SCHOOLS OF SOUTHERN ASIA CRY OUT FOR YOUR HELP THIS THIRTEENTH SABBATH

While many are buying expensive gadgets for their friends who "have everything," Seventh-day Adventists around the world will be giving cash to buy elbow room in mission schools.

On Thirteenth Sabbath, December 20, Pacific Union Adventists will pool their resources to provide more adequate housing for six hundred college students sandwiched into quarters made for half that many. They also aim to expand school libraries and purchase land for churches.

Some mission schools are so crowded, as many as fifty may sleep on thin mats on the floor of one room, or a dormitory room may be so packed with bunks it resembles a forest.

"At Spicer Memorial College, the church's senior college for India, students are assigned six to a room," says a young missionary teacher just back from India. "I doubt rooms are larger than twelve feet square. Each person has a bunk or cot and a small locker. Many store their clothes and personal belongings in wooden lockers outside on the porch."

Still others live in the lobby, the health service, and even the chapel.

Spicer Memorial College is in Poona, about one hundred and twenty miles southeast of Bombay. Its campus serves a secondary school as well as the college.

Thirty years ago Spicer had sixty students. Now the college, whose local landmark is a two-block entrance lined with a procession of royal palms, enrolls ten times

Many mission schools, like this one, are filled to capacity and often must turn applicants away for lack of space. Dormitories at boarding schools sometimes house as many as fifty students to a room. They are lined up on the floor on thin straw mats. The more well-to-do have lockers in which to keep their extra clothes and personal possessions. Some simply hang their clothes at night on a wire strung along the walls of the room. The children of Southern Asia are hungry for education.

This year more than one hundred and fifty applicants had to be turned away. School officials believe that two hundred more will go without Spicer's unique educational training next year, unless help comes soon.

THREE EDITORS AT WORK ON NEW YOUTH MAGAZINE

Three editors have plunged into work on the new Adventist youth magazine with an eye toward the spring publication date. The new weekly—as yet unnamed—is slated for birth on May 5, 1970, with bold new format and content. The size will be small—approximately five and five-eighths by eight inches—and two-color will be used throughout.

Don Yost is sharing editorial responsibilities with Chuck Scriven, 24, and Pat

Editors Don Yost, Pat Horning, and Chuck Scriven discuss the format of the new Adventist youth magazine.

Horning, 23. Elder Yost, formerly associate editor of the Review and Herald, has a varied background in both journalism and youth work. He has served as a youth pastor, assistant secretary in the General Conference MV Department, and taught on both academy and college levels. He holds a Master's degree in magazine journalism from American University and has completed classwork for a doctorate in communications from Syracuse University.

Suggestions for Making Christmas More Meaningful

Sick of the commercialization of Christmas? Wish you could go back to an old-fashioned, homemade holiday? Want to do something purposeful with your young life?

How about giving a gift of yourself. . . . Or a full day at a Christmas party for one thousand children. . . . Or opening your home to a young Navajo who wants a Christian education. . . . Or donating a gallon of paint to remodel a hospital room. . . . Or sending that old washer to the MV Laundromat when your replacement is under the tree. . . . Or buying one, two, or three gifts for an eager child.

What's behind these suggestions? In the first place, homes are really desired for young Navajos seeking an education beyond that provided at Holbrook School. And homes are needed for the little fellows too. They need someone to sponsor their tuition as well.

That old washer, still in working condition but out of style, is just what Monument Valley needs for the new community laundromat. Space has been provided by special appropriation from the General Conference; the new cement block building is ready for business.

For the Christmas party of your life, plan to be on hand at Mason Hall located on the Monument Valley Mission compound when Pastor Tom Holliday recounts the Christmas story in real "native" language. Watch the excitement of children receiving a gaily wrapped package, and the mother's gratitude at opening her bag of fruit, candy, and nuts.

Plan your Christmas around Monument Valley Hospital. Your gifts may be sent to Dr. Daniel Ekkens, Monument Valley Hospital, Monument Valley, Utah 84536. And if you do plan to spend the day, make that $5 per person reservation with him too, before December 17 and the cook's menu planning. Space is limited.

PACIFIC UNION COLLEGE

SPECIAL FEATURES FOR ANNUAL CAREERS IN EDUCATION DAY

Forty-two academy principals, superintendents, and supervisors of education from the Pacific Union were on the Pacific Union College campus Wednesday and Thursday for Careers in Education Day.

According to Dr. Louis W. Normington, chairman of PUC's Education Department, the educators' visit was to meet with seniors who are interested in entering the teaching profession, and to encourage them to consider service in one of the church's schools in the Pacific Union.

The two-day session began Wednesday evening with a reception in the Cypress Room for the educators, the 61 PUC students who will be participating in a student teaching program next quarter, and the students' spouses.

Interviews between prospective employers and employees were conducted following dinner in the college dining room, and again Thursday morning.

The high point of Thursday was the Charles E. Weniger Memorial Lecture, named in honor of that Adventist educator who devoted a lifetime of service to Christian education, including a number of years at PUC as chairman of the Speech Department and as dean of the college.

Guest lecturer was Dr. Alonzo Baker, another well-known Adventist educator, who is currently teaching "in retirement" in the History Department at Loma Linda University. He previously was on the faculty of the University of the Pacific in Stockton for 15 years.

Dr. Baker emphasized that a teaching career has always been a challenging one, and one that needs the service of Seventh-day Adventist young people more than ever before.

Generous Gift of Grand Piano for the Music Department

A chance contact nearly thirty years ago on the Chinese-Tibetan border between a Seventh-day Adventist missionary physician and another missionary resulted in the recent donation of a nine-foot Knabe Grand Piano to the Pacific Union College Music Department, according to Dr. Melvin S. Hill, chairman.

Mrs. Virginia Black of St. Helena was living with her missionary parents in China in the early 1940s when her father became seriously ill. The father contacted Dr. Harold E. James, an Adventist physician who at that time operated a small medical clinic on the Tibetan border, who now serves at the St. Helena Sanitarium and Hospital.

Mrs. Black said she feels positive that Dr. James saved her father's life.

Some years later the family returned to the United States, and, at the urging of Dr. James, located in the upper Napa Valley.

It was this tie and acquaintance with Seventh-day Adventists, plus a desire to have her own personal instrument "be put to more and a better use," said Mrs. Black, that influenced her to make this generous contribution to PUC.

The piano has been placed in the recital hall of Paulin Hall where it is already receiving heavy use by advanced piano students.

Dr. Normington, in explaining why the Careers in Education Day has become an annual event, noted that in the Pacific Union alone more than 300 elementary and secondary teachers will be needed for next year.

PUC Cooperates in Five-Day Plans at St. Helena "San"

Pacific Union College and the St. Helena Sanitarium and Hospital have been jointly cooperating in a new type of "live-in" Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking.

One week each month is devoted to the presentation of the Five-Day Plan at the "San," with each entire day filled with various lectures, workshops, demonstrations, and field trips for the special "in-patients."

Included in the excursions is a two-hour visit to the PUC campus where guides provided by the office of the PUC College Relations Department and the Sanitarium chaplain take the non-Adventist groups to points of interest, culminating in a visit to the new sanctuary. Invariably questions arise concerning Adventist faith and practice, providing an opportunity—in an academic and nonpolemic setting—to explain Adventism without the sting of proselytizing.

"The entire program," Chaplain Dieter Hain explained, "is spiritually oriented, but without the overt appearance of being so. In the words of Ellen White, we want to 'arouse the spirit of inquiry.' This approach has already proven to be most effective."

PUC faculty assist in presentations at various seminars. Dr. Norma K. Bork, speech pathologist, regularly lectures on "Tension and the Voice" for a class on Tension Management.

Religion Department students frequently attend as observers. Someday they will be conducting similar programs.

A free Five-Day Plan for two (which at regular rates would normally cost a couple $240) has been donated to the San Francisco Bay Area Publicity Club for its annual Christmas party gift-exchange by Administrator Charles Snyder through the PUC representative at the club. The idea was suggested by one of the club members, himself a smoker, who said, "You've no idea how many members of this club would give their eyeteeth to give up smoking."

Winter Quarter Registration Procedures Are Announced

Registration procedures for the winter quarter at Pacific Union College have been announced by Dr. James N. Scott, director of admissions and records.

Registration will be held in Pacific Auditorium on Monday, January 5, from 9 to 12 a.m., and 1 to 6 p.m. Graduates, post-graduates, seniors, non-degree, and special students may begin at 9 a.m., and juniors at 10:30.

All other students are to register during the afternoon session.

Dr. Scott advises no prospective student to come to registration without having received an official letter of acceptance beforehand.

SHORT FINANCIAL HISTORY OF THUNDERBIRD ACADEMY

Ever since the school was begun on its Thunderbird campus, a strong work program has been an integral part of the operation. Learning to work develops character and responsibility; consequently, it is just as important as the academic program of Christian education.

Since its beginning, student labor has earned $2,970,721 in wages, $1,810,301 of it from the Wood Products operation. This total is more than that of the other industries combined. In 1957, a percentage of the Wood Products sales was set aside as a scholarship aid fund to assist those who needed economic aid. Thus far, $130,672.80 has been distributed from this fund. The furniture mill was funded and established in order to provide income for the school and its students. We are pleased that it is accomplishing its original objective.

The net worth of the academy is $996,832. The expansion program through the years has brought $740,321.58 in contributions for capital improvements. The sale of the old 15th Street school brought $46,964.35, the Pacific Union Conference contributed $275,337, the Arizona Conference Corporation and Book and Bible House gave $341,017.63. In addition to these amounts, the churches contributed directly, and students solicited a combined total of $77,002.60. Arizona Conference contributions were made possible only through the dedication of the membership through the years.

The operating statements of our academy look good. We manage to keep the financial picture in the black, and the annual subsidy of the conference for operating is $36,000 plus about an additional $12,000 during the summer for teacher educational related programs.

The board is concerned in two areas. We face a long range rebuilding program at the campus. Most of the buildings must be replaced. They have served much beyond expectation. Only a personal trip and an on-site examination would convince you of the seriousness of this need. The other concern is the cost of operation. While we are operating successfully in the black, we are anxious to make some adjustments that will make it possible for more of our people to utilize the Christian educational opportunities at a reasonable cost.

Costs are rising more rapidly than personal wages. We are working toward the end that tuition and related costs can be kept as reasonable as possible. We are anxious that every student in our conference have an opportunity to avail himself of training at our school. We do not want financial problems to keep anyone from having this advantage.

JOHN V. STEVENS, President.

EVANGELISTIC CRUSADE HELD IN OAKLAND—MANY BAPTIZED

A spirit-filled all night prayer service, held recently at the Market Street Church, began the preparation for an Evangelistic Crusade conducted in Oakland.

Under the direction of Pastor W. R. Robinson and his intern associate, Joseph A. Jones, the main auditorium of the Market Street Church was an inviting setting for the fine congregation that gathered three nights a week to hear Evangelist Jones present truth-filled messages in such an inspiring way.

To date 56 have been added to the church by baptism, nine of whom were baptized November 29, which was a "Big Sabbath Celebration" for new members.

As we work and pray together we trust that the last baptism of the Crusade on December 20 will include the sixteen souls who are still in attendance and are now studying with our workers.

Recent Spiritual Retreat for Pleasant Hill Junior Academy

Pleasant Hill Junior Academy held its fourth annual ninth and tenth grade spiritual retreat in October at the Skillinan Flat Campground near Grass Valley.

Here in God's great out-of-doors inspiration and challenge were brought to these young people by Dr. E. J. Anderson, educational superintendent; Elder Richard Barron, temperance secretary; Elder Reinhold Tilstra, Grass Valley pastor; Ken Veal, associate Pleasant Hill pastor; and Elder Norman Ault, Fremont pastor.

Entertainment and recreation were provided by various activities including an ice cream making contest, tug-of-war, snipe hunt, games, a side trip to a museum, and fireside singing.

It is our prayer that activities such as this will enrich the lives of our young people by strengthening their Christian experience and commitment to Christ.

Please join your prayers with ours that the youth of our day will find their intended place in the Lord's work that it may be completed soon.

SMOKING SAM AND TEMPERANCE IN SAN FRANCISCO

live on-the-street broadcast. Of course, the boy smoking was "Sam" the ever popular smoking manikin.

Station KQED-FM contacted the Temperance Department and extended the invitation for a 20-minute, live, on-the-street interview. The interview took place on a busy street corner in downtown San Francisco. Arriving one-half hour before time, the radio announcer was interviewing two

Napa Pathfinders Share in the Joy of Doing for Others

Youngsters from the Napa Pathfinder Club gave householders a "treat" instead of a trick as they made rounds October 30 from 6 to 9 p.m.

Boys and girls dressed in Pathfinder Club uniforms distributed thousands of leaflets entitled "No Trick."

Under the supervision of Mr. Neil House, adult director of the club, 66 members collected over 900 cans of food. One-half of that collected will go to the Monument Valley center and the other half went to contribute Thanksgiving and Christmas food baskets for the less fortunate in the Napa Valley.

Commented Mr. House, director of the club, "We encourage our young people in this project because it centers their thoughts on persons who need help. We want them to be able to respond to the needs of others in practical ways."

The Pathfinders received a real blessing from their evening with the thoughts of being able to help others.

people, and there were very few, if any, on-lookers. However, as "Sam" was set up in the middle of the sidewalk with a lighted cigarette in his mouth, he began to attract attention. One of the station personnel mentioned the fact that this was radio and not television, and the manikin and other visual aids were not necessary. He was told to wait and see.

By the time Smoking Sam went on the air, a very large crowd had gathered, which continued to grow throughout the interview. During the street corner interview, Sam puffed away, and the crowd was informed about the dangers of smoking and admonished to kick the habit as soon as possible. It was during the question-and-answer period that so many individuals said they had given up smoking some years ago, others only just recently. Each person in the crowd was presented with the October issue of Listen magazine which featured smoking. Those who were still smokers were informed and instructed how to join the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking.

The station personnel were so impressed with Smoking Sam and the work of the Temperance Department, and the way temperance draws and holds a crowd, that they invited the Temperance Department to a one-hour live interview every other week. Truly God is blessing.

Your Temperance Offering is at work in Northern California. If you did not give on October 25, kindly place your offering in an envelope and mark it for Temperance. It will help to keep the Temperance torch burning.

Sabbath School Membership More Than Doubled at Loomis

Mrs. William Block, Sabbath School secretary for the Loomis Church, states that the Sabbath School membership has increased over double in one year. Attendance jumped from 38 to 94.

This increase can be accounted for partly by the successful Vacation Bible School conducted by Mrs. Evelyn Smith during this past summer. Other activities which helped the movement in Loomis were the successful Laymen's Evangelistic series of meetings conducted by Douglas Mayne, head elder; Vern Reed, lay activities director; and Gordon Simkin, MV leader. The church also installed a booth in the local area fair from which much interest and good public relations resulted.

The week preceding Thanksgiving was also an encouraging one for literature evangelists Jack Baker and Tom Bragg, who came to Reno from Ogden and Salt Lake City, Utah, to call on individuals who had mailed cards expressing an interest in our books. These two men took $3,300 worth of orders during this special week.

We now have seven full-time colporteurs. Six are located in the Salt Lake City area and one in Las Vegas, Nevada. Their leaders are Wesley Baker and James A. Brooks. These nine men are a blessing to the Nevada-Utah Conference. God bless them!

people who came to the camps at Wawona, and the good times they had. Mrs. Cott, "Aunt Betty," was the nurse and looked after illnesses and minor accidents, and Elder Cott, "Uncle Alfred," did photography and taught classes.

Now located in St. Helena, they are glad for the new book, written by Mrs. Cott, that will bring to thousands of people the stories of how the Lord blessed them and cared for them in the wilds of South America.

It took the Cotts five and one-half months to reach Mount Roraima from Georgetown in British Guiana where they were the only white people. Modern missionaries make this same trip by plane in two and one-half hours.

You will enjoy reading this new book.

Mini-program Successes Down-under

Roy Naden's five-minute telecast, Focus on Living, ventures into a new area. Offered as a saturation package up to twelve or thirteen times per week this mini-broadcast has brought outstanding results. Over 450 responses came in a month period in Rockhampton, Queensland. Pastor Moe near Bendigo in the Victorian Conference reports his hands full of interests after release of Focus on Living.

"It's an Amazing Fact" runs on a Bathurst, New South Wales station. Pastor C. A. J. Ogg began the release as a build-up for his evangelistic program. Now the five-minute radio broadcast has been continued indefinitely as a public service by the local station because of the fine listener response.

"Seminar for Better Living" Hears Dr. Mervyn Hardinge

Delegates to the fourth annual "Seminar for Better Living" held at Soquel, November 21 to 23, heard Dr. Mervyn Hardinge, dean of the School of Public Health at Loma Linda University, give outstanding talks on various health topics. The material Dr. Hardinge presented was both practical and challenging and we were pleased to feature him at this weekend workshop for temperance secretaries, medical personnel, pastors, and all temperance-minded persons.

Dr. Mervyn Hardinge, featured speaker at the "Seminar for Better Living," and Elder Daniel Fausset (right) chairman for the weekend meetings.

Elder Daniel R. Fausset, pastor of the Milpitas Church, was chairman for the three-day series of meetings. Elder Gerald Friedrich, Sabbath School secretary for Central, was superintendent of the Sabbath School program. Speaker for the eleven o'clock worship service was Elder Richard Barron, temperance secretary for Northern California Conference. Featured at the Sabbath afternoon meeting were Elder L. Eugene Fletcher, temperance secretary for Central; Elder Dieter Hain, chaplain for the St. Helena Sanitarium and Hospital; and Elder R. A. Hubbard, Northern California Conference evangelist.

Brief "Temperance Spotlights" scattered throughout the weekend program were presented by the officers of the Monterey Bay Academy Temperance Club, under the direction of Elder Fred Speyer; Elder Fausset; Elder Richard C. White, Monterey Peninsula Church; and Elder H. Eugene Sample, Campbell Church.

At the close of the meetings on Sunday, Elder Fausset presented a challenging temperance commitment to the delegates. We have high hopes that 1970 will be a record-setting year for temperance activities in Central.

ELDER E. D. TETZ JOINS TREASURY DEPARTMENT

In recent weeks Robert Aldrich, our assistant treasurer, has been elected to serve as the manager of our Book and Bible House. We are happy to announce that Elder Everett D. Tetz, secretary-treasurer of the Wyoming Conference, has accepted the call of the Conference Executive Committee to fill this vacancy in the treasury department. He and his family will be moving to our conference early in December.

Elder Tetz comes to us with a wide background of experience. He is a graduate of Canadian Union College and gave his first denominational service in British Columbia. He next went to Poona, India, for two years to serve as cashier and accountant of the Southern Asia Division.

During the next four years he served as an associate Book and Bible House manager and associate publishing secretary of the Florida Conference. After three years of service as Book and Bible House manager in the Kentucky-Tennessee Conference, he became secretary-treasurer of the Wyoming Conference.

EMPHASIS ON MISSIONARY CONTACTS IN INGATHERING

The Christmas season is here again. Many of our churches in Southeastern are well on their way to complete visitation of every home in their neighborhoods. The new missionary thrust in the Ingathering work is the emphasis that the Spirit of Prophecy gives.

Our challenge for a spiritual impact is greater today than it ever has been in earth's history. It is our plan to alert our people to be even more sensitive to the spiritual needs of those whom they call on this year.

If possible, do all within your power to encourage and invite those with whom you come in contact to have the joy and the peace of knowing Jesus Christ as their Lord and Saviour. The time is upon us. The climate of world events is right, and at the Christmas season men will be more attentive to what you say about the Lord.

May God bless every one in this opportunity of missionary contacts during the Ingathering Campaign.

Sabbath School and Church Services Now at Idyllwild

A nucleus of members living in the Idyllwild area are now holding Branch Sabbath School and church services in the Idyllwild Presbyterian Church.

Some 25 persons gathered for services November 15, including many students from La Sierra and others from San Diego and Glendale. All the talent was provided by these groups.

We want to welcome all who would enjoy spending Sabbath in the mountains and who might like to spend the holidays in the atmosphere and the spirit of Christmas.

Paradise Valley Plans Rehabilitation Home for Women

"National City residents, and the entire South Bay area, are extremely fortunate to have such an institution as Paradise Valley Hospital."

So spoke National City Mayor Kile E. Morgan this week in congratulating our hospital on its announced plans to begin operation of a rehabilitation home for women recovering from mental illness.

The Mayor then added these comments:

"Paradise Valley Hospital is the 'hit' of the community. It has always been aggressive and this new development establishes the fact that Paradise Valley intends to stay in the forefront of medical care.

"Anything the hospital thinks is good is bound to be good for the entire community."

The new facility, the first of its kind in San Diego County, is housed in Helen Rice Hall, a four-story residence which formerly served as living quarters for students attending Paradise Valley Hospital School of Nursing.

Initially, the home will accept 15 women from 18 to 50 years of age who now are receiving psychiatric treatment and are in the advanced recovery stage. Its goal is to help these people return to independent functioning in today's society.

Two Ladies Past Ninety Years Ingather for God at Blythe

Dr. Ada Crawford of Blythe had already raised $40 for Ingathering by mid November and was headed for more with the aid of her crutch.

The crutch is not for persuasive purposes but to help her get around in spite of a physical problem.

Dr. Ada Crawford is one of two Blythe members in their nineties. Ada is 90 and Mrs. Pauline Burgess is 94.

Mrs. Burgess has lived in Blythe since 1926 and in 1936 started a Bible class in her home with about 10 persons each Sabbath morning. Later the Blythe Church was built and she and several others became charter members.

Recently the Blythe members held a birthday party for these two remarkable ladies who are still active in Christian service.

she received her Master's degree in Public Health, is residence manager.

The cost of operating Helen Rice Hall is being borne initially by the hospital, with additional financial support to be derived from fees, contributions, and supplementary income.

Persons accepted at the facility will pay a flat fee of $225 per month regardless of the quantity of service rendered. Staff personnel will consist of a consulting psychiatrist, two professional social workers, two residence managers, an activities director, and a housekeeper.

The primary objective of our new facility is to return to society those mentally-disturbed persons who may have severe handicaps in everyday social functioning.

These include limited knowledge of caring for their own personal needs, inability to sustain meaningful relationships, or emotional blocks which interfere with full participation in vocational planning.

Residents accepted at the home will be evaluated every three months in terms of their forward progress, with an anticipated maximum one-year stay required.

The facility will not accept persons whose problems currently are being expressed through the addictive use of narcotics, drugs, or alcohol.

Barstow's Mayor Joins With Others in New Church Opening

Barstow's mayor, Mrs. Ida K. Pleasant, was joined by church officials in ribbon-cutting ceremonies at the opening service of the new Barstow Adventist Church November 15.

The $108,000 sanctuary is the first of a two-phase building program on property adjoining the church school at Broadway and Center streets. Total value of the church and property including finished parking facilities is about $135,000, says the pastor, Elder Clifford Rasmussen.

Participating in the opening service were Elder John Osborn, conference president, who presented the sermon; Elder

Corps of Laymen Works With Alcoholics and Drug Addicts

Among the ranks of Seventh-day Adventists there is a very small but highly devoted corps of laymen who have made their mission the hard core alcoholics, drug addicts, and gamblers.

Among them is the Angel of 42nd Street, Pauline Goddard. She was given that name by New York columnist Walter Winchell because of the work she has done for these people for so many years. But her work has not been limited to New York. Periodically she comes to San Diego and works for a month or two on lower Fourth Street.

One night as she was selling periodicals not far from the Golden West Hotel in San Diego, a man who had been retired from the Navy about one year passed her as he was about to enter a bar. As she usually does, she spoke to him and said, "You really don't want to go in there, do you?"

He noticed the literature in her hand and recognized it as the type his parents had in their home, for his parents had been Adventists for about 15 years. They talked at some length. He mentioned that he was an alcoholic and had been for many years. He hadn't been able to hold a steady job or even get one recently because of this problem. Separated from his wife, they were about to be divorced. She and their four boys were living on welfare aid in Imperial Beach and he was living in a tiny fourth-rate hotel room. Virtually all his available money was going to liquor.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Kline of El Cajon, had long prayed that the Holy Spirit might somehow grip their son and return him to a wholesome life and to his family whom he loved dearly.

In the meantime his wife, who had been raised in the Nazarene Church, wanted her boys to go to church. One Saturday morning she called the closest Nazarene Church and asked if they could send their Melvin Lukens, conference secretary; two former pastors, Elder William Hubbs and Elder George T. Dickinson; and many other guests. The Loma Linda University Chamber Singers directed by Prof. Bjorn Keyn provided choral music for the morning and afternoon services.

The completely air-conditioned building includes about 6,500 square feet of floor space. There are the pastor's study, a choir room, a deacons' room, a nursery, restrooms, a balcony, and choir space for 30 members. In all there is seating for about 400 persons.

The interior is finished in white with open laminated beams stained walnut to match the pulpit, rostrum furniture, and pews. The pews are upholstered in gold fabric and the wall-to-wall carpet is moss green. Stained glass windows fill openings in the wall behind the pulpit and on either side are decorative organ pipes.

The exterior is a fern leaf color with Navajo white trim. Grounds will be landscaped as funds become available.

In the plan which was designed by the Burman and Rasmussen architectural firm, the second phase calls for construction of Sabbath School rooms and Dorcas Welfare Society facilities of about 5,400 feet of floor space.

"We are happy with our new church," Elder Rasmussen remarked, "and we plan to move right into special meetings which include a pastor's Bible class and cottage meetings every week in the choir room. Later we will have evangelistic meetings in the church."

bus to pick up her children since she did not have a car herself.

By coincidence the woman who answered was an Adventist who explained, "This is the Nazarene Church, but the Adventists are using it on Saturdays until we can build our own new church. If you would be interested we would be happy to pick up your children and bring them to Sabbath School next Saturday morning."

So the next Sabbath and every week thereafter Mrs. Irma Hartigan took the boys to Sabbath School. She also took them to other church activities and baseball games and picnics and loved them as though they were her own boys.

Eventually the oldest boy accepted Christ during an evangelistic crusade in the area and he was baptized at a ceremony at the Chula Vista Church. The boy's mother then began attending church and immediately quit the smoking habit.

It was about this time that the encounter between Pauline and the man on the street occurred. As a result of that conversation and her encouragement the man called his wife rather than going on into the bar. She agreed to see him and talk. In the long conversation that followed, they put aside pride and prayed to the Lord for help. He agreed to attend church the very next Sabbath.

The result has been that he has never tasted liquor again and the family was reconciled. This occurred just before Christmas last year. On February 8 they were both baptized. Since that time Bob Kline has become employed by Lockheed Aircraft in Atlanta, Georgia. He relates the miracle of his conversion at every opportunity.

With more dedicated workers such as Pauline and Mrs. Hartigan, this story could be repeated in the lives of many more people. Pauline was baptized into the Adventist Church and she spent one year at an Adventist college. But an interlude of selling Christian literature for a scholarship turned out to be a life work. God needs many workers like her.

Thirteenth Sabbath Offering

India, where a man will sometimes even display with pride a certificate proving he has attended school, but failed.

"Spicer offers an education that is both unique and progressive," says Duane Johnson, who has spent twenty-one years in India.

"No Indian college would offer theology and industrial arts on the same campus. Our curriculum is broader. We offer a variety of electives to apply on a given major and more career choices under one roof," he explained.

Mission school libraries have as great a need for up-to-date books on a wide variety of subjects as do schools here. Above, students at the Adventist Kottarakara High School in Kerala, India, concentrate in the school library. On the shelves of the library in the background is plenty of room for additional volumes.

Besides providing work and agricultural training on Spicer's farm, the campus hosts industries where a student can work to help meet expenses. For some Indian students, working with their hands is a new experience, and a valuable one.

Spicer trains teachers to staff one hundred and seventy-three schools scattered throughout India, East and West Pakistan, Ceylon, and Burma. Nineteen of these are secondary schools.

Pastors, secretaries, business majors, and personnel to staff eight Adventist hospitals in these southern Asia countries also get their start at Spicer. More than fifty percent of the graduates move into church-related jobs.

All classes are taught in English. Spicer students are known to have a better command of English than the average college graduate in India, Elder Johnson says, a valuable asset in a country where the second language is English.

The University of Poona and other state schools accept Spicer graduates for graduate studies.

Still other students have found English has won them jobs at the World Bank, the World Health Organization, and in Indian embassies in other countries.

When the "mango" rains come in March, Spicer will graduate its thirty-third four-year class.

Many projects are required for Lasalgaon High School, the secondary boarding school serving the Western India Union.

Foundations are in for the school's first-ever dining hall. An industrial building, to include a print shop and grinding mill, has been authorized.

Electrification is being extended to the farm wells to enlarge the area under irrigation and food production. Dormitory and teacher housing need additional attention.

The price tag for Spicer and other growing schools like Lasalgaon High School in India is going to be big. But Christmas is still for giving.

Plan your gift today.

New Youth Magazine

Walla College who also holds a B.D. from Andrews University, spent the summer of 1967 working with Andrews University's "The London Group" around Trafalgar Square. Before accepting the call to Washington, he was a ministerial intern in the Upper Columbia Conference. He is from Seattle, Washington.

The summer before graduation from Southern Missionary College in 1968, Miss Horning served as the first editorial intern at the Review and Herald Publishing Association. She was assistant editor of Liberty prior to her appointment. She calls Hollister, California, home.

Four young people—two academy students and two college students—are serving on the editorial board. These representatives will serve for one year. Campus representatives will also be selected to report the pulsebeat and news events of their individual schools.

Approximately two thousand youth will have opportunity to sound off on editorial content through a direct-mail questionnaire that will solicit responses, not only from students in Adventist academies and colleges, but also from those not in school or on non-Adventist campuses. A wide cross section will be included in the sampling.

Anyone interested can play a role in shaping the magazine through the "Help the Happening" contest to select a name. First prize is $100, with $50 and $25 awards also up for grabs. Contest cards are being distributed to all churches and campuses in North America by local MV secretaries.

The magazine will include a variety of subject matter. Because living the life of Christ embraces the whole of life, the magazine will treat the whole of life. Article topics will range from religion to contemporary secular culture. The only proviso is that, whatever the subject, articles express the rationale of Biblical Christianity. A guideline for prospective writers is available on request.

Also in progress is a writing contest for college students. Five categories include: feature article, personal experience, opinion, shorter writing, and miscellaneous. Grand award is $100; first, $75; second, $55; third, $35. Further information can be obtained from college English and journalism teachers.

As we pause to give thanks for the blessings we enjoy, we wish to thank you for helping make the past year a most successful one for us. May your holiday season be a joyous one.
