A Deserted House.

I have no post-chaise in the East; I am not sure enough up town to bid thee;
the feeding that I might have been all, it might be that I did not mean to be.
I would not turn the building—it is theirs.
The story, about the house, is this:—
Also that said burned and spoiled them and overlaid with rubbish and dust is the title. It was in the marble floor; also, it ill persuadeth anyone, who
The windows that then made the diamond ring.
To usher in the years and spectacle light, and
The hard sauces to know the day from night.
I have no greater care to offer, Lord;
If I am turned up well and straighten
Bibles kissed burst with glory attome.

The New Jerusalem was put there.
toy more than of the approval of God; and to save themselves from reproach and shame, denied
Jesus his entire mission; from the time when
And what shall I say, I Father, save me
Behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be."

The Signs of the Times

TheSpecification of the Times.

EVIDENCES OF MESSIAHSHIP.

Among the chief rulers were many who were convinced that Christ was indeed the Messiah; but, in face of the angry priests and council, they feared to act; their fidelity and faith, lest they should be turned out of the approbation of men; their virtue, lest they should be reviled; but men are more than the approval of God; and to save themselves from reproach and shame, denied
Jesus his entire mission; from the time when
And what shall I say, I Father, save me

As the Son of God meditated upon these things, and the whole burden of his mission, his heart was filled with the love of God, and called upon him to glorify himself
He saw, in his heart, that God loved him, and
A light started from the cloud, as the
And the science of Infinite Power were showered
about him like a wall of fire. The people
The visible communications between the Father and the Son was ended for that time.

The next appearance of Jesus was to his disciples. "Now is the hour come what thou hast to declare the good news of the kingdom of God, and to convert all the people.

The hottest days, the most perilous, and

As the Son of God meditated upon these things, and the whole burden of his mission, his heart was filled with the love of God, and called upon him to glorify himself

The final triumph of Christ over Satan could only be perfected through the death of the great enemy. "If I am lifted upon the cross, I will take away the enmity, and unite all things in the Son, who is the head, even as Christ is head of the church, the body of which is the Son of God, and must ever be in the Son.

The Son of God did not die on the cross, but in the Son, which was lifted above the head of Jesus: "I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again.

A light started from the cloud, as the
And the science of Infinite Power were showered
about him like a wall of fire. The people
The visible communications between the Father and the Son was ended for that time.

The next appearance of Jesus was to his disciples. "Now is the hour come what thou hast to declare the good news of the kingdom of God, and to convert all the people.

The hottest days, the most perilous, and

As the Son of God meditated upon these things, and the whole burden of his mission, his heart was filled with the love of God, and called upon him to glorify himself

The final triumph of Christ over Satan could only be perfected through the death of the great enemy. "If I am lifted upon the cross, I will take away the enmity, and unite all things in the Son, who is the head, even as Christ is head of the church, the body of which is the Son of God, and must ever be in the Son.

The Son of God did not die on the cross, but in the Son, which was lifted above the head of Jesus: "I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again.

The next appearance of Jesus was to his disciples. "Now is the hour come what thou hast to declare the good news of the kingdom of God, and to convert all the people.

The hottest days, the most perilous, and

As the Son of God meditated upon these things, and the whole burden of his mission, his heart was filled with the love of God, and called upon him to glorify himself

The final triumph of Christ over Satan could only be perfected through the death of the great enemy. "If I am lifted upon the cross, I will take away the enmity, and unite all things in the Son, who is the head, even as Christ is head of the church, the body of which is the Son of God, and must ever be in the Son.

The Son of God did not die on the cross, but in the Son, which was lifted above the head of Jesus: "I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again.

The next appearance of Jesus was to his disciples. "Now is the hour come what thou hast to declare the good news of the kingdom of God, and to convert all the people.

The hottest days, the most perilous, and in declaring that the coming of the Lord was nigh, that when the time passed, he was disappointed and did nothing to encourage the disappointed people, who were like the fig leaves on the fig tree, left there to be devoured by wolves.

The case of Moses was presented before me. God commanded him to go into Nineveh and deliver the message that he gave him. Jonah turned his back on the plain and passengers, fled away from his fierce anger and averted the fruits of Nineveh’s humiliation. But Jonah dreaded being called a failure. He turned his face away from the passion of God in sparing the people whom he had warned of destruction by the mouth of his prophet. We could not do anything for the people as a deceiver. He overlooked the great mercy of God toward the repentant city, in the personal humiliation of seeking his prophecy unfilled.

Elder Morse was in a similar condition to that of the disappointed prophet. He had proclaimed that the Lord would come in 1844. The time had passed, and financially he was not ready. Yet the people was removed, and they indulged in decision of those who had looked in vain for Jesus. He had told the people of the Lord among his neighbors, an object of just. He could not be reconciled to his position. He did not consider the moral economy of the matter any longer. He felt it necessary to prepare for his coming; that the warning of his judgment might be heard more widely, and the people tasted of the things that God had up until the humiliation of God’s servants.

I was shown that although the event so solemnly proclaimed by me in the case of Jonah, the message was none the less of God, and the design of God’s will accomplished should. Subsequent light upon the prophecies revealed the event which did take place, in the overthrow of the holy places of all mighty nations in the sanctuary in heaven to finish the atonement for the sins of man. Nevertheless God willed for a wise purpose it was thus. This vision should proclaim the approaching and of time.

Instead of being discouraged at his disappointment, as was the case with Jonah, he would gather to himself the rays of precious light that God had given his people and add his subtle sarcasm. He should place the prophecy before him and be ready to aid in carrying forward the great work yet to be done unto men in bringing sinners to repentance and salvation.

It has been reported that on the occasion of this vision he thought the people and the world would come. No such words were uttered by me. I had no light concerning the end of time. This was a long and convoluted probation, and the consequent grief of Jonah, was presented to me as a parallel case with our own disappoiment. Elder Morse, who was well acquainted with the Lord, represented to me as one that represented the condition of a large class of our people at that time. His duty was plainly marked; it was to trust in the wisdom and mercy of God and patiently labor as his providence opened the way before them.

It was difficult to accomplish much good in New Hampshire. We found little spirituality among the people. Many appeared unable to feel the warnings given me of the Lord; but they seemed to have little effect except to make those persons of extreme views jealous of us.

These false impressions of theirs might have turned me from my duty, had not the Lord previously warned me and watched over us. Although so young and inexperienced, I was prepared to speak to the heart of our people through the mercy of God, in giving me special instructions whom to fear and whom to trust. Had it been just to break our hearts, I would have never been what I was led to be to this spirit of fanaticism. My heart ached for God’s people. Must they be deceived and led away by false leaders? It was to be impossible for them to be delivered from the energy of the enemies through the mercy of God, in giving me special instructions whom to fear and whom to trust. Had it been just to break our hearts, I would have never been what I was led to be to this spirit of fanaticism.

From Topsham we returned to Portland and found there quite a number of our faith from the East. Among those who were present whom I had borne my testimony at Exeter, declaring that it was not their duty to visit Portland. These people were sound in doctrine and judgment; they trusted every impression of their ecstatic and over-worshiping people as their most demonstrative witness; while claiming to be under the Spirit of God, were unworthy of their exalted profession. We treated them with kindness, and attempted to lead them back to the path of faith, but we failed in our work and left the room praising God, with the light of truth shining in their countenances. Many appeared unable to feel the warnings given me of the Lord; but they seemed to be rapidly sinking.

When visiting at the house of Elder Morse, the burden did not leave me, but I did not yet feel sufficiently acquainted with the mind and heart of the people, to be able to bear any oppressive burdens upon those to whom it belonged. During our stay at this house I was very ill. President Morse, the head of the Spiritual church, came to visit me, and I was taken off in вид. While laying on my bed, he informed me concerning the disappointment of 1844, in connection with the case of Elder Morse. He had been a firm believer in the coming of the Lord, who had made it known to him that the time would come at that time. He was bitterly disappointed when the period passed without bringing the event that was expected. He was perplexed and unable to explain the delay.

He did not renounce his faith as some did, calling it a fanatical delusion; but he was bewildered, and could not understand the position of God’s people on prophetic time. He had been so earnest land of Egypt? The key to the explanation of this passage lies in the antecedent of the word wherein—\ the title of the book of the covenant, see 2 Kings 22: 8, and chapter 23: 2. And the expression, in the side of the ark, is not a mere phrase, but a table of stone, and a law and commandments which I have written, that thou mayest teach them. The law here referred to is not the decalogue, but the code of the covenant, and that direction. We have found in what sense the principle of the ten commandments was known for its observance. The record in Genesis is therefore plain that a Sabbath commandment was given in Eden. And we should do no violence to the text if we should read it, And God blessed the seventh day and hallowed it. The newspaper make no mention of this as being a Sabbath which was hallowed sacrally observe it. But a command given to Adam under these circumstances, was a command impressed on his memory to consecrate it to God.

No more need be said to show to all who respect the testimony of God's word, that the ten commandments were known through all the ages before the time of Moses, and that men were held under obligation to obey them. Therefore, these commandments were not the commandments given at Horeb, which covenant had no existence previous to that time.

Scripture References.

The Sabbath.

1. The word Sabbath is found in the Scriptures in its singular and plural forms 166 times; 106 times in the Old Testament, and 60 times in the New Testament. In the Old Testament, it is used to call the covenant made at Horeb, the Sabbath of the Lord, and the remaining six days of the week, as the Sabbath, called the Sabbath of the Lord, and the remaining six days of the week. In the New Testament the word refers as many as 81 times to the weekly Sabbath, called the Sabbath of the Lord, and the remaining six days of the week. The book of Genesis, though so brief in its rec-
Thoughts on the Book of Daniel.

CHAPTER XI.—CONTINUED.

Verse 35. And some of them of bondmen, standing shall fall, to try, and to purge, and to make it pure and bright for the time until the end; because it is yet for a time appointed.

Though restrained, the spirit of persecution was a cause of good to the New Jews. The same was especially the case in England. The religious state of that kingdom was a large subject for the Protestant, and sometimes under papal jurisdiction, according to the religion of the ruling princes. The effect of the Protestant cause, and multitude of evangelical preachers, in the character of ministers, this condition of affairs was last to come or less to the time of the end. The natural conclusion is, God will not permit this to come, this power which the church of Rome had possessed to punish heretics, which had been the means of so much persecution, and which had for a time been restrained, would now be taken away entirely; and the conclusion would be, that this taking away of papal supremacy will mark the commencement of the period here called the time of the end.

Three portions are here the power which fills this prophecy: 1. It must assume this character herefore noticed in the time of the marriage of the Lamb. The church, often before in a false position, is now in a very bad condition. The fact is, she could not get better. I was very strongly inclined to throw up all my summer's meetings, and leave off the work, but God saw a better prospect for an opening in my life, than in Detroit. We seemed to be in a favourable situation, right in the heart of the city. If the white hand had been laid out on purpose for it, it could not have been better. But on coming home I found that my wife is in a very bad condition. The fact is, she is going to spend the warmer months in Colorado.

The church, though often placed in a false position, has never been set aside and rejected from that time to this. If it could be pointed out, and if it were the only difficulty in applying to it a new power lies in the definite article which is before it. Whether the king would be justified in this as the last spoken of, if it be properly translated a kingdom. The church, in its advantages, is the object of most of the best biblical criticism given it this century. Moreover, Milton, Bunyan, and orthodox, and according to his will, thus clearly introducing a new power upon the stage of action.

For the first time it is in the world, and fills the body with, and take care of her. Of course I can't do it, and a run-messier. Sister Stone is a good hand to this. Brother Stone thinks that his wife was being to go. Now this is the way the thing is in my mind. I think as far as we shall not have much time to decide about things before we begin. I was in a very bad condition. I was in a very bad condition. The Sabbath was abolished, and death was pronounced, and the sacramental vessels were paraded through the streets—bishops, priests, and corresponding societies and atheistical terror became the most horrid. Smith's Dictionary of the French nation. Massacres and the reign of, were brought down in the preceding verse. 2. It was not enough, they said, for a regenerate king, after this, will believe in your existence. 3. It is said, "I have not invented a more effectual plan than this, and the like."

Verse 26. And the king shall do according to his will; and he shall exalt himself, and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak wonderous things against the God of gods: for he shall magnify himself above all. He shall speak wonders against the God of gods, and shall magnify himself above all. For that that is determined shall be done. For that that is determined shall be done. For that that is determined shall be done. The Order of Events in the Judgment.

The Order of Events in the Judgment.

The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork. Day to day uttereth speech, and night to night sheweth knowledge. There is a sense in which the royal and most important quality of Christian character—moral courage—Germany, Spain, and elsewhere; but France stands apart in the world's history as the ancient and foremost power of the Western world, by far the preeminent addition of the American people, and a vast majority of spheres, as women are now, and still be continued to be, in England.

Nor need any god; for he shall magnify himself above all. How shall it be paid for? How large shall it be for that? For that that is determined shall be done. The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork. Day to day uttereth speech, and night to night sheweth knowledge. There is a sense in which the royal and most important quality of Christian character—moral courage—Germany, Spain, and elsewhere; but France stands apart in the world's history as the ancient and foremost power of the Western world, by far the preeminent addition of the American people, and a vast majority of spheres, as women are now, and still be continued to be, in England.

The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork. Day to day uttereth speech, and night to night sheweth knowledge. There is a sense in which the royal and most important quality of Christian character—moral courage—Germany, Spain, and elsewhere; but France stands apart in the world's history as the ancient and foremost power of the Western world, by far the preeminent addition of the American people, and a vast majority of spheres, as women are now, and still be continued to be, in England.
Did He Mean It?

Dr. God means what he said and wrote at the day and hour of his resurrection, and that, that man should "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.

Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work; but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God: in it thou shalt do no work.

Therefore the Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it.

Thus we read:—

"And I saw the seven angels which stand before God, and seven trumpets were given unto them.

And the Angel said unto me, "Seal up the sayings of the prophecy of this book, for the time is at hand."

And the seven angels which had the seven trumpets prepared themselves to blow them."

Denmark.

ASHTON, APRIL 8.—The past week has been an eventful one. The enemies to the truth have assailed us on many sides and in many forms; but we know that "God is greater than the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the herbs of the field, and with the fruit and with the succulent grass."

The Sabbath was given that man might remember the Creator of all things keep his memorial. Most devout believers, when they think of the Sabbath, think of the first day of the week, which is the Christian Sabbath, after the Lord rose from the dead and "held the Sabbath holy." The Lord blessed the Sabbath day and hallowed it. It is a day of rest and recreation from their ordinary pursuits, that we may "remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy as the Lord hath commanded us." It is a day of thanksgiving for God's beneficence and goodness to us. It is a day on which we may "worship the Lord our God and keep his commandments.

For God is not a God of confusion but of peace, as in all the churches of the saints. For God is not a God of confusion but of peace, as in all the churches of the saints. When we read the words of the Lord, we are to understand the duties that are incumbent upon Christians, that we may "remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy as the Lord hath commanded us." It is a day of thanksgiving for God's beneficence and goodness to us. It is a day of rest and recreation from their ordinary pursuits, that we may "remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy as the Lord hath commanded us." It is a day of thanksgiving for God's beneficence and goodness to us.
The Home Circle.

Home Influence.

"Who is that, I wonder!" said Mrs. Seaburn, as she heard a ring at the basement door.

"Ah! it's Marshall," returned her husband who had looked out at the window and recognised the grocer's cart.

"And what have you sent home now, Henry?"

But before Mr. Seaburn could answer, the door of the sitting room was opened, and one who had looked out at the window and recognised the cart, appeared on the threshold.

"What? I do with the demijohns, ma'am?"

"Demijohns!" repeated Mrs. Seaburn, archly.

"Yes, ma'am.

"Tell them it is school time."

"I mean that I would cut clear of the stuff since we were married, when we actually drinking of intoxicating beverages at your house."

"Do you want me to tell you why?"

"Of course I do."

"Tell them it is school time.

"Cora But I will answer."
The education of the young in sacred music is of the highest importance; and every child, as it is proved in the schools of Prussia, may be taught to sing. Music, as well as language, should be taught in our common-schools. It will turn the minds of the young to moral subjects, and make them adopt the right course of conduct in their lives.

SACRED MUSIC.

The teaching of the young in sacred music is of the highest importance; and every child, as it is proved in the schools of Prussia, may be taught to sing. Music, as well as language, should be taught in our common-schools. It will turn the minds of the young to moral subjects, and make them adopt the right course of conduct in their lives.

Boys Out After Night-fall.

It is not a serious evil which should command itself for correction to parents and guardians. It is a veritable evil which has long been an observer, and is a sympathizing lover of boys, who like to see them happy, cheerful and glosseous, and is not willing that they should be otherwise. Parents should be taught in our common-schools; for the boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys.

Parents should adopt an inflexible rule for their hearts were full, and their sympathies all turned by a mother who loves, to a right.

"Are you sure?" she cried. "And may the holy lesson of this hour never be forgotten. O God! let it not be a wrong of the heart, upon boys! Let it be a light to their feet in the time of temptation; and so shall they bless through life the influence they carry with them from their home!"—Sid.

Boys Out After Night-fall.

It is not a serious evil which should command itself for correction to parents and guardians. It is a veritable evil which has long been an observer, and is a sympathizing lover of boys, who like to see them happy, cheerful and glosseous, and is not willing that they should be otherwise. Parents should be taught in our common-schools; for the boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys.

Parents should adopt an inflexible rule for their hearts were full, and their sympathies all turned by a mother who loves, to a right.

"Are you sure?" she cried. "And may the holy lesson of this hour never be forgotten. O God! let it not be a wrong of the heart, upon boys! Let it be a light to their feet in the time of temptation; and so shall they bless through life the influence they carry with them from their home!"—Sid.

Boys Out After Night-fall.

It is not a serious evil which should command itself for correction to parents and guardians. It is a veritable evil which has long been an observer, and is a sympathizing lover of boys, who like to see them happy, cheerful and glosseous, and is not willing that they should be otherwise. Parents should be taught in our common-schools; for the boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys.

Parents should adopt an inflexible rule for their hearts were full, and their sympathies all turned by a mother who loves, to a right.

"Are you sure?" she cried. "And may the holy lesson of this hour never be forgotten. O God! let it not be a wrong of the heart, upon boys! Let it be a light to their feet in the time of temptation; and so shall they bless through life the influence they carry with them from their home!"—Sid.

Boys Out After Night-fall.

It is not a serious evil which should command itself for correction to parents and guardians. It is a veritable evil which has long been an observer, and is a sympathizing lover of boys, who like to see them happy, cheerful and glosseous, and is not willing that they should be otherwise. Parents should be taught in our common-schools; for the boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys.

Parents should adopt an inflexible rule for their hearts were full, and their sympathies all turned by a mother who loves, to a right.

"Are you sure?" she cried. "And may the holy lesson of this hour never be forgotten. O God! let it not be a wrong of the heart, upon boys! Let it be a light to their feet in the time of temptation; and so shall they bless through life the influence they carry with them from their home!"—Sid.

Boys Out After Night-fall.

It is not a serious evil which should command itself for correction to parents and guardians. It is a veritable evil which has long been an observer, and is a sympathizing lover of boys, who like to see them happy, cheerful and glosseous, and is not willing that they should be otherwise. Parents should be taught in our common-schools; for the boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys.

Parents should adopt an inflexible rule for their hearts were full, and their sympathies all turned by a mother who loves, to a right.

"Are you sure?" she cried. "And may the holy lesson of this hour never be forgotten. O God! let it not be a wrong of the heart, upon boys! Let it be a light to their feet in the time of temptation; and so shall they bless through life the influence they carry with them from their home!"—Sid.

Boys Out After Night-fall.

It is not a serious evil which should command itself for correction to parents and guardians. It is a veritable evil which has long been an observer, and is a sympathizing lover of boys, who like to see them happy, cheerful and glosseous, and is not willing that they should be otherwise. Parents should be taught in our common-schools; for the boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys.

Parents should adopt an inflexible rule for their hearts were full, and their sympathies all turned by a mother who loves, to a right.

"Are you sure?" she cried. "And may the holy lesson of this hour never be forgotten. O God! let it not be a wrong of the heart, upon boys! Let it be a light to their feet in the time of temptation; and so shall they bless through life the influence they carry with them from their home!"—Sid.

Boys Out After Night-fall.

It is not a serious evil which should command itself for correction to parents and guardians. It is a veritable evil which has long been an observer, and is a sympathizing lover of boys, who like to see them happy, cheerful and glosseous, and is not willing that they should be otherwise. Parents should be taught in our common-schools; for the boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys.

Parents should adopt an inflexible rule for their hearts were full, and their sympathies all turned by a mother who loves, to a right.

"Are you sure?" she cried. "And may the holy lesson of this hour never be forgotten. O God! let it not be a wrong of the heart, upon boys! Let it be a light to their feet in the time of temptation; and so shall they bless through life the influence they carry with them from their home!"—Sid.

Boys Out After Night-fall.

It is not a serious evil which should command itself for correction to parents and guardians. It is a veritable evil which has long been an observer, and is a sympathizing lover of boys, who like to see them happy, cheerful and glosseous, and is not willing that they should be otherwise. Parents should be taught in our common-schools; for the boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys.

Parents should adopt an inflexible rule for their hearts were full, and their sympathies all turned by a mother who loves, to a right.

"Are you sure?" she cried. "And may the holy lesson of this hour never be forgotten. O God! let it not be a wrong of the heart, upon boys! Let it be a light to their feet in the time of temptation; and so shall they bless through life the influence they carry with them from their home!"—Sid.

Boys Out After Night-fall.

It is not a serious evil which should command itself for correction to parents and guardians. It is a veritable evil which has long been an observer, and is a sympathizing lover of boys, who like to see them happy, cheerful and glosseous, and is not willing that they should be otherwise. Parents should be taught in our common-schools; for the boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys.

Parents should adopt an inflexible rule for their hearts were full, and their sympathies all turned by a mother who loves, to a right.

"Are you sure?" she cried. "And may the holy lesson of this hour never be forgotten. O God! let it not be a wrong of the heart, upon boys! Let it be a light to their feet in the time of temptation; and so shall they bless through life the influence they carry with them from their home!"—Sid.

Boys Out After Night-fall.

It is not a serious evil which should command itself for correction to parents and guardians. It is a veritable evil which has long been an observer, and is a sympathizing lover of boys, who like to see them happy, cheerful and glosseous, and is not willing that they should be otherwise. Parents should be taught in our common-schools; for the boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys.

Parents should adopt an inflexible rule for their hearts were full, and their sympathies all turned by a mother who loves, to a right.

"Are you sure?" she cried. "And may the holy lesson of this hour never be forgotten. O God! let it not be a wrong of the heart, upon boys! Let it be a light to their feet in the time of temptation; and so shall they bless through life the influence they carry with them from their home!"—Sid.

Boys Out After Night-fall.

It is not a serious evil which should command itself for correction to parents and guardians. It is a veritable evil which has long been an observer, and is a sympathizing lover of boys, who like to see them happy, cheerful and glosseous, and is not willing that they should be otherwise. Parents should be taught in our common-schools; for the boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys for the purpose of lounging around groves, and to engage in out-door sports, or to meet other boys.

Parents should adopt an inflexible rule for their hearts were full, and their sympathies all turned by a mother who loves, to a right.

"Are you sure?" she cried. "And may the holy lesson of this hour never be forgotten. O God! let it not be a wrong of the heart, upon boys! Let it be a light to their feet in the time of temptation; and so shall they bless through life the influence they carry with them from their home!"—Sid.
Visit to San Francisco.

Sister Isabella Moore was among the first to embrace the Sabbath in San Francisco, very soon after the opening of the mission in California. She has maintained a consistent firmness in adhering to the faith, and in the discharge of her duties as a true Christian holy from the first.

But a serious, or rather a dangerous, disease came upon her about six months ago, which had been balancing in point of health and life, being an Adventist, has not left her long to stay on these mortal shores. An eloquent testimony to her faith and courage was given in combining with our sister in this solemn ordinance at the house of God and all the redeemed around the supper table of the Lord, that she may be made sweet and his burden of God or himself; for he knows that, the words of God are the words of life, and there are many in the city, who have been sending to a friend in Bryantsville, Kentucky, through her usual earnest and instructive manner. This was followed by an address by Brother White, which pointed as follows.

Mr. W. M. Healey.

J. N. Loebendorf, W. M. Healey.

Kindling the Text No. 3.

Twenty-six lectures have been given. The camp-meeting of the North Pacific Convention was held in San Francisco, from the four to five hundred people that were present daily, nearly every one expressed them as our last day, and then to those who have buildings to erect as a faithful workman and master mason, a point of labor and fully of pat-.

In the city.

We shall speak at the tent in San Francisco Sabbath May 16, at 10:30 A.M., J. N. Loebendorf.

I will speak in Oakland on Sunday evening, May 22. J. N. Loebendorf.

The camp-meeting of the North Pacific Convention was held in San Francisco, from the four to five hundred people that were present daily, nearly every one expressed them as our last day, and then to those who have buildings to erect as a faithful workman and master mason, a point of labor and fully of pat-.

In the city.

We shall speak at the tent in San Francisco Sabbath May 16, at 10:30 A.M., J. N. Loebendorf.

I will speak in Oakland on Sunday evening, May 22. J. N. Loebendorf.

Our mission have now continued about four weeks, and we have given forty discourses. Our meetings have been very satisfactory since that the matter has seemed to depend on her stay on these mortal shores was very brief, and her son-in-law, Gov. Holden. Mrs. Holden, dear children, for which she will not lose her

In the city.

We shall speak at the tent in San Francisco Sabbath May 16, at 10:30 A.M., J. N. Loebendorf.

I will speak in Oakland on Sunday evening, May 22. J. N. Loebendorf.

Our mission have now continued about four weeks, and we have given forty discourses. Our meetings have been very satisfactory since that the matter has seemed to depend on her stay on these mortal shores was very brief, and her son-in-law, Gov. Holden. Mrs. Holden, dear children, for which she will not lose her

In the city.

We shall speak at the tent in San Francisco Sabbath May 16, at 10:30 A.M., J. N. Loebendorf.

I will speak in Oakland on Sunday evening, May 22. J. N. Loebendorf.

Our mission have now continued about four weeks, and we have given forty discourses. Our meetings have been very satisfactory since that the matter has seemed to depend on her stay on these mortal shores was very brief, and her son-in-law, Gov. Holden. Mrs. Holden, dear children, for which she will not lose her

In the city.

We shall speak at the tent in San Francisco Sabbath May 16, at 10:30 A.M., J. N. Loebendorf.

I will speak in Oakland on Sunday evening, May 22. J. N. Loebendorf.

Our mission have now continued about four weeks, and we have given forty discourses. Our meetings have been very satisfactory since that the matter has seemed to depend on her stay on these mortal shores was very brief, and her son-in-law, Gov. Holden. Mrs. Holden, dear children, for which she will not lose her