Can the World See Jesus in Adventism?

By Herald Follett, J.D.

Attorney Herald Follett serves as director of trust services for the Oregon Conference of Seventh-day Adventists and writes from Clackamas, Ore.

As I recently discussed Seventh-day Adventism with a prominent Oregon attorney, he asked me a thought-provoking question: "Tell me, Herald, why is the primary focus in the Adventist Church not on Jesus as it is in the other Protestant churches?"

It was a sincere question, considering the favor in which he holds Adventists and Adventist medical institutions, and his words came to me as an unexpected call for personal and corporate re-evaluation.

Highway Confession

It led me to think back some years to a day in 1965 as I drove north on Interstate-5 in Oregon and found myself confessing that I did not love Jesus.

Then and there I asked God to forgive me, and I pled that He would give me love for Christ in the person of His children here on earth. I asked that He would use me, to the greatest possible extent, for the salvation of the world, regardless of the cost to me.

On that day, I promised God that I would make Jesus the center of every sermon that I might preach, and I promised that I would spend a half hour reading the Conflict of the Ages series by Ellen G. White, besides Bible study and prayer, each day.

Back then, at age 25, my life seemed like a total waste. I felt certain that many would be lost because I had squandered so many opportunities to share Jesus. But from that day forward, things began to take on new meaning in my life, and I was blessed as I kept my promises to Him.

As I read the Conflict of the Ages series, I was powerfully drawn to the Scriptures. It was as if I could not get enough of the Word of God. Jesus came to mean more to me than any earthly friend. While I saw myself as a sinner in dire need of Jesus, I found illustration after illustration in the Bible of how Jesus sought and saved men just like me.

Oh, how I found myself wishing I could do more for Him!

Kneeling in Blood

That trust met a severe test in 1988 when I found myself kneeling in a pool of blood in the middle of a highway trying in vain to save the life of Kari, my 16-year-old daughter. My mind went out to Jesus. I seemed so alone, yet He seemed so near.

Just hours before the auto accident, I had bowed and prayed by her bedside, "Father, I thank you for Kari, for her decision for Jesus, for her desire to be used by You for the salvation of the world . . . in Jesus' name, Amen."

Then had come the squeeze of her hand and the words, "Good night, Daddy. I love you. See you in the morning."

Now, as I visit her lonely grave, I find myself again praying, "Father, I thank you for Kari, for her decision for Jesus, for her desire to be used by you for the salvation of the world. I trust you are answering her prayer, even as she sleeps in Jesus. . . . Amen."

Why, Lord?

Now, after talking with my lawyer friend, questions again go through my mind. Is he right? He's certainly had more conversations with me than with most other Adventists. Somehow he's sensed that Seventh-day Adventists are primarily focused on something other than Jesus Christ.

Which calls me again to prayer—to prayer that when people visit our churches, read our publications, listen to our radio and television programs, or simply enjoy lunch with Herald Follett, that they will, without question, discover that Adventists are Christians.

They must sense that our primary focus is always, always, on Jesus Christ, and that with the Apostle Paul we can say: "For Christ sent me not to baptize, but to preach the gospel: not with wisdom or words, lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect. (1 Corinthians 1:17 KJV)."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters Policy: Letters to the GLEANER editor are welcome. Letters must be signed and should not exceed 150 words in length. Letter writers are urged to limit their letters to commentary on editorial matter appearing in the journal, and should specifically refer to the issue date and article in question. Priority will be given to letters received by the editor within 45 days of the cover date of issue in question. Letters which direct personal criticism at individuals will not be printed; conversely, letters which promote a person by name or description for gratuitous praise will be declined for publication. Highest priority will be given to letters which add information and commentary, pro and con, to material appearing in this journal. Address

Thanks to Alden

Since I don't have a mailing address, please convey to Alden Thompson a big THANK YOU! for his article, "Adventist Bible, Adventist Message" in the Dec. 12 issue of the GLEANER. Thank-you.

With the Commentaries

I received the December 12 GLEANER today, and after reading Alden Thompson's message concerning "The Clear Word Bible," I just cannot keep from expressing my own view formed when my wife came home from teachers' convention with a copy of "The Clear Word Bible," purchased from the conference book-and-Bible house. After examining it for some time, I made this statement to my wife: "This is the closest thing to 'adding to' and 'subtracting from' that I have ever come across."

Of course, the warning reference is found in Revelation 22:18,19. I heartily agree with Brother Thompson when he says, "'Clear Word' belongs with the commentaries in your library, not with the Bibles."

Off Target

My good friend Alden Thompson makes an important point in his column "'Atlantic Monthly,' 'Reader's Digest,' and 'National Enquirer'" (GLEANER, Nov. 21, 1994), but his comments about the "Adventist Review" are way off target.

Alden yearns for "at least one piece of literature that we all read, something like a company-wide newsletter." We already have it. The North American Division edition of the "Adventist Review," with a circulation of nearly 300,000, goes out to almost all Adventist homes in North America every month.

And that's not all. Today the "Adventist Review" appears in 13 different editions worldwide. . . .

Worldwide, about 750,000 individual copies of the "Review" roll off the presses every month. That number translates into a readership of more than 2 million. . . .

Yes, the weekly edition has faced a steady decline in subscriptions over the past 30 years. But the total picture is much brighter. . . .

Shadowy Reprise

When I got the Sept. 5 GLEANER and saw the picture of the elk, I thought "far out." In the next GLEANER, when I read Mr. Blakely's letter, I thought "What??" I don't understand why somebody would criticize a neat photo like that. I really dig those antlers. That photo is great for framing."

Our Father creates shadowy figures all the time. There is nothing wrong with that. Shadowy figures are great against the sunset. That is our Father's work.

Voice from Alden's Past

It has been very interesting during these past months to read the articles by Alden Thompson. He has certainly "stirred up our pure minds!" It has been a rewarding experience to see him grow intellectually since we first met him as a sixth-grader.

Alden's background is from a very strong, conservative Christian home. We had the privilege of having him in our pathfinder club, and, as his leader, I saw his thirst for knowledge and developing mind. I can remember him taking the "Reader's Digest" as soon as it came and going through the "Word Power" section. He would compete with his mother, Lola, to see who could get the most right answers. . . .

So many of the things he writes about are of real concern to many people. . . .

Thank you, Alden, for your timely and helpful studies!

Questionable Statement

I question the statement by Dean C. Tupper, Nov. 7, 1994: "The original 1611 KJV would be unintelligible to the English-speaking person of today."

In fact, I have a word-for-word reprint of the First Edition of the King James Version, the 1611 edition. The spelling, grammar and punctuation of the original are retained, but a more readable type has been used. I can read it at the same rate of speed as I read my KJV of today.

The thousands of changes in today's KJV are almost entirely in the spelling of words, for instance, "days" for "dayes," "be" for

"bee," etc. The old spellings cause no problem at all in the reading and understanding. But it takes literally hours of searching to find even one word (other than spelling) in the 1611 that is different than the present King James. I have yet to find a significant change.

Letters-to-Editor Suggestion

[In response to the Dec. 12 article by Shari Smith which included mention of the question of placing GLEANER material on CompuServe for access by computer operators]. . . one disadvantage of the letters-to-the-editor in the GLEANER is that the letters usually lag behind the actual article by weeks to months. The SDA Forum would provide a much more timely location to see comments on articles. Second, I suspect space limits the number of letters to the editor you can print. You could put many more letters on the SDA Forum. . . .

The Internet is a tremendously powerful tool for communicating across the nation and actually throughout the world. Our church had a couple of students for a year in the South Pacific. They were accessible to local people on CompuServe. With the standard rate, CompuServe messages are free to other CompuServe users, even in other countries.

CompuServe Letters?

Due to encouragement received from writers such as Dennis Stevens, above, the GLEANER, for a four-month trial period, will accept letters to the editor from North Pacific Union Conference members via CompuServe.

For purposes of control and evaluation during this trial period, only CompuServe-submitted letters from Northwest members of record using software registered in submitter's name will be considered for publication.

However, the letters-to-the-editor column continues to remain open to all GLEANER readers, regardless of church affiliation or membership status, subject to "Letters to the Editor" policy as described in the gray-screened portion on the left upper corner of this page.

All letters-to-the-editor writers must state their names and addresses; however, requests to withhold publication of names are honored.

World Church President Asks Northwest to Help Evangelize Unreached Peoples

By Edwin A. Schwisow

Edwin A. Schwisow is editor of the GLEANER and writes from Portland, Ore.

Robert S. Folkenberg, world president of the Seventh-day Adventist Church, led a delegation of General Conference and North American Division church leaders to College Place, Wash., Nov. 19, to spotlight the need for greater Northwestern commitment to outreach and mission.

The stop was the first in a series of visits being made across North America to introduce and seek financial and personal support for "Hands Across the World," a program which will function under the Global Mission Department of the General Conference.

"Hands Across the World" seeks to mobilize the church in North America to focus on reaching areas where the gospel has not been effectively preached, including portions of North America itself, and to help sustain rapidly developing mission work in areas such as Russia and the former Eastern Bloc.

While "Hands Across the World" is orchestrated by the world church, said Folkenberg, he challenged audiences in the College Place Village and Walla Walla College churches to work closely with their church leaders to make their commitment a unique Northwestern response of Northwesterners, by Northwesterners, and responsive to Northwestern concerns.

The Response

In anticipation of the visit, Northwestern conference committees, in dialogue with the North Pacific Union, had prepared a response to Folkenberg's challenge—a response which carefully balanced Northwestern needs with world church challenges, according to Bruce Johnston, North Pacific Union Conference president.

In its response, the Alaska Conference has determined to organize a new group in Togiak and to strengthen presence in Kotzebue while, internationally, raising up a church in Khabarovsk, Russia, and establishing a new church in southern Mexico.

Idaho plans to distribute Steps to Christ and to offer Christ's Object Lessons and The Desire of Ages to every household in its territory; to spearhead establishment of a Native American church in Blackfoot, Idaho; and to open two or more Spanish-speaking congregations in southeastern Idaho, while internationally cooperating with Russia's North Caucasus Conference in a sister-conference relationship.

Montana has stretched its arms out to the Native American Crow and Northern Cheyenne tribes in southeastern Montana and internationally will maintain strong ties with church-development projects in Belgorod, Russia.

Oregon has targeted fast-growing Clark County in its territory north of the Columbia River for creation of a new congregation. It has determined, as well, to carry the gospel more deeply into ethnic groups in the conference and to target Oregon's many unchurched with innovative outreaches, while internationally sending more and more young people on shorter-term mission assignments and holding evangelistic meetings this year in the former Soviet Union, Africa and South America.

Upper Columbia is developing a multiple-media strategy to contact every home (617,000 addresses) in its territory with an invitation to consider the Bible as the source for answers to life's perplexing questions.

It will also utilize "Positive Life Radio" more effectively by beginning to add local content to its transmissions outside of the Walla Walla Valley; and, internationally, members will help conduct Sabbath school class action unit training in the Ukraine and Russia and carry forward mission projects in Asia, Mexico and Africa.

The Washington Conference will continue to sponsor extensive door-to-door activity through "Youth Challenge" and "Restore Ministry," (both literature-evangelistic ministries); will carry forward plans to establish a church in Redmond, Wash., and will target what it calls "struggling" churches in its own territory for special assistance. Internationally, it envisions projects in Russia, Asia and South America.

Meanwhile, from North Pacific Union headquarters in Portland, emphasis focuses on keeping up the sister-union relationship projects with Russia, assisting in projects in Asia, Inter-American and Euro-African divisions, and establishing new churches in Romania and Zimbabwe.

Folkenberg noted that exceptional receptivity to the gospel is being documented worldwide, and that an unusual opportunity to reach out has been granted through "Hands Across the World," to sponsor unprecedented proclamation of Advent-Christianity to the world.

Mike Ryan, left, interviews Dudley and Ginger Snarr of Vancouver, Wash., who have helped send nearly a million pounds of relief supplies to the former USSR during the past two years.

Northwest Church, World Mission

'People of the Book'

By Alden Thompson

Alden Thompson writes Northwest Church, World Mission from College Place, Wash., where he is professor of biblical studies at Walla Walla College.

When I first heard about Pacific Press's new "Abundant Life Bible Amplifier" series, I felt like singing the Doxology on the spot. Finally, 41 years after the appearance of Volume 1 of the Seventh-day Adventist Bible Commentary, Adventists have again set out to publish a series of books covering the entire Bible.

In 1994 the first four books in the 45-volume, 10-year project appeared: "Exodus" by Jon Dybdahl, "Matthew" by George Knight, "Titus and Timothy" by Charles Bradford, and "Hebrews" by William Johnsson. Maybe Adventists can be the "People of the Book" after all—or again!

So far so good. But now the nagging question: How much knowledge of the "Book" do we need in order to qualify as "People of the Book"?

After a "Daniel Up-to-Date" seminar which I taught last fall in Portland, Ore., those questions have become very much alive for me, even more so after reading the papers from those who did additional work in order to receive an hour of college credit.

I had assigned these students to read the book of Daniel and portions of Joyce Baldwin's commentary on Daniel in the Tyndale Old Testament Commentary series. It's a good little book, conservative and generally understandable for a lay reader, though it does address the hard questions of authorship, dating, and historicity.

In their written responses, several students said they had never read Daniel before. For one, reading a "commentary" was a first. All found the stories in Daniel 1-6 helpful; almost all were lost when it came to the prophecies in chapters 7-12.

One devout Christian (not an Adventist) read Daniel for her daily devotions during the month of November. And even though she had read the entire Bible through twice, reading Baldwin's commentary was troublesome for her.

"It left me wondering," she wrote, "if I could ever believe anything I read in the Bible at face value again."

She went on to explain that the story of Belshazzar's failure to learn from the experience of his father, Nebuchadnezzar, had been a help to her (see Daniel 5:17-23). But after reading Baldwin, she wrote, "I find out that Nebuchadnezzar wasn't his father after all; someone named Nabonidus was."

Now, Daniel 5 itself says consistently (four times) that Nebuchadnezzar and Belshazzar were father and son: (Daniel 5:2, 11, 18, 22.) Yet the SDA Bible Commentary holds the same position favored by Baldwin, namely, that Nebuchadnezzar was Belshazzar's grandfather (see Volume 4 on Daniel 5:2; also Ellen White in Prophecy and Kings, p. 522).

A good commentary will explain how "father" in the Bible can also mean "grandfather." But the first exposure to such an idea, even from a believer's commentary, can tempt some to think that the Bible is not reliable.

So who should read the Bible and who should read commentaries, and when? Every "informed" pastor and teacher grapples with those questions, knowing that knowledge at the wrong time or in the wrong manner can be as deadly to one of God's children as lack of knowledge.

What about the new "Bible Amplifier" series. Can it be a blessing to the church?

I believe so. But we should ponder the reasons for the 41-year gap between publication of the first volume of the SDA Bible Commentary and the "Bible Amplifier." While commentaries of every shape and flavor have exploded on the American scene in recent years, Adventist presses have been silent. Why?

Some insight can be gained from the fate of the "back-to-the-Bible" movement attempted by world Sabbath school leaders back in 1985. That was when Gordon Hyde's quarterly on Mark's gospel launched a 10-year Sabbath school plan to cover all the books of the Bible.

The enthusiastic response suggested that the time was ripe for a new Adventist commentary series that could provide companion volumes for the new Sabbath school lessons. But conversations with Review and Herald and Pacific Press revealed little enthusiasm for the idea. And understandably so, for the church was seeking to meet the needs of the entire world field through one adult quarterly.

The lessons were to be simple, affirming, and conservative. Often they were written by non-specialists. Under such constraints, a matching commentary series would have been a daunting challenge.

But even more serious trouble surfaced when it became evident that many of the faithful were unhappy with the book-by-book approach. Lack of balance was partly to blame: too much time on 1 Peter, for example, and not enough time for John. But the real problem was that the book-by-book plan forced readers to face difficult passages.

So the Sabbath school planners decided to thin out the problems with topical lessons every-other quarter, in effect, covering the whole Bible in 20 years instead of 10.

That's why the familiar can now be very familiar—two quarters on the book of Revelation in 1989, for example; another whole quarter on Revelation 14 alone (Three Angels' Messages) in 1994, and Revelation 14 once again as one of the "Great Chapters" in the first quarter of 1995.

Yet even endless repetition won't always give birth to knowledge. In my autumn "History of Adventism" class, with the Three Angels' Messages featured in Sabbath school, and after text-book reading and class discussion, a bright, life-long product of Adventist schools and committed Christian called me on the phone and said rather sheepishly: "I still don't get it. Can you tell me what the Three Angels' Messages are all about?"

So how much do "People of the Book" have to know? If, as Ellen White said, John 3:16 alone is enough to be "a guide for the soul" (Testimonies to Ministers, p. 370), why so much more to Scripture? And why the "Bible Amplifier"? More on that next time.

Reindeer Spotlight Gospel Information At Healy Exhibit

Reindeer Rudolph, 4, Abraham, 3, and Samuel, 2, who are being raised by an Adventist family as a 4-H project in Healy, Alaska, have done double-duty not only as tourist attractions but also as Bible instructors.

Shawn and Shane Bailey, 19-year-old twins, and their sisters, Emma-June, 13, and Leanne, 12, displayed the reindeer as a 4-H Project and helped focus viewers' attention on the Bible with information at the exhibit about the biblical names of reindeer Abraham and Samuel.

Tourists travel through Healy when visiting Alaska's Denali National Park, and exhibitors provide information about the park while showing their projects.

While allowing visitors to pet, ride and photograph the reindeer, the Baileys displayed large signboards about the State of Alaska, and particularly about the animals.

The Baileys also use reindeer for Bible outreach in other special events such as fairs and local parades.

Both Shawn and Shane have won all-expenses-paid trips to the 72nd Annual National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Shawn with a report on safety and Shane for his report on conservation of natural resources.

In judging the reports, reviewers also took into account the two young men's six years with 4-H, their citizenship, service to the community, and leadership.

Shawn has also been named as a 1994 Lions Club international exchange student

Globetrotting Book From Aleknagik Witnesses to World

Members of the Aleknagik, Alaska, Church are amazed by the long-lasting missionary effect of a book sent out long ago by a local "mailing band."

Members received a letter three years ago addressed only to "Mailing Band, Aleknagik, Alaska," in which the writer from Athens, Greece, requested a copy of "Bible Readings for the Home," by Uriah Smith.

It appeared to be a miraculous request, as the "mailing band" had not sent out any religious literature for many years, but finally the connection with the Greek letter-writer was traced to one of 2,000 books identified with a "Literature Band" stamp for distribution in Alaska. The book had eventually found its way to Istanbul, Turkey, where the Greek man borrowed it and then wrote to ask for his own copy.

Recently, Aleknagik members learned that as an outgrowth of that contact, not only did the person who requested the book become an Adventist Christian, but he has also studied the Bible with a young

Sitka Women Vault From Pantry to Pulpit on Mothers' Day

Women of the Sitka, Alaska, Church last year jumped from pantry to pulpit as they agreed to take charge of a church service if men would manage the potluck afterward.

The switch proved popular, say members, as four women, ranging in viewpoint from that of a young mother to the sage eye of a great-grandmother, shared their thoughts on spiritual parenting, leisurely exiting the service as men of the congregation hurried to lay out the potluck fellowship meal.

Change of Pastors Leads Off List of Top Palmer News

The departure of Mark Carr, former Palmer, Alaska, pastor, who had served the congregation for four-and-a-half years, and the taking up of pastoral duties by Neil Biloff, formerly pastor of the Jewel Lake, Eagle River and Talkeetna District, leads off a list of Palmer news events last year.

A farewell potluck on July 4 was held in honor of the departing pastoral family which included the pastor's wife, Sharon, and children, Tyler and Melissa.

The family has moved to Virginia where Pastor Carr is studying to earn a doctor-of-philosophy degree in Christian ethics and Sharon is completing her degree in architectural engineering.

Later that month, the congregation held a garage sale which successfully raised needed funds for deserving students in need of tuition assistance, according to Virginia Spreen, worthy-student fund director.

The congregation also conducted a July vacation Bible school featuring 19 staff members, headed by Dee Myhre, which attracted 55 youngsters from the Palmer vicinity and surrounding area known as the Mat-Su Valley.

Her classmates describe in great detail Fluffy's unsavory eating habits, as he always swallows his main courses whole and head-first.

GSAA Students Urged to Give Talents to God

Gem State Adventist Academy (GSAA) students have been challenged to turn their talents over to the Lord during "Spirit Weekend," a semiannual spiritual-emphasis event which recently featured several guest speakers and performers.

"The weekend is designed to meet the needs of students spiritually," said Greg Wahlen, GSAA pastor. "We want to promote spiritual fellowship and learning."

The weekend opened with featured performer Bobby Michaels, Word recording artist, as he visited in classrooms and shared his vision of missions and music, and on Friday evening, he challenged the students to let God take charge of their hearts and to become involved in missions.

On Sabbath, Doug Mace, Loma Linda University Church youth pastor, shared his testimony, and that afternoon, the drama troupe "Among Friends" focused on Jesus as the key to heaven.

"Spirit Weekend" wrapped up Saturday evening as students shared their talents during annual Amateur Hour.

Churches Ponder Deep Lessons of 1844

Services held on Sabbath, Oct. 22, in Payette, Idaho, Baker City, Ore., and La Grande, Ore., commemorated the 150th anniversary of the date in 1844 when thousands believed Christ would return in person to earth.

From that disappointed 19th-century group sprang a band of Advent believers who determined from Bible study that Christ would, indeed, soon return, but that He must first conduct a final atoning act as high priest and judge before the mercy seat of God in heaven.

This group established the Seventh-day Adventist Church denomination in the early 1860s.

Payette Youth

The Payette Youth Department presented a drama, "Only Two More Days," which invited the congregation to reflect on the Second Coming of Jesus and on the need to share the message of His return worldwide.

Playing the part of "James White," Pastor Ron Hessel directed the youths in the drama prior to Sabbath worship services.

La Grande

Members of the La Grande Church took a visual tour back in time to ancient Israel as Pastor Chester Schurch, dressed as a high priest, illustrated his sermon with actual-size models of the Old Testament sanctuary as described in the biblical books of Leviticus and Exodus.

In his presentation, he briefly described each piece of furniture and its symbolism as it pointed to Jesus. He also described the events which took place in the sanctuary on a typical Day of Atonement.

He then spoke of the importance of Jesus' ministry in the Holy-of-Holies in the heavenly sanctuary.

The purpose of the special Oct. 22 service, said Pastor Schurch, was to help members and visitors to sense the vital significance of 1844 in their personal lives.

Baker City

For Baker City members, special services on Oct. 22 were preceded by the baptisms of Dan and Shanna Swan and Lucas Howerton.

For many months, Dan had felt that he should return to the Christian way of life which he had known as a youngster.

He and Shanna then began to attend church services with their children, Ryan, 4, and Tyler, whose 16-month birthday came on Oct. 22.

home with Pastor Roger Martin, Shanna, too, decided to be baptized. Now, she says, "It's so wonderful to belong to the whole family!"

Lucas, an eighth-grader, made his decision after attending the pastor's baptismal class at the local Adventist church school.

At the Oct. 22 service, teachers Alice and Gary Laabs and the church school choir presented a special number in honor of his baptism.

Before the baptismal service, Dan and Shanna and Pastor Martin held a service of dedication for the couple's children, and Ed Vaughn joined in the dedication service with his five-year-old daughter, Keyna.

The Oct. 22 memorial sermon was highlighted by early advent hymns sung by a nine-voice choir organized by Toni Nickell.

Information for this report was filed by Wreatha Hudson of Baker City, Ore., Joyce Klocko of Payette, Idaho, and David Riley of La Grande, Ore.

La Grande Hosts Women's Gathering

Eastern Oregon women met at the La Grande, Ore., Church recently for an "Afternoon About Prayer," sponsored by the Idaho Conference Women's Ministries Committee and featuring presenters, from left, Carole Hull, Bonnie Tyson-Flyn, Teresa Gonzalez, Betty Rayl, Honor Harris and Alix Mansker.

Mansker of the Boise, Idaho, Cloverdale Church; Harris of the Eagle, Idaho, Church; and Rayl of the Richland, Ore., Church presented prayer models, each suggesting a different way to make one's prayer life fresh and innovative.

In reviewing various books about prayer, Carole Stockton of the local church reviewed "More Incredible Answers to Prayer," Peggy Clayville of the Cove, Ore., Church reviewed "A Quiet Place in a Crazy World," and Camie Bartlett of the Enterprise, Ore., Church reviewed "Let Prayer Change Your Life."

All participants received a bibliography of currently available books on prayer, and prayer leader Tyson-Flyn of Nampa, Idaho, led out in corporate prayer and coordinated personal prayer opportunities for participants.

Gonzalez of the Vale, Ore., Church told of her quest for healing as evidence of the reality of a powerful, prayer-hearing God.

Cindy Schurch, local women's ministries leader, coordinated arrangements for the meeting, and members Ellen Brown, Wendy Onjukka, and Jack Beddoe provided music.

Two weeks after the seminar, Baker City members Jerry and Toni Nickell hosted a follow-up potluck fellowship hour for those with continuing interest in natural foods preparation.

Graduates from the recent course were Alberta Ainsworth, Lyndell Anderson, Adelia Bennett, Barbara Fleming, Glenn Fleming, Elizabeth Gray, Fred Gray, Lettie Belle Gray, Angie Hahn, Al Hudson, Wreatha Hudson, Pastor Roger Martin, Nancy Martin, Toni Nickell, Barbara Peterson, Mildred Peterson, Lola Ruff, and Alexis Vasquez.

Payette's Salerno Anti-Drug Poster Earns Top Award

Tres Salerno, son of Ken, Jr., and Vicki Salerno of Payette, Idaho, has won first prize among Idaho Conference students for his anti-drug-abuse poster titled "Don't Live in the Dark."

Submitted during a conference-sponsored contest known as "LIFT," his three-dimensional poster was one of 30 judged.

He received a blue ribbon and a cash award during a "Lifestyle Improvement for Teens" camp held last October near McCall, Idaho, at Camp IdaHaven, the conference-operated youth camp.

The conference-sponsored camp was designed to encourage Adventist young people to choose to live healthy, balanced, drug-free lives, according to Morian Perry, Idaho Conference superintendent of schools.

Each group of participating students was assigned to visit another Adventist school and to share experiences and information they had learned at the congress.

Susan Iwasa, volunteer counselor, accompanied Salerno, Eric Barton, and Lauren Iwasa from Payette during the camp and assisted them with their projects and presentations.

Idaho Falls Church Members Shower Pastor with Gifts

Members of the Idaho Falls, Idaho, Church recently surprised their pastor, Doug Bryan, and his wife, Jane, with cards, letters, and presents of appreciation for their service to the local church family.

The pastor was given a float tube which will help him in his fly fishing hobby, and Jane received a present of bowls decorated with hearts and cows.

Steve McPherson, Idaho Conference president, presented the sermon on the pastor-appreciation Sabbath, Oct. 29, and his wife, Sharon McPherson, gave special music on the church organ.

Baker City Hosts Weekend Health Classes for 18

Members and friends of the Baker City, Ore., Church were recently hosted during a weekend-long health seminar which attracted 18 graduating participants.

During the seminar, facilitators Albert Burns, D.M.D., and wife Elinore, of Weimar, Calif., reviewed latest scientific information on the prevention and treatment of common degenerative diseases such as heart disease, diabetes, high blood pressure, and strokes.

The seminar closed with a natural foods preparation period, which provided practical experience and a "Just-Taste-It" lunch.

The Burnses are field representatives for Weimar Institute and have conducted seminars for more than 150 lay and professional groups in the United States and Canada since his retirement from active surgical practice in 1986.

Dramatic Payette Farewell

Treasure Valley School students in Payette, Idaho, recently gave a music and drama-filled farewell to crew members of a visiting Maranatha Volunteers International team of 60 builders which helped in ongoing construction of a new church school facility.

During the program, additional thanks was given to the workers by Yvonne Iwasa, school board chairman, and Ken Salerno, Jr., building committee chairman.

The 15 students are currently using a few rooms adjoining the Payette Church sanctuary as classrooms until the new facility is completed. Teacher Val Iwasa is assisted by Betty Martsch, who teaches first grade during morning hours.

The present structure under construction stands adjacent to the church parking lot at 3rd Ave. S. and 9th Street. The former school facility on N. 7th and Iowa St. has been sold for use as a Head Start campus for younger children.

KTSY Listeners Pledge $223,302 To Gem State Station

KTSY, the Christian radio station located on the campus of Gem State Academy, received $223,302.14 in pledges from 1,446 listeners during the recent three-day fund raising Sharathon held Dec. 5 through 7.

"This Sharathon was different from others in a lot of ways," said Michael Agee, KTSY general manager. "It felt more like a family reunion of donors, volunteers and employees of the station."

Throughout the three-day Sharathon 150 prayer volunteers prayed for KTSY's ministry.

The flavor of this Sharathon was such that KTSY donors began to mention on the air the number of years they have supported KTSY. Volunteers who had not seen each other since the last Sharathon had time to catch up on news and begin making plans for the next year, while each employee and on-air personality had the opportunity to meet those who make their ministry possible at the close of the Sharathon when more than 1,200 listeners, volunteers and staff met at the Boise State University Pavilion.

At the Pavilion several local artists, as well as Brian Duncan, a nationally known Christian recording artist, led the group in praising the Lord for what he had done for and through KTSY.

Day sponsors, those listeners who are willing to underwrite the cost of an entire day of KTSY's ministry, were responsible for $86,000 of the pledges which is approximately 40 percent of KTSY's budget.

"We were pleased," Agee said. "with what the Lord is doing with KTSY and its listeners."

Eleven Join Twin Falls/Buhl District After Meetings

Eleven individuals made the decision to be baptized and join the Twin Falls/Buhl, Idaho Churches at the conclusion of recent evangelistic meetings which Ed Brown, retired pastor and evangelist, conducted at the Buhl Church with the assistance of David Glass, the local pastor. Some who attended continue to study and plan to be baptized in the near future.

Sam Cantrell, the son of Jon and Donna Cantrell, and Nathan and Rachel Bulkley, Mike and Tara Bulkley's children, along with Odelia "Tilly" Swanson, Pauline Cantrell, and Judy Cook, are the newest members of the Buhl congregation.

Sam and Jeannette Garcia and their three children, Elizabeth Barnes, Melissa Barnes, and Evan Garcia, have just joined the Twin Falls Church.

Bitterroot Baptisms

Pastor Randy Barlow officiates at the outdoor baptisms of two new Hamilton, Mont., church members, 11-year-old sixth-grader Nicci Gratton, left, and 10-year-old fifth-grader Jason Watson. Both are students at Blodgett View Christian School where they took pre-baptismal Bible studies.

Because no baptistry was available in the yet-to-be-completed Hamilton Church building, many members drove to the home of Barney and Nancy Lambert on the banks of the Bitterroot River to take part in the service.

Southeastern Group Not Disappointed At Oct. 22 Services

A leaky baptistry threatened to bring great disappointment to 80 Adventists gathered in Miles City, Mont., on Sabbath, Oct. 22, but disappointment was not to be.

As local members and visitors from throughout southeastern Montana gathered in the Miles City Church for a Sabbath of historical remembrance, leaking water was discovered in a basement classroom and was traced to a baptismal tank scheduled for use later in the morning.

But members moved ahead with the program anyway, conducting the baptisms during Sabbath school instead of during the later worship hour, and then proceeded with the commemoration service as planned.

The Oct. 22, 1994, date is significant to Seventh-day Adventists as the 150th anniversary of the day when thousands of Millerites suffered great disappointment when Christ did not appear as predicted on Oct. 22, 1844.

Special guests for the service were Perry Parks, Montana Conference president, and Jim Osborne, conference church ministries director, both of Bozeman, Mont.

In their remarks, they outlined a chronology of events associated with the Millerites' "Great Disappointment," and told of the emergence of the Seventh-day Adventist Church organization as spearheaded by diligent Bible students in the Millerite group.

That afternoon, Parks was featured in a service which highlighted news from throughout the conference.

Mt. Ellis Students Forfeit Fall Fun For Winter Glory

Mount Ellis Academy (MEA) students and staff forfeited a Sunday of rest and relaxation last fall to prepare its Bear Canyon Ski Hill for a generous winter payoff.

Owned and operated by MEA, Bear Canyon has a 600-foot elevation change with three runs and an additional natural half-pipe run under development for snow-boarding. The intermediate-level main run is lighted for night skiing.

To prepare the slopes for better recreation this winter, the students and staff cleared trails, worked on the new snow-board trail, and repaired and cleaned structures.

The hill's state-certified T-bar lift is capable of keeping lift lines relatively short. A newly acquired snow cat assists in trail maintenance.

Unflagging Support

Old flags came down for the last time and brand new United States and Montana state flags, gifts of the Palisades Adventist Christian Elementary School classes of 1992 and 1989, were flown for the first time at the Great Falls, Mont., school on Sept. 28. Alumni-contributors of the U.S. flag are Mindy Iverson, Fred Hickman and Clifton Reimann, Class of 1992, and Montana flag donor Shawn Doss, Class of 1989. Thanks, alumni!

OREGON

Adventist History Springs to Life At Hood View Church

"The King Is Coming," an hour-long dramatization staged on Oct. 22 at the Hood View Church in Boring, Ore., commemorated the date Oct. 22, 1844, when many believed that Christ would return.

Rick Westermeyer, Sabbath school superintendent, coordinated the special program, which included numbers by two choirs and brass instrumentalists.

Costumed actors reenacted various scenes from early Adventist history, such as William Miller in his study, a country church service, a camp meeting tent meeting, and a plowed field vision. The leading character, "William Miller," was portrayed by Pastor Paul Savino.

Busloads of Thanks!

Columbia Adventist Academy (CAA) near Battle Ground, Wash., is blessed with loyal constituents. Recently, when transportation needs became apparent at the school, a benefactor from the Meadow Glade Church purchased and donated a 1989 Dodge van in addition to various parts for the regular CAA buses. These gifts continue the fine tradition of support shown by area church members for CAA.

Columbia Academy Faculty Honor '95 Class at Reception

A senior/faculty reception, long an annual tradition at Columbia Adventist Academy near Battle Ground, Wash., was held once again this year, on Oct. 10, to gracious reviews by senior class members.

Senior class colors of purple, black, and white dominated the decor, which included balloons, confetti in the shape of graduation caps, and jelly beans.

"Everything was done beautifully and looked great. As a senior, I'm glad we were able to have this special moment with the faculty to get to know them just a little bit better," said Jennifer Dorn.

Special Session, Oregon Conference

Notice is hereby given that a special constituency meeting of the Oregon Conference of Seventh-day Adventists will be held at Emerald Junior Academy, 35572 Zephyr Way, Pleasant Hill, Ore., on Sunday, March 12, at 9:30 a.m.

This session is called for the purpose of hearing reports and recommendations, with discussions to follow, regarding whether to raze the existing boys' dormitory on the Milo Adventist Academy campus and build a new one or to do extensive remodeling of both dormitories and selected faculty housing. Discussion may also include capital improvements on all three senior academy campuses.

The delegates selected for the Fifty-First Triennial Session held May 17, 1992, unless replaced by their accrediting church, shall serve as delegates for this Special Session.

Transfer of Dentist To Gold Beach, Ore., Strengthens Church

Efforts by members of the small Gold Beach, Ore., congregation to add numbers and outreach strength to their congregation were rewarded last fall as Herman Liem, D.D.S., opened his office in town.

A Loma Linda University graduate, the Seventh-day Adventist dentist practiced for 10 years in Redlands, Calif., where he also taught dentistry at his alma mater before coming to Gold Beach.

Many community representatives were present at the grand opening of his full-service dental office, where they were treated to a vegetarian buffet lunch.

Dr. Liem has encouraged Gold Beach church members to plan with him to hold a "Health Expo" for the community early this year.

In further efforts to strengthen the ministry of the local congregation, Leon Cornforth, a retired pastor from Boise, Idaho, who has developed effective faith-sharing methods, was invited to hold an all-day seminar on Nov. 12.

Members of the nearby Brookings, Ore.,

Church joined with the Gold Beach members for the seminar, which included visiting of community homes to allow Corn-forth to model effective get-acquainted methods in real-life situations.

Supply Room Makes Way for New Milo Student Center

More than 100 people witnessed a fall ribbon-cutting ceremony at Milo Adventist Academy for a new student center which officially opens this month.

Space now in use for the new center was once a storage facility for the maintenance department and is located under the cafeteria.

"I'm impressed," said Ed Boyatt, Oregon Conference superintendent of schools. "To see the transformation from a junk room to a student center is remarkable."

The cost of the student center is approximately $30,000, $12,000 of which has been donated by the Oregon Conference and the North Pacific Union Conference.

The 1993-1994 Associated Student Body contributed time and dollars toward the project, as well.

PAA Vigorously Gathers Donated Food for Hungry

Portland Adventist Academy (PAA) students have collected more than 5,000 cans of food to help Portland Adventist Community Services (PACS) respond to emergency needs for food in the Portland, Ore., area.

The food drive, which was supported as a "challenge" by Adventist Development Relief Agency (ADRA) and the Oregon Conference, brought in 50 cents per can of donated food from these organizations.

More than 30 PAA students knocked on neighborhood doors to collect needed items of food. "I always enjoy seeing our students participate in this type of program," said Michael Conner, PAA principal. "We are glad to be able to give back to the community."

PACS, which provides emergency food, clothing, and medical care, gave out food valued at more than $204,000 to more than 25,000 people last year. Because of cutbacks in distribution of government commodities, however, serious shortfalls in supplies of food and clothing have occurred.

Deary Congregation Registers Banner Growth in 1994

Though still a small congregation, at the rate the Deary, Idaho, Church has grown this year, it may not remain that way long.

Total Deary membership rose from 25 to 30 this year, an increase of 20 percent through accession growth.

Pat Jessep, visitation evangelist, ministered with Pastor Otis Parks in bringing Mark and Becky Turkington into church membership following baptism.

Recent baptisms also include those of Scott Luellen and Jane Farden, who were baptized in the Potlatch River.

Faith-sharing members, Christian kindness and persistent praying appear to have combined with the power of the Holy Spirit to bring strength and growth.

Talk Show Host Matthews Headlines College Place TV Shar-a-thon

Dan Matthews, television talk show host for "Lifestyle Magazine," spent several days in College Place, Wash., last November as headline "Shar-a-thon" host for Blue Mountain Television (BMTV).

The non-profit company broadcasts exclusively in the Walla Walla Valley and carries religious, public affairs, news and news feature programming. Its outreach is coordinated with the ministry of Adventist churches in its signal-coverage area, and Walla Walla College mass media students assist in program preparation.

During the Shar-a-thon, phone-manning volunteers received more than 600 telephone calls from viewers, says Don Dealy, director of marketing.

A total of $76,000 was raised toward the station's annual budget of $120,000.

"Many also visited the station in person to share in the excitement in a more personal way," he said.

The Shar-a-thon was designed as a way to invite viewers to voice their verbal and financial appreciation for the station through a once-a-year commitment, he said.

Several viewers shared stories of how they had been blessed by watching BMTV programs such as "The Revelation Seminar" with Doug Batchelor, "Janice's Attic" with Janice Smith, and "Lifestyle Magazine" with Matthews.

Dozens of viewers pledged $120 in support of BMTV and received, in turn, a copy of "Cooking by the Book," which Matthews highly recommended.

During the Shar-a-thon, Carolyn Wilkinson, a local viewer, told of her former fear and hatred of Adventists which has changed to appreciation as a result of viewing BMTV programming.

Another viewer, Cheryl Christensen, visited the station and was interviewed by station manager Lynelle Childs, where she told of her experience of returning to Christianity after many years away from church fellowship.

She noted her appreciation for programs by hosts Batchelor and Smith, and said she was especially blessed by Sabbath services from the College Place Village Church which are shown over BMTV.

One couple called the station shortly after 7 o'clock in the morning to offer a "matching grant" of $1,000 to support BMTV if the rest of the viewers would call in pledges totaling $1,000 during the next hour.

The matching total was reached within minutes of the call.

Young people such as Jenny and Jon Tillay also visited the station during Shar-a-thon and were interviewed by Matthews as they told of their enjoyment of programs such as "At Home with the Benton Sisters," which gives cooking lessons, and stories on the programs "Janice's Attic" and "A World of Stories."

Jon also told of his fascination with adventures he sees on the program "Digging Up the Past." Other young people, such as viewers Kyle and Brock Lafferty, shared similar testimonies about the blessings brought to them through BMTV.

Information for this report was supplied by Donald M. Dealy and Janet Baker of College Place, Wash.

Dan Matthews, right, talk show host and moderator of "Lifestyle Magazine," offers a premium book, "Cooking by the Book," to those who pledge $120 or more to Blue Mountain Television (BMTV). He is accompanied by BMTV President Roger Johnson.

Brock Lafferty tries out a camera during his visit to Blue Mountain Television. Brock is a regular member of the BMTV viewing family.

The Blue Mountain Television studios are located in the College Place, Wash., Village Church.

Grangeville Women Find No Inspiration Barrier at Border

Three Grangeville, Idaho, women recently learned that women's ministries inspiration need not stop at the local conference border.

Dorothy Beitia, Ione Kerr, and Beckie Sitz of Grangeville, Idaho, attended a September Idaho-Conference-sponsored women's retreat held at Camp Ida-Haven, near McCall, Idaho.

"We were inspired by guest speakers Bev Condry and Karen Nikola and encouraged to allow the Holy Spirit to prepare our heart soil for Jesus' love and to understand that God wants to plant His seed in our hearts," said Sitz.

Walla Walla Valley Students Capture Vision of Service

About 250 Walla Walla Valley Academy (WWVA) students and faculty from College Place, Wash., fulfilled Christ's admonition to willingly help others by taking part in "Service 102 Day" events this fall.

Divided into groups led by faculty members, students set out to make changes in the community by weeding and clearing a bike path, picking up trash on a nature trail and along the fence at Fort Walla Walla, cleaning out a drainage ditch at Jefferson Park, washing windows at Milton-Stateline Elementary School, rolling up fencing and cleaning up the Farm Labor Camp in Milton-Freewater, Ore., and digging out and removing large shrubs for the Housing Authority at one of the low-income housing areas in Walla Walla.

"We had fun pulling the bushes," said freshman Rosemary Laarad. "We even played tug-o-war with them!"

"I believe we should do this more often," one student commented in his Bible class.

"After all, isn't community service what this school is all about?" another student continued.

An annual event, "Service 102 Day" is coordinated by Walla Walla College (WWC) and actively supported by WWVA students.

"We had a such a great time," said senior Kim Peterson, "I think I'll get involved next year when I attend WWC."

WASHINGTON

'Year of the Adventist Woman'

Women employed by the Washington Conference and spouses of male pastors and teachers are receiving notices of appreciation for their work, roses, copies of a women's devotional book "Gift of Love," and are being honored with a special program during "The Year of the Adventist Woman," 1995.

Pictured, from left, are Becky Weigley, and with me Lois Jaecks and Shelley Schurch as we met in the conference office prayer room to seek God's blessing for the affirmation project, to pray for women leaders in the conference, as well as to discuss the distribution of the books and flowers.

The special affirmation is being presented on behalf of the conference's Women's Ministries Department by Lois Jaecks, Shepherdess Association sponsor, and Patti Revolinski, associate education superintendent.

The conference is also encouraging all Adventist women this year to become more involved in Christian outreach ministries, and we invite people of the conference to especially pray for Adventist women this year.

WALLA WALLA COLLEGE

Aamodt Invites Faculty Peers to Focus on Values

Selected by vote of her Walla Walla College (WWC) faculty peers to deliver the annual "Distinguished Faculty Lecture," at the college, Terrie Dopp Aamodt, professor of English and history, spoke on "Face Values: Liberal Education's Imperative."

The Nov. 13 lecture, which was dedicated to the late Dale Hepker, former director of the WWC Teaching Learning Center, focused on the relationship between values and higher education.

Aamodt was selected as speaker by fellow faculty members in recognition of her dedicated service to WWC and her insight into Christian higher education. A banquet for faculty and staff preceded the presentation.

Aamodt said she hoped her lecture would help initiate wider discussion of how to emphasize values in higher education.

"A liberal education includes the freedom to explore issues, including those questions whose answers are not apparent, and it includes the freedom to follow the truth where it leads," she said.

Aamodt also spoke of a need to show consideration for others while engaged in a liberal pursuit of answers: "Society, especially a pluralistic society such as ours, needs education that cultivates empathy," she said. "Empathy allows free expression of ideas to occur."

"It is imperative for all colleges and universities, including the Walla Walla College community, to face the large issues of values that underlie their very existence.

Terrie Dopp Aamodt

When those values are recovered and articulated, liberal education will thrive in an atmosphere of civility, and American higher education will be able to offer itself at face value," she concluded.

Aamodt, a 1976 graduate of Columbia Union College, received a master of arts degree from The College of William and Mary in 1978 and a doctorate from Boston University in 1986. She has taught at WWC since 1979 and is the author of "Bold Venture," a 300-page history of WWC published for the 1992 centennial.

As speaker for the "Distinguished Faculty Lecture," she received a $1,000 honorarium from the General Conference Division of Higher Education.

Engineering Grad's Radio Takes Top Prize for Design

Walla Walla College (WWC) graduate Greg Billock recently won grand prize in the nationwide Texas Instruments Hot Stuff 3 DSP Design Contest for his design of a generalized modulation digital radio using direct digital synthesis.

The third annual contest was open to universities and colleges only, and Billock competed against students from 30 institutions such as Cornell University, University of Southern California, Texas A&M University, University of New Mexico, Northern Illinois University, and the University of California at Berkeley. Billock is a 1994 WWC electrical engineering graduate.

Billock's design, his senior project, was for a radio which can broadcast in AM, FM, or any other kind of modulation programmed into the digital signal processor (DSP) that runs it.

"Basically, there are lots of ways to modulate information—like music—onto a radio wave," Billock explained. "FM and AM are the most common, but the theory has been worked out for any kind of modulation strategy the designer wants to make. Unfortunately, it is usually very difficult to wire up the circuit to do the modulation desired."

"With a DSP doing the modulation, it is easy to think up a new modulation idea, program it into the DSP, and let it do the rest. No messy circuits to wire up and debug."

Billock was advised on his project by Rob Frohne, WWC associate professor of engineering, and Ralph Stirling, WWC project engineer.

The contest entries were judged by members of Texas Instruments technical staff and then-university-program-manager Bill Gordon. Dr. Gordon stated that Greg's design was chosen because he was "impressed by originality and creativity in developing digital signal processing applications with limited digital signal processing resources."

Engineering Group Wins Design Prize For VLSI Circuit

Walla Walla College engineering students recently took first place in the novice digital design category of the 1994 student VLSI Design Contest.

They competed against student teams from 16 other colleges and universities, including the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the University of Michigan.

The contest involved the design of a very large-scale integrated (VLSI) circuit. Established by Mentor Graphics Corporation of Wilsonville, Ore., the contest is sponsored by computer industry giants such as Hewlett-Packard and Texas Instruments.

The students, Travis Johnson, Joseph Soo, Fred Christensen, Greg Billock, and Carlos Muchiutti, chose a project that would be commercially feasible but not currently available and developed the device (which integrates 6,500 transistors and measures 2.2 millimeters square) last spring in an electronics class taught by Larry Aamodt, assistant professor of engineering, and Curtis Nelson, associate professor of engineering.

Northwest Members Assist with International Orphanages

International Children's Care, Inc. (ICC), founded 16 years ago as a supporting ministry of the Seventh-day Adventist Church, has begun construction of a new orphanage facility in Mexico.

Volunteers from the Northwest have been especially active in volunteering their construction assistance in recent weeks, according to Jim Blackwood, development director, from ICC headquarters in Vancouver, Wash.

Members of the Kennewick, Wash., Church, returned earlier this month from the Baja California site after spending two weeks building Cottage 2 of the projected 10-house compound.

Orphans will begin to be housed at the facility as soon as Cottage 1 is ready for use, Blackwood said.

A group from the Stone Tower Church in Portland, Ore., is scheduled to travel to the orphanage site this spring to volunteer their construction skills.

ICC already operates facilities in the Dominican Republic and Guatemala and is active in the rescuing of abandoned and orphaned children in the countries of Guatemala, Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Colombia, Romania, Thailand and Mexico through an orphan care program.

The story of Little Rosanna summarizes thousands of accounts that could be told of lives changed through ICC.

She was playing in the living room when I recently entered House 5 at Las Palmas Orphanage in the Dominican Republic. She and her brother were then the latest additions to the nearly 120 children at the facility.

Not yet two years of age, she seemed unaware that her mother had abandoned her and her brother, Erculi, six months earlier, leaving her father, who was suffering from heart failure, to care for them.

They lived in an impoverished area near the Haitian border, and as their father's health deteriorated, in desperation he brought them to Las Palmas Orphanage.

Rosanna and her three-year-old brother now live in House 5 with their new brothers, sisters, mom and dad. Since the house parents are Seventh-day Adventist Christians, the children are reared and educated in an atmosphere of faith, and many who have been reared in ICC orphanages during the past 15 years are now adopting the service ethic of ministry, studying to become pastors and future leaders of the church.

Rosanna is still too young to understand how close she came to becoming a statistic in the United Nations report on worldwide child deaths due to disease and poverty.

But with childlike faith, she now recognizes that she's part of another list—the list of those who Jesus will someday soon fit with crowns of eternal life.

Charles Lawson serves on the staff of International Children's Care, Inc., in Vancouver, Wash.

Rosanna, 2, was brought to an International Children's Care, Inc., orphanage by a desperately ill single-parent father. The ministry of ICC has helped take hundreds off the United Nations list of child deaths due to poverty and is helping to raise up Adventist leadership in countries where ICC has a presence.

GLENER Material

All GLEANER news and announcements (with the exception of material published in the "Viewpoints" and "Advertising" sections of this journal) are submitted to the GLEANER through conference/institutional correspondents, as listed on Page 2 of this issue. Correspondents individually determine cut-off times for copy submission, but a minimum average of one month lead time is required from submission of an article to its appearance in print. Contact local correspondents for specific deadline information.

Advertising, letters-to-the-editor and personal opinion/testimonial material may be delivered directly to the GLEANER office in Portland, Ore., and must arrive in the GLEANER office as follows to meet publication deadlines for upcoming issues:

Deadline Schedule

Issue Date	Material Due at 11 a.m.

Missing Members

The New Plymouth, Idaho, Church seeks addresses for Loni Wilks and Ronda Wilks. Please send information to Jeanette

Purviance, church clerk, PO Box 558, New Plymouth, Idaho 83655 or phone (208) 278-5658.

Health Class

Dr. Robert Hunter will hold a class titled, "The Road to Emotional Wellville" at the Mt. Tabor Church in Portland, Ore., on the following Sabbaths at 9:30 a.m.; Feb. 4, 11, and 18. Topics include: "The Inner Critic," "Accurate Self-Assessment," "Good Self-Esteem." For more information phone, (503) 233-7606.

Singles Ski Trip

If you're single and ski, consider spending the weekend of Feb. 10 on a cross-country ski trip at the scenic Trillium Basin near Government Camp, Ore., with outdoors-minded Adventist singles. Plan to stay with the group in a chalet one mile off Highway 26. Trails range from short and easy to exhaustingly challenging. Each offers spectacular views of

Mt. Hood.

For more information phone Steve Brothers (206) 256-5502 or Mae Hegstad at (503) 248-1017.

LAA Class of '45

Bill Moreno, Laurelwood Adventist Academy (LAA) reunion coordinator for Class of 1945, has begun collecting the names, addresses, and phone numbers of the Class of '45 so that each may be invited to the 50th year alumni reunion to be held April 8. If you know the whereabouts of a Class of '45 member, please contact Moreno at 7699 Pudding Creek Dr., SE, Salem, OR 97301 or phone (503) 585-6597 (H), or (503) 399-1141 (O).

Practical Living

Sabbath, Feb. 11, beginning at 8:30 a.m., the Hood View, Ore., Church will conduct what its members refer to as "The University of Practical Living" program. Instead of holding a traditional Sabbath school and church service, Sabbath morning and early afternoon at Hood View will be divided into class periods, and participants will have "hall time" to get between classes.

Kurt Johnson, director of church ministries for the Oregon Conference (OC), and Ron Gladson, OC ministerial director, are just two of the people who will be on hand to teach classes that deal with Christian principles, personal and spiritual growth, relationships, family life, and comparative religions. Dress casual.

Many activities for children will be offered. For more information, phone (503) 663-5611.

IN TRANSITION

Doug Batchelor of Sacramento, Calif., has been named the new director-speaker for Amazing Facts.

Obed Graham has been re-elected to a second term as president of Florida Conference. Graham will continue to serve on boards of three Adventist-managed hospitals in Florida.

EuGene Lewis and his wife, Johnette and sons, EuGene J.M., and Al, have recently moved from Spokane, Wash., to Seattle, Wash., where he is now senior pastor of the Emerald City Community Adventist Church.

Wilbur K. Nelson, Ph. D., D.P.H., has retired from The Quiet Hour. During the past three years, Wilbur and his wife, Dorothy, have conducted over 40 "Health Expos" in the former Soviet Union.

MILESTONES

NOTE: Priority in this section will be given to tributes submitted for those attaining 50 years of marriage and above, in five year increments, and in one-year increments beyond the sixtieth anniversary. Priority will also be given to birthday tributes submitted for those 80 years and above, in five-year increments.

Braun 50th

Herbert and Edith (Matterand) Braun, members of the Mt. Vernon, Wash., Church, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary June 26, 1994, at the Hillcrest Park reception hall with 200 guests and a buffet reception in Mt. Vernon.

They had an evening garden wedding June 1, 1944, at the home of Edith's parents, Emil and Alma Matterand.

Edith, a 1936 graduate of Stanwood High School, got her teaching credentials at Walla Walla College and taught school in Olympia and Bremerton, Wash., before retiring from the state and public school system food service line of work.

Herbert, a 1937 graduate of Mt. Vernon High School, worked as a licensed funeral director in Everett, Olympia, and Bremerton, Wash., and retired in 1993 from Dick Duffy's Hawthorn Funeral Home in Mt. Vernon. He enjoys woodworking, traveling and horses.

The Brauns have two children, five grandchildren, and one great-granddaughter.

Edwards 50th

Harold and Violet (Budd) Edwards celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in the Family Life Center of the Meridian United Methodist Church on Sept. 4, 1994. Their six children and spouses, Kathleen Brunton of New Braunfels, Texas;

Gloria Bower of Claremont, Calif.; Rosie and Michael LaDuca of Woodinville, Wash.; Lonnie Edwards of Long Beach, Calif.; Darla and Mark Sheret of Granada Hills, Calif.; and Pastor Terry and Pam Edwards of Nampa, Idaho, hosted the event. The Edwardses have five grandchildren.

The couple was married on Sept. 2, 1944, in the Meadow Glade Adventist Church near Battle Ground, Wash., by Pastor John Holbrook, who had also presided during the marriage of Violet's parents in the same church building (since replaced with a new structure.)

Harold has worked in different parts of the Northwest and also in California, educating children and youth on the hazards of drug and alcohol abuse.

The highlight of the celebration came as Harold told about his "miracle lady," who had decided to become a nurse after the birth of son Terry, and not only posted the highest grade-point-average in her class, but also received best marks on the Colorado State Board Examination.

Ehle 100th

Mabel (Conrad) Ehle celebrated her 100th birthday with an open house her son, Howard Ehle, and daughter, Joyce Huseby, organized Sunday, Nov. 27, 1994, at the Canterbury House where she has been a resident since 1987. Friends and relatives brought birthday cards and flowers to the event.

Born Nov. 28, 1894, and raised in Newcastle, Neb., she married Glenn Ehle, a Newcastle resident in 1915. In 1942 the Ehles moved to Kent, Wash., and she worked at Northwest Metal Products until after W.W.II, when the family moved to Auburn in 1946. Together they had four children: Lois, who was killed in an auto accident in 1972; Carol, who resides in Honolulu, Hawaii; Howard Ehle and Joyce Huseby, both of Auburn, Wash. Her husband Glenn passed away in 1966.

An avid gardener, Mabel is known for her crocheting, which she still enjoys. Mabel has 12 grandchildren, 22 great grandchildren, six great-great grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

Freitas 50th

Bob and Beth Freitas celebrated 50 years of marriage on June 12 in the Sequim, Wash., Church fellowship hall. The Freitas met during high school in Fort Jones, Calif., and were married on June 25, 1944, in Reno, Nev., while Bob was in the armed services.

Friends and relatives from several states attended the reception hosted by the couple's children and their spouses, Karen and Mike Hackett, Patti and Dave Walker, and Bob and Linda Freitas. Also assisting were their five grandchildren, Trina, Jamie, and Darren Walker, and Bobby and Nikki Freitas.

Henkes 60th

Henry and Myra Henkes of Sequim, Wash., celebrated 50 years of marriage with family and 60 friends on June 28 in their Sequim home.

They were married in La-Grange, Ill., on June 27, 1934, moving to the Seattle area in 1942 and to Sequim in 1979. Henry worked as a printer.

Hosts for the reception were their children and spouses Willard and Pam Henkes of Sequim; Betty Doughty, also of Sequim; and Bonnie and John Johnson of Napa, Calif.

Hutchins 50th

Frank and Esther Hutchins, who have lived in Mountlake Terrace, Wash., for 34 years, recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

Married on Nov. 4, 1944, in Hayward, Calif., Frank graduated from Walla Walla College in 1950 as a theology and English literature major. In 1963, he received a Standard General teaching certificate from the University of Washington.

The Hutchins' raised four children: M. Elaine Bennett, of Monroe, Wash.; Mariann J. Walker, of Lynnwood, Wash.; Fred A. Hutchins, of Edmonds, Wash.; and Douglas F. Hutchins, of New Boston, Texas. They have one grandchild, Allison Elizabeth Bennett, of Monroe.

A former dean at Auburn Adventist Academy, Frank was the second principal of the Mountlake Terrace Junior Academy. Following that, he became a keyboard and console technician at Balcom & Vaughan Pipe Organs in Seattle.

In addition to homemaking, Esther served as night supervisor at Aldercrest Nursing Home for seven-and-a-half years and as a windchest technician at Balcom & Vaughan for 22 years.

Now retired, Frank is general chairman of the Puget Sound Light Rail Transit Society and sub-contracts as a pipe organ technician. He has for many years carried on a "ministry of letters" to newspapers and other publications on moral and spiritual issues.

La Tourette 65th

Dwight and Alice (Smith) La Tourette of Medford, Ore., who celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary Nov. 9, 1994, were both employees at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital in Glendale, Calif., when they met.

They moved to Tillamook, Ore., in 1931 and raised two girls and a boy near Laurelwood, Forest Grove, and Hillsboro. Today their son, Charles, lives in Tillamook, and their two daughters, Elsie Boland, resides in Modesto, Calif., and Jean Bottomley, lives in Walla Walla, Wash.

They had 13 grandchildren and 15 great grandchildren when they celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary. Dwight passed away five days later, on Nov. 14, 1994.

Prohaska 50th

Lynn and Nina (Stewart) Prohaska of College Place, Wash., recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with five generations of Nina's family by attending two receptions, one held at their home and the other at the Boise, Idaho, Riverside Red Lion. Both receptions were planned by their children, Karen Madsen of College Place, and Jay Prohaska of Boise.

Lynn and Nina met at Gem State Adventist Academy (GSAA) and were married in Caldwell, Idaho on Sept. 7, 1944, where Lynn worked as building contractor and land developer before returning to be dean of boys at GSAA. Nina served as the director of food services before becoming Lynn's counterpart, the GSAA girls' dean. In 1977 they returned to College Place where for 14 years Lynn served as dean of men at Walla Walla College and Nina worked as an assistant food service director.

In 1991, Lynn "retired" and is now a subdivision developer and building contractor. The Prohaskas have one granddaughter, Brandi Madsen Ziegele, a grandson, Chris Madsen, and twin great-grandsons, Keoki and Kenaula Ziegele, all of College Place.

Thorp 50th

Jim and Laural Thorp of the Bonney Lake, Wash., church celebrated 50 years of marriage on Aug. 27, 1994, and told how they met at a youth gathering known as "Missionary Volunteers" in Pendleton, Ore., just after he had come home from the Army during World War II.

They have two children, Jim, Jr., and Judy, and four grandchildren.

After retiring from his work as an electrician, he and Laural have spent much of their time as volunteers on church-related building projects and in other travel-related pursuits.

ADVERTISEMENT POLICY

Advertising is accepted as a service to members in the North Pacific Union Conference. The GLEANER management reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, especially ads not related to the needs and practices of the church membership. Acceptance of any advertising shall be considered a matter of accommodation and not a matter of right, nor shall it be construed to constitute approval of the product or service advertised.

First-time Advertisers — First time-advertisers who are members of the Seventh-day Adventist church must submit a letter of recommendation from their pastor or from the local conference GLEANER correspondent along with their advertisement. Non-Adventist first-time advertisers must submit letters of recommendation from business members of their community, credit bureaus and/or any other references as requested by the editor. Recommendation does not render unnecessary the approval of the GLEANER editor or the Communication Department Editorial Committee. Use of the advertising material offered shall be at the discretion of the GLEANER editor and/or the Communication Department Editorial Committee.

Payment — Payment in advance must accompany all advertisements or they will not be accepted/published.

Procedure to Submit Advertising — The advertiser should contact and submit advertising material directly to the GLEANER office, P.O. Box 16677, Portland, OR 97216. Be sure to include full payment, your name, address and telephone number where you can be reached in case there is a question or problem with your advertisement. Always submit display advertisements according to GLEANER Advertising Specifications. For a copy of GLEANER Advertising Specifications call (503) 255-7300 Ext. 233.

NOTE: Color Press, 1-800 222-2145 will design your ad according to GLEANER Advertising Specifications for an ART FEE if you do not have an in-house person, or service bureau capable of designing your advertisement. IMPORTANT: Always contact the GLEANER first to reserve space, before contacting Color Press.

Advertising Deadlines — Place ads at least three weeks in advance of their publication. In order for an ad to appear in the next issue, it must reach the GLEANER office before 11 a.m. Wednesday — three weeks before the new issue.
