Voice of Prophecy Challenge

L. C. EVANS, President,
Southwestern Union Conference

From the Southwestern Union Conference these wonderful letters come to us:

Now Attends Sabbath School, Church, and Mid-week Services

"Thank you for your letter and encouragement which I have always felt from the Voice of Prophecy. Yes, I have the book Daniel and Revelation, which was given to me recently by a member of the SDA Church here. I really look forward to going to Sabbath school and church and prayer meeting each week. A neighbor of mine who is a member of this church has read with me some out of Steps to Christ, and she really desires a copy of this little book, which was given to me by a colporteur who sold me Desire of Ages and enrolled me in the Faith course. I can't part with my little Steps to Christ, nor begin to express what it has done for me. This sister is in need of spiritual help and asked me to pray for her. Please pray for her and her husband and two children.

MASS-MEDIA MEDITATION

A. R. MAZAT, Radio and TV Secretary,
Southwestern Union Conference

It is a sobering reality that many Christians today advertise a pious, somber, martyr-like Christianity. This presents to our neighbors a sterile, dull, restricted and "thou shalt not" philosophy of life. It is no wonder that Christianity has little attraction to the man of the world. In fact, he will remove himself as far from it as possible.

If the pagan world of the first century needed to see and hear the vibrant disciples with their message of Christ crucified, Christ resurrected, Christ triumphant over every circumstance in life, how much more does our world of today need such a testimony. Only a radiant, invincible message and messenger will make an impact upon this unbelieving age. To convince modern man with all his skepticism and sophistication, who Jesus is and what He does in individual lives, requires a joy and spontaneity manifested by the indwelling Holy Spirit in the lives of the believers, which, sad to say, are rarely seen today.

People on every hand are hungry for happiness and fulfillment. In their quest they head down many tangents and blind alleys. Many mistake the pleasures of this life for happiness and the endless whirl of activity for usefulness and purpose in life. They do not realize that the hunger is an age-old hunger of the soul, a hunger that can only be satisfied by the Person of Jesus Christ.

The world cannot know this truth unless they see it embodied in radiant, victorious Christians and hear it over their own radios as presented by the Voice of Prophecy broadcast. It is imperative that we today be a living demonstration of the power and the love of Jesus Christ. This we can do by acquainting at least 10 people this week with the Voice of Prophecy broadcast. Then, too, we can bring a freewill offering on October 12 to help the Voice of Prophecy branch out and blanket the world with the message of hope. Let every man give as God has prospered him. Some families could give at least $1,000. A few could give $500 towards this practical way of presenting Christ to the multitudes. The children would be elated to give at least $1.00.

Last Sabbath while fellowshiping with one of our wonderful pastors in the largest city of the Southwest, I was happily surprised when that kind soul winner said, "The Voice of Prophecy is multiplying my ministry tremendously. Not only does the Voice preach to the people, but also indoctrinates them in Bible truth, and then sends the interest on to me in order to reap the benefit." He concluded by saying, "I really like the work and program carried on by the Voice of Prophecy."

Most likely we can all say, "AMEN," to this testimony. Let us all give a hearty "AMEN" that will be felt by the Voice of Prophecy on October 12, through a generous thank offering.

VOP Challenge

"I shall never forget the colporteur who told me about this Faith course. I feel it is a true miracle I was privileged to hear of this truth. My whole desire is to be able to tell others and to be led by the Spirit. So many are like me — or as I was — whom Satan has blinded to these Bible truths!

"Thank you so much for your kindness and your prayers. My heart feels warm when I think of you folks. Please pray for my mother and sister. They both have cancer, and they are not Seventh-day Adventist believers. Pray for them to be really saved and to live up to every bit of light they have." —Oklahoma.

Smoking Stood in Her Way

"A few weeks ago I mailed you a check. I told you that my wife was ready to join the church, but that smoking stood in her way. I asked you to pray to the good Lord that He would lessen the craving. Elder Richards wrote me a letter, telling me the hour in which those prayers would be made. I gave my wife the letter to read, and within the next few days the craving left her almost completely. On a recent Sabbath she was baptized. She is very happy in the Lord.

"Today she gave me twenty-five dollars that she had saved in small change and asked me to send it to the Voice of Prophecy as a token of appreciation." —Oklahoma.

Home Burned Down

"I have lost all my lessons. Our home burned down, and we lost everything. Would it be possible for me to start over? I had enjoyed the lessons so much, and if possible would like to continue to take the Bible course." —Louisiana.

Taking One Course — Wants Another

"After studying the first ten lessons of your course I have found much better understanding of God's Word, and I am planning to take other courses that you have. The Light of the World course is the next one I would like to take; and if it would be possible to start it now I would like that very much.

"I turn the radio on every Sunday morning now to hear The Voice of Prophecy. It brings me a great deal more faith in God as I work." —Texas.

Sermons Led to Acceptance of Christ

"The Voice of Prophecy sermons have led me to accept Christ as my Saviour. We listen regularly to your broadcasts." —Texico.

These testimonials from the listening audience could be multiplied a hundred times if space would permit. In our recent Voice of Prophecy board meeting we saw unmistakable evidence of God's over-ruling providences in the direction of this great world-wide evangelistic program. The doors of opportunity before us challenge our fondest hopes. May God give us the faith and courage to meet these challenges on Sabbath, October 12, by providing by far the largest offering ever given by the churches of the Southwestern Union. Let's keep the message "flying in the midst of heaven."

Southwestern Union First-Year Students

LOMA LINDA — Two students from the Southwestern Union Conference enrolled as first-year students in Loma Linda University Graduate School the first of September. The first-year students will complete an enrollment of 125 degree candidates and represent 18 colleges and universities.

Accepted for the fall term are Edith Gillham, nursing, and Raymond G. Hall, Jr., biology.

"This is such a wonderful work that you good people are doing for us who can no longer see to read the printed page. I have appreciated all of the records. I have carefully kept each one in its order so that I can play any one of them over and over again and continue to enjoy the many inspiring articles and poems and songs and interviews. I have memorized most of the hymns in the special Gospel Hymns number. I assure you of my deepest appreciation."

Don's Three Choices

by INEZ STORIE CARR

"You have three choices, Don, work seven days a week, quit now on your own, or wait and be fired." The words came out slowly and kindly, but with a tone of finality.

Mr. Jones, the plant administrator of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. of San Antonio, Texas, thoughtfully tapped on his desk with a gold-banded pen, then raised his eyes to face the young man sitting across from him.

Don Stowe had finished a course as specialized telephone installer and repair man at Fort Gordon, Georgia, and then worked on telephone poles for five years. By now it was his love as well as his life. Each morning the twelve Southwestern telephone trucks took to the road loaded with all kinds of brown and ivory wires, telephone sets, protectors, pruning saws, knobs, bells, screws, et cetera, as well as orders and men. Don Stowe was one of these men. At ten o'clock they had a coffee break, but otherwise they were trouble shooters either down on the ground or like woodpeckers up on the poles.

One day a huge sign — "OUR SHATTERED WORLD" — appeared in the area where the men happened to be working. The billboard was high, but so was Don, and he could not help seeing it as well as the large white tent near by. His curiosity kept mounting as he saw people file into the tent evening after evening.

"I think it's about time I found out what it is that attracts so many people to enter that tent," Don muttered to himself, and the next evening he slipped out of his regulars and into a dress suit and slid into a back seat by the door feeling quite unnoticed and free to leave at any moment.

As he listened he received a shock, not from electrical connections but from the words of the speaker, as he expressed it the next day to one of his fellow workmen. "You ought to hear what those preachers are telling us, Bill. They give you a new meaning to life. If what they say is true, it's about time you and I woke up to facts. You do not need to be afraid to go. No one will bother you after the meeting. They have not even noticed that I was there, so we can take it or leave it at will."

But Don received another shock that night when he took hold of his door knob. It was in the form of a card stuck in the door. "Have called, but did not find you at home. Pastors Turner and Jenasian."

"What's more, they won't find me," chuckled Don as he tossed the card into the waste basket.

The next day as Don and Jim, the foreman, were observing telephone installations, Don suddenly shouted, "Ouch!" and grabbed his back with both hands, exclaiming, "Jim, something is wrong with me. I'm going to my room and call a doctor." Just as the pain-racked young man picked up the receiver the door bell rang. "Come in" he yelled as he replaced the receiver. Two tall, kind-faced men, the very ones he had been dodging, entered. "We missed you at the meetings, so just dropped by to see if all was well."

TEXAS VACATION BIBLE SCHOOLS

Punch time at the Waller, Texas, vacation Bible school! Mrs. Martin Schroeder, the punch-maker each year, is a favorite with the children.

Pictured above are most of the twenty-three children who daily attended the Waller, Texas, vacation Bible school. The workers were few, but the blessings were many. Only seven of the twenty-three children were from Adventist homes. One church member bought clothes and shoes for two little girls so they could attend. The girls are now attending Sabbath school.

"Ouch!" and Don grasped his back again. "I can tell you right now that all is not well."

"Listen, young man, I'm a graduate nurse. Won't you let me give you a few treatments to ease that pain?" After thirty minutes of hot applications the hurting was greatly relieved. "Now let us take you to the Reed-Mock Clinic at Pharr so you can get a check-up on what's behind all of this disturbance," suggested the emergency nurse.

Just then the pain struck again and goaded Don into accepting the offer. At the clinic, Dr. Mock easily diagnosed it as kidney stones and gave him treatments for it. Soon he was out of pain but not out of cash, for they refused to take any money for their services.

By now Don was getting a multiple amperage of shocks in his heart, and it was making some right-about changes in his view of life. He recalled his association with Bill Johnson when they were buddies in the war zone between Frankfort and Paris, ten miles from the Rhine River in Germany. As he put it, "Bill and I did not talk about religion. He carried his in the atmosphere around him, and I did not have any." But now that quiet influence of Bill's seemed to surround him.

That next night he stode boldly down toward the front of the tent, his bashfulness swallowed up by an eagerness for the new flavor of life he had tasted.

After the meeting George Thomson, a six-foot-three professor at Southwestern Junior College (now Southwestern Union College) at Keene, Texas, gave Don a real Texas handshake and boomed, "Man, what you ought to do is go back to school. You will feel shorted and discontented until you do."

That night back in his room Don knelt before the west window where a rosy sunset was slipping into purple shades and flung a challenge to the Manager of the universe and now of his life. "Lord, if You want me to go back to school, You will have to make me lose my job." As it now stood, this was an impossibility. The Union takes care of its own, and Don was a member of long and good standing.

Now, sitting across the desk from Mr. Jones, that prayer was being answered. "You see, Mr. Jones, I'm not the same employee I was. After attending those meetings by Pastors Detamore and Turner here in this city, I've found out I've been a transgressor of God's laws. Now I plan to keep them so cannot work on the seventh day of the week which is God's Sabbath day." Don paused. Mr. Jones remained silent. "It will break my heart, Mr. Jones," Don continued, "to lose my job after all these years with this company, but I cannot break the laws of my Creator for any reason."

Suddenly the company official burst out with, "Let's go for a coffee break and talk this thing over, Don." He ordered black coffee. Don always had, but since the series of lessons furnished by the evangelistic group, Don Stowe ordered a refreshing fruit drink.

"You see, Don, our business is to give service seven days a week. The public has a right to expect that. If you cannot give it" — Mr. Jones hesitated, and Don quietly filled in the blank with "I cannot."

"Then it's up to you; as I stated before, you have three choices."

Don made the "quit now on your own" choice, but he came down a telephone pole at San Antonio only to climb one at Southwestern Junior College (Southwestern Union College) for the company reinstated him in different territory which happened to be Keene, Texas.

Atop a telephone or transformer pole is a good place to make mental connections as well as wire connections. This time it wasn't a big, white tent down below but a little white uniform that went to and from room to class under the new pole being installed.

The sunny smile and business-like air of the school nurse, Miss Marjorie Yates, became an added study on Don's progressive educational program during his graduating year at Keene.

Again Don had three choices, but this time he could take all three in full stride — graduation, wedding, and senior college work at Pacific Union College. Don Stowe does not work on electric light poles any more. He and Marjorie are units of light wherever they happen to be, which at present is at the Glendale Sanitarium, Don working as a laboratory technician, and Marjorie as a teacher of nursing, workers for the Source of light.

Bible Quizzes

Of all the Bible quiz books on the market, this one, Bible Quizzes, by Melvin E. Erickson, appeals to us as the best and most comprehensive.

Each quiz contains questions easy enough for beginners, as well as questions that may well stump the veteran Bible student. Its chief educational value is a Bible text providing the answer with each question.

Younger members of the family will enjoy the crossword puzzles and Part X which is devoted to Bible children. Then there are true-or-false, matching, multiple choice, and completion questions that cover an amazing amount of the biography, history, geography, flora, and fauna of the Bible.

It may be used as an exercise book in which a place is provided for the answers, or as a textbook from which to duplicate puzzles. Write for your copy, just $3.00. Oklahoma Book and Bible House, P.O. Box 528, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

DALLAS - FORT WORTH

Sister Cities Have Twin Pastors

B. E. LEACH, President,
Texas Conference

The cities of Dallas and Fort Worth may not be on the best of terms at all times, but the Adventist churches of those two cities are, indeed, sisters in the faith. If ever another bond between the two was needed, they have it now: the Hayward brothers, identical twins, are the new pastors.

Elder James Hayward and his family have been in Fort Worth since August 21. They came to Texas from the Beverly Road Church of Atlanta, Georgia, where they served three and one-half years.

Elder Hayward is a graduate of Atlantic Union College of South Lancaster, Massachusetts. He served his first pastorate in Boston at the Boston Temple Church. For nine years he did pastoral-evangelistic work in both Massachusetts and Rhode Island before going to Atlanta.

Mrs. Hayward is a graduate nurse, having taken her training at New England Sanitarium and Hospital. The Haywards have two boys: James, Jr. 14, and John, 12. These folk have already established themselves in the hearts of the Fort Worth members.

Elder John Hayward, brother to Elder James Hayward, was introduced to his Dallas congregation September 14. An article and picture featuring his family will appear soon in THE RECORD.

Texico

Special Offering

September the 21st has been designated as offering day for the new San Angelo church building. A good offering will be greatly appreciated by the church at that time.

—R. A. Jenkins

On the Go With Texico!

► PORTALES — An outstanding evangelistic campaign is now underway in the Cloud Cathedral at Tucumcari, New Mexico. Elder A. W. Fiedler, evangelist, assisted by Elder Eugene Johnson, singing evangelist, and Elder Harry E. Darby, local pastor, are on the air each morning in a ten-minute interview which asks challenging questions to be answered from Scripture in the evening's meeting. The members of the Tucumcari church are loyal in their support of the campaign, but their members are few, and we are encouraged to see that the majority in attendance are non-Seventh-day Adventists. Between 30 and 40 non-Seventh-day Adventists come each night, and many of these are regular in attendance.

Pray with us that we may have a good harvest of precious souls for the kingdom.

H. E. DARBY.

Farewell to Elder Lopez

Elder Manuel Lopez

It is with great sorrow that we see Elder Manuel Lopez, his wife, and two daughters leave Albuquerque for the Southeastern California Conference to do evangelistic work there.

During the last five years Pastor Lopez has labored tirelessly in the Texico Conference. We have seen a new church added to his district and two companies formed. In addition to shepherding five churches, over 100 members have been added to the churches.

I am sure that many of our brethren who had the privilege of meeting him have had spiritual help. So it is with regret that we of the Albuquerque Spanish Church bid farewell to a wonderful family.

May the Lord bless them and their efforts wherever they may be. As for us, we will always remember them for their helpfulness in preparing for the soon coming of the Lord.

BEN BACA.

L. S. Gifford

Why I Tithe

"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, . . . and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of Hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." Mal. 3:10. The first part of this verse is reason enough to pay tithe, but the rest of the verse makes it good business.

From my earliest years, I was taught to tithe. Now that I have put the Lord to the test, I would not want to do otherwise. I don't think we can afford to be skimpy with the Lord either, which reminds me of a story I heard long ago. The son of an elderly lady was reprimanding her for paying more tithe than he thought she should. She thought a moment and then replied, "Son, I believe the Lord is honest and if I give Him too much He will give it back" To this I think we might add, yes, and with interest. What more reasons do we need for tithing?

L. S. GIFFORD,
First Elder, Lubbock SDA Church.
