

Faith For Today's 500th Film Aired

In November Faith for Today's 500th film went on the air on major television stations throughout North America. Entitled "When the End Begins," this film, a milestone in religious telecasting, is a sermon documentary. Pastor W. A. Fagal shows how the nearness of the coming of Christ is demonstrated by fast-moving current events. In succeeding months it will be aired on the remainder of Faith for Today's 268 stations.

The telecast's 500 half-hour films that have been made for television use have been produced in the last fourteen years. Faith for Today prior to that presented the gospel "live" on television for five and a half years. During this time 250 additional programs were produced, making a total of 750 programs that Faith for Today has prepared since its inception.

The telecast celebrates its 20th anniversary in May, 1970. In the 20-year span since 1950, 15,224 precious souls have been baptized into Christ as the result of Faith for Today's ministry.

ASI CONVENTION REPORT

There they were—hundreds of them—Seventh-day Adventist laymen, businessmen and women with not only their hearts and lives, but their business enterprises dedicated to God.

Who were they? Where were they? They were the members of the ASI (Association of Adventist Self-Supporting Institutions). Some owners, others partners, managers, or personnel directors, but all were delegates to the North American Convention of ASI in the Di Lido Hotel, Miami Beach, Florida, November 12-16, 1969.

Why did they meet? To learn how to "labor together with God" and to better the witness of their lives.

As I watched, I could not help but think over and over again, this is what the Christian life is all about. This is Christianity in action. These people have their every-day activities, their businesses, all working for God.

Why haven't we been doing more of this, I wonder. Well, I learned that some far-seeing men and women have been doing just this long before ASI was organized in 1947. Working quietly, not well known, these people have formed the framework for an organization which is now rapidly expanding. In fact, Caris Lauda, executive secretary of the Association, reported 48 new member institutions have joined the group since their last biennial meeting in Minnesota two years ago.

This year's convention was a success from the start. Obviously well planned, the opening session set the pace for the convention. As we entered the meeting room, the song service had already begun. Ellsworth Reile and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Liebelt were singing "Sing Along Life's Pathway," then quickly changed to "Leaning On the Everlasting Arms" and asked the assembled delegates to join in singing the chorus. Liebelt is ASI secretary for the Southern Union Conference. Reile is president and ASI secretary of the Carolina Conference. The two men with Mrs. Liebelt sang well together.

As the song service continued, I looked around the room. On the wall above the platform was a banner that read, "A Word Fitly Spoken." Now what could that have to do with Christian businessmen and women in convention, I wondered. As I began to think it through I had to admit that it has just about everything to do with such a group. Words are the expression of the mind, the heart. They convey our message, our hopes, our mean-

Laing, M.D., director of South River Clinic, South River, Ontario, Canada; executive secretary and treasurer, Caris H. Lauda of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, Washington, D. C.; and president, Allan R. Buller, executive vice-president of Worthington Foods, Inc., Worthington, Ohio. The men were elected to a four-year term of office. Prior to this year's convention the term of office was for two years only.

Praise the Lord and Shout Victory!

What a spiritual thrill! Today's report swept every Conference and the Union to Ingathering victory in the 1970 crusade. It is good to see every Conference and Mission pass the basic goal to move ahead for new overflow attainments.

We believe every field will surpass all former overflow records. Let us do everything possible to advance the cause. We rejoice in the hundreds of requests coming through Ingathering for the Gift Bible study plan. God bless every church as you press forward to a final triumph achievement.

ing. Yes, the words of these men and women are important because they were present to learn how to better witness for God—how their lives, work and words might fit together—how they might form a picture easy to be seen and understood by all.

This is just the help and challenge the delegates received from their keynote speaker, Elder Neal C. Wilson, vice-president of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists for North America.

Wilson said, "The little attentions, the small simple courtesies, go far in making up the sum of life's patterns." and added, "thousands can be reached in the most simple, humble ways." (Patriarchs and Prophets, p. 158)

"The ASI is not an association designed to help you make a living," Wilson continued, "but to aid you in witnessing for Christ. In our work we must exceed ordinary good business practices, that we may give a distinctive witness for God."

To see and be near these people was to be caught up in their enthusiasm and dedication. The very act of dedicating their means of making a livelihood to the service of God seemed to infuse a spirit of dedication that is rarely seen in these days of sophistication and self-sufficiency.

Leading the convention this year was Allan R. Buller, president of ASI and vice-president of Worthington Foods, Inc., Worthington, Ohio. "Members of ASI are setting an example of living faith," Buller emphasized in his report to the delegates. "To make self-employment in service for God more meaningful, we are dedicated to Christianity and the principles for which the church stands," he concluded.

As I listened to the president's report and the summary that followed from Caris Lauda, executive secretary of the Association, I began to realize what a potential for God and the church the ASI holds. Lauda reported 206 members representing 180 institutions and industries that have a combined annual payroll of over 30 million dollars, property valued at more than 80 million and medical and nursing units with a patient capacity of 11,091 beds.

In addition to regular work in the communities they serve, these 180 institutions have given over $300,000 dollars of charitable help and treatments during the past year.

I was really surprised when Elder Lauda said, "the total of denominationally owned patient beds in North America is only 7,065." When compared with 11,091 beds represented by members of ASI, we get an idea of the impact these institutions and others owned and operated by Adventist laymen are making in the United States and Canada.

During one of the business sessions a new, "more indicative" name for the association was considered. Among the names suggested was: "The Association of Seventh-day Adventist Services and Industries." If given final approval, the name would retain the ASI initials that have marked the association since its inception. There were 69 regular and 37 delegates-at-large seated for the session. Other business included plans to expand the number of categories of businesses, owned by Seventh-day Adventist laymen, that may be eligible for membership in the future. Action on this plan was held for final decision until an assembly-appointed committee has time to study details of the plan and report back to a full delegation.

Guest speakers featured at the convention discussed topics ranging from food service to finance. Listed on the program were: J. W. Peeke, of the General Conference Insurance Service, Washington, D. C.; James Barclay, a management consultant from Western Springs, Illinois; Wayne Andrews, director of supervisory training, Westinghouse Electric Company, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Alonzo Baker, Ph.D., professor of political science, Loma Linda University, Loma Linda, California; Clinton Wall, food service director for Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Michigan; and Marvin H. Reeder, associate secretary of public relations, General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, Washington, D. C.

With such a dedicated group present it is not surprising that Sabbath services were a highlight of the five-day session. The day began with Sabbath school directed by Elder R. E. Pleasants, Jr., Sabbath school secretary for the Florida Conference. Representatives from the Inter-American Division presented the mission appeal.

The eleven o'clock hour message was presented by Elder Caris Lauda. He stressed the importance of all being "laborers together with God" remembering that "He who called the fishermen of Galilee is still calling men to His service. And He is just as willing to manifest His power through us as through the first disciples. However imperfect and sinful we may be, the Lord holds to us the offer of partnership with Himself, of apprenticeship to Christ. He invites us to come under the divine instruction, that, uniting with Christ, we may work the works of God."—Desire of Ages, p. 297.

"He longs to have you reach after Him by faith. He longs to have you expect great things from Him. He longs to give you understanding in temporal as well as in spiritual matters. He can sharpen the intellect. He can give tact and skill. Put your talents into the work, ask God for wisdom and it will be given you."—Christ's Object Lessons, p. 146.

"When we give ourselves wholly to God, and in our work follow His directions, He makes Himself responsible for its accomplishments. He would not have us conjecture as to the success of our honest endeavors. Not once should we even think of failure. We are to cooperate with One who knows no failure." C. S., p. 261.

Lauda also challenged the assembled delegates to be faithful in Sabbath observance in their homes and institutions, to be examples in healthful living and practice.

The final session of the convention was held Saturday night in the hotel ballroom. A banquet was provided and Dr. Alonzo Baker was guest speaker. His topic, "The Russo-Chinese Confrontation in Asia."

The New 'Liberty' Features Revamped Design, Layouts

What do you do when your magazine has to compete for attention with color TV, cinemaScope, the daily newspaper and other psychologically oriented media?

If you stand on past performance, you will likely tote up your circulation losses at the end of the year. Competing with the best Madison Avenue and Hollywood have to offer, the religious press suffered a seven percent decline during 1968.

"It is a real challenge to capture the attention of a basically pagan generation," admits Roland R. Hegstad, editor of Liberty, a magazine of religious freedom. "Though our circulation increased during 1969, we are not standing still. In January we are coming out with a streamlined look for the 70's.

Tapped to redesign Liberty was a bold young Adventist design artist, Mario Cortesi. Mario is a graduate of Brera Academy of Fine Art, Milan, Italy, where he specialized in graphic design. For three years he did general art work and design in Europe before moving to Canada.

Revamping the Liberty look from cover to cover was a complex job. "In redesigning Liberty I kept in mind that its readers are persons of repute—statesmen, lawyers, clergy, educators," said Mario. "The treatment called for both dignity and daring—dignity because its readers generally are men of education and aesthetic value, daring because they are too busy to be attracted by the mundane."

The philosophy of daring with dignity has led to a new concept on covers. What is so important about a catchy cover? It gets people into the magazine. Witness the testimony of a Kansas newspaper columnist who wrote about the July-August issue:

"Just as I was about to sail the latest copy of Liberty magazine into file 13 (Liberty is a publication sponsored by the Seventh-day Adventists), something on the cover caught my eye. Underneath a colorful portrait of an old corn-cob smoking gent wearing a colorful sports jacket, [and] of all things, a clerical collar, was this headline: 'Mail-Order Ministers.' . . ."

That newspaperman read the cover story and thumbed through the rest of the magazine before writing his column. Added evidence that eye-catching covers are worthwhile: More than 25 persons—mainly clergymen and lawyers—wrote asking for reprints of that photograph to frame and hang in their offices!

Liberty's commitment to Truth remains unchanged, its no-nonsense editorial policy still sticks, but the packaging is new and exciting. Don't miss it.

UPPER COLUMBIA

Pasco Intern

We are happy to introduce Pastor Donald Hall, a ministerial intern, working in the Pasco area of the Upper Columbia Conference.

Brother Hall is a 1968 graduate of Walla Walla College and is the originator of the Outdoor Club and the Outdoorsman for the Upper Columbia Conference.

Don's father is Elder Harold Hall of Miranda, California; and he is the nephew of the well-known flying missionary, Dick Hall. Mrs. Hall is also a graduate of Walla Walla College and is a native of Portland, Oregon. The Halls have one child, David, who is seven months old.

May the Lord's continued blessing be experienced by this dedicated, ministerial family.

Little Workers

The Chewelah Seventh-day Adventist church is thrilled by the initiative of their primary-kindergarten department. These youngsters, with their leaders, planned their goal of $100 at the beginning of 1969. Everyone thought this beyond their reach, but they made their goal plus $37 more.

Three of their projects included selling cake decorations, packages of unbreakable nylon combs, and the saving of Loma Linda labels by the church members.

The primary-kindergarten leaders are Nancie Burch and Joyce Hysom. They put forth great effort in behalf of the Investment plan.

In addition to the character development of our children, we believe God has made note of our efforts in the books of heaven.

The Investment leader for 1969 was Joyce Depner. She announces that the church has more than reached their objective of $600.

Walla Walla Valley Academy Classes Organize

Bright and early on Monday morning, November 17, the seniors met in the lecture hall of the Life Science Building for the purpose of organization. Robert Vixie was selected by the class as president, while Sandi Koenig was chosen as vice-president. Robert has attended Walla Walla Valley Academy three years, and Sandi, an accelerated student, is completing her third year.

Sandi Koenig and Bob Vixie discussing plans for the Class of 1970.

Other officers selected were as follows: Gordon Shiedler, chaplain; Annette Lepiane, secretary; Janice Durham, treasurer; and Mark Ewert, sergeant at arms. The class officers total eighteen years of schooling at Walla Walla Valley Academy. Mr. Blackwood and Mr. Rose will serve as sponsors to the class.

Steve Kinzer

Connie Preas

Tuesday evening, December 16, the Class of 1971 met in its organizational meeting at the Cascade Natural Gas Company auditorium in Walla Walla. Steve Kinzer was elected by his classmates as president, while Connie Preas was chosen as vice-president. Both Steve and Connie have attended Walla Walla Valley Academy all three years.

The class continued in their selection of officers by choosing Casey Higgins as chaplain, Donna Morrison as secretary, Margaret Craik as treasurer and Ken Emick as sergeant at arms. Eleven years at Walla Walla Valley Academy comprise the total years represented in the six officers. Mr. Greenley and Mrs. Loewen are the junior sponsors.

Congratulations to the graduating Classes of 1970 and 1971 for a fine slate of officers.

JUNIOR CLASS AT UCA CHEERS PATIENTS

For the third year in a row the Class of 1971 at Upper Columbia Academy voted to give up their annual Christmas party to cheer others. This year, as juniors, the 90-member class visited the Spokane Valley and Deaconess Hospitals in Spokane, where they sang Christmas carols and gave holly sprigs and evergreen corsages to patients. One of the nurses at Spokane Valley Hospital said, "They touched the patients' hearts. I saw a lot of the patients with tears in their eyes. They enjoyed the singing so much."

Sutherlin Dedicates Sanctuary

Sabbath, November 22, Sutherlin Seventh-day Adventists and their friends gathered to dedicate their beautiful sanctuary to God free of debt. The service was the culmination of four years of dedicated planning and work. Ground was broken for the new church on April 4, 1965. By January 29, 1966,

1. Sutherlin Seventh-day Adventist Church.

2. Gathered for the Service of Dedication.

3. Pastor George Reid narrates Milo Academy choir program at Sutherlin.

4. Sutherlin Mayor Lloyd Rapp lights match to burn note of indebtedness held by Pastor Victor Rice, former Pastor Elmer Unterseher, and local elder Dr. Clifford Hein.

5. Four of the five pastors of the Sutherlin church since its district designation in 1957 were present for the Dedication: Elders Harry Sharp, now of Klamath Falls; John Todorovich, Mt. Tabor pastor; Elmer Unterseher, Forest Grove; and current Pastor Victor Rice. Elder Ben Evans is now deceased.

6. Sutherlin ladies serve the Sabbath lunch with high efficiency.

7. Sutherlin Adventist history includes: (Back row, center), Elder H. L. Rudy, Southern Oregon Missionary Volunteer and Education Secretary, 1924-25; (Middle Row, left to right), Othel Cook, baptized in Sutherlin in 1925; Mrs. Lillian Braaten, a member since 1924; Mrs. Rudy; Arthur Wallen, a member in 1922; (Front row, left to right), Mrs. Eliza Norris was with the church in 1921; Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Holmes, continuous members since 1924.

The dedicatory occasion marked another significant milestone in Sutherlin Seventh-day Adventist history. The church had its beginning in a school, the Sutherlin Academy, and the Oakland Seventh-day Adventist church. This school had a predecessor in the Royal Academy. It was operated from 1906 to 1921 and was located west of Cottage Grove at Royal, Oregon.

In 1919 the Southern Oregon Conference purchased the "Sutherlin Hotel" building and established the Sutherlin Academy. The influx of Seventh-day Adventists attracted by the school required a church. Since the Oakland Seventh-day Adventist church, organized in 1910 or 1911, was nearby, the two groups of believers united and organized the Sutherlin Seventh-day Adventist church May 3, 1919. Each Sabbath the services of the church were conducted in the school chapel.

In 1926, when the Sutherlin Academy was discontinued, the five-acre tract on which the new church stands was purchased for $325. Three buildings given by the Southern Oregon Conference were moved to this location and became the church and school plant. The school was known as the Sutherlin Junior Academy. The building now used as a welfare center was the original Oakland Seventh-day Adventist church building.

Between 1953 and 1957 a school auditorium was built; but on November 26, 1960, a damaging fire gutted the building. By careful planning and sacrificial labor, $5,000 of the insurance money was saved. This was put aside and became the beginning of a new church building fund. After a well-organized, successful fund-raising program, ground was broken in the spring of 1965.

Of the original twenty-four charter members, four are known to be alive today: Mrs. Evelyn Cook Ringo, of Walla Walla, Washington; Mrs. Naomi Cook Seitz, of San Bernadino, California; Dr. E. E. Rippey, of Portland, Oregon; and Mrs. Esther Rippey Riffel.

The Sabbath services were highlighted by the ministry of Elder H. L. Rudy, former president of the Oregon Conference and educational superintendent for the Southern Oregon Conference when the headquarters were located in Sutherlin. Elder Rudy shared experiences from his recent European itinerary during the morning worship hour.

The dedication was made meaningful by the musical contribution of Milo Academy choir members under the direction of Professor Dale Jewkes. Elder W. D. Blehm gave the dedicatory address preceded by a commendation by Sutherlin Mayor, Dr. Lloyd B. Rapp. All pastors of the Sutherlin church since its 1957 reorganization, except the late Elder Ben Evans, were present for the occasion. The Act of Dedication was followed by the burning of the note of indebtedness.

A noon luncheon, planned and served by the ladies of the church, made it possible for all participants to stay for the entire day's activities. The members chorused together the acclamation, "What hath God wrought!"

In the vanguard of our soulwinning advance are the messages beamed through walls of wood and brick by the wonder waves of radio and television. Many a candidate who steps into the baptismal pool had his first contact with Adventism through one of our radio or television programs.

Radio and television station managers are under ever-increasing pressure to crowd religious programs into early morning hours. Television, especially, is a highly competitive business. A station cannot afford to carry a program that does not meet the competition of competing channels.

You can help to keep our programs on radio and television by writing letters of appreciation to the station when you have especially enjoyed a program. To keep a constant stream of letters flowing to the stations, it has been suggested that you write a letter at least once a year on your birthday. Why not write yourself a reminder on your calendar!

"In everything give thanks," says the Scripture. Let's be thankful for the privilege of broadcasting the Gospel. We should thank the stations that are willing to sell us the time.

KXL in Portland will carry the Voice of Prophecy production, "A Time For Singing," every Sunday at 7 a.m. beginning Sunday morning, December 21. If you are able to listen at that hour and enjoy this 15-minute program, write the station and say, "Thank you." The address is:

Sara's Thanksgiving Hosts Chinese Sailors

Seven Chinese seamen who spoke little or no English were special guests at a Thanksgiving dinner hosted by members of the Sara Seventh-day Adventist church.

A total of about 80 persons attended the dinner prepared for underprivileged people in Clark County, Washington. The "S. S. Hai Yung" was docked at a grain elevator in Vancouver. The pastor of the Vancouver Seaman's Center, John Larsson, knowing of the dinner, brought the sailors. Several families also gratefully accepted the invitation to share the delicious food.

Held in the Clark County PUD building, the menu included a vegetarian entrée, dressing, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes and gravy, candied yams, peas, salad, rolls, and dessert. The food was provided by local merchants and prepared by the capable church members.

The food was available in such bountiful supply that some was boxed and sent home with the needy families. Some of the delicious culinary product was also donated to the Vancouver Boys' Academy.

Sara's people believe their Thanksgiving was better because they shared with others.

Conference Associate Secretary

Readers of the GLEANER throughout the Oregon Conference will be happy to know that George, Judy, and one-year-old Brenda Chudleigh have already moved and are now comfortably situated in Portland. George is Associate Missionary Volunteer and Temperance Secretary of the Oregon Conference.

Pastor and Mrs. Chudleigh were both born in southern California and attended Loma Linda University. Judy received her two-year secretarial certificate and George received the Bachelor of Arts degree in June 1965. The Chudleighs then moved to Andrews University where George received the Bachelor of Divinity degree in August of 1967.

Coming to the Northwest they served first in the Bellevue and then the Ferndale churches in the Washington Conference. Always interested in Pathfinding and youth work, Pastor Chudleigh has already found his way into the hearts and lives of young people in Oregon. Pathfinding is not a new experience to Pastor Chudleigh. His father has been a club director for a number of years and George knows what it means to be a Pathfinder, a counselor and a club instructor.

We are happy to welcome this fine family to the work of the Oregon Conference.

Sales Records

The Oregon Conference Publishing Department has much for which to be thankful. God has richly blessed us with a good gain in sales over 1968. We have been privileged to lead the North Pacific Union for four consecutive weeks, totaling $17,839.74. The nearest conference had $15,002.45 for the same period.

It is a privilege to have such dedicated literature evangelists. The Lord has richly blessed in giving some of them $1,000 weeks this year—namely, Clyde Payne, two $1,000 weeks; and one each for Ken Collier, Ron Hempstead, and Paul Henton. Paul Henton is one of our newer literature evangelists and we are grateful for his dedicated work. We welcome Paul and his family to our team. Another hearty welcome goes to Jeff Beldin and family from the Medford area, our newest team member.

We are proud of our literature evangelists and we solicit an interest in your prayers in their behalf. Truly God is good. Our plans are for bigger and better things in 1970.

Retreat Plans for University And College Students

All Adventist youth in colleges and universities in the Oregon Conference are invited to a retreat at Camp Winema on the weekend of January 17.

Elder Eric Syme from Pacific Union College will lead the discussions on Sabbath. His topics will be "Tensions Between Reason and Faith in the Life of the Christian" and "Implications of These Tensions for the Future of the Church." The lodge will be available from Friday evening to Sunday morning and meals will be served on Friday evening through Sunday morning at 50 to 75 cents each. Those planning to spend the night should bring sleeping bags. There will be no charge for lodging.

Wi-ne-ma Christian Camp is located about 15 miles north of Lincoln City, between Neskowin and Cloverdale on Highway 101. A sign on the highway directs to the camp near the beach.

You are requested to indicate your attendance and for how many nights by writing to Jack Lamberton at 1505 NW 13th in Corvallis, Oregon 97330.

This promises to be an outstanding fellowship. We are looking forward to meeting a large number of Oregon Conference college and university students and staff.

Elementary Schools Being Evaluated

A program of self-evaluation is being carried on in the elementary schools of the North Pacific Union. Oregon began this program last year. Each school is asked to set up five committees of local personnel from the school and church community including faculty, board members, Home and School leaders, parents, and pastors. These committee members have the task of evaluating their school in regard to one of the following five areas: Basic Beliefs, Curriculum, Administration and Finance, Education Facilities and Materials, and Services.

A visiting team which includes the superintendent, H. D. Schwartz; the assistant superintendent, F. D. Wilbur; elementary supervisor, Mrs. Lorraine Miller; plus school personnel from a neighboring elementary school and/or academy evaluates the school in these same five areas. A North Pacific Union educational representative accompanies the evaluating team. The two groups then meet to discuss any commendations or recommendations made by the visiting team. Accreditation is given to each school through the North Pacific Union for a period of one year, three years, or five years.

Schools in the Oregon Conference which have been evaluated under this program are Bandon, Bend, Cedar Creek, Central Oregon (Redmond), Coos Bay, Coquille, Eugene, Laurelwood, Lebanon, Madras, and Portland Elementary.

Educator Appreciates Working With Youth

I very simply and truthfully want to state that my wife and I are most grateful for the pleasant paths that have been our lot. Working in the field of education brings us in contact with many great and distinguished people in all walks of life. We have met many truly great educators.

Walter Meske

Our association with our church members, pastors, and board chairmen, in various places we have labored, has given us many fond memories.

However, standing out head and shoulders above those pleasures of a Christian teacher is the privilege of working with youth. Seeing them give their hearts to Christ, seeing their genuine earnest desire to help others find Him, too, is an experience that we have seen many times. They are so frank, honest, and well meaning in their everyday life that one cannot help but be blessed by working with them.

Yes, we are thankful for the pleasant paths that have been our lot. We do appreciate your many prayers that are ascending daily for us; please continue them. May God richly bless and give each one a happy holiday season.

WALTER MESKE

Principal, Laurelwood Academy

Elders H. D. Schwartz and F. D. Wilbur consult with Chairman Ed Aronson and Principal Gwen Botkin following Coos Bay evaluation.

Pastor in County Health Program

Frank Baker, Oregon Conference Temperance Director, points out "Sally's" bad habit to Pastor Ed Wyman.

E. J. Wyman, pastor of the Cave Junction district, is well known in southern Oregon communities as a health education lecturer. He has been active in public school circles in the promotion of anti-tobacco and drug information.

Pastor Wyman was recently appointed to head the 1969-70 American Cancer Crusade Drive for Josephine County. The pastor has been a member of the county Cancer Society board.

In addition, Elder Wyman serves with the Tuberculosis Association for the same area. Such involvement serves only to call attention to the positive personality and service of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

It can be truly said that the health message is the right hand that opens doors of opportunity.

Oregon Church School News

Roseburg 7th and 8th graders are happily engaged in studying very "practical" Practical Arts courses.

Susan Rice, grade 7, delights in the new machines found in the Home Ec room at the Roseburg Seventh-day Adventist School.

Lloyd Wisbey, grade 7, is most meticulous in his mechanical drawing in preparation for actual shopwork second semester.

Second-year sewing students Cheryl Clark, Virginia Grise, and Debra Birdsell model their lovely robes.

Mrs. Margaret Whiting teaches sewing and Principal Leonard Smith directs Practical Arts for the boys.

It is essential for anyone to ask himself, "Where tomorrow?" when he encourages the information of a habit today.

Francis A. Soper, Listen.

Theology Majors Provide Service

Senior theology majors of Walla Walla College are providing a real service to the churches in the La Grande and Enterprise districts, according to Pastors Roger Bierwagen and Ronald Boyce.

The willingness and dedication manifested by these future workers in filling Sabbath-speaking appointments in the Cove, Elgin, Enterprise, and La Grande churches enables the district pastors to provide more adequate coverage in their field.

Elder Gordon Balharrie, chairman of the School of Theology, supervises this student-speaking program.

News Item

Sabbath afternoon, December 13, in Idaho Falls a baby boy was born. His parents, Brother and Sister David Masterjohn, named him David Scott. Brother Masterjohn is our district leader in Ashton, Blackfoot and Idaho Falls.

A few hours after birth he was taken to the Primary Childrens' Hospital in Salt Lake City for surgery. Join us in prayer for little David Scott and his parents.

GSA Junior Class Benefit

The former South Central Health and Welfare Federation president, Mrs. Gladys Jenson of Port Orchard, has been voted by the Washington Conference Committee to be the Western Washington Federation President of the H and W Service, working with our new Health and Welfare Director, Elder Jack Hubbs.

Mrs. Jenson has worked in the field of Health and Welfare for thirty years and has served as Director of the Port Orchard Society and organized the opening of the Center there.

We have appreciated the wonderful help, instruction, and encouragement given to us the past six years by Elder Wayne Scriven. Now we welcome Elder Hubbs with his great enthusiasm for our H and W work. We are looking forward to bigger and better things in the Health and Welfare field in the coming months with many more becoming "involved" in God's great work.

The South Central Federation voted in their new officers at the fall meeting held in Enumclaw. They are: Mrs. Eileen Mullins of Renton, president; Mrs. Alfred Webb, Snoqualmie, vice-president; Mrs. Gladys Rodwell, Puyallup, secretary-treasurer; and Mrs. Sylvia Catlin, Auburn, assistant secretary-treasurer.

The Reviewer

You could start a brand new decade off in a really rewarding way with just one simple resolution: to spend some time alone with yourself and God each day. So maybe you're not an early morning sparkler—no matter. Do it whenever it's best for you, but do it every day.

To make your daily spiritual communication experience more meaningful you'll want a copy of Think on These Things, the 1970 daily devotional book by Norval F. Pease. Although Dr. Pease is a Biblical scholar (he's chairman of the Department of Religion at Loma Linda University), his approach is simple, meaningful and direct. The thing we liked best about this book is that Dr. Pease follows one theme for several days. He has an excellent series on the Beatitudes, for instance, and another the events surrounding the crucifixion.

Juniors can have their own devotional experience with Run This Race by Walter Scragg. This book is action from start to finish, and each day's reading contains a story that really fits today's mode. Both devotional books are published by Review and Herald.

1970 will undoubtedly bring a continually expanding avalanche of paperbacks to the nation's bookstores. Southern Publishing Association plans to double its list of titles in the Crown series to keep up with the increased demand for inexpensive reading material. At the Forest's Edge, by Ernie Holyer, will be the next Crown offering for juvenile readers. The exciting adventures of a little German boy as he struggles to keep his family life intact will fascinate young readers. There's just a touch of suspense to the story that will keep the pages turning.

Juniors will appreciate a down-to-earth new look at the life and times of Ellen G. White. Angel Over Her Tent, by D. A. Delafield makes the reality and drama of the Spirit of Prophecy a fascinating fact for boys and girls. From Southern Publishing Association.

Peace.

skills, and Miles Standish staged a military review.

The program was presented in the form of a television broadcast. Student narrators related Pilgrim history as the pictures were shown, and live music was presented by the school band and choir under the direction of the principal, David Escobar. Three special selections were sung by the primary grades under the leadership of Roland Franklin, their teacher. The songs included an Indian song, a lively round, and the traditional "Over the River and Through the Woods." The program was concluded with a combined performance of "America the Beautiful" by the band and choir with a challenge for all to keep the Pilgrim spirit of courage and thanksgiving alive.

Weddings

Solomon Kruger of College Place, Washington, and Viola Yanke of Winfield, British Columbia, were united in marriage August 24 in the Winfield Seventh-day Adventist church. Elder T. A. Stafford officiated and asked God's special blessing. The Krugers' home is in Mission City, British Columbia, where Brother Kruger is a teacher on the staff of the church school.

Beverly Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Peterson, Corvallis, Oregon, became the bride of Martin Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Scott, Portland, Oregon, at an afternoon service held in the Corvallis Seventh-day Adventist church August 17. Floyd H. Matula officiated. The couple are living in College Place, Washington, where the groom is attending Walla Walla College.

On the afternoon of November 30, the Stone Tower Seventh-day Adventist church of Portland, Oregon, was the scene of the beautiful wedding of Connie S. Wescott and Gary K. Bowen, both of Portland, Oregon. The ceremony was conducted by Elder Floyd H. Matula. The Bowens plan to reside in Portland. We pray Heaven's blessing on this newly established Christian home.

Barbara Hill, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hill of College Place, Washington, and Larry Ferver, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Ferver of Pendleton, Oregon, were united in marriage at the home of the groom's parents the morning of November 16. They will establish their home at Pendleton where the groom is employed by the Harris Pine Mills.

Charie K. Hutson became the bride of Ronald L. Price in a candlelight ceremony on December 7. Elder David Parks officiated at the service in the Hood River Seventh-day Adventist church. We wish God's richest blessing on this new home which will be established in Lebanon, Oregon.

Nathalie Frances Ladner and Marvin Dale Bischoff were united in marriage in a beautiful ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Palmer of Portland on Thanksgiving Day. Elder G. Hochstetter was the officiating minister. We wish them increasing joy and God's richest blessings as they establish their home in Pasco, Washington.

Marilyn Ruth Powell became the bride of Ronald Dale Wright at the Forest Grove Seventh-day Adventist church on November 27. Elder G. M. Richardson officiated at the beautiful Thanksgiving morning ceremony. The couple will make their home in Forest Grove. Both are employed at the Harris Pine Mills in Laurelwood.

Lenny Atkins and Ann Wilson exchanged wedding vows in an afternoon ceremony in the Mt. Tabor Seventh-day Adventist church, Portland, Oregon, on August 31. Elder Floyd Matula officiated at the service. The Atkinses are residing in College Place, Washington, where the groom continues his education.

On Sunday, December 7, the Roseburg Seventh-day Adventist church was the scene of a lovely wedding when Gayle Cook and Lynn Knauff exchanged nuptial vows. The bride and groom left immediately for Washington, D. C., where the groom is serving his country as a medic.

Thomas Lloyd Walters and Gail Christine Sprengel were married in a lovely chapel at Newport Beach, California, on November 30. The father of the groom, Dr. T. W. Walters, officiated at the ceremony. The couple is living in Riverside, California, as the groom is currently teaching and engaging in medical research at Loma Linda University.

The girls' chapel at Auburn Academy was the scene of a lovely wedding Saturday night, November 29, in which Esther Marie Wiggins became the bride of James A. Terry. This Christian young couple will live in Seattle. Elder L. E. Lyman was their minister.

Obituaries

Collin—Margaret D. Collin was born in New York City in 1887, and passed to her rest in Portland, Ore., Oct. 28, 1969. She accepted the Advent message in New York City under the ministry of Elder Carlyle B. Haynes. After the death of her husband, she moved to Salem, Ore. Upon retiring from her business, she made her home in Portland, Oregon, and joined the Montavilla church. She leaves to mourn her passing two sisters and her faithful companion.

Smith—Kristina Lee Smith was born on Jan. 11, 1968, in Eugene, Ore. She passed away in a hospital in Springfield, Ore., on Dec. 3, 1969, after an illness of just a few hours. Little Krissy was a member of the Cradle Roll in the Springfield Sabbath school. She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ardis Smith of Springfield; two brothers, Gary and Ronald; a sister, Karen; her grandparents, Grace Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Artie Blake. #### Vienna Academy Chorus

Steeped in the traditions of old Austria, the Vienna Academy Chorus will bring fine musicianship, charm, and romance to the Walla Walla College Lyceum Series Saturday evening, January 10, in Columbia Auditorium.

Dr. Xaver Meyer, appointed musical director of the Chorus in 1961, heads the group which, this year, makes its seventh tour in the United States. Critics the world over praise Meyer as a polished and sensitive musician who, through his sense of style, feeling for beautiful sound, and expressive gestures, leads the Chorus to the highest achievements in choral performance.

Chorus members are a hand-picked group, 24 graduates of the century-and-a-half-old Vienna Academy of Music. It began as a school of choral music but has since been expanded to a complete conservatory of music, emphasis remaining on choral work.

The Chorus' extensive repertoire ranges from the oldest to the most modern of international choral literature with special attention given to Austrian music. The choir has performed work premieres and first performances of over 100 works of well-known composers. A number of these works have been dedicated to the Chorus by celebrated European composers as proof of the group's enormous reputation. In addition they have a long list of recordings and numerous radio and television appearances to their credit.

The 8 o'clock concert, January 10, is the first in the winter quarter lyceum series. Also scheduled are: Neil Douglas, travelogue, January 24; Isaac Stern, violinist, February 12; and Jerome Hines, bass, March 14.

in homes for continued encouragement, and the pastor was invited to attend. Forty-eight persons attended the sessions, held in the Commodore Room of the Anchorage Westward Hotel.

Pastor Martell said that the local press gave him excellent advance coverage, with both dailies sending photographers. He had a 25-minute interview on the well-known Norma Goodman show on Channel Two, KTVA, and also was invited to participate in an Air Watch interview over Radio Station KHAR, beamed from a Cherokee 140 flying over the city.

Several of those attending signed up to take part in a cooking school planned for January. The pastor said he feels that each clinic has generated more interest for following programs.

Several notes of appreciation were received. One lady wrote the following: "Thank you so much for the help I greatly needed. I now feel like a whole new person again and am able to hold my head high in pride—my husband and four friends will be at the next clinic."

Taking part in the clinic were Pastor J. Lynn Martell and Doctors L. David Ekvall and Leland F. Jones.

Pilgrim Thanksgiving Relived by Anchorage Children

The Anchorage school children experienced some of the real hardships of Pilgrim life as they prepared for their school program. This year the program featured movies and slides taken beforehand of the children as they reenacted highlights of Thanksgiving and traced its history up to the present-day custom of can gathering and giving of food baskets. Preparations for the program began early in November when the children, dressed in their pilgrim apparel which they had made, braved sub-zero weather to complete the filming. The children gathered logs for building homes and prepared a thanksgiving feast over an open fire. Indians exhibited their

Five-Day Plan in Anchorage

Several "20-year" smokers kicked the habit as a result of the latest five-day clinic held in Anchorage, Alaska, November 30 to December 4, Pastor J. Lynn Martell reported.

After the clinic concluded, several of the group agreed to meet weekly

WELCOME ON BOARD!

The "Messenger III" is now ready for launching. The launching will take place at Hylebos Boat Haven, Inc., 1824 Marine Drive, Tacoma, Washington, on January 4, 1970, at 2:00 p.m. You are invited to attend the launching service and also come on board.

This diesel service vessel was designed by the internationally famous marine architect Edwin Monk of Seattle, and built by the Nordlund Boat Company of Tacoma, Washington. It will be used as a mobile evangelistic outpost in the inland waters of Southeastern Alaska.

In driving to the launching site on Interstate Highway 5 take the Fife turnoff north of Tacoma. Cross Highway 99 and continue on to the first intersection, and then turn to the right and follow the road past Nordlund Boat Company to Hylebos Boat Haven.
