ADVENTISTS IN THE U.S. ARMED FORCES

Clark Smith

There have been three trends in the United States Armed Forces over the past several months that could have some significance for Seventh-day Adventists. First, the number of those drafted is low—approaching the zero draft scheduled for the middle of the year. Second, there is a sharp increase in the number of those with Seventh-day Adventist background entering the Armed Forces voluntarily. Third, there have been more church members with difficult Sabbath problems in their military duty than there have been for many years.

The trend towards the zero draft is much appreciated by the whole country. The other two trends should cause us as a church to do some serious thinking.

The intensive campaign by the military to get persons to enlist has concentrated chiefly on the salaries that are now competitive with civilian counterparts. When the G.I. benefits are added to these salaries, they naturally attract many who are trying to find ways of solving the increasing costs of college or higher education. This includes many with an Adventist background.

The Adventist Church through the years has consistently counseled its members not to enter the military voluntarily if they have conscientious restrictions on the military service they can render. This counsel has the backing of U.S. military authorities. The mission of the military carries on seven days a week, 24 hours a day.

They must be able to count on every man or woman being on duty whenever they require it. With the reduction of manpower in each of the Armed Forces, every person must be available when needed. Thus, it is increasingly difficult to release Adventist personnel on a regular basis during the Sabbath hours.

This counsel of the church is directed to those who have personal convictions by which they must abide. Those willing to serve in whatever capacity or time they are needed should certainly be able to enter the Armed Forces under any circumstances they choose. The only way in which the church enters the picture is to point out the facts to those of its members who might not know.

In this connection it would be well to comment on a false rumor frequently repeated among Adventists. This rumor is that the church, through the National Service Organization, "will get you your Sabbath off in the military." We do not attempt to do this for anyone. The individual must do this for himself.

If he runs into difficulty in arranging for Sabbath observance according to his personal beliefs, the National Service Organization personnel will help explain to the commanding officer the whole matter of Sabbath observance by SDA's. This does not guarantee that the serviceman will get his Sabbath free of duty. It may, in fact, result in the military's deciding they can no longer use a person who stands staunchly for his Sabbath. They may discharge such a person.

The matter of not bearing arms is also a personal, conscientious conviction. At the moment, one with such a belief cannot voluntarily enter the Armed Forces, except in very special conditions for ordained ministers serving as chaplains and some commissioned medical personnel. There is a persistent rumor around the Pentagon that an enlistment contract in the Army Medical Department may be offered to noncombatants when the draft goes to zero. If that occurs, we will inform you through the various avenues of church information.

Personnel who become noncombatants after entering the military service may apply to be assigned to noncombatant duty for the remainder of their obligation, but may not reenlist or extend their military time. When they apply for a noncombatant assignment, the military will then make a determination as to whether they are sincere, and, if sincere, whether they should be retained in the military.

In view of all these factors, it is wise counsel of the church for its members not to enter the military service voluntarily if they have personal conscientious restrictions on how or when they can serve. If you wish further information, ask your pastor or the conference youth director for the recently printed NSO leaflet "Military Service and You."

Letters on non-theological topics are welcomed by the editors. Right is reserved to edit for continuity and space limitations. Your name, address and name of home church are required, but will not be published if you request anonymity.

I have wanted to write to you for some time to express my appreciation for the GLEANER. . . . It is such a wonderful paper. . . . a great improvement over the old GLEANER. . . . I read it from cover to cover. . . .

. . . God permits criticism to come to us at times to make us more humble, otherwise we might become a little proud. . . . the reason we are in this chaotic situation today is because Satan was lifted up because of his pride of appearance. . . . and I believe the women of our denomination should guard against this very thing and consider that it was this trait that caused the fall—this was the origin of sin. The styles of today create a pride of appearance in the hearts of women when in reality they should be ashamed. This is where the criticism should be justly applied and not to folks who are doing such a wonderful work as you are doing there in the GLEANER. . . .

. . . from Sister White's writing. . . in time to come some of our members would conform to the styles and traits of the world so completely that it would be almost impossible to tell them apart—that time has come and many of our youth and older members are living themselves up on Satan's side and do not fully realize it. . . . Sister White gives us definite instructions. . . . that our dresses should be of such a length that they will be below the knee whether we are standing or sitting. . . . There is not enough comment nor opposition expressed against these styles among those who are in a position to denounce them. . . .

Many of us are very deeply concerned over this situation and we would like to hear some response on these things from the many others who feel as we do. . . . for we as God's separate and holy people should have no marks of the world upon us. . . .

Sister White. . . says that in the time of trouble a great number of our people will go out and that the bulk of the people who go through will be people who come in from the Sundaykeeping churches. This is a very solemn statement and reveals the need of drawing closer to God.

Thank you for the beautiful GLEANERS. We enjoy receiving them.

I noticed another reader's negative comments on the book, Back to Eden, offered for sale in the GLEANER. I do not discount his experience but must say there is another very positive experience being lived today because of that book.

I have correlated Back to Eden with the Ministry of Healing, Counsels on Diet and Foods, and Counsels on Health and found the author of Back to Eden very much in agreement with the Spirit of Prophecy writings. Back to Eden, pp. 2-7. His wide experience in specifics from the realm of natural remedies has enabled him to set down in alphabetical order names and uses of non-poisonous medicinal herbs of which "every person should have a knowledge." Ministry of Healing, pp. 126, 127.

Christ sanctioned the use of simple and natural remedies." Ibid., pp. 232, 244; C. on D & F. He gave instruction that "mothers, especially, should know how to care for their families in both health and sickness." M. of H., p. 237. I took Him at His word, and praise His name, my family of eight, for 21 years, has never been to a doctor or in a hospital for sickness.

Herbs yield a seed and are part of man's sustenance from God. (Gen. 1:29.) Even in heaven "the leaves of the tree are for the healing of the nations." Rev. 22:2.

It is my prayer that every SDA home have a copy of Back to Eden to correlate with our health reform message and truly be His "peculiar people." C. on D. & F., p. 24.

Mrs. Lillian Amoroso

In response to the January 15 letter by Dr. Harry J. Weber on the book, Back to Eden.

Dear Dr. Weber, Have you even considered that modern scientific medicine just might have left some good behind when it turned its collective back on the "herb doctor" and the "granny woman?" Looking at books such as Back to Eden in a Health Food store is really only touching the surface. Until you personally have rubbed the soothing balm of castor oil on smarting poison ivy rash or applied the cut leaf of aloe to a burn you really are in no position to judge what is good or bad in the book.

Those of us who live less affluent lives, unable for financial reasons to go to the doctor for every ill, have found great comfort in those simple home remedies that inexpensively ease our milder aches and pains while giving the overburdened M.D. more time for the others. Certainly, no intelligent individual would use herbs to his own hurt or fail to apply to his local physician for careful evaluation of acute or chronic problems.

God has provided each of us with a brain to figure a few things out for ourselves. Books such as Back to Eden give us a chance to see the medical picture in a more balanced light. Let us render in all fairness, impartial judgment on the use of herbs in the home. In an age of abuse of drugs and the proven aftereffects of many prescription medicines, one would be hard put to condemn a cup of herb tea to replace the overused sleeping pill or tranquilizer.

Only God can heal! So please, Dr. Weber, leave us to our book and you to your pharmacopoeia. Time will be the judge as to which of us has the least damage to our lives.

AN INTERVIEW WITH ROBERT H. PIERSON

Helen G. Grauman

Robert H. Pierson, General Conference president, was featured speaker Jan. 12 and 13 at Green Lake church, Seattle, Wash. He also served as moderator at a somewhat informal question-and-answer period. This was Pierson's first visit to Green Lake church.

The general theme of Pierson's meetings was, in the terms of the great apostle, Paul: "Christ in you, the hope of glory." He emphasized the inner dedication of the Adventist Christian as the motivating force which counts.

He told the capacity audience that outer adornment will care for itself if a dedicated, praying Christian allows himself to be led by the Holy Spirit and is continually putting his Lord first, his neighbor next and whomsoever he may contact in his daily living after that and before himself, whether that may be a fellow believer or one who makes no profession of any religion.

Pierson, who served for 35 years in India, British West Indies, Africa and the United States before being named General Conference president in 1966, emphasized his desire to meet as many of his fellow believers as possible in his journeys around the world. When introduced to each church member, he repeats the person's name, and that individual feels he is the only person in Pierson's thoughts at the time. The week before he spoke at Green Lake he preached in a very small church of perhaps 30 members. He is not impressed about numbers.

Upon meeting him, one thinks of the parable of the Good Shepherd who would gladly give his life for even one sheep lost. Having the central heart dedication, offering goals, love of the brethren and loyalty follow naturally. Brilliance, if dedicated, helps. But the dedication comes first for Pierson.

Ladies of the Green Lake Social Committee prepared a special supper. This was to allow the president to meet with ministers of the Washington Conference. This meeting was not for the general membership; but those taking part in the program following the meal were included.

This reporter asked Pierson two general questions, in regard to the Adventist denomination, frequently mentioned by our people.

"With so much emphasis on nationalism these days in almost every country of the world, especially those considered more backward, such as the new ones in Africa, do you think that Caucasian leadership is soon to end in mission fields?"

"Decidedly not!" he replied. "We are training and using nationals as much as possible as they gain education and experience, as well as the needed capacity to handle responsibility. But there is still need for counselors and supervisors from America."

Pierson also pointed out that white workers in some foreign countries study soil and determine how to grow food in order to provide a balanced diet for the natives. In many places present food supplies are inadequate resulting in hunger and famine.

Asked if the midweek meeting with its dwindling attendance is doomed, the president replied, "No, indeed! It is here to stay. In areas where the membership is widely scattered, there could be a return to cottage meetings held in homes in various parts of the city, strategically selected to provide a minimum of driving."

"One more question. What is your own favorite list of devotional reading?"

"The Desire of Ages, Steps to Christ, and the last chapters of Ministry of Healing."

Green Lake felt a wave of spiritual dedication. Pierson's secret is in Paul's words: "Christ in you, the hope of glory." The individual heart dedication still is what is most important.

General Conference Officials Meet with Idaho Workers

Elder Gordon M. Hyde of the General Conference Department of Biblical Research met with Idaho Conference ministers and their wives at the annual workers' meeting Jan. 14-17 at the Conference office in Boise. He brought inspiration and encouragement to the pastors and helped them with topics of current interest.

Hyde, former chairman of Southern Missionary College speech department, met with the ministers in eight one-hour sessions to present studies designed to help them recognize implications of the modern tongues movement.

General Conference leaders and local administrators counsel together concerning plans for the day. Left to right are Elder M. E. Loewen, Religious Liberty Department of the General Conference; Elder F. W. Bieber, president, Idaho Conference; Elder Sylvester Bietz, conference treasurer, and Elder Hyde.

Pastors and laymen had opportunity to discuss problems peculiar to their church office. Left to right are Elder A. L. Heitzmann, pastor of the La Grande, Ore., District; Glenn Jennings, local elder, Cove, Ore.; and Charles Null, local elder, Boise.

Elder G. M. Hyde, General Conference Department of Biblical Research, was the keynote speaker for the four-day meeting.

"A neo-Pentecostalism," stated Hyde, "arose in the 1960's that has penetrated every denomination in America, and is now rattling at the gates of Seventh-day Adventism. These glossolalia are not tongues of languages, but rather tongues of ecstasy, and as we search the Spirit of Prophecy we find no statements in favor of tongues of ecstasy—several statements in condemnation, however—but some favorable statements in favor of language tongues."

During the four-day meeting, plans were laid for every pastor to actively engage in Mission 73 evangelism. Problems exclusive to ministry and pastoral work were discussed, and all profited greatly from the time spent together.

Elder M. E. Loewen, General Conference Religious Liberty Department, presented counsel and direction concerning Sunday law issues, labor union problems as they pertain to Seventh-day Adventists and encouragement for the current Liberty campaign in area churches.

"Liberty magazine," stated Loewen, "now enjoys the largest circulation of any Seventh-day Adventist journal, and this is due largely to the loyalty of our people who feel the need of placing this journal in the hands of thought-molders across the country."

On Sunday, the first day of the meeting, local elders discussed the parish plan of pastoral leadership. Elder R. E. Eckerman, stewardship secretary of the Upper Columbia Conference, presented timely suggestions concerning this plan of pastoral leadership in the local church. W. W. Ring, Idaho stewardship secretary, acted as chairman of this portion of the meeting. Local elders were given time for discussion of problems peculiar to their office.

Mrs. Barbara Anderson, Cheney,

Wash., conducted a class for ministers' wives in "Fascinating Womanhood." Participants received new insight into the woman's responsibility as wife, mother and homemaker.

Twin Falls Church Members Conduct Community Projects

Members of the Twin Falls, Ida., church have been active recently in community-oriented projects, reports Mrs. Margie Francisco, church public relations secretary.

Dorcas Society Leaders Mrs. Charles O'Dell and Mrs. H. R. Hughes presented the Adventist Community Service Award to Dr. James Taylor, president of Southern Idaho College, in a special church service Jan. 20. They honored him for his outstanding service as an administrator and educator in pioneering higher education in south central Idaho.

In making the presentation, Mrs. O'Dell stated, "Dr. Taylor, on behalf of the humanitarian work of Seventh-day Adventists all over the world, I present you with this award for your distinguished public service for higher education in our community."

Following the award, Dr. Taylor challenged the congregation to place confidence and hope in the youth of our nation and to strive for the great possibilities that are ours when faith and belief become the tools of progress.

Also in January, Dr. Ralph A. Drake and Twin Falls Pastor S. O. Francisco conducted a Five-Day Stop Smoking clinic. Jack Thietten served as master of ceremonies. Twenty-five individuals attended the clinic in the Idaho Power Auditorium with more than half claiming to have stopped smoking.

Mission 73 in Idaho

F. W. Bieber, conference president

Mission 73 is new only because it is a new year. The mission is the same as it has always been. It is the pure and simple Gospel Commission that was left by Christ for all His followers.

The Gospel Commission was taken very seriously and very personally by early followers of Christ. With the growth of the church—including the Seventh-day Adventist church—and the prosperity of the church, church members have become more and more dependent upon the paid clergy to carry on the work of spreading the message. This was never Christ's plan. It is true that Christ could have selected a different plan altogether in the carrying out of this great commission, but He selected His followers to do this. He did not do this because this would necessarily be a faster method or a more efficient method, but He selected this plan in order that His followers might have the blessed privilege of taking part in the great plan of salvation.

The Seventh-day Adventist organization has many workers who are on salary. But only eight percent of the salaried workers within the organization are ministers. It becomes apparent that if Christ will have to depend upon these few to carry out His commission that it will never be accomplished. Thus, everyone who has taken upon himself the name of Christ automatically takes upon himself the responsibility of sharing the blessed hope with others. How can he help but want to share the good news with his neighbors, loved ones and friends? We all love to be the first ones to share some bit of news with others. It should be just as natural for us to want to share the good news of salvation with others. This is, indeed, a wonderful privilege.

Workers in the Idaho Conference have pledged themselves to do all in their power to encourage members to have an active part in evangelism during 1973. It is their desire to give each of their church members an opportunity to select some area of missionary activity in which they can share their faith with others. In addition, public evangelism is planned in every district, and in some districts there will be several series of public meetings.

It is encouraging to report that several laymen will be holding meetings. Del Harrison, who has been actively shepherding the flock at Mountain Home, plans a series of meetings there in March. Several of the members from the Eagle, Emmett and Nampa churches are planning a series of meetings at Horseshoe Bend. Gordon Avery and Chuck Fulmore are planning meetings at a place yet to be selected. And there may be others who will join ranks with the ministry in actually holding public meetings. May God grant health and strength to these men and their wives as they launch into these series here in Idaho and all over the world.

Gillespie, who had participated in the program two years earlier, told those in attendance that principles and procedures given him during the five days were sound and effective and they had worked for him. "After two years, I am a free man functioning in better health and with better vitality for life," he said.

This is the seventh clinic conducted by Drake and Francisco in the past four years. During this time, they have helped numerous community residents.

Young-at-Heart Doorbell Ringer Shares Faith with Neighbors

When John Henderson and his wife were baptized into the Omak Seventh-day Adventist church in December 1966, they dedicated their zealous energy to sharing their faith. And they have done exactly that.

Although on the golden side of 70, Henderson, a picture of radiant Christianity, annually participates in the Ingathering program. His willing participation generates enthusiasm among Omak church members.

In spite of this season's unusually cold Okanogan Valley winter, he bundled up and joined the Ingathering group for seven consecutive nights, including one 14-degree evening. He enjoys singing; however, this year he shouldered the soliciting end for six of the seven nights.

Henderson and his wife rejoice in the Christian message and thank God for their improved health. They are determined to share the wonderful things they have learned about their Redeemer; and in doing so, they will have many more doorbells to ring.

Academy Students Conduct Senior Recognition Weekend

Upper Columbia Academy's class of '73 conducted their Senior Recognition the weekend of February 17.

The senior students coordinated the weekend's services, which included a Sabbath sermon by Dr. Malcolm Maxwell, Walla Walla College theology professor.

The senior class organized in October. Their officers include president, Thomas Hampson of Richland, Wash.; vice president, Lorene Thompson of Clarkston, Wash.; secretary, Marlene Landis of Sandpoint, Idaho; treasurer, Arthur Thiel of Fairfield, Wash.; chaplain, Doug Myers of

College Church Presents Community Service Award

Six years ago in College Place a new era of summer youth recreation—a program designed with no weekend play so that Seventh-day Adventist youth could participate—began because of one man's concern and leadership.

That man was Harlan F. Seachris, longtime area rancher, member of the College Place First Presbyterian church, retired since 1969 when he had a severe heart attack, yet always alert to the problems of youth and their solutions. Modest and unassuming, he gets things done.

On January 20, 1973 members of the Walla Walla College Church and more than 125 specially invited guests said "Thank You" to Seachris as Dr. Jerry M. Lien, College Church pastor, read the citation and presented him with a Community Service Award plaque authorized by the General Conference for non-Adventists who have given outstanding community service.

Portland Union Student Named Betty Crocker Homemaker

Portland Union Academy's 1973 Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow is Peggy Schoepflin. Selected by score in a written knowledge and attitude examination taken by senior girls on Dec. 5, Miss Schoepflin will receive a specially designed award from General Mills, sponsor of the annual Betty Crocker Search for American Homemakers of Tomorrow. In addition, she remains eligible for state and national honors.

The State Homemaker of Tomorrow, to be chosen from all school winners in the state in judging centering on performance in the Dec. 5 test, will receive a $1,500 college scholarship. A 20-volume reference work, The Annals of America, will also be presented to the state winner's school by Encyclopaedia Britannica Educational Corporation. The second-ranking student in the state will receive a $500 scholarship.

Renovated Book Center Offers Wider Variety of Bibles

Recent renovation to the Adventist Book Center located at the Oregon Conference office, 605 SE 39th Avenue in Portland, virtually doubled available display area, giving shoppers a wider variety from which to choose.

"The added space has given us room to feature a large number of Bibles which before we couldn't display," says O. A. Braman, manager of the center.

Now on display are wide-margin Bibles, pocket Bibles, Bibles with matching hymnals, modern translations and even cases to carry them.

But Bibles are not the only items. In addition, the center offers family items such as color books, games, sets of books by Ellen G. White and sacred music.

The renovation, completed during early January, also provides space for items never before offered—greeting cards and display items such as pictures.

An added advantage of the renewal, of course, is reorganization and beautification, which has been acclaimed a success by January customers.

Stocking shelves after recent renovation of the Adventist Book Center in Oregon are O. A. Braman, Adventist Book Center manager, and his assistant, Bill Skidmore.

COOS BAY CHURCH. Phase one, two and three of a five-phase program at Coos Bay are leading up to a new church for members there. ground Association for five years, the citation also noted his work as civic leader who had served as College Place mayor twice, as longtime scoutmaster, as former Walla Walla County juvenile officer, as a church member and officer and as trusted friend and counselor to youth.

Attending the special worship service were past and present Playground Association officers, the mayor and city councilmen of the community, representatives of all city departments and local churches and relatives and friends of the honored guest.

It was actually the plight of a ten-year-old Adventist boy, Pat Haugen, who wanted very much to play ball and couldn't join any team because they all played Friday evenings or Sabbaths that triggered Seachris's determination to solve the problem, he admits. A boy in trouble was always a challenge to him.

Singlehandedly, he won support of civic and service organizations as backing for the venture. It was tough going at first with no money, no equipment, no uniforms, no playing field.

But the baseball program has grown steadily from the 50 participants the first summer to last summer's 200. Businesses and the city have added their support. Volunteer coaches, umpires and parents continue to give their gifts of time and leadership. All share in backing the dream of one man who believed that wholesome recreation should be available to ALL youth in "his" town.

He recently stated his philosophy, as "We must keep busy. Worthwhile activity keeps one physically, mentally and spiritually alive. And above all, we must be interested in our fellowmen."

Portland Activities Association Forms Young Adult Group

The Greater Portland Adventists Activities is branching out, according to Doug Schultz, Oregon Youth Department associate charged with coordination of the association.

Recently formed is the Young Adult group of the association, which has set as its goal the organization of social and spiritual activities for college and young married-age adults in the greater Portland area.

Our ideal, says Dave Dorn, chairman of the newly formed committee, is to encourage an active group of young adults in each of the area churches. Dorn and Mike Suka, assistant, say the group is off and running, with the recent recreation night at Mt. Scott Community Center and a 7:30 vespers at Mt. Tabor church on prayer and fasting planned for February 23.

Nine Silverton, Ore., couples who have been married for more than 40 years received special recognition at the Harvest Festival conducted recently by members of the Silverton Sabbath School. Proceeds received from the crafts and gifts sold at the festival were dedicated to world missions.

Record Ingathering Report Highlights Workers' Meeting

The Volunteer Park church hosted the initial Washington Conference workers' meeting of 1973. The two-day council highlighted family relations in the worker's home. Elder Andrew Fearing addressed participants on three separate occasions including a special session for ministers' wives.

A reporting session where each church reported total money raised for the 1972-1973 Ingathering campaign proved to be one of the most joyful meetings. One by one local lay activities leaders, who had been invited to this special session, reported totals from their respective churches. The completed tabulation showed an increase of nearly $3,000 over the same report last year. Lay activities leaders and pastors shared experiences and personal encounters that had added significantly to the Ingathering campaign.

Conference President James Chase concluded the session by giving thanks and praise to the entire conference laity and working force for the record $104,616.65 that had been recorded. He expressed a special note of thanks to Elder Peter Tadej, who directed the conference program in the

Other sessions during the workers' meeting looked at the aspects of Mission 73 and the use of special soul-winning journals. Guests included Francis J. Soper, editor of Listen; Ray Hixson, Pacific Press Publishing Association circulation department, and Elder M. E. Loewen of the public affairs department of the General Conference.

Sabbath School Department To Hold March Workshop

Second Quarter Sabbath School Workshop for the Washington Conference will be held at the Edmonds Seventh-day Adventist church, 8625-196th SW, Edmonds, Wash., Sunday, March 4, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., according to Elder Wayne Scriven, director of conference Sabbath School activities.

The workshop will give special emphasis to development of the Sabbath program for all divisions from Cradle Roll through Junior-Earliteen. Leaders and teachers attending should bring tracing paper, pencils and their second quarter Program Helps and Teaching Aids.

Time will be spent in helping each worker adapt the ideas presented to his local church needs. Outstanding leaders and demonstrators have been secured for the workshop. Each of the divisions will have separate demonstrations and leader helps. The department believes this workshop will be the best one ever held in the Washington Conference.

Dinner Invitation Leads To Acceptance of Christ

It began one day this past summer when Verna Brown stopped by to visit the Methodist Service Center in Rochester, Wash. She entered just in time to hear Gloria Williams, who worked there, exclaim, "I'm hungry and since it's the noon hour I'm going home for lunch."

"Why drive all the way home?" asked Mrs. Brown. "I live just across the street, come over and have lunch with me."

Mrs. Williams accepted the gracious invitation and in a few minutes was enjoying one of Mrs. Brown's tasty vegetarian sandwiches.

"It's delicious! What did you use to make this sandwich?" exclaimed Mrs. Williams.

"Vegetarian meat," answered Mrs. Brown.

"What kind of meat is that?" asked Mrs. Williams, a bit confused.

During the course of the noon hour, Mrs. Brown explained her eating habits and offered an invitation to a full dinner the next evening. Mrs. Williams accepted the invitation and was treated to a never-to-be-forgotten meal.

That evening Mrs. Williams also began an intense search of scriptures with the assistance of her gracious hostess. So great was her interest in the search for truth that she gladly accepted Mrs. Brown's invitation to stay in her home for a few days. She also attended the Oakville church each Sabbath.

On Sabbath, Dec. 2, this past year, Elder Jack Hubbs, Health Services secretary of the Washington Conference, was speaker for the worship hour in the Oakville church. Throughout his message, he encouraged members to make 1973 a year of personal Christian witness for the sake of the Lord and to help hasten His second coming. While concluding his sermon, he called for all Christians, regardless of their denomination, to join hand in hand with the members of our church in this great year of witnessing.

Mrs. Verna Brown, right, shares the joy of faithful Christian witnessing with Mrs. Gloria Williams. This picture was taken following Mrs. Williams' baptism Jan. 20 in the Centralia church.

Mrs. Williams, who was attending church that day, approached Hubbs after the service and said, "I'm a Methodist and would like to volunteer my services to this Mission 73 program."

"Wonderful," replied Hubbs, "we'll be happy to give you an avenue of service."

"Well, Mr. Hubbs, do you think that I could ever be a Seventh-day Adventist?" she asked. Then she revealed her whole story about how her interest began. Hubbs encouraged her to continue to learn of her new-found faith. He later made arrangements for her baptism at the Centralia church on Jan. 20.

"I just can't describe Gloria's happiness after her baptism," said Hubbs. "Her love for this message grows each day."

Dare we say that this may have never taken place if it had not been for that invitation to lunch? Surely, Mrs. Brown could say, "Christianity begins with me." Perhaps this explains the statement made by Paul: "Christ in you, the Hope of Glory." Col. 1:27.

Youth/Family-Life Week Set in SDA Churches

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The Youth Department of the Seventh-day Adventist denomination has named Feb. 17-24 Youth/Family-Life Week. It is receiving special emphasis in Adventist churches around the world.

In announcing the special week, youth director John H. Hancock said that the church would observe Feb. 24 as a day of fasting and prayer.

"Never before," Hancock declared, "has the structure of the family been so in jeopardy. Declining moral codes threaten the very foundation of our nation, for loyalty is developed through the solidarity of the family. If there is no loyalty there, there is little hope for personal devotion anywhere else."

The youth leader blamed the decay of family life on failure of parents to lead their children into an understanding of God, failure to establish the home on the principles of godly love.

"Religion has become more a social function than an act of worship," Hancock charged. "And many people tend to slip from there to the point where they simply leave God completely out of their lives."

The week-long special family emphasis marks the beginning of Youth/Family-Life Year. Events throughout the year will focus on the family with special camps scheduled in each conference, special lessons for the church at study each week, discussion groups in Adventist colleges and academies, and renewed emphasis on holding family worship each day.

VOP Bible Course Applications Show Marked Increase for 1972

For the second consecutive year Bible course applications have shown a marked increase at Voice of Prophecy headquarters according to 1972 year-end statistics just released by the VOP Field Service office.

A total of 439,101 applications for Bible courses was received in 1972, a gain of more than 77,000 over 1971's total of 361,954, VOP officials report, and a gain of nearly 160,000 over 1970's applications. These were the first significant gains seen in VOP Bible course applications since 1963.

A part of this total increase was reflected in the North Pacific Union Conference where applications rose from 38,302 in 1971 to 40,750 in 1972.

"This upsurge in Bible study gives us cause for great rejoicing," says Elder H. M. S. Richards, Jr., director-speaker of the Voice of Prophecy. "At the same time, we are grateful to every person in the North Pacific Union Conference who has invited someone else to take a Bible course in 1972. It is a known fact that most of these applications come when one person asks another to enroll."

Another significant gain in baptisms through the radio-Bible school-public crusade ministry of the Voice of Prophecy was revealed by the report. Across North America there were 4,779 persons baptized or 1,291 more than in 1971 for a 37 percent increase.

Paul Harvey to Address Alumni Weekend Gathering

Paul Harvey, internationally noted news commentator, will be featured speaker for Walla Walla College's Alumni Weekend, March 30 through April 1. Harvey will address the annual gathering Saturday night at 8:00 in Columbia Auditorium.

Paul Harvey

Named Radio's Man of the Year and Commentator of the Year by 600 critics of his own industry, Harvey has been called "the dynamic news commentator who makes page one understandable and page three exciting."

He holds nine honorary degrees from various colleges and universities and recently was chosen First Annual Colonial American. "He is the modern Minute Man and American Patriot who communicates nationwide the true spirit of '76." His broadcasts and newspaper columns have been reprinted in the Congressional Record 91 times to date, more than any other commentator.

Alumni Weekend will also honor the graduating class of 1948 and the twenty-fifth anniversary of the School of Nursing, according to Alumni Association President Lyle Cornforth. Other highlights include an alumni fellowship hour Sabbath afternoon and the dedication of the women's High-Rise dormitory.

Spiritual Emphasis Program Stresses Third Angel's Message

Dr. A. Graham Maxwell, director of Loma Linda University's religion division and brother of Walla Walla College religion professor Dr. Malcolm Maxwell, conducted the four-day spiritual emphasis period, Feb. 14-17.

Maxwell, who spoke on "What is the good news?," discussed the Third Angel's message in Revelation and the announcement of the gospel in Matthew with the College Place audience. He also highlighted the harmony between the concept of righteousness by faith and the Third Angel's message.

Dr. Jon Cole, chairman of WWC's religious interest committee, noted the format of this spiritual emphasis period was different than in past years. The period was three days shorter than the traditional week of prayer, Students usually conduct the winter week of prayer; however, this year they will coordinate the spring meetings in April. Also, the Student Association's snow frolic was held Feb. 13 in an effort to combine academic relaxation and spiritual refreshment.

Concert Band Slates Western Oregon Tour

The Walla Walla College Concert Band and Wind Ensemble will make a four-stop tour of western Oregon on Feb. 23 and 24. They will present a Friday morning concert at Hoodview Junior Academy and perform Friday evening at Laurelwood Academy. Saturday, they will play for the Eugene church service, and later that evening they will present a secular concert at Milo Academy.

The sacred performances will include familiar hymn tunes in addition to religious classical works. Band Director Dr. Lloyd Leno, associate professor of music, plans to use smaller groups from the band to perform some of the selections. One number, written by a former WWC faculty member, utilizes the guitar, flute, clarinet and horn.

Featured work for the secular concert will be "Bellerophon," a contemporary overture by American composer Paul Whear. Other numbers include Vivaldi's "Piccolo Concerto," which features soloist Colleen Moore and the Wind Ensemble, and McBeth's "Divergents," a contemporary short symphony from 1970.

"Music is selected for value as well as interest," says Leno.

The 55-member Concert Band is organized to provide worthwhile experiences for its members in musical education and training, musical culture, musical recreation, Christian fellowship and citizenship. "It serves the college and the constituency," explains Leno, "by providing public performances in the interest of worship through music, musical culture and entertainment, and by enhancement of the institutional spirit and character by performances at appropriate functions and ceremonies."

During fall quarter, the band performed at Whitman College, Walla Walla; Milton-Stateline Grade School, Stateline, Ore.; Grandview Flats Seventh-day Adventist church, Grandview, B.C.; Rutland Secondary Junior High School, Rutland, B.C.; and Okanagan Academy, Rutland, B.C.

good reading

Beyond the Shadow of a Doubt by Wilber Alexander. Pacific Press Publishing Association. 50 cents.

Doubt is one bothersome trait we all have in common. When problems plague, or disappointments depress, most of us give way to doubt.

Wilber Alexander, chairman of the department of church and ministry at Andrews University, in his new book, Beyond the Shadow of a Doubt, tells how to handle doubt. After 20 years as pastor, counselor and teacher, Alexander has a rich supply of experience and insight on which to draw.

"Active doubt grows by indulgence," Alexander writes, "and is almost impossible to overcome. Active doubt leads to cynicism, indifference and despair. Active doubt is generally expressed and influences others beyond our control. Active doubt leads to self-deception as little by little the mind shuts out every ray of evidence."

Unlike many other books on this topic, Beyond the Shadow of a Doubt presents a positive, aggressively hopeful perspective. "God has never promised to alter circumstances or to release us from trouble and bodily infirmities. Circumstances and crises are of secondary concern. The grace which brings inward strength to endure is a higher manifestation of grace than the mere mastery of difficulties."

He writes, "Grace is not something to be used by us when the occasion demands, but Someone at work within us."

Beyond the Shadow of a Doubt presents the truth that God's love and grace are the answers to our needs. "The appeal of God all through Scripture is that we learn to depend on Him fully in handling the commodity we call life."

Presenting God as the loving and considerate Creator that He is, Alexander shows that without Him life is hopeless, but with Him it becomes a vibrant, joyous experience.

"Genuine faith is free from nagging doubts and skeptical inquiry," he writes. "At the end of sight and reason, faith continues to accept the available evidence and then thrusts its hand through all shadows to grasp the further reality beyond."

Filled with assurance and the message of hope and trust in God, Beyond the Shadow of a Doubt promises to help you handle your problems in a positive way.

forth from two opposing camps of opinion. Most every correspondent seems to have his own idea about what is right in the field of education, art of healing, diet, politics, dress, you name it, and is dead set on cramming it down the throats of all dissenters. Let's consider the following statement taken from Counsels to Writers and Editors, p. 74—"Those who speak to the people through our periodicals should preserve unity among themselves. Nothing that savors of dissension should be found in our publications. Satan is always seeking to cause dissension, for well he knows that by this means he can most effectually counteract the work of God... In their efforts to advance the work, all will manifest that oneness of sentiment and practice which reveals that they are God's witnesses, that they love one another." Let's all pull together and finish the work. What say?
