FAITH FOR TODAY — PART OF THE TEAM

E. E. DUNCAN, Co-ordinator of Evangelism

In earnest prayer the Faith for Today staff and associates seek God's blessing for the meetings. L to R: Gerald Hardy, Edmund Jones, Everett Duncan, W. A. Fagal and Gordon Dalrymple.

The 70 employees at Faith for Today are organized for one purpose—to win souls. We hope our telecast is viewed in your city. We have a deep concern for your Conference, your church and your personal involvement in soul winning.

Each year as our staff and facilities expand we are able to reach out farther and more often in direct evangelism throughout the U. S. and Canada, teaming up with pastors and laymen in soul winning.

In 1968 we held three crusades. Pastor William A. Fagal, Director of Faith for Today, held a series at the White Memorial Church in Los Angeles, and Pastor Gordon F. Dalrymple, Public Relations Director and Editor of Publications, held two series—one in Indianapolis and the other in Albany, New York.

This year five efforts have been scheduled. Pastor Fagal recently held a major three-week series in Lynwood, California, and Pastor Dalrymple just concluded a series at Hagerstown, Maryland. This fall he goes to Staten Island for an extended series. Pastor Everett Duncan, recently joining Faith for Today as Director of Evangelism, will hold two series this fall, one in Springfield, Massachusetts, and one in Binghamton, New York.

About seven crusades are planned for 1970. Pastor Fagal is scheduled for Atlanta, Georgia, in the spring, and efforts are being organized for British Columbia, Alberta, and Ontario-Quebec in Canada; and tentative arrangements are underway for Santa Barbara and San Jose, California. The 1970 schedule is not complete.

During Pastor Fagal's recent Lynwood Crusade there were 240 decisions for baptism. Well over one hundred persons have been baptized to date, with others in baptismal classes in the area. Overflow crowds attended from the first service, with double sessions held on Sabbaths at 4 and 6 p.m. Some 30 ministers and Bible instructors in the Los Angeles area gave splendid support.

Pastor Fagal's messages were timely, thought provoking, and highlighted with many interesting experiences of his travels around the world. Color Faith for Today films were shown before each preaching service.

Gordon Dalrymple conducted an Old Bible Contest, and over one hundred Bibles of various ages and sizes were displayed. The oldest was a 1736 German Bible, Lutheran edition. One unique Bible survived three fires. The music director, Pastor Edmund Jones, featured the King's Heralds Quartet, the California Ministers' Chorus, and many other groups.

As a result of Pastor Dalrymple's crusade in Hagerstown, Maryland, 119 persons have signed decision cards for baptism, and 40 persons have already been baptized with others in baptismal classes. With continued follow up, the total is expected to reach between 75 and 100.

Pastor Christy Taylor and his associate, Marc Beaven, and the Hagerstown members gave outstanding cooperation, and the attendance was high throughout the series. There were 58 entries in the Old Bible Contest, and the award went to Rudy Shrock for his 1832 edition with burned edges, having survived two fires. Several entire families joined the church together, and many gained victory over the tobacco habit.

As Faith for Today telecasts reach into an ever-widening circle of homes across the land, as local interest develops in the message through the Bible study course, as pastors and laymen follow up these interests, the staff at Faith for Today is ready to join your local soul-winning program. We want you to know we are deeply concerned for souls. We are willing to be a part of the team.

PR Quadrennial Council

Union and conference public relations secretaries for the North Pacific Union Conference cast their votes recently in favor of an expanded message-oriented use of modern communications media.

Elders Thomas M. Ashlock, Don Blehm, Roy Eckerman, C. H. Hamel, J. C. Hansen, and Don MacIvor, and Miss Shirley Burton were among some 120 official delegates attending the Public Relations Quadrennial Council at Pine Springs Ranch in southeastern California, May 18-22. Location of the council, far from the smog and distraction of city convention centers, brought a warmth of fellowship and closeness of God and the true goals of the church that were unmatched in past councils of the PR delegates.

High on the priorities list for future action was a message-centered use of modern communications media. This became the focal point of the program of action outlined for the next four years. It was agreed that far too little use had been made of the electronic media to interpret the church to the world. "When the press has been served, this is not the end of our task," declared one public relations man. "We should be giving the same information to the radio and television stations. Theoretically we are doing this, and in some places in practice, but it is not enough."

Means of stepping up service to the news media was studied with the use of Telex as a valuable avenue for reaching editors and saving the precious commodity time.

Public relations directors of colleges and medical institutions were among those present for the council, and daily sectional meetings were held in which these special-interest groups could discuss their own particular concerns. Representing Portland Adventist Hospital and Walla Walla General Hospital in this union were John Loewen and I. E. Burke, respectively.

Workshops, devotionals, and presentations rounded out the agenda of general discussion items. The introduction of several new materials which will be passed along to the churches kindled an excitement that will see the work of Adventist public relations giving lively support to the total evangelistic thrust of the church.

Moving like a golden thread through the fabric of the discussions was the council theme: "To tell the world about Jesus." For those who came to learn, there was much to learn. For those who came to share, there was a wealth of sharing. For those who came to plan, there was counsel and an age of unprecedented opportunity for which to plan.

University Names New Vice President

LOMA LINDA, CALIF.—Robert J. Radcliffe has been named Loma Linda University vice president for financial affairs by the University Trustees, President David J. Bieber announced today.

The new vice president was auditor and statistical secretary of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists and was responsible for the fiscal soundness of the church's organization before his acceptance of the university post.

A native of Manitoba, Canada, the 51-year-old executive has held business management positions in the United States and Canada. Prior to 1965, Mr. Radcliffe was associate auditor of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists and secretary-treasurer of two Canadian conferences.

President Bieber commended the new vice president for his service to

'Please'

Before me, as I write this little article, is a letter from the chaplain of one of our sanitariums and hospitals overseas. The last paragraph of the letter is this:

"So, won't you please increase the number of the pieces of literature and the frequency of your mailing? For lo, our stacks of literature are growing low and we have to be stingy with them. We have to apportion these reading matters to the very minimum until the anticipated shipment arrives. So, please help us."

We, in the Publishing House, have no choice as to how to finance Message Magazine for those fields—and These Times in These Times territory—except to appeal to you through the union papers for funds for our Literature Fund. Our World Literature account, as of today, is nearly $5,000 overdrawn. I had the conviction that our people would gladly send in funds to provide for many hundreds and hundreds of requests that come in from overseas.

Shall we cancel some of the gifts that we are making, or will you come to the help of this House in meeting its overseas commitments? The chaplain goes on to state, "We believe that if there is any time that our truth-filled literature should be in the hands of the people, it is now. So please help."

Send your offering checks made out to World Literature Fund, Southern Publishing Association, Box 59, Nashville, Tennessee 37202. On behalf of our overseas fields, let me say, "Thank you."

The Reviewer

Summer dog days got you all dragged out? What you need is a good book to get your mind in the groove again.

You'll be fascinated by Crusader for Freedom, a new biography of Dr. Jean Nussbaum by Gertrude Loewen. Dr. Nussbaum was, during his lifetime, one of the leading proponents of religious freedom, both in Europe and the United States. His behind-the-scenes maneuvering with prominent church and government leaders all over the world would rival the adventures of a CIA agent. Crusader for Freedom is published by Southern Publishing Association and sells for $5.95.

To get the doldrums out of your summer menus, we'd like to suggest a couple of brand-new cookbooks from Southern Publishing Association. Fifty-two Sabbath Menus, by Jean Larson and Ruth McLin is just what you need to make your weekend entertaining absolutely worry-free. Menus are planned to fit in with each season, and each one has detailed suggestions for serving and preparation. Spiral bound, this attractive book sells for just $4.95.

Adventures in Vegetarian Cooking, compiled by Jimmie Joan Thurmon, is a completely unique idea in denominational publishing. There are over 200 recipes for entrees of all sorts—roasts, patties, casseroles, and accompanying gravies and sauces. There is also an

Oak Park Academy ALUMNI WEEKEND

September 19-21

There are four BIG reasons why YOU will come to this year's big alumni weekend at O.P.A.:

1. You will hear Elder Paul DeBooy (class of '44), world youth leader, just after his return from Zurich, Switzerland.
2. You will be challenged by Elder Francis Wernick (class of '37), dynamic president of the Lake Union Conference.
3. You will tour Soviet Russia in color Saturday night with Dr. Willard Register (class of '42), and on Sunday enjoy the usual happy alumni banquet.
4. You will be able to show due appreciation to your alma mater, renew precious friendships, and honor classmates of the special anniversary classes—

1919 - 50-year class

1944 - 25-year class

1959 - 10-year class

REMEMBER, the date is earlier this year—September 19-21! It will be a wonderful homecoming! You will be there!

interesting section entitled, "International Entrees." Your whole family will be glad you spent $3.95 on this one!

If you've been concerned about the problem of race relations in the church, you should get a copy of The Middle Wall by E. E. Cleveland. "Do You Really Understand?" is this author's question. Do you know what it means to stay awake nights, fighting the rats away from your children? Do you know how it feels to be the subject of discussion on radio, TV, and in the newspapers? Do you know how it feels to go overseas and fight for the freedom of people in other lands that you don't enjoy in your own country? This thought-provoking little paperback sells for just $1.65, published by Review and Herald.

We think your whole family will enjoy the newest Chapel Records release, Montemorelos Marimba. This is an unusual treatment of some well-known religious songs by four marimbists from Montemorelos College in Nuevo Leon, Mexico. In stereo, just $5.

And finally, our congratulations to Kenneth Holland and the staff of These Times for the Award of Merit which they received recently from the Associated Church Press. It's recognition well deserved.

ADVENTIST

Von Kusters Go to Boulder Hospital

Carl and Emily Von Kuster have accepted a call to Boulder Memorial Hospital, Boulder, Colorado, after ten years of service at Portland Adventist Hospital.

Carl, a graduate of Walla Walla College where he worked for four years in the garage, taught at Laurelwood for one semester and then came to PAH in 1959. He became head of the accounting department in March, 1963.

Emily attended Pacific Union College and graduated from Walla Walla College in 1945 as an R.N. She worked from 1946-49 at Walla Walla General Hospital and from 1949-51 in the Walla Walla Veterans' Hospital. Emily returned to "the General" in October, 1951, where she worked until 1958.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Von Kuster.

When the Von Kusters moved to Laurelwood in 1959, Emily came to Portland Adventist Hospital.

The Von Kusters lived in Sandy, Oregon, and were members there. Emily directed the choir, and Carl was head elder. Carl is a member of the Hospital Financial Managers Association and was treasurer of the Hospital Credit Union from 1962-68. Emily was assistant treasurer from 1963-66.

Carl served four and a half years in the Army from 1941 to 1946, specifically in the Philippines and Japan as a medic and did office work. They have a five-acre farm where they raise sheep. Carl enjoys reading ancient history, theology, and remodeling their home. Emily plays the piano for her own enjoyment.

Married in 1943, the Von Kusters have three children. Larry, 20, a math major at Walla Walla College; Nancy, 22, working at Loma Linda University Hospital as a nurse's aid; and Kent, who will be enrolling in Walla Walla College this fall as an industrial arts major.

They commented that they are leaving with considerable nostalgia but feel they are needed at Boulder.

'It Is Written' Harvest in Yakima

The results of co-ordinated lay activity, coupled with an evangelistic effort, are being felt and seen in the Yakima area. During the fall of 1968 and the first five months of 1969, the telecast It Is Written was viewed each Sunday by a large number of Yakima people. The response to the program can be termed "tremendous" with as many as thirty-five people calling in on one Sunday asking for a Bible and study guides. This type of response kept the pastors and laymen in the area extremely busy following up the interest.

After long months of a pastor-laymen "seed-sowing" program, came the "reaping" effort. Between the dates of April 19 and May 4, 1969, Elder H. F. Hannah held a crusade of fourteen meetings in the Yakima church. An average crowd of three hundred people each night was often made up of as many non-member guests as members. During the adult meetings, ladies of the church worked hard at holding special meetings for two youth groups.

It was thrilling to see forty-four people take their stand as Elder Hannah made the calls. Conviction and conversion gripped these people's hearts, and within a short time thirty-nine people joined the church through baptism or profession of faith. We thank God for this harvest He has wrought.

A "Stop Smoking" clinic was held during the last part of the series in which several people gained the victory over the tobacco habit. Immediately following the series, the local pastors held Bible classes for five consecutive nights which helped many of the people make preparation for baptism.

The Spirit of God was drawing the people to hear the third angel's message. Many guests came every night of the series and the Bible classes, and were thrilled with the message they heard. One teen-age girl, who was baptized right after the series, walked five miles on several nights to attend the meetings. When this became known, about halfway through the series, people were more than happy to provide this dedicated teen-ager with a ride. We thank God for such an earnest seeking after Bible truth that was manifest by this girl and many others attending the meetings.

Success in any evangelistic work comes because of the work of the Holy Spirit. But in order for the Holy Spirit to work effectively, pastors and laymen must give themselves wholly to the work, and a well-planned and coordinated thrust must be made. Mrs. R. L. Badgley did much of the planning and coordinating through the Lay Activities department of the church to bring order and direction to the Yakima evangelistic thrust both during the "sowing" and "reaping" phases. The planning, plus the work of dedicated laymen working with pastors and evangelist, is essential to the total program of bringing souls to Christ.

Yakima Bible Story Hour

Sister Montzella Coleman has been conducting a Bible Story Hour in her home in Yakima, Washington, since last October. When asked what had prompted her to begin this project, she explained that she had felt dissatisfied with her "idleness" and determined to do something about it. Accordingly, she visited the homes in her neighborhood, inviting the boys and girls to her home every Sunday afternoon, and as a result it was only a few weeks until fifty children were enrolled, both Negro and white, ages three to fourteen.

The good lessons taught since the beginning of this program have made an impression on young minds, as intimated by the parents. They tell how their children have been heard repeating the things learned. One little girl, just eight years old, was especially impressed with the lessons taught and expressed her desire to be baptized. She said she wanted to give her heart to Jesus.

Well-known Bible stories have been taught to the children and they are able to tell these stories in their own words. Also, they have worked diligently at memorizing the Ten Commandments, the Lord's Prayer, the Beatitudes and the books of the Bible.

The boys and girls learned the joy of helping others by participating in a scrapbook project. As a result, they completed four lovely scrapbooks which are distributed to nursing homes in the area. They have also helped with the Investment program and the nickels and dimes they brought have added up to over $25 for this worthy project.

Sister Coleman has not been left to conduct this program alone. Many volunteers, both from the Lower Naches church and the Yakima church have contributed their time and efforts to help make the program a success. One volunteer remarked: "These Story Hours are lots of work, but we know they are always worthwhile."

Sister Coleman was amazed at how a small beginning grew, and she says: "I certainly have no time for 'idleness' now."

Have You
Heard

Have you heard that there are other advantages than the avoidance of probate when you write a Trust Agreement with the Conference? Well, it is true that many benefits accrue when one makes the Conference the Trustee of his property. We will list some of them:

1. The Trustee (Conference) assumes the responsibility of the handling and distribution of your estate, which is much better than having placed this burden on any one individual.
2. When the property has been placed in trust the Trustor may take note as to how it is cared for, etc., and any changes may be made at any time since the Trustor retains complete control as long as he lives.
3. Since the property held is not subject to probate it does not enter upon the court records, and therefore, does not become public knowledge.

4. Upon one's demise the Trustee immediately assumes the responsibility of caring for the needs of the family, and also there is very little delay in the settling of the estate, as compared to the process of the probate court.

5. Since the assets have been transferred when one is living, it is very unlikely that your wishes for the distribution of your property can be contested on the grounds of incapacity, duress, or fraud.

These advantages of a Revocable Trust arrangement with the Conference Association are just some of the many which might be cited but which space prohibits. We would suggest you contact your Conference Trust Department for further information in this regard.

Isolated Members

There are two isolated members of the Osburn church; however, they are actually in service for their Heavenly Father.

Sister Hettie Adams lives in the mining town of Mullan and is unable to attend church services due to the lack of public transportation. Nevertheless, her "light" shines through actual work in the Dorcas Health and Welfare Society. It seems that she has forgotten the number of quilts and comforters which she pieced and tied for those in need.

Sister Nellie Boslington is also isolated on the North Fork River. She moved to this area as a young bride and has lived here for fifty years. Faithfully through the years she has given witness to her faith in the second coming of Christ. In recent times, Sister Boslington has not enjoyed the best of health and last December she lost her home through fire. Tested by affliction, trial and isolation, we are told that her faith is stronger than ever. For this she gives credit to God's Word which she has studied diligently and memorized many portions.

May the Lord continue His blessings upon our isolated members.

Elder Woodruff Heads Ministerial Association

Elder William Woodruff is the newly elected president of the Walla Walla area Ministerial Association for the 1969-70 year. The Seventh-day Adventist Church is one of 16 denominations whose local pastors and associate pastors attend the monthly meetings September through May.

The 20 to 30 member association seeks to give the best of their faith and works to the community through fellowship and service.

Ministerial Association meetings are held at different community locations each month. When meeting at each of the Walla Walla hospitals the clergymen enlist the help of the hospital staffs in making their ministry to the patients more effective. At the penitentiary meetings, ways and means are discussed for communicating Christ to those who have lost contact with their church.

The Rescue Mission at the west end of Main Street—a place where those who have found Jesus share Him, and those who have not find food and shelter, and their Saviour—is supported by the Ministerial Association.

The speaker for the Walla Walla High School graduation consecration service is provided by the Association. Through joint Easter services, outdoor religious programs in the City park, church at the Odd Fellows Home, and a variety of other ways the Ministerial Association reaches out to those who cannot or would not otherwise come to weekly services.

Elder Woodruff will lead the spiritual leaders in the area for a year as they endeavor to meet the diverse needs of many people and many denominations.

Little Floating School Brings Big Results

It is nice to know of the progress that our church schools are making in Alaska. But there is a little government school located in the Adventist logging camp of Roger and Murray Gildersleeve near Ketchikan that is doing a wonderful work for Adventist children. The enrollment this year was approximately fifteen.

This school has an Adventist teacher, Mrs. Stanley Sargeant, known as Genevieve to many of us. Genevieve is an artist and has had art exhibits in her school which have been "breathtaking" as her mother puts it in a letter written to Walla Walla friends. "No wonder the fame of this school and its art department (and teacher) has spread all over southeast Alaska."

Still quoting from the mother, Alice Gildersleeve, "We had two graduates, Aleta Crooks and Peggy Floyd." Pastor Dawson from Juneau flew in to give their graduation address. "He is to be the skipper on our new Mission boat, the Messenger III." Alice Gildersleeve gave the welcome address, sort of a tradition, as chairman of the Advisory School Board.

Fifteen have received diplomas from this little eight-grade school in recent years. All have gone to our academies, and seven, at least, have gone to our college. Perhaps a question arises in your minds how these children were ready for our academy coming from a government school. No Bible is taught there. Alice Gildersleeve, a teacher for many years, under the supervision of the Conference taught the Bible classes for each grade in her own little trailer house home on the float.

Former Mission President Visits School

It was a real pleasure to receive a visit from Elder A. L. Zumwalt, former Alaska Mission president, as he toured Alaska during the 1969 spring meeting circuit.

Elder Zumwalt served in Alaska sixteen years, first as treasurer of the Mission and Book and Bible House manager, and then as president of the Elder A. L. Zumwalt visited Alaska on a speaking tour and discussed the work of the Bristol Bay Mission School with students Allen Ticket of Selawik and Susie Westcoast of Aleknagik.

Elder A. L. Zumwalt, former president, and Elder J. C. Hansen, present president, enjoy an understanding of the challenges of mission work in Alaska as they visited at the Alaska booth at the recent Youth's Congress.

Mission from 1948 to December of 1961. Elder Zumwalt expressed his pleasure and appreciation in being able to renew old acquaintances and meet the many new folks who have moved to America's last frontier.

Students and staff at the Mission School especially enjoyed Elder Zumwalt's stories of the trials and brave adventures of the earlier days of the school. He reminisced that the school was started in September of 1945 and that he first saw it in the spring of 1946. Eleanor Smith and Mrs. Fred Wagner were teachers and Elder Wagner added school maintenance duties to his work of being district pastor. Mrs. Ethel Ball was matron and cook.

Elder Zumwalt remembered an incident which led to the opening of the Bristol Bay Mission School. Several families had taken needy native children into their homes. Many were concerned about providing a Christian education for the young people.

A Pilot Point mother on her deathbed asked Elder Wagner to see that her children received a Christian education. An uncle, responsible for the children in the local culture, consigned them to the Territorial Welfare Department. Elder Wagner had to stand helplessly by and see the children taken away. This experience gave him the driving impetus to start a school immediately. Elder Zumwalt remembered that it fired everyone to do something quickly. The Pilot Point children were lost to their mother's desires but a school was founded.

Elder Zumwalt smiled and shook his head as he looked back in memory to the humble beginning of the school. He said that on an early visit to the school he found Mrs. Ball wading around doing her work wearing shoe packs. The kitchen was full of water but business went on as usual. The tops of the dining tables were at least dry. There was a wood-burning stove, and water had to be carried by hand and heated in tubs. A lean-to housed a gasoline engine light plant to brighten the long winter nights.

"How much I appreciate the great changes in the school," Elder Zumwalt said. The work of the school is important enough that it has survived serious setbacks and problems down through the years. From a rustic beginning the school has grown to become an attractive, modern facility serving the North Pacific Union as a mission school for the native work in Alaska. Your generous support through the years has built a school which is a credit to our goals and ideals. We thank you for it. With your help we will continue to serve.

Watch for special Alaska features next week.

What a Surprise!

The Armed Services Branch of the YMCA in Anchorage calls on various civic organizations and church groups to help provide both food and entertainment for single servicemen each Sunday.

The social committee of the Anchorage Seventh-day Adventist church accepted the invitation and the challenge to feed the hungry GI's. The Director was informed that it would be a vegetarian dinner. It was amusing to observe these servicemen return for their second helping, and then watch the expressions on their faces as it was announced that they were finishing their first "meatless" meal. One of the men was heard to say, "I still believe there was meat in those meatballs!"

Various church members were present to help with the dinner and visit with the GI's. The YMCA and all the servicemen expressed their appreciation for the "wonderful dinner," and the hospitality given by the church.

In addition to studying diet, cooking and homemaking, Mission school students undertake major sewing projects. They are measured in their progress by their ability to help others.

Girls Learn Practical Skills

The home economics department of the Bristol Bay Mission School continues to follow our emphasis on practical and culturally appropriate training. Under Mrs. Faith Kenney's instruction, the willing students have been able to complete major sewing projects again this year. The school brochure says "in all our practical education we work to teach the young people to use the things they have learned to help others." Young people at the school are urged to be more than consumers. They must learn to help others. Part of our educational program is this goal of having the students take the things they have learned back to their own villages.

Our sewing equipment now includes some portable electric machines, thanks to friends who have donated equipment to the school. Much of our program depends upon direct donation of goods and funds, and we appreciate your generosity and willingness to help us.

At the close of the school year the students displayed samples of their cooking and modeled clothing they had made. Their accomplishments were a gratification to those who had worked to help them. We can report a year of good student progress. The Bristol Bay Mission School is a work of the North Pacific Union that you can regard with pride.

Write-A-Dietitian

Question:

I am anxious to give my family the most nutritious meals. Is there danger of nutrient loss in cooking foods? Is there a difference of losses in fresh, frozen or canned foods?

Answer:

A certain percentage of raw foods, especially fruits and vegetables, is desirable in the diet, but it is obviously necessary to cook foods both for palatability and digestibility. Some of the iron and a large portion of "B" vitamins (primarily thiamine) and vitamin C will be dissolved in cooking water and lost if foods are cut too small, cooked in large amounts of water, or cooked too long. Since thiamine is easily destroyed by heat and vitamin C by oxidation, some losses of these vitamins are unavoidable.

If the housewife follows a few simple rules for food purchasing, storage and preparation, she can keep nutrient loss at a minimum.

Some of these rules are:

Buy fresh vegetables and fruits that are well-formed, fresh, and crisp. Wilted foods have lost some vitamins. Try to eat most fresh fruits and vegetables within a week of purchase. Keep most raw vegetables and fruits in the refrigerator. Potatoes, turnips, and fresh citrus fruits do not need to be refrigerated, but should be kept cool. Fruit juices should be refrigerated. Frozen foods should be kept frozen until used. Thawing and refreezing causes the quality of the foods to deteriorate.

When cooking vegetables use a minimum amount of water, a minimum cooking time, and minimum exposure of surface area to reduce nutrient loss. Root vegetables are best cooked in their jackets. Pressure cooking, steaming or quickly cooking in a tightly covered container with only enough water to prevent scorching permits good retention of most nutrients in vegetables. The material of which the cooking utensil is made has little or no effect on retention of the nutrients in foods.

Frozen vegetables contain a high proportion of the nutrients originally present. Commercially canned vegetables

Evangelism in the Tacoma Area

For several years now a strong program has been conducted in the Tacoma area through TV, White Bible, and Code-a-phone evangelism. At times it appeared that this work was not paying off too well, but in recent weeks a city-wide evangelistic program was conducted under the direction of J. Reynolds Hoffman as guest speaker, and Brother and Sister Bernie Paulson as directors of music. The three churches of the area: Tacoma Central, Tacoma Southside, and Tahoma were associated together in this campaign.

The Lord blessed with over forty souls and some excellent experiences during this campaign.

We wish to thank Elder Hoffman and the Paulsons for their untiring efforts during these meetings. We also wish to express appreciation to all who so faithfully supported these meetings.

In Memoriam

Dr. J. V. Peters

Doctor Jonathan V. Peters 54, principal of Auburn Academy, died on Monday afternoon, June 16, shortly after arrival at the Enumclaw Community Memorial Hospital. Doctor Peters and his family had gone to Sunset Lake Youth Camp on Monday morning for a week of rest and relaxation.

Doctor Peters had apparently gone for a walk in the woods on Monday afternoon. When Mrs. Peters missed him, a search was instituted and he was found lying on the ground unconscious. An ambulance was called and he was rushed to the hospital.

For nine years Doctor Peters had suffered from severe migraine headaches. During the past few months this condition became more acute and he found it increasingly difficult to carry his heavy responsibilities. In spite of failing health he carried forward a strong program right up to the time of his death.

Doctor Peters' strong leadership at Auburn Academy has been greatly appreciated by the constituency of the Washington Conference. His sudden and untimely passing is a great loss to the Washington Conference and the denomination as a whole.

Doctor Peters had a very keen interest in industrial education. The family requested that instead of sending flowers, those who desired to show their appreciation for his life and service, make a contribution to the Washington Conference for the Peters Vocational Fund. Other friends may wish to add to this fund.

Doctor Peters was born on April 20, 1915, of missionary parents, who were serving at that time at Espirito Santo, Brazil. The family returned to the United States in 1919, and Doctor Peters spent the rest of his childhood years in North Dakota. He attended Shyenne River Academy, from which he graduated in 1931. He began his college work at Minot State College in North Dakota. He graduated from Bemidji, Minnesota, in 1936, with a major in industrial arts.

The years 1936-1939 he spent at Shyenne River Academy as boys' dean. The 1939-40 school year he served as principal of the same school.

He spent the next four years as principal of Plainview Academy at Redfield, South Dakota. The following year he served as principal of Maplewood Academy at Hutchinson, Minnesota. From there he went to Southwestern Junior College at Keene, Texas, where he served as president for eight years, from 1945 to 1953.

From 1954 to 1959 he served as principal of Upper Columbia Academy at Spangle, Washington. Then from 1960 to 1963 he served at Walla Walla College as an instructor in the education department.

For the 1964-65 school year he returned to principal's work, as principal of Gem State Academy at Caldwell, Idaho, after which he returned to Walla Walla College as head of the department of education from 1965 to 1968. He came to Auburn in March of 1968 where he served as principal of Auburn Academy until his sudden death on June 16.

During his 36 years in education work, Doctor Peters continued his own educational study. He secured a master's degree in education from the University of Idaho in 1942. He spent one year, the 1959-1960 school year, working on his doctorate in education at San Jose State. He completed this work at the University of Montana during the 1963-64 school year.

As a teacher, Doctor Peters' specialties were Bible, history, German, and industrial arts. He was universally loved by his students. Others always came first in his thinking.

Doctor Peters is survived by three sons, Doctor Warren Peters, who just graduated from medicine at Loma Linda University, Merwin, who is attending the University of Washington, and Wendall, who is studying at Auburn Academy; his wife, Frances; his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. I. F. Morgan of Madera, California; two sisters, Lila Dietel of Madera and Rozanna de Bedts of Vienna, Austria; and two grandchildren.

Funeral services for Doctor Peters were held at the Price Helton Funeral Home in Auburn on June 19 at 10:00 a.m. Officiating ministers were Elder W. L. Murrill, president of the Washington Conference; Elder G. S. Balharrie, chairman of the Religion Department of Walla Walla College; Elder Joe Engelkemier, Bible teacher at Auburn Academy and pastor; Jerry Miller, a former student of Doctor Peters, and now Bible teacher at Laurelwood Academy. Interment was in Mountain View Cemetery at Auburn.

Gifts to God

Reserves that families wisely accumulate in the form of savings accounts for use in times of emergency or during old age can be a great blessing to the cause of God if deposited for safekeeping in the treasury of the conference association.

Such funds may be deposited at any time, but it is to the advantage of the depositor to withdraw such money at the end of an interest period such as July 1 and then deposit the money in the association treasury by the 10th of the month, where it begins earning from the first of the month just as though it were in a bank.

Part or all of the money on deposit may be withdrawn at any time by merely filling out a simple withdrawal slip and mailing it to the conference association office.

This money proves to be a great blessing to the work of God now when it is needed so much. Not only does the cause need the money, but you, God's faithful steward, need the blessing that comes from having done all you could in this crucial time.

Just put the money in your savings account into your checking account and then you will be in a position to transfer your funds. Another simple way is to merely sign a transfer of funds form that we will provide and submit that form with the savings book, and we will be glad to transfer the money for you.

'Abundant Living' Classes Held in Corvallis

The promise of John 10:10, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly," has given new, here-and-now perspective to the Christian experience of 75-100 persons who have attended the "Abundant Living" class series recently ended in Corvallis.

A portion of the group in attendance scans new recipe sheets just distributed after one Sunday night lecture.

Dr. Harry J. Weber, who left his practice of surgery two years ago to devote full time to writing a book on the physiology of aging, assisted by his wife, Velda, also a medical doctor and practicing anesthesiologist at the local Good Samaritan Hospital, provided class instruction. Both are graduates of Loma Linda University.

Dr. Weber based his lecture material on latest scientific research together with practical admonition found in the inspired writings of the Spirit of Prophecy. Slides illustrated each Sunday night lecture of the series which started the first week of February in the Pathfinder clubhouse.

Beginning with an explanation of man's physiology, the doctor presented the "whys" for healthful living—stressing a program of exercise, rest, fresh air, and proper diet. He emphasized, largely, the necessity of returning to the natural products of the earth, God's original plan for man's diet, as found in fruits, vegetables, grains, and nuts; always paralleling these statements from inspired exhortation with facts and findings of medical science—the American Heart Association, Cancer Society, etc.

This new light, though not new for it has existed in the words of inspiration for many decades, on the habits of impoverished diet followed by most Americans, even Seventh-day Adventists, brought to class participants a realization of the need for "righting" these wrong habits. To assist in this need, Dr. Velda Weber, Mrs. Frank B. Phillips, the pastor's wife, and Mrs. Russell Bonlie furnished vegetarian recipes and food samples. Assisting in another area, Dr. H. Dale Warren presented a session on dental health and its dangers and effects on the total physical health.

Many changes to good, or better, habits of diet and living have resulted from this series of classes which attracted numerous individuals, encouraged by the faithful attendance of Elder and Mrs. Ed Eigenberg, from as far as Lebanon and Sweet Home. Others attended regularly from Alsea and Philomath. One person attending the classes is a Mormon whose interest effected an invitation for Dr. Weber to speak to his congregation. Another, a local high school teacher, has attended through an interest growing out of her own health problems and discussions of these with her Adventist physician and dentist.

Demand for a follow-up program has already set in motion the plans for a series next fall and expansion of the overall program to reach out to include specific community interests.

A contact with the foods editor of the local daily newspaper, The Corvallis Gazette-Times, resulted in an interview with the doctors and a half-page feature in her weekly foods section. She also plans to feature, at a later date, the ladies who supplied recipes and their vegetarian cookery.

Elder and Mrs. Phillips worked closely and untiringly with the Doctors Weber in coordinating and presenting the classes which have proved a real blessing to those who attended and wish to follow a way of "abundant living" in this life that leads to the more abundant and eternal life to come.

Big Lake Improvements

Ready to be unloaded is the new 50KW diesel power unit recently purchased to furnish electric power for Big Lake Youth Camp. This new machine replaces the old Buda which was destroyed by fire when the power-house burned during Thanksgiving vacation last fall. The larger unit will furnish adequate, as well as reserve, power for the entire camp.

All who are privileged to use the camp facilities will be pleased to know that hot showers are being placed in the rest rooms in time for the medical-ministerial retreat. Added comfort is also offered by the two large forced air heaters in the dining hall.

Mr. Tom Sheldon, a piano and organ instructor at Laurelwood Academy, has built a small organ in his home from pipes made by Gebruder Kas in Germany. He is demonstrating one of the smallest pipes to students Jan Hall and Bill Apt. The size is called "H" instead of "A#" in Germany. Mr. Sheldon has already begun using the organ for practicing and teaching purposes. The organ will be a part of Laurelwood's outstanding music curriculum this fall.

Applications are rolling in, giving good indication that the new scholarship program is already helping to build enrollment. College counselors have been selected and plans for camp are complete. A special, relaxed program has been planned for youth 14-16 years of age.

The entire program will now be especially adapted for five age groups from nine to sixteen years. All youth should now be making plans for a week of fun, fellowship and activity at Big Lake Youth Camp.

Redmond Kindergarten

Two years ago the Redmond church asked Mrs. Lamare Van Tassel to operate a kindergarten in the vacant room of their church school. Roberta threw herself heart and soul into the project, and soon she had a flourishing kindergarten underway. Though some of the mothers felt their children were not getting such "valuable" subjects as dancing, they were nevertheless willing to leave their children in the school when the teacher explained our position as Adventists.

Since the kindergarten was opened on a non-sectarian basis, Roberta could not teach any religion, but she did have the children say grace when she served them cookies and punch at 11:00. Of course she tried to teach them to build right principles into their characters

Pastor Larry Boyd of the University Park Church conducted his youth baptismal class in a place where there would be no disturbance! The class was conducted in what is believed to be the largest big leaf maple in the world, located at the Les Douglas farm on Sauvie Island.

any Bible. Beth, her little daughter—despite the fact she could not teach the only Adventist in the room—was a real little missionary, however, and she could tell her playmates about Sabbath school.

This year the classroom was packed with the parents of the 15 children who received their diplomas at the "graduation ceremony."

News in Brief . . .

★ Cottage Grove's Sentinel notes the annual disaster and famine relief offering for the church as $208. A three-column picture of the church's children shows them holding the bread banks with 15 pounds of money.

★ Mrs. Edith Darnell, Cottage Grove press secretary now averaging more than 100 inches of copy per month in the press, has found a new tool for evangelism. She keeps her press notebook on the coffee table. Friends and neighbors stopping by find it a conversation piece—and get more facts on the church! This courageous reporter even dares to submit to Eugene's Register-Guard and the Oregonian—and gets the stories printed!

Taylor Grant Bunch

This is the story of a big man—big in so many ways for a long period of time—a span of over four score years. He was a big man physically—he stood six feet two inches tall. Named Taylor Grant after two famous United States generals, he spent his boyhood on his parents' farm in heavily timbered southwest Oregon. There he developed habits of working vigorously for long hours. This laid the foundation of a strong, healthy body which he maintained throughout his life.

Taylor G. Bunch

Elder Bunch was the pastor of large Adventist churches across the continent: New Orleans, Lincoln, Seattle, Portland, Loma Linda, Battle Creek, South Lancaster and Sligo at Takoma Park, D. C. He was a great student and scholar. His sermons, articles and books gave evidence of long, painstaking hours of research and careful, prayerful study. While he was pastor in South Lancaster and Takoma Park, he lectured regularly in the religion department of the colleges. For six years he had charge of the department of religion of Loma Linda University. An indefatigable author, he wrote more than twenty books, besides an impressive list of articles which were published in Adventist journals.

Elder Bunch as an administrator was president of three conferences—Southern Oregon, Idaho, and Michigan. His advice and counsel were always appreciated as a member of such institutional boards of trustees as those of Walla Walla College, Portland Sanitarium, Andrews University, Atlantic Union College and Columbia Union College.

He was a big man in spiritual things. Devout, dedicated, and entirely devoted to Christ, his was always a clear, strong voice for the consecrated life.

Elder Bunch went to sleep in Jesus in Portland, Oregon, Sunday morning, May 25, having reached the age of 83 years. Born in Myrtle Point, Oregon, to Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton Bunch, he was the second in a pioneer family of four boys and three girls.

Among Elder Bunch's survivors are his wife, Linea of Portland, Ore.; a son, Melvin of Salem, Ore.; two brothers: Claude of Lodi, Calif., and Walter of College Place, Wash.; three sisters: Mrs. Ines Rockwell of Portland, Ore., Mrs. Irma Summerlin of College Place, Wash., and Mrs. Ted Tibbot of Salem, Ore.; four grandchildren: Harold Rudolph and Mrs. Linda Clinkscales of Portland, Ore., James Bunch of Bellingham, Wash., and Robert Bunch of Beaverton, Ore., and four great-grandchildren.

Weddings

Charles White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan White of Belgrade, Montana, and Linda Smith, daughter of Pastor and Mrs. Preston Smith of Red Bluff, California, were united in marriage at the Red Bluff SDA church on June 1. The bride's father officiated. Charles and Linda will make their home near Bozeman, Montana.

Mary Wiemerslage of Mountlake Terrace, Washington, and James Collins of Olympia were united in marriage on Sunday afternoon, June 8, in the Volunteer Park church, Seattle. Elder William E. Baxter, Jr., officiated. They are living in Tacoma for the present time. Jim will soon be entering the service. May God's blessings go with them as they form a new Christian home together.

Wedding vows were exchanged June 8, between Shirley Ginter and Bill Pellow at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, in the new Seventh-day Adventist church. Elder E. J. Royer officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Ginter of Fairfield, Washington, and the bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Ray Pellow of Spokane.

Karla Krampert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Krampert of Kenosha, Wisconsin, and Kenneth Walters, son of Dr. and Mrs. T. W. Walters of Portland, Oregon, were married on June 8 in the Kenosha Seventh-day Adventist church. The groom's father officiated at the ceremony. The couple will be at home in Berkeley, California, where Kenneth is completing a graduate degree.

Lynda Teske became the bride of Steve Litchfield in a beautiful afternoon service on June 1 in the Pendleton Seventh-day Adventist church. The ceremony united two young people whose lives are dedicated to service for humanity. May the blessing of the Lord rest upon this couple as they continue their education at Walla Walla College.

On the evening of June 12 Patt Groschelle and Jim Stream were united in marriage in the Seattle Green Lake church. The service was made especially pleasant by the presence of friends and relatives from many parts of the United States. Patt and Jim will establish their first home at Washington, D. C., where Jim will continue in the service of our country.

In a lovely afternoon ceremony held June 15, Julia Norman and John Darrow exchanged wedding vows in the Auburn City church. Mr. and Mrs. Darrow will make their home at College Place where they will continue their education at Walla Walla College. May heaven's richest blessings attend this Christian couple.

Ann Elizabeth DeBoer and Jeffrey Ross Ward were united in marriage in the Conard Hall chapel on the Walla Walla College campus. Both had been students there with the bridegroom graduating this spring. Elder Gordon Balharrie officiated. The couple is at home in Portland this summer and will go to West Virginia in September where Mr. Ward will serve as a pastor-teacher in the West Virginia Conference.

Margaret Konzack and Robert Kohoutek were united in marriage in the beautiful chapel of the College Place Village church the morning of June 16. Mr. and Mrs. Kohoutek will be residing at Silverton, Oregon, where the groom is employed. We wish for this new home God's abundant blessing.

Barbara Rene Pegel and Michael Darwin Preas both of College Place, Washington, were united in marriage with a cathedral style wedding service in the sanctuary of the new College Place Seventh-day Adventist church on June 8. Their pastor, William L. Woodruff, officiated. The Preases will establish their new home in College Place while Mike continues his studies at Walla Walla College.

Kathryn Kinzer of College Place, Washington, and Donald Grosse of Pullman, Washington, were united in marriage in the Walla Walla College church on June 15, with Elder William Woodruff officiating. Both Don and Kathy are graduates of Walla Walla College and they plan to establish their home in Pullman, Washington, where Don is working on a doctoral program in biology at the University of Washington. We pray that the Lord will bless this new Christian home.

Michael John Bighaus and Judith Helen Hays were united in marriage June 8, in a lovely candlelight ceremony, in the Scappoose-St. Helens Seventh-day Adventist church. The couple will take up temporary residence at Fort Worth, Texas, while the groom completes his military term of service having served in Vietnam. The bride is a recent graduate of the Walla Walla College School of Nursing. The groom will attend Walla Walla College in the fall where he plans to study for the ministry. Elder Letcher L. Huntington officiated.

On Sunday afternoon, June 15, in the Puyallup Seventh-day Adventist church, Karen K. Zaugg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer G. Zaugg, became the bride of Lawrence W. Shephard, son of Dr. and Mrs. Donald W. Shephard, in a beautiful wedding ceremony performed by Dr. William H. Shephard, uncle of the groom. The young couple are graduates of Auburn Academy, and both attended Walla Walla College. They will be home after July first in Loma Linda, California, where the groom will be enrolled in the School of Physical Therapy.

Loye Lynne Chang and C. James Nesbit II were united in holy matrimony by Elder Paul Grove in the Village church chapel, Sunday afternoon, June 8. After a summer in western Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Nesbit will be interning in the West Virginia Conference. We pray the Lord's richest blessing on this new home.

Sharon Louise McCart of Edmonds, Washington, and Wayne Alan Searson of Bothell, Washington, exchanged wedding vows on the evening of June 22. The lovely ceremony was conducted in Seattle's Greenlake church. Elder William E. Baxter, Jr., officiated as this new Christian home was formed. Wayne will continue his education at Walla Walla College this fall. Sharon, who has taught in Mountlake Terrace the past two years, will teach in the Walla Walla area.

Teachers Returning From Graduate Study

Returning to the campus in September from extended doctoral study leaves are Dale O. Wagner, assistant professor of education, and H. Lloyd Leno, assistant professor of music.

Professor Wagner, whose M.Ed. degree is from EWSC, studied toward the doctor of education degree at the University of Idaho, Moscow, on a five-quarter leave. He has completed all class work and is this summer working on his dissertation. He is a member of the Washington State Psychological Association and is Washington State certified as a school psychologist. Fall quarter he will be teaching in areas of counseling and psychology.

Professor Leno, at the University of Arizona, Tucson, has passed his comprehensive examinations and completed all class work for the doctor of musical arts in brass performance.

On the college campus he teaches conducting, gives private lessons on wind and percussion instruments, and conducts the College Band and Wind Ensemble.

Mrs. Lester Border, instructor in home economics, completed work for the M.S. in Home Economics degree during a two-quarter study leave at the University of Washington. She will be receiving the degree at the August commencement.

Majoring in institution management in the area of foods and nutrition, Mrs. Border also becomes a registered member of the American Dietetics Association. On the college campus she will teach foods and institution management.

Donald French, instructor in English studying at WSU, received the master's degree and has already begun study toward the doctorate in English.

New Teachers

Dr. Gertrude Gibson comes to WWC as chairman of the department of secretarial science and professor of business education from Atlantic Union College where she has held a similar position since 1957.

An alumna of WWC, she began her teaching career in academies in the North Pacific Union before going to teaching and secretarial positions in California and later in New England. The new faculty member holds the M.A. degree from Columbia University and the doctor of education degree from Boston University.

Dr. Gibson succeeds Dr. Evelyn Rittenhouse, chairman of the department of secretarial science since 1955, who now goes to PUC as chairman of the department of secretarial science there.

Dr. Alfred E. Perry, experienced teacher, joins the faculty of the biology department as assistant professor, coming from Memphis State University where he has taught for the past four years. Other teaching positions were at Union College, Oklahoma State University, and the University of Mississippi, as well as in secondary schools.

The new teacher's fields of specialization are mammalogy, ornithology, herpetology, ecology and biostatistics.

Born in Pendleton, a graduate of Columbia Academy, Dr. Perry took both bachelor's and master's degrees in biology from WWC. His Ph.D. degree is from Oklahoma State University where he was a research assistant.

Harold Ochs, candidate for the Ed.D. degree, joins the department of education faculty in September as assistant professor of education.

A successful teacher on the secondary level, Professor Ochs will have charge of secondary school teacher training. He succeeds Professor Robert Wagner who has accepted a position as Superintendent of Education for the Washington Conference.

Professor Ochs, a WWC graduate, holds the M.Ed. from Eastern Washington State College. His work toward the doctorate is in supervision.

Robert Tupper Wins Regional AGO Competition

Robert Tupper, June 1, 1969, graduate with a bachelor of music degree in organ performance, was the winner in the American Guild of Organists regional Young Artists' competition in Seattle, June 23.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Tupper, Portland, Oregon, the young organist studied with Dr. Melvin K. West for four years, and preceding that with Jim Welty of Portland. He has been accepted for graduate study at the University of Oklahoma for a master's degree program in organ performance starting this fall. He will study organ with Mildred Andrews, known for her successful teaching and for her master classes.

On the WWC campus, Tupper gave his senior recital April 13 and a recent concert in the College church, June 17. He is also interested in composing. He performed his own composition, "Sonata Breva," at the First Inland Composers' Symposium at Washington State University in March.

Doctor Thurston Retires

Dr. Claude Thurston, head of Loma Linda Foods' research division, has retired after eight years with the company. Dr. Thurston is well known in denominational circles, having served at one time in the Philippines, and for many years was in charge of the chemistry department at Walla Walla College.

Dr. Thurston's interest in chemistry and other science students has been well known, and his former students are engaged in positions of responsibility not only in denominational circles, but elsewhere.

Dr. Thurston and his wife are well known to the Pacific Northwest, as much of his teaching career was spent in the area and at Walla Walla College. He also attended Washington State University and the University of Washington.

I am sure the host of friends of Dr. and Mrs. Thurston will wish them well in their future years of retirement.

WERNER E. CARLSON
