Elder W. J. Hackett, president of the Union Conference, called for a dedication of life to match the dedication of the building. At 7 p.m. we heard Elder Dan Matthews in a moving sermon on the joys of Christian fellowship. It was during his term as Centralia pastor that the new building was begun. Elder Lester Rasmussen, who directed the work after Elder Matthews left, and the present minister, C. R. Aimes, also took part in the meetings. We were blessed by the inspired singing of Elder Sunny Liu, and happy to have our Union Conference treasurer, Elder L. W. Crooker, with us, as well as our Conference treasurer, Elder W. L. Murrill.

Sunday afternoon, November 12, an open house and reception were held at which many non-Adventist friends from the city, as well as members from nearby churches, were shown through the church.

The building, which seats 250 in the sanctuary, was built at a cost of $45,000 exclusive of the many, many hours of loving labor given free of charge by the loyal members of the congregation. May this new church soon be outgrown, is our prayer.

First Jasper Wayne Award of 1968 Crusade

The first Jasper Wayne award (flashlight key chain) of the 1968 Ingathering Crusade for the Upper Columbia Conference was publicly awarded to Brother Elmer Brody of Wenatchee at the annual Ingathering "kick-off" ministers' meeting in Spokane, Washington, on November 7. Elder Leon Cornforth, Lay Activities secretary of the Upper Columbia Conference, made the presentation and commended Mr. Brody for his continuous interest in the over-all Ingathering program of Wenatchee for many years. This year Mr. Brody has taken business names that have not been called on for several years and already he has exceeded the Jasper Wayne total of $130. With dedication and motivation of this quality, the Lord's program is bound to succeed.

The 1968 Crusade is now in full motion. May each Seventh-day Adventist in the Upper Columbia Conference follow the fine example that Mr. Brody has set.

Lay Advisory Committee Is Held

On Sunday, November 12, the Lay Advisory Committee of the Upper Columbia Conference met at the Conference office in Spokane to discuss conference policies and plans. This committee is composed of one delegate from each church in the Conference, and more than fifty delegates were in attendance. The meeting was also attended by members of the Upper Columbia Conference execu-

Elder R. C. Remboldt, president of the Upper Columbia Conference, calls the meeting of the Conference Lay Advisory Committee to order on November 12. Elder Willis J. Hackett, president of the North Pacific Union Conference, addresses the delegates.

Delegates of the Lay Advisory Committee listen attentively to a presentation by Elder Hackett advising them of recent developments and problems facing the denomination.

Members of the Lay Advisory Committee of the Upper Columbia Conference have lunch together in the Conference office assembly room.

...tive committee, and Elder R. C. Remboldt, president of the Upper Columbia Conference, presided. Elder W. J. Hackett, president of the North Pacific Union Conference, was present and his counsel was much appreciated.

During the day's deliberations, Elders Remboldt and Hackett apprised the delegates of recent developments in our Conference and of trends around the world in our work which bring special problems to us. One of the key matters that was discussed involved the trends in the field of education which are making it more and more difficult to finance our schools, both as to their day-to-day operation and to construct adequate buildings for them.

Financial statements were presented by Brother I. E. Gray, Conference treasurer. Free discussion was invited, which resulted in a splendid exchange of ideas and an increase of understanding. The meeting closed with the prayerful resolve on the part of all in attendance to devote all our talents available to solve the vexing problems that face us, and to finish the work of God in the earth.

A Silver Vanguard at 97

Caroline Rainwater became a believer in the true Sabbath when a mere child. She loved to read her Bible, and when she read in Exodus the 20th chapter that the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord, she was ready to accept it. She went to her mother and asked, "Why do we keep Sunday when the Bible says the seventh day is the Sabbath?" But her mother was not interested and she turned it off by saying she did not know.

It was not until after Caroline was married that she learned of the Seventh-day Adventist denomination. Elders Huffman and Kilgore came to her town to conduct some evangelistic meetings, and she was happy to accept the full message.

She has always been a great believer in the text which says, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto Me." And her greatest joy is in helping others.

While raising nine children of her own, she was often called upon by her neighbors in time of sickness. During the flu epidemic of 1918 she took care of many cases.

For a number of years she colporteur. Her favorite theme has always been the coming of Jesus, and she placed many copies of the book, The Coming King, in the homes of the people.

Now that she is getting old in years (but not in spirit) and her children object to her going out alone, she busies herself about the home wherever she happens to be. She says she has nine homes with her nine children. She especially enjoys helping with the canning during the summer season.

Her latest project is making old-fashioned rag dolls to sell for missions. During this year she has made and sold more than $130 worth and every penny goes for such as Investment, Voice of Prophecy and Faith for Today.

She likes to do Ingathering. Every year she gets her Silver Vanguard goal ($25.00) for Ingathering. She is already planning her centennial birthday, and hopes to live to see Jesus come. She celebrated her 97th birthday on November 18. She loves to fly, and often talks about the "Space Trip" she is going to take when Jesus comes.

With such dedication to the many facets of the Lord's work, I am sure that Mrs. Rainwater will soon have the joy of seeing the Lord come in all His glory.

Kellogg Meetings a Success

For the first time in the history of Kellogg, Idaho, evangelistic meetings were held in this city. The meetings were conducted by John and Ellen Klim, the Bible Speaks team, assisted by Ralph Wendt, pastor of the Osburn and St. Maries churches.

On some nights more than 50 non-Adventists were present; 113 non-Adventists registered in the Bible Marking Plan. For most of these individuals, it was the first time they had attended Adventist meetings.

At the close of the series, 15 individuals expressed desire to unite with God's true church. Six of these have already joined. Please remember in prayer the remaining ones who are preparing for baptism.

The Spokane Pathfinder Club is here pictured holding a giant check for the needy, which represents the work of Pathfinder Clubs this year in collecting food on Halloween for the needy. The total value was approximately $2,500.

Pathfinders of Upper Columbia in Anti-Poverty Project

The Pathfinder Clubs of the Upper Columbia Conference participated in a major anti-poverty project on the night of October 31. This was the time when they made their annual appeal to the community for supplies to help the needy during the holiday season.

As the uniformed young people went from door to door making their appeal on the night that many others were out only for themselves, a marvelous response resulted in probably the most outstanding Treats for the Needy program ever carried on in the Upper Columbia Conference.

The cash value of the food and clothing donated to these youth for the needy amounted to well over $2,500. According to incomplete reports that have now come into our office, nearly eleven thousand cans of food were collected, in addition to cash donations and several hundred garments. More than fifteen Pathfinder Clubs participated, with a total of nearly five hundred youth working in this project.

The largest number of youth from any one club reported was the Waiilatpu Club from College Place, from which ninety-six members went out. The largest total collection was the Blue Mountain Pioneer Club's collection which totalled 2,650 cans, plus other miscellaneous donations. The Pendleton, College Place, and Pasco Clubs also collected in excess of 1,000 cans of food.

Every Pathfinder Club in the Upper Columbia Conference that participated in this program had outstanding success, and we know that each of these communities will be blessed with happier people as a result of this anti-poverty program in 1967.

Stop-Smoking Clinic

A Stop-Smoking Clinic was held in Pasco the week of October 22 under the direction of Dr. Orval Patchett and Dr. Robert Dunlop. The Tri-City Herald, the radio and TV stations were contacted and were most cooperative and enthusiastic about our program. We could not have had better publicity.

All day Sunday, October 22, there was the worst dust storm we have had in years. Toward evening the State Patrol was asking by radio and TV that everyone stay at home that night. Dr. Patchett heard that announcement and called the radio stations. They immediately announced how many minutes it was until the beginning of the Stop-Smoking Clinic at the Emerson School in Pasco at 8 p.m. Everyone heard, "Just 36 minutes until the Stop-Smoking Clinic," and a countdown after every musical number until 8 o'clock! A hundred people were present!

This proved to be accepted as a real public service. Everyone knew it was a Seventh-day Adventist Church project and the Adventist doctors were there to help them. The first night many came out of curiosity. The second night there were seventy-nine. The last night 39 people signed up as non-smokers.

One man who came to give a personal testimony to the dangers of smoking looked like walking death, with a pack of cigarettes in his pocket. He died two weeks later.

Smoking Sam displayed nicotine tar in the lungs, but most impressive were two human lungs on exhibit nightly. One was a healthy specimen, the other showed cancer in a lung filled with nicotine tar. At least one man, every night before he left the clinic, took a long look at that cancerous lung. It kept him from taking a cigarette the next day when he was tempted. He has been a three-pack-a-day man and had tried unsuccessfully several times to quit. He is still a non-smoker and enjoying his food as he never did before. He is a truck driver and works long hours. When he was home he was so dead for sleep he slept most of the day Sunday and could not spend the evening with his family—he would fall asleep as soon as he sat down. Now he enjoys the evening at home and is the first one up on Sunday morning.

One lady told Elder Martin the clinic had saved her marriage. She smoked and her husband did not. They fought so over her quitting they were on the verge of a divorce.

The Tri-City Herald is so enthusiastic about the program they have gotten the names of the people who have quit from Elder Martin and plan to do a follow-up on it in six months. There was a big write-up this Sunday to that effect so people will be expecting to be checked on.

With all of the publicity at present on the health hazard of smoking, every church should put on a Stop-Smoking clinic. Right now so many people want to stop but need help. Those here who have gained the victory have others wanting to do the same. Plans are already under way to hold another clinic in the spring. We will have to!

Upper Columbia Academy Youth Hold Week of Prayer

The young people of the Upper Columbia Academy Seminar organization accepted an invitation this autumn to conduct the Week of Prayer at Spokane Junior Academy. This Week of Prayer was held from November 13-18.

At each session the young people conducted the entire program, including the special music and song service, as well as the sermon. Different youth came each day. Elders Holmes and Parks of the Bible Department of Upper Columbia Academy sponsored this excellent project.

At the close of the week, ten young people registered decisions for baptism in the near future. All the students at Spokane Junior Academy responded to the appeal for rededication.

Halloween Food Collection

Close to 300 cans and packages were collected by the Missionary Volunteer Society youth group of the Lewistown Seventh-day Adventist church.

One hundred fifty cans were given to the Lewistown Christmas Bureau for distribution to local needy families at Christmas time, with the remainder distributed by the church's Welfare Center throughout the year. The annual project drive, carried out each Halloween, was started five years ago by Mrs. Matt Byers, Jr.

MRS. CHARLES HAYES

A Weekend at Mount Ellis

Elder Euel Atchley, associate secretary of the General Conference Temperance Department, spoke to the students for Friday chapel, November 10. Elder Atchley has the ability to make things really live for young or old. He told the thrilling story of the ancient Olympic games and the training that the winners had to go through in order to hope to win.

He gave details on why living a temperate life is important and also challenged the students to form a running club for their own health and better living. At least 75 percent of the students stayed after chapel to form a running club.

That evening at the vesper service Elder Atchley told the story of the life of contrasts of "just a guy named Joe." He felt that Joseph's life was one of the most challenging and interesting stories of the Bible.

Elder and Mrs. Larry Lewis sang a duet, "Over the Sunset Mountains," for Sabbath school next morning. Elder Lewis, at present a teacher in the Bible department of Walla Walla College, was formerly Bible teacher and church pastor at Mount Ellis. Mrs. Lewis, the former Jeanne Kurtz, graduated from the academy in 1953.

Elder Atchley presented the general lesson study so that all might benefit from his presentation.

Elder D. E. Caslow, Lay Activities secretary for the North Pacific Union, spoke for the Missionary Volunteer meeting that afternoon. He told of various experiences of help given to needy ones in South America.

"It's a Small World," was the title Principal of the girls' club program given that night. The hard work and planning of Dean Kathy Hixson and other sponsors, and the diligent practice by the girls, really paid off in a beautifully presented and smoothly run program. True to their theme, they gave numbers from "around the world." Ushers and ticket sellers, as well as those taking part in the program, were dressed in costumes from various countries. Elder Lewis acted as master of ceremonies. The girls' chorus, directed by Arladel Bond-Nelson sang, "My Own America," to close the delightful evening.

Weddings

On July 6, at the Tabernacle church, Linda Ellen Montgomery became the bride of Darwin Lee Eisele of Kelso, Washington. Elder Forrest Roper officiated. The couple are making their new home at 239 Army Blvd., San Antonio, Texas, while Darwin is stationed with the army at Fort Sam Houston.

In a beautiful afternoon ceremony on Sunday, September 24, Jeanne Spreng and Ron Presnall joined their lives together in holy wedlock at the Forest Grove, Oregon, Seventh-day Adventist church. Elder E. V. Unterseher officiated at the ceremony. The couple are making their home in Hillsboro, Oregon, where both are employed. We pray God's richest blessing upon this new home.

In a simple ceremony Benjamin M. Ripley of Rainier, Oregon, and Mabel A. Powell of Clatskanie, Oregon, were united in marriage in the pastor's study of the Chehalis, Washington, Seventh-day Adventist church, November 6. We wish for them God's blessings as they join in their service for others.

Betty Lou Wimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Wimer of Laurelwood, and Arlyn Bryce Meisner were united in marriage October 15 at the Laurelwood Village church by Elder M. L. Mooers who baptized Arlyn the previous Sabbath. The groom is at present a member of the Armed Forces, and the couple will be making their home in Arizona while he completes his course in electronics. We pray that God's hand will be over this newly established home as they serve both their country and their church.

The Village church in Portland, Oregon, was the scene of a lovely afternoon wedding on October 1 when Lydia Laeszle Miller and Lee Homer Montgomery were united in marriage. Elder G. Edward Bryan officiated at the service. This new home will be established in White Salmon, Washington, where Mr. Montgomery is employed. May God's richest blessings rest upon this new home.

The New York Center church was the scene of a beautiful service on September 10 when Shirley Silcox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent A. Silcox of Snohomish, Washington, became the bride of George Javor of New York City. Pastor William A. Fagal performed the ceremony assisted by Pastor Charles Sohlmann. The bride (a 1964 graduate of WWC) is associated with Faith for Today as secretary for Pastor and Mrs. Fagal. The groom, having completed the requirements for Ph.D. degree from Columbia University, is employed by the Rockefeller Institute in New York where he is doing research work in biochemistry.

On the evening of September 17, at a candlelight service in the Seventh-day Adventist church at Aleknagik, Alaska, Miss Molly Samuels became the bride of Pastor Joseph L. Chythlook. The ceremony was performed by Elder Joseph C. Hansen. Joseph and Molly will reside at Aleknagik where he will headquarter to do missionary work among his Eskimo people. We pray that the Lord will bless this new home that is dedicated to His service.

Joan Adele Claridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Claridge of North Bend, Washington, and Kenneth Dean Wasenmiller, son of Elder and Mrs. W. E. Wasenmiller, of Portland, Oregon, were united in marriage at the Community Methodist church in Snoqualmie, Washington, on August 13. Kenneth and Joan are living at College Place, Washington, where they are both seniors at Walla Walla College. The father of the groom officiated at the wedding. Our prayers are with Ken and Joan as they continue their college education for preparation for service in the cause of God.

Summer Session Changed

A change in the Walla Walla College summer session length from two five-week sessions to one eight-week session was announced last week by Dr. H. L. Rasmussen, academic dean.

North Pacific Union Conference teachers will want to notice dates for the 1968 summer session, June 10 to August 3. This change, long contemplated, will be advantageous both to college administrators and faculty and to the hundreds of teachers who attend, many for graduate work in education, says Dr. William H. Shephard, president.

In the past, teachers in secondary and elementary schools, who have attended summer school, have had no vacation between their own teaching responsibilities and their summer study. They have, after summer school, gone directly to their classrooms again. In order to have time for vacations or personal and family trips, many have chosen to attend only one session, usually the first.

WWC's first summer session had 61 registered in 1923. A low in attendance came in 1935 when only 35 registered. Recent years have consistently had more than 500 attending. In 1964 there were 595 registered for the first term. Last summer, 1967, there were 612 attending first term and 686 during the entire summer session. The time to plan for summer school is now, says Dean Rasmussen.

WWC Hosts Speakers

Walla Walla College has hosted a number of guest speakers before Thanksgiving.

On the campus November 14 and 15, representing the Planetary Sciences Institute, Columbia Union College, R. V. Gentry, a former WWC staff member, lectured in the physics lecture hall, as well as spoke for the mid-week prayer meeting, on the subjects of Radiation Dating, Fossils, and Revelation, Science and the Theory of Evolution.

Robert H. Dicke, professor of physics at Princeton University, addressed the combined Walla Walla College and Whitman College Sigma Xi chapters, Friday, November 10, and Elder Kenneth Mittleider, evangelist, addressed the student body at the Friday evening MV service in the College Church.

A part of a Quaker Action Committee that visited North Vietnam in 1967, Philip Drath in "Vietnam—a Quaker's-Eye View," presented a sketch of life in the North Vietnamese cities and countryside in Monday's chapel period, November 20.

Speaking to departmental clubs the day before Thanksgiving were: Alton Alderman, M.D., lecturing to the Biology Club on the Natural History in South America; G. M. Whitney, to the Speech Club concerning his work in the field of laryngectomy; and Jack Lemon, political columnist for the Spokane Chronicle, to the International Relations Club on Federal-State Relations.

Also on the WWC campus were W. B. Clark, dean of admissions, LLU, to interview students seeking admission in the various schools; and Howard M. Ferguson, O.D., hosting a dinner and interviewing students interested in osteopathy.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Lindsay.

ice cream and specialty field add up to seventeen years.

Sister Lindsay has worked in the Walla Walla College cafeteria as well as in the college snack bar in a supervisory capacity.

The Lindsays have four children. The oldest two, Alice and Galen, are students at Gem State Academy, a senior and sophomore, respectively. Jerry, a sixth grader, and Eileen, second grader, attend Gem State Grade School.

It is a real pleasure to find folks who are dedicated in their service to God and their fellowmen. We thank you for the many prayers that we know are offered for the academy, the students, and the staff.

Food Service Staff

One of the comments often heard from visitors to the Gem State Academy campus has to do with the good quality and appearance of the food served in the cafeteria. A good food service program does not come by accident, but through hours of planning and careful preparation by the entire cafeteria staff.

I take great pleasure in introducing Brother and Sister Curtis Lindsay, who this year have joined Mrs. Nina Prohaska as members of the GSA food service team. These three adults supervise the work of 52 students who were paid a total of $2,534.84 for their work in the cafeteria in October.

The Lindsays have been with us since August 15. Their dedication to their task is greatly appreciated by the administrative staff as well as by the students.

Prior to coming to Gem State Academy, Brother Lindsay was in charge of the ice cream and specialty department at the Walla Walla College Dairy. In this position he had many student employees, giving him much experience in student work supervision. His total experience in the
