

MRS. TERRY WATERS NAMED FOSTER MOTHER OF THE YEAR

Mrs. Terry Waters of Stockton has been named Foster Mother of the Year by the San Joaquin County Department of Public Assistance Child Welfare Services.

Mrs. Terry Waters

Faithful members of the Market and E Streets Church, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Waters have been foster parents for 25 years. During this time, they have been foster parents for 142 children.

Over this span of years, several of these children have joined the Seventh-day Adventist Church and have been baptized. The three boys, now members of the Waters family more than 10 years—Martin, Jimmy (teen-age brothers), and Mario—are baptized members of the church. The natural father of the two older boys was also baptized several years ago as an outgrowth of his relationship with the Waters family.

Last Mothers' Day one of the foster children called to see if Mrs. Waters was at home. Later that day, 65 persons "dropped in" at the Waters home with dinner prearranged. This crowd represented 30 older foster children, their spouses, and their children. Eight others called long distance—one from as far away as Spain—to wish "Mama" or "Aunt Terry," as some of the older ones now call her, a happy Mother's Day.

Mrs. Waters' method in bringing up children is to teach them what is right, live it before them, feed them well, keep them clean, teach them how to work, and give them plenty of love and kindness. This philosophy and this practice have endeared Mrs. Waters to their many children, their many friends, and to those in the San Joaquin County Department of Public Assistance.

Leon Sanders and Alger Jones Assume New Auditing Positions

Leon F. Sanders has replaced Jay H. Irvine in the Union office family as auditor.

Mr. Sanders entered denominational work in the Arkansas-Louisiana Conference Book and Bible House following graduation from Union College in 1959.

Leon F. Sanders

For about four years he served the White Memorial Hospital and Loma Linda University as cashier-accountant.

From his work as secretary-treasurer of the Wyoming Conference, Mr. Sanders became a Pacific Union assistant auditor in 1967. He lives with Doris and three children—Ron, LeAnn, and Terri—in La Crescenta where he serves his local church as treasurer.

Retiring after more than 36 years in denominational positions of finance and accounting, Mr. Irvine served only in the North Pacific and Pacific unions. After teaching at Laurelwood, Portland Union, and Upper Columbia academies, he became treasurer of Portland Adventist Hospital.

In the Pacific Union Mr. Irvine was assistant treasurer at Paradise Valley Hospital before joining the Union staff as associate auditor in 1961. He headed the auditors' group the past two years.

Coming to the Pacific Union from Gem State Academy where he has been treasurer is Alger J. Jones. Mr. Jones will join the auditing staff as assistant auditor.

Alger J. Jones

The new assistant became laundry supervisor at Southern Missionary College following his own graduation from Andrews in 1949. For five years he served Middle East College as industrial superintendent and treasurer and the East Mediterranean Union with The Voice of Prophecy and treasury. The General Conference sent him to the North Brazil Union to audit and bring their books up-to-date when the mission had been without a treasurer for two years. Then from 1958 to 1967 the Joneses were at Laurelwood Academy where he again showed his talents in industrial organization and treasury work.

Alger and Marie Jones have two children—a son, Charles, who is an electronics engineer for the Navy at China Lake, California, and a daughter, Theresa Anne, who teaches grades 1-4 at La Grande, Oregon.

Associate Auditors A. W. Hamra and H. B. Ludden complete the team, having served previously in the department.

W. J. BLACKER, President.

Veteran Educator Mrs. Alma McKibbin, whose life spans the history of Adventist education, receives the denomination's highest educational award from Dr. Charles Hirsch, secretary of education for the General Conference, and Dr. Wilbert Schneider, secretary of education for the Pacific Union Conference.

100-year-old Educator Is Awarded the Medallion of Merit

Mrs. Alma McKibbin of Cupertino, California, has been awarded the Adventist educational "Congressional Medal of Honor" known as the Medallion of Merit which is limited to a very few who have given "extraordinarily meritorious service to Adventist education." She spans in life the history of Adventist schools.

The 100-year-old educator is distinguished by two firsts in Adventist history: first church school teacher in California and author of the first Bible textbooks. These "shoestring" Bible textbooks—so-called because the first copies were held together by shoestrings—were used throughout the United States and in many countries of the world. Two of the original copies of the "shoestring" Bible textbooks are still in existence, one at Pacific Union College and the other at the General Conference.

Just 81 years ago, when there were only two colleges in the denomination, Mrs. McKibbin was graduated from Healdsburg. After teaching in several church schools, she joined the faculty of her alma mater, and transferred to Pacific Union College when the school moved to Howell Mountain.

Retiring from PUC in 1921, she moved to Mountain View where she began teaching in the academy. This she continued to do until her final retirement.

Mrs. McKibbin's undaunted courage remains a continual inspiration to all—but especially to the educators to follow on, "Step by Step" as He leads.

SO YOU WILL KNOW...

At this writing, it is Sunday, April 2, in Washington, D.C. I came here last week to attend the spring meeting of the General Conference Committee. For three days we discussed the organization of the church in an effort to determine whether or not there is a more effective way to pursue our work, to get more mileage out of the dollars available to us, and perhaps to redirect some of our money. This is a serious and continuing study, and some ideas are coming into focus.

The General Conference officers and union presidents from North America gathered in the General Conference chapel this morning. Elder R. H. Pierson, the chairman, opened the meeting by reading sections of an article that appeared in the June 1, 1936, issue of the Review. It was a devotional that had been given by the late F. M. Wilcox, who was at that time the editor of our church paper. The article, in which Elder Wilcox stated his concerns about some trends in our educational system, may be reprinted in a future issue of the Review. Watch for it. Following Elder Pierson's devotional thoughts, we discussed our schools, our concerns, and our objectives. The church we love was injected into the discussion which became a testimony meeting; and when the noon hour arrived, the agenda we had gathered to discuss was still on the table. It was a meeting we will not soon forget.

All union presidents reported on Mission '72. The reports thus far are sketchy, and we eagerly await the full picture. Without doubt, the influence of the church has been enlarged and strengthened. Many people have been brought into contact with Adventists for the first time, creating a renewed sense of urgency.

Spring Council opened on Tuesday, April 4, with a stirring devotional message by Elmer R. Walde, a former president of the Central California Conference. His appeal for all to reach a higher plane of living resulted in numerous personal testimonies, and without previous planning, someone began to sing "Spirit of the Living God."

Plans for a Bible conference were initiated. The last such meeting was in 1952. Our ministers, Bible teachers, and administrators will be strengthened by such a gathering. The time, attendance, and format are now in the study stage.

"Be of good cheer. . ."

Fullerton Church Dedication Will Be Held Sabbath, May 6

Dedication of the Fullerton church will take place Sabbath, May 6, at 2353 West Valencia Drive. Elder R. R. Bietz, vice-president of the General Conference, will deliver the dedicatory sermon at 3 p.m. A varied musical program will precede the service. Lunch will be served at noon to visitors and guests attending the events.

Participating in the Sabbath school and church service, in addition to the dedication ceremonies, are a majority of former Fullerton pastors and some evangelists, including N. C. Peterson (first pastor—now in Arkansas), F. L. Abbott, A. D. Bohn of Ohio, R. H. Kezer and H. D. Jeffries of Colorado, and W. C. Risley, L. R. Anderson, Roy Allan Anderson, G. T. Dickinson, Donald Spaulding, and John Ford.

According to Elder John H. Toppenberg, pastor of the Fullerton Church, the $750,000 facility includes an eight-grade school, nursery-kindergarten, buildings for the Pathfinder Club and adult fellowship, youth club room, Dorcas rooms, printing room, and garage, in addition to the new church and Sabbath school buildings.

Loma Linda Academy Band Tours Northern California

From April 6 to 10, the Loma Linda Academy Select Band made a tour of Northern California giving concerts at Golden Gate Academy, the Carmichael Seventh-day Adventist church, the Auburn church, Pacific Union College, and Mountain View Academy.

The group is composed of 39 of the best players of Loma Linda Academy. They have been playing together for the past several months and have had opportunity to give concerts in various places in the Inland Empire. After their return from Northern California, they are visiting San Pasqual Academy, Orangewood Academy, Lynwood Academy, and Redlands Junior Academy besides playing in various churches. Their final concert will be on May 22 in the Loma Linda Academy Gymnasium.

Wayne Harrison, director of the band, is a graduate from Pacific Union College in 1970. Since then, he has been directing elementary and academy bands at Loma Linda Academy. "I am very pleased with the performance and the spirit of the band. We are a closely knit group that enjoys working together," he commented.

A baptism held in the Calimesa church on March 25 brought the membership to over 400. The pastor and evangelistic team are shown standing behind the candidates.

residents—and a special invitation to all former church-school teachers, former members, and pastors—to attend the dedication services for the new church buildings. We would like to share our time of rejoicing for a beautiful, debt-free facility for worship and church activities, and perhaps at the same time recall many friendships and experiences.

"Old-fashioned Day" Is Slated at Community Church in Rialto

An "Old-fashioned Day" is slated for Sabbath, April 22, at the Community Seventh-day Adventist church, 1560 North Lilac Avenue, Rialto.

Programs during the Sabbath school, worship hour, afternoon, and evening will place emphasis on the history of the Seventh-day Adventist denomination. Members in costume will depict early missionaries and leaders of our work.

"Why Should I Hold to an Old-fashioned Faith" will be the topic of the message to be presented at the 11 o'clock worship hour by Pastor Calvin A. Sterling. A push-pedal organ and other "aged" items will help set the atmosphere as members and friends endeavor to reconstruct the past and the mission of the church. Members and friends are invited to dress in "old-fashioned clothes." Several musical groups attired for the occasion and singing "old-fashioned music" will provide an added inspiration.

The history of the local church will also be recounted. Those who have been members or friends of the Rialto Church through its history are especially invited to come and renew acquaintances at these special services. Each family should bring a picnic in a basket for the lunch hour on the church lawn.

FRANK VOIGHT, PR Secy., Rialto Church.

OVER 450 PATHFINDERS PARTICIPATE IN ANNUAL BIKEATHON

A blinding, blowing sandstorm did not keep over 450 Pathfinders from participating in their annual Bikeathon at Indio on Sunday, March 26. The Bikeathon was held on an unopened stretch of new freeway just west of Indio.

Pathfinders came to complete their honor in biking which requires a 50-mile bike ride. The sand was blowing so strongly from the west that riders could only ride in an easterly direction for six miles. Here they loaded their bikes onto trucks and were driven back to the starting line where they started the circuit over again.

Gold Cup Awarded to the Redwood Hills Church Treasurer

Saturday evening, January 29, 1972, will be a memorable night in the life of Blanche Brady.

Mrs. Brady was baptized a Seventh-day Adventist in Chicago, Illinois, on December 23, 1939. She read herself into the Truth through the workings of the Holy Spirit. She wanted to become a better Christian, and the Lord, looking upon the heart, opened the way for her to seek employment in the office of a Seventh-day Adventist physician who was faithful not only in giving out tracts, but who was at the same time earnestly working with a former church member in the same office. Because of this faithfulness, another soul was won for the Lord.

Mrs. Blanche Brady

Mrs. Brady did not stand alone on the day of her baptism. Because of her reading, and asking numerous questions of the former church member about specific doctrines, this person rededicated her life to Christ and was rebaptized on the same day. Praise the Lord!

After Mrs. Brady's baptism she became a faithful worker for the Lord. She col-porteured, and held offices of lay activities secretary and assistant treasurer for her church while living in Chicago.

She and her husband, Boyd, eventually moved to Redwood City where she was asked to accept the office of church treasurer for the Redwood Hills Church. It was because of 17 years of faithful service in this capacity that the members of the Redwood Hills Church had the pleasure of honoring her with a surprise evening social with the theme, "This is your life, Blanche Brady."

A gold cup was given to her with an engraved plaque at the base which read: "This is lovingly given to you, Blanche Brady, in appreciation of the 17 years of devoted service which you gave as treasurer of our church. May God's richest blessings always be with you and yours. The members of the Redwood Hills Seventh-day Adventist Church. January 29, 1972."

Mr. and Mrs. Brady will be leaving Redwood City to make their home in Oregon. They will be greatly missed by all in our church family.

SUSAN BAAT, PR Secy.,

The sanctuary of the Turlock church to be dedicated April 22, 1972.

Turlock Church Dedication Day Is Set for April 22

April 22, 1972, has been chosen as the day for the dedication of the Turlock Seventh-day Adventist church.

Sixty-nine years ago, a small Sabbath school was organized in the city of Turlock. Three years later, on September 22, 1906, this group was organized as a church. A church was rented until 1908 when the members moved into their own church home.

The congregation grew through the years so that a new building was needed in 1920. The membership continued to grow, and in the latter part of 1966, construction was started on a new building, located at 2400 North Olive Street in Turlock, next to the church school facility.

Under the direction of Pastor A. A. Wagner, a lovely sanctuary, youth chapel, and classrooms were constructed and are now being used for the worship and praise of God. The total cost was $272,319. The members gave generously of their time and means to build and pay for this edifice.

Friends, neighbors, and former members are invited to join the congregation on April 22 for the dedication of this facility.

The program for the day is as follows:

- 9:30 a.m.—Sabbath School

Ministerial Association Members Treated to a Vegetarian Luncheon

Members of the South County Ministerial Association (for San Luis Obispo area) were recently invited by association member A. T. Wiegardt, Arroyo Grande Church pastor, to a vegetarian luncheon for their March association meeting.

Several ladies from the Arroyo Grande Church prepared and served the luncheon at the Valley View Junior Academy. The tables were attractively decorated with bouquets of spring flowers, and many favorable comments and queries about vegetarian foods were made as the ministers returned to the serving table again and again.

Adventists Are Inspired by The Voice of Prophecy Team

The Seventh-day Adventists in Hawaiian Mission were inspired by the presence of Elder and Mrs. Harold Richards, Jr., and the King's Heralds quartet. They visited the majority of our churches in the Islands and brought encouragement to the members. Radio station KAIM in Honolulu featured the quartet one afternoon and permitted them to advertise their meetings over the air. On two occasions they visited local hospitals and brought cheer to the patients.

The climax of the visit was an island-wide meeting at 11 o'clock on Sabbath in the McKinley High School auditorium in Honolulu. At that time Elder Richards spoke to approximately 1,300 people. There were scores of nonmembers who came to listen to him, and during his invitation to accept Christ at the climax of his sermon, many came down the aisles to respond to his invitation. The audience was deeply moved to see people move out into the aisles and come forward.

The Hawaiian Mission will sponsor the new 15-minute radio broadcast of the Voice of Prophecy over KIPA in Hilo, and KORL in Honolulu. This will give coverage throughout the entire state of Hawaii.

We solicit your prayers that we may reach the thousands in Hawaii with a message of hope for these times.

L. E. DAVIDSON.

Two of those who responded to the invitation to accept Christ speak with Elder Richards as the many requests spill from his Bible.

PACIFIC UNION COLLEGE

Three-day "Comepart" Deals with Practical Christian Living

One hundred twenty PUC students, faculty, and guests enjoyed a weekend of Christian fellowship and fun at the recent Student Association-sponsored Bible Conference at Pinecrest Camp. According to SA Religious Vice President Noel Gardner, the three-day "Comepart" dealt with practical concepts of Christian living.

Designed and engineered by Elder Ted Wick, campus youth pastor, the conference was based largely on materials prepared by nationally known Christian youth leader and counselor Bill Gothard. Meetings were held in classroom fashion with each delegate filling his notebook with the ideas and concepts presented.

Discussions were led by Elder Paul DeBooy, Pacific Union Conference MV secretary; Elder Howard Barron, MV secretary of the Nevada-Utah Conference; Elder Fred Veltman, associate professor of religion at PUC; Dr. Daniel Burrow, assistant professor of education; Dr. Elton Wallace, professor of communications; Elder Irvin Kurtz, associate pastor of the PUC Church; Elder Wick, and several students.

Each dealt with the strikingly practical aspects of such important topics as self-acceptance, spiritual motivation, dating, finance, frustration, and commitment. The approach, said Gardner, was conceptual rather than emotional; intellectual rather than sentimental. Attendance and response of the delegates showed a positive reaction.

"The experience was truly unique, both in format and approach," said Gardner. The students were anxious to apply the principles to everyday life.

PUC NEWS NOTES

Associate Professor of Art Joe Maniscalco has just received word that his 22nd book has been accepted for publication. Entitled Painting Portraits in Acrylics, the book is being published by Grumbacher Inc., New York. Maniscalco says he will use the new publication as a text for his classes in illustration.

Pacific Union College recently played host to two professional gatherings. On April 9 the fourth annual meeting of the Association of Western Adventist Historians convened on campus. Participants included faculty members from five colleges and universities on the West Coast. Claude A. Buss, dean of the graduate school at Stanford University, spoke on "The People's Republic of China and Richard Nixon." UC Berkeley historian James F. King presented "History and the Headlines."

On April 16 the music department welcomed members of the Redwood Empire District of the California Association of Professional Music Teachers for a one-day conference. Highlighting the program was a performance by Siegfried Schultze, internationally known for his ability to interpret the music of Chopin. Master classes in theory and composition were presented by the Sonoma State College Music Department. SSC's Madrigal Singers also performed.

Dr. Hans K. La Rondelle, assistant professor of systematic theology at Andrews University, spoke individually with many PUC students like Sacramento sophomore Kathy Ingham during PUC's recent spring Week of Religious Emphasis. Dr. La Rondelle's morning meetings focused on "The Unsearchable Riches of Christ." Evening sessions dealt with "Righteousness by Faith." The week climaxed with the entire PUC student body celebrating communion.

PUC's Student Newspaper Gets All-American Award

For the third consecutive year, Pacific Union College's student newspaper, the Campus Chronicle, has been awarded All-American status by the Associated College Press—a national rating service.

In competition with other weekly papers from colleges and universities approximately the same size as PUC, the CC earned marks of distinction for its coverage and content, writing and editing, editorial leadership, and physical appearance.

According to the ACP, the All-American award signifies "the best in student publications . . . that extra spark of liveliness, imagination, and appeal which distinguishes really top publications."

Campus Chronicle editor Randy Billington from Redding, California, accepted the award on behalf of his staff members.
