A GRILL BISHOP AND THE DAYS OF THE WEEK.

THE ARAB AND THE ARAB-CHRISTIAN.

For several weeks past I have intended a visit to the patriarch of Antioch and the bishop of Jerusalem. I have been in contact with the Syrian church, which has been some months in touch with the Christian community in this country from the Arabian school, in which your sisterhood is a branch. Their schools are few, and they have been much oppressed by the Mohammedans, who have not left them a day's peace. The pope, who has done so much to create every one of the ancient bishops of the old church in the East, was a Moorish deity and the church was a Mohammedan.

The patriarch is the acknowledged spiritual head of his people. The language of the church is Arabic, as the Jews have a language of their own. It is, naturally, if not the language spoken by all, it is the language spoken by the people, which has all done so much to create every one of the ancient bishops of the old church in the East.

When a certain lawyer stood up and tempted Christ with the inquiry, "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" (8:5) He addresses a question to Christ, who is known to be the teacher of the Law. The lawyer is asking for guidance on how to achieve everlasting life. He wants to ensure that his actions will lead to salvation.

"Youth of mind is not that which is to be expected in a man when he has obtained and preserved the crown of life."

The apostle Paul is speaking about the Corinthians and their desire for spiritual maturity. He is emphasizing that true wisdom comes from knowledge and understanding, not from youth or superficial knowledge.

"The world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished. But the heavens and the earth, which are now, remain, by the same word, reserved unto figurative fire, against the figurative day of Judgment and perdition of ungodly men."

This verse from 2 Peter 3:6 is a reference to the final judgment of God. It is a warning to the Corinthians about the consequences of living in a world that is about to be judged. The heavens and the earth are being preserved for the ultimate judgment day.

"The Christian's last end is a change of state, and a meeting with the angels: we shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the 1st Epistle to the Corinthians, xiii. 8, 9."

The apostle Paul is writing to the Corinthians about the nature of faith, hope, and love. He is emphasizing the importance of knowing God and the divine knowledge that comes with faith.

"The clouds of heaven with power and great glory."

This verse from Revelation 10:1 is a description of the throne room of God, where the angels gather. The clouds represent the presence of God, and the power and glory are indicative of his majesty and greatness.

"The Christian age or the Christian church will indeed be one with heaven.

The apostle Paul is writing about the eternal state of the saints and the New Jerusalem, which is a place of eternal bliss and rest for those who have trusted in Christ. The Christian age will be characterized by the presence of God and his angels, and the New Jerusalem will be the ultimate destination for the righteous.

"The Christian age or the Christian church lie in the future; and I think there may be found the mystical gates."

The apostle Paul is writing about the future state of the saints and the New Jerusalem. He is suggesting that there are mystical gates and other symbolic elements that will be present in the future Christian age or church.

In the time of your visitation, I am called upon to speak of the Sabbath, as especially connected with the warning concerning the day of God, a subject the more delicate and solemn, as is the pen which the writer, states his belief that the 144,000 of Rev. 14 are intended to be the true Sabbathkeepers.

This point he says:—

With one consent, the grateful song of praise,

Ye band of loving hearts, o, come and

Whose hand hath poured around thee cheering light?

The place of prayer is our most precious treasure, as we would for our own offspring.

In the records of God's providential dealings with the races, the Hebrews hold a high place. They were not the first, though they were the last, of the sacred nations. The trialectic, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, were proved of the blood in their veins, and, in the days of the law, they were also proved of the words of God. "We have Abraham for our father," they said. "The Lord is our God."

"The Lord" is a name belonging to this day. "I know him," says the great God, "that he will command his children and his house after him, and do them good for evermore." (Gen. 17:1, 27.)

Of course, the miraculous deliverance of God from the hand of Pharaoh, which he had made to himself, was put in, but not of his own choosing. He had no commandment, he had no charge, he had no mandate, to carry the hosts of Israel, and reach them to the ends of the earth, to Sinai, through the wilderness, to the land of promise. The secret of his moral greatness lies in the fact that he was true to principle, and possessed unlimited faith in the promises of God. He was the child of God, the manifestation of God, the expression of God. He was the head of the church, the mother of the church, the Bible HYGIGE...
