Focus on the Cover

Texico is growing! Sandia View Academy is growing! We praise the Lord for the growth that we see in the conference through the baptisms that are taking place.

Our first guarter of 1980, with 108 baptisms, was the best first quarter in the history of the conference. We finished the quarter with 4,129 members.

We said at last camp meeting that we would try for a "soul a day," or 365 souls, from camp meeting to camp meeting. We only lack about 50 of reaching that, and we hope that it will be reached by camp meeting time.

D. K. Sullivan

With evangelism and church growth as the watchwords, we see the churches grow and, as a result of that, overall conference growth. The pastors with their members; our conference evangelist, Art Swinson; and conference secretary, Max Martinez, have all been busy with evangelism during these first months of the year. As all are involved in reaching out to souls and helping them find the joys of salvation in Jesus, they, too, are becoming strengthened spiritually.

As the conference grows, so the needs for Christian education grow. We have seen the improvement in our own Sandia View Academy already and know that continual improvement will be coming there.

The Lord graciously provided the funds to make possible the new boys' dormitory, which the boys have enjoyed this school year. This has been a real contribution to the campus.

The special constituency voted to move ahead on the new girls' dormitory and we hope that before long it will be a reality and the young ladies can enjoy this new facility. The next step will be a new cafeteria and an industrial arts building.

With these developments is coming a change in the campus at Sandia View. The new mall will be developed between the dormitories, as well as between the administration building and the gym. A couple of the old buildings in that area have already been removed and plans are going forward now for new sidewalks and grass for the beautification of the campus.

It is a real joy to see these better facilities provided for our young people for their Christian education. Truly, they are so precious to us, not only because they are young, but because they are our own children and are the church of today and

Some funds are already in hand for the new dormitory. It will also take some sacrificial giving on our part to make it a reality before too long. Won't you pitch in and give us a hand to help provide facilities for our young people so they can get a wonderful Christian education?

As the conference membership increases and Christian education continues to develop, the church schools are also growing; and we have the possibility of new ones being added this next year.

We praise the Lord for the growth in new members and the new opportunities to work for our young people. Let's all work hard to pass on to them the joys of salvation in Jesus and take them to heaven with us.

Let's grow, Texico! Let's grow, Sandia View! Let's finish the work. Let's go home to heaven.

Spotlight on Soul Winning

in the Texico Conference

Clara Summers, an experienced worker with 23 years in the literature evangelist work, was following a lead in the city of Balmorhea, Texas. The interest card led her to a store owned by Rosendo Carrasco, a devout Roman Catholic.

The store was busy and circumstances led to their going out to the parking lot where Sister Summers canvassed Brother Carrasco, displaying her materials on the hood of her car. His interest was generated and several days later, at a visit to his home, he made the decision to purchase some of the truth-filled books. Over the next few weeks his reading generated interest and at approximately the same time Sister Esther Lansbery knocked on his door and asked if he were interested in Bible studies. He indicated some questions had been aroused in his mind as a result of reading the books, and studies began.

A short time later Brother Carrasco was baptized into the Seventh-day Adventist Church. His love for God and his newfound truth deeply ingrained themselves in his heart and he desired to see other members of his family join God's remnant church. He began studying with them and talking to them and soon several members of his family accepted his new-found faith.

The story does not end here. Brother Carrasco's enthusiasm began to grow to even greater heights. Soon he was planning a layman's evangelistic crusade, which was held recently. As a result of that series two have already been baptized with four to six others to follow.

Remember Our Servicemen!

On Sabbath, June 21, 1980, the Servicemen's Literature Offering will be taken up in all North American churches. This offering is taken up every two years.

The President of the United States has called for the registration of our young men. This is preparatory to the draft itself. Now the stark realities of a possible draft stares our Adventist youth in the face.

The Servicemen's Literature Fund is used to send church periodicals to all Seventh-day Adventist enlisted personnel on active duty whose addresses are sent to the NSO office in the General Conference. This costs the Servicemen's Fund $60.00 for each name over the two-year period.

Did you know there will be some new things to look forward to next year at VGA? Two new classrooms will be ready to use for home economics and industrial arts plus a new racquetball court made possible by local contributions. Also, new on campus is the industrial building which will be home for our cement industry plus a new industry —Rio Grande Specialties, which makes small wood products for home decoration. It is also anticipated that construction on the Adventist radio station will begin in the fall which will provide employment for students who are interested in radio broadcasting.

Did you know the Valley Grande Academy Bell Choir accepted an invitation to perform at the General Conference session in Dallas? Initially, it was thought that the Bell Choir would provide one number; but because of very favorable response to their music, they were asked to give three different performances.

by your "RECORD" Editor . . . Richard Bendall

Eddie Lewins accepted the challenge of giving a year of his life in service for his Lord when he went as a student missionary from Southwestern Adventist College to the Kasai project, the most remote mission in Zaire in the Trans-African Divison.

Eddie had to learn to speak three different African dialects and also French. He gave talks concerning sanitation and nutrition centered around a religious aspect. The tribes in this area follow the eating habits and customs of their ancestors. By doing so, they have a lot of problems with malnutrition. Proper diet was a big challenge for Eddie.

Eddie had many direct answers to prayer. On one occasion he happened to be working in their garden and realized their water pump was overflowing. He began to run down the path which was waist deep in elephant grass in order to stop it. When he reached a certain point in the path, he had a sudden urge to stop. Looking around for a few seconds trying to figure

Eddie Lewins out why he had stopped; he parted the grass in front of him and found a cobra right in the path where he would have

Anther inspiring experience was when a representative from a village in the forest came to ask them to come to their village. Some missionaries had been there about two years earlier and promised to send someone back to teach them more, but no one had come. This was in an area where revolutions had erupted but they decided the risk was worth it in this case. They had to travel a road that was six feet deep in grass. Traveling along this forest path, their jeep lost a bolt which fastened the rear spring to the jeep. They were sure they would never find it because of the undergrowth, but the Lord led Eddie to a small clear patch in the road where the bolt had fallen. At about this time a big transporation vehicle passed by and had the tools to fix their jeep. They did it for five zaires, but the normal charge would have been 50. Eddie felt the Lord's guiding hand once again leading in their

It seemed that they would never arrive at their destination for although the spring had been fixed they were now low on oil. To the young student missionary, away from home for a year without the modern luxuries of America, these inconveniences were another step toward developing patience in his experience with the Lord. Retracing their steps, the group returned to a small village where they had passed an oil factory. The owner told them they had been waiting for this group for two weeks. A total of 350 people attended the meeting they held that night and returned for the before-dawn meeting the next physical therapist, respiratory therapist, and social worker.

The program allows a patient to remain directly under the care of his family physician. The family physician on some occasions may wish to refer the patient to the pulmonary specialist who is a member of the comprehensive pulmonary care team.

The type and amount of treatment given a patient depends on the individual needs of the patient.

"Each patient may not need the services of every expert on the team," Penny said. "The patient's specific needs are determined when the patient meets with the comprehensive care team to discuss his unique problems."

The main goals of the program are to improve the patient's quality of life, and to help the patient decrease the number of days spent in the hospital.

"We try to emphasize the positive in our program." Penny said. "We tell the patient what he can do to improve his life, but how thoroughly the patient follows these suggestions is an individual decision."

The program was designed to help patients with chronic respiratory illness, such as emphysema and chronic bronchitis.

The program is being expanded to make it available on an outpatient basis. Progressive home exercises will be taught in the outpatient program as well as a continuation of techniques learned during the inpatient program.

Patients, and their family or friends, are instructed how to operate equipment and give respiratory treatments at home. Other members of the team instruct the patient on proper breathing techniques, proper diet, progressive exercise, use of medications, and relaxation techniques.

By setting up the program in this way, we hope not only to improve the patient's quality of life, but to help the patient feel more secure and independant," said Penny.

Special Visitation Day — July 13

All high-school seniors and others interested in attending Southwestern Adventist College are cordially invited to visit the campus on Sunday, July 13, 1980. The program will begin at 11:00 a.m. in the Barron chapel and conclude by 3:00 p.m.

This special visitation day is for young people who have recently graduated from high school, for students in community colleges, and for others who are desirous of obtaining a Christian education and have not previously had the opportunity to visit the campus. Seniors at the Adventist academies in the Southwestern Union visit the college every spring to become better acquainted with the educational program. Special visitation days are also available for high-school seniors and others in the fall and in the spring. The visitation day plan for July 13, 1980, is the most important one of the year for prospective college students. A large attendance is expected.

The program will begin at 11:00 a.m. in Barron chapel on the college campus. Special presentations will be made by Elder B. E. Leach, chairman of the college board and president of the Southwestern Union; and Dr. Donald R. McAdams, college president. Prospective students will have an opportunity to visit with academic advisors and actually plan their class schedules for the coming school year. There will be special music, testimonies from returning students, and presentations on financial aid.

Following dinner, as guests of the college in the beautiful Committee of 100 Cafeteria, prospective students and their friends will be given a tour of the campus by Dr. McAdams and have the opportunity to visit personally with Mr. David Hope, director of student financial aid; and Mr. Dallas Kindopp, director of admissions.

Transportation to and from the college is provided by the college through the pastors of each local church. Prospective students should talk with their local pastors early and make arrangements for travel to Keene. Those coming from a great distance who will need overnight lodging can arrange for this in advance by calling Mrs. Yvonne Baker, secretary to Dr. McAdams, at 817/645-3921. Overnight guests will be provided with meals and an opportunity to enjoy the college swimming pool and other recreational facilities.

ABC Joins Pathfinders

What do thousands of Bible lessons, the Adventist Book Center, and Pathfinders have to do with soul winning? Let's start at the beginning.

The Arkansas-Louisiana Conference Lay Activities Department had boxes of bulk Bible lessons sitting idle in their warehouse left over from a union-wide gift-Bible program. The Pathfinders of the Shreveport-Bossier churches had been trying to raise money without much success. The Adventist Book Center bought the Bible lessons from the conference and asked the Pathfinders to collate them into sets.

The young people, under the guidance of their director, Lois Stephens, took on the project with enthusiasm. The first night they put together 960 sets. Some 3700 sets and several nights later they received a check for $200 for their work.

by hard work but had fun doing it. As one Pathfinder observed, "Just think, if one person accepts Jesus for each lesson we put together, we have helped a lot of people." Our ABC and our Pathfinders do mean soul winning!

Successful Five-Day Plan in Batesville

In 1977, under former pastor Ken Simpson, a pilot Five-Day Stop Smoking Clinic was held in the Adventist church, but only seven persons attended. The Adventist members felt that if a different location were secured, more people would be in attendance.

In January, the lay activities leader, Ben Stone, an employee of the White River Medical Center, approached his employer about the possibility of holding the plan at the medical center, for hospital employees only. The director, a smoker himself, held the lay activities council in suspense for a couple of weeks before giving his answer. But then it came and plans moved forward for the date of February 25-29.

One week before the proposed date to begin, he suggested that the program should be open to the public. "Our prayers were answered beyond our expectations. With only one week to advertise and make final arrangements, and in spite of the fact that the posters were lost by UPS, we were very surprised and excited to have 35 persons attend the first night," said Stone.

One of the hospital doctors, Dennis D. Davidson, had expressed a great interest in the program after hearing it explained by Pastor Charles Kohley on an Ingathering contact. Dr. Davidson endorsed our plans and assisted as co-director. The highlight of the week was the evening he answered questions from the floor.

Assisting Pastor Kohley as group leaders were Ben and Dixie Stone, Marilyn and Weldon Fivash, Barbara Swaim, and Jean Varnell. Wilma Day and Doris Gwinn took care of the many phone calls which came in in answer to the advertisements. Others supported the team by their prayers. We have had many inquiries regarding another session in the near future which we hope to have at the other hospital in town.

Ed Shafer went on with the cradle roll lesson he was teaching for adult Sabbath School. He and Isaac set out to Mount Moriah where the faith of Abraham received the supreme test — to submit the fate of his child to the will of God.

This was just one of the usual dramatic Sabbath School programs making Little Rock Sabbath School so interesting that folks really want to be on time to avoid missing something. Like the time just

Ketchum Tornado Affects Adventist Families

On April 7, 1980, a tornado struck the Ketchum, Oklahoma, area, destroying or severely damaging houses, trailers, barns, garages and other buildings. Out of 11 families in the immediate area suffering moderate to severe losses, seven were Adventists. One member was impressed to leave his trailer home about an hour before the tornado struck. He came home later to find his trailer demolished. In another area about 30 large trees fell northeast, but one lone exception fell due east, thereby missing an Adventist couple in their home praying for protection. In another home that was destroyed, even the foundation was blown away.

The Oklahoma Conference disaster van went to Bernice, Oklahoma, where the damage was the heaviest. Many of the mobile homes close to the waterfront were reduced to a pile of rubble. Several families who had lost everything were given clothing, bedding, and other essentials.

Those who helped out on the van were Mrs. Vera Wolfe, director of community services for Oklahoma; Tim Burkey of Oklahoma City, Marie Meyerhoff of Harrah, and Judy Dietz, director of community services at Ketchum. Others from Ketchum who helped were Trudy Stafford, Thelma Mayes, and Tena Woolery. From Jay Elder and Mrs. Barrett gave assistance.

On April 8, Judy Dietz and Marie Meyerhoff took supplies from the large van and went in the smaller van to the surrounding areas that were also hit.

One place of business that was completely destroyed had eight people in it at the time. Only one was hurt.

Dallas City Temple Hosts Four-Conference "Message" Rally

The 1980 Message rally was held in Dallas at the City Temple church, April 16 in connection with General Conference. Four regional conferences participated — Central States, South Atlantic, South Central, and Southwest Region. Russell Bates, General Conference lay activities department, was the keynote speaker. Special guests from the Review and Herald were Harold Otis, Robert Smith, and Earl Moore. The four conference presidents and their lay activities secretaries were also active in the rally.

25,000 subs were reported and $99,000.00 was given as a partial report. G. N. Wells, pastor of the City Temple church in Dallas, received a trophy for reporting the highest number of subs 1,380; and F. W. Parker, pastor of the Berea church in Atlanta, Georgia, reported the second highest.

J. C. Hicks planned well for this gathering as he hosted this meeting; and the colorfully dressed office secretaries served a delicious meal at the YWCA where the workers fellowshipped together before this reporting session began.

The Message Magazine, beginning next year, will be on a monthly basis and the sales price will be $4 instead of $4.50.

Young Doctors Unite in Church and Future Plans

Dr. Carl Hubbell was Sheila's resident doctor in November of last year. This means he was her "boss," or teacher. He is a native of Ballinger, Texas. She was born in Boston, Massachusetts.

Sheila has been an Adventist all her life. Carl was an Episcopalian. As their interest in each other grew, and they shared their religious beliefs, they found that they agreed on many things — such as the state of the dead and the Sabbath. So, when they decided to get married, Carl had very little studying to do to embrace the Adventist faith.

Dr. Hubbell is a second-year resident at Baylor Hospital in Dallas. The Sabbath they were to be baptized, Carl had to see 35 patients before coming to Fort Worth. He still was wearing the "scrub clothes" because there was no time to change

According to Dr. Horsley, they have discussed the possibility of becoming missionaries in a few years. They have indicated a burden for Africa. When they finish their training they should be imminently qualified. Carl is already a pilot.

Carl and Sheila will be married on July 20 in Boston.

Testimony of a Literature Evangelist

Have you ever asked the Lord to help you build your faith? I did and was led to be a literature evangelist. Without my experiences of the literature work, my faith would still be in its infancy. It is with fear in my heart that I ask the Lord to do what he must to prepare me for heaven. What other work do you know that requires a person to have such a close relationship with God to be successful?

"There is no higher work than evangelistic canvassing . . . those who engage in this work need always to be under the control of the Spirit of God." *Testimo*nies, vol. 6, p. 331.

I have seen the Holy Spirit open people's hearts that were so negative I could do nothing of myself. Suddenly into my mind would come a thought I have never had before. I would sit back and listen to myself! Questions have been asked that I didn't know the answers to, but suddenly the answer would come flowing out.

"Take ye no thought how or what thing ye shall answer, or what ye shall say: for the Holy Ghost shall teach you in that same hour what ye ought to say." Luke 12:11 and 12.

"If he puts his trust in the Lord as he travels from place to place, angels of God will be round about him, giving him words to speak." Colporteur Ministry, p. 111.

The Lord has humbled me. When I take control and think how smooth and witty my answers, people don't buy. As soon as I let the Holy Spirit take the lead again, truth-filled literature is placed in the homes and the seeds are planted.

If you are drifting along, the enemy doesn't pay much attention to you. It is when you stand up and do something that he takes notice. He hits on every side. Your car breaks down, your wife gets sick, you get too busy to study. You are ridiculed by friends, family, and sometimes even church members look down on you. There is always someone to tell you how stupid you are for doing this work, but there are others to give words of encouragement. Things can be

Every battle you win strengthens you.

I am a literature evangelist not only to help prepare myself for heaven — it is for others.

El Paso Spanish Church Celebrates Baptisms

Two important dates for the El Paso, Texas, Spanish Seventh-day Adventist Church occurred recently. A total of 23 persons gave their lives to Jesus in baptism on March 22. When Pastor Rafael Perez made a call to the congregation, 14 additional persons accepted the invitation and they were baptized April 5.

The El Paso Spanish church has been richly blessed with a total of 342 members, and with God's blessing they will continue to do the work given to each of His children for the advancement and finishing of His cause in the earth.

Maria del Carmen Garcia, Communications Secretary.

37 Bautismos

Dos fechas muy importantes marco la Iglesia Hispana Adventista del Septimo Dia de El Paso, Texas. Un total de 23 personas entregaron sus vidas a Jesus durante la ceremonia bautismal celebrada el 22 de marzo de 1980. Mientras el Pastor Rafael Perez hacia un llamado, 14 personas adicionales aceptaron y tomaron sus votos bautizmales el 5 de abril de 1980.

La iglesia hispana de El Paso ha sido ricamente bendecido con un total de 342 miembros y con la ayuda de Dios seguira trabajando para avanzar y terminar esta obra tan grande que ha sido encomendada a cada uno de los hijos de Dios.

Maria Del Carmen Garcia, Secretaria de Comunicacion.

Amarillo Olsen Park Invests with the Lord

It is a pity that our church creates orphans, but at times it seems that we do. Take the Investment program, for instance. Many times our members think of Investment as just another offering, and there are so many others that Investment is easy to leave out in the cold. But as we analyze the situation, we find that the purpose of Investment is not "just another offering." The Investment program was originated to give our members an opportunity to invest their time and talents in a share of eternity by earning funds to open up new work.

Taking this into consideration, the Olsen Park church of Amarillo has set as its goal one major project each quarter in 1980 to call for total church participation and cooperation.

The project for the first quarter made allowance for little extra moments of time that we are able to squeeze in between winter-time chores to invest talents in craft work. On Sunday, March 31, an arts and crafts fair was held that provided an outlet for these varied talents. Each of the children's divisions of the Sabbath School department took on the project of whetting people's appetites. There were pizza bread, salads, juice, and sopapillas for sale. Many good cooks set their talents to work and the result was a good supply of baked goods which disappeared "like hot-cakes."

Others donated macrame, needle-work, quilts, plants, painted plaques, and afghans. One member used his time to collect newspaper and was able to take 1,300 pounds to be sold. Some brought items that would normally be thrown away as scraps at work, but with time and ingenuity were sold as note pads, storage containers, and other useful items.

Some were able to invest the principal, giving a percentage to Investment and others donated the total time and materials. This is the plan our predecessors had in mind as they looked for a program in which the whole congregation could participate. Young and old alike had an enjoyable day and the sale brought in over $350 to the Investment fund with money still coming in. The church that works together gets to know each other and builds together for God.

Why don't you try a "family-type" project for the Lord in your church? Olsen Park is cleaning out the crannies, looking for items for the next big project — a flea-market-type garage sale to be held during the second quarter. Let's show the Lord we love Him by using the time and talents He has given each of us. Olsen Park has discovered that the Lord blesses our efforts. Already the offering during the first quarter of 1980 is as much as was received during the four quarters of 1979.

News from Roswell, New Mexico

The first year of Roswell's new church school draws to a close with 12 students in five grades. Gloria Arehart, our good teacher, has worked hard and sacrificially.

Educational supervisors from the union have spoken well of the school program on their various recent visits. Two of the students were baptized at the conclusion of the week of prayer conducted by Pastor Lamar Phillips, and now all students are members of the church except those in grades one and two.

One week of outdoor school was conducted at the Boy Scout camp on the National Bird Refuge. Several people from the community contributed to the various activities. Almon Stickney taught the students about the use of surveying instruments and how to read contour maps. Other individuals gave instructions on plants and historical stories of

The Roswell people believe that an investment in their children is the soundest investment that can be made.

The Lea Street church is steadily working toward a new church building. Every Sabbath a small model church is placed on a table at the front and while organist Lois Griffin plays, young and old come forward and slip their donations through the slot in the roof of the model church. The fund growth rate is increasing, just as a plant grows faster with the addition of more leaves and more roots. We are confident that in time our dream of a new church building and school plant will become a reality. We all believe that old adage, "He who would have a future must prepare for it."

Also pertaining to our future, we believe that in the last days the ministers and members will join hands to finish the work. Because of this belief, various study groups have been organized. One is devoted to "Discovering, Developing, and Deploying" the various gifts found in the members. This is called the discipline group, which meets with the pastor on Sunday afternoons.

It can be truthfully said of the Roswell Seventh-day Adventist community that the attitude is upward and onward for the finishing of the advent message. Don Welch,

Communications Secretary.

Our little "Salvation Bungalow" there on Allegheny Avenue in Takoma Park was small in space (not more than 1,000 square feet living space), but large in love and understanding. If there ever was a beehive of activity going on in a single small house, this was it. Since we were all in school, we had to learn the fine art of tuning out all noise (including a couple of radios) and concentrate on our studies.

Since Pop was in Baltimore most of the time, it became my responsibility, as the oldest son (of the younger family), to act as "father." I accepted the job enthusiastically and I was determined that all five of us would graduate from college and that we would marry in the church. I was the "on place" leader of the family, but Mom was boss. All she had to do was make her wishes known and I would invoke her desires to the "T." This led to some interesting events. As I look back on the scene I remember that my younger brothers and sisters obeyed me to an astonishing degree. I "ruled" with the full authority of Popin his absence. Things ran smoothly. The kids were getting good grades and there were no non-Adventist boy friends or girl friends. No exceptions were made to that rule. I reasoned that young people marry only people they date. If he or she never dated a non-Adventist, there was no chance of marrying one. (I still think that's a good rule).

Then I met a girl named Helen Vartenuk — and since I was 22 and since theology students at WMC were to be married, if they expected a call, and since she was so fantastically beautiful and a wonderful Christian, working all her way, as was I, and since I had surveyed the field, I knew what I wanted and she was it. We were in love so we decided to get married! Just seven months after we met we were married - best one "single" move I ever made!

We found our own apartment and I moved out of 6600 Allegheny Avenue to live with my wife. Better way to live! This helped the space crisis at 6600 Allegheny but it brought on an authority crisis at the same address. I stopped by there two or three times a day to check on things, but I soon became aware that all was not well. Those active, strong-willed brothers and sisters of mine started going and coming as they well pleased, sometimes staying out late at night, not performing their daily tasks, some grades were faltering and, horror of horrors, I heard via the grapevine there was some dating of non-Adventists (nice people - good Christians, but not SDA's).

I confronted the kids about the situation. They were sorry and promised to reform. But that reformation wasn't very impressive! Poor Mom was at her wit's end. Instead of being their honored mother, she was becoming their slave! working 18 hours a day, cooking 20 meals day (at their moment's bidding), washing and ironing almost around the clock. But, worst of all, sometimes they ignored her instructions - which later became requests - which even later yet became pathetic pleas. She couldn't continue that way and keep her health, to say nothing of her sanity.

I had earnest talks with the kids collectively and individually. They would do better for a while but then reverted back. My patience was wearing thin. Mom got to the place where she was exhausted and almost demoralized.

One day "Biter" and I stopped by and found Mom in tears. (Biter is my wife's nickname — earned because of her utter belief and sometimes gullibility — biting on all the tricks I played on her constantly. During our first week of marriage she would ask me to identify trees, flowers, and wildlife. I named them all in the spirit of Adam and Eve in our own little Garden of Eden! When she found out my "Adam" role and that I didn't know half of their real names - Well!) Mom was at her wit's end - which sent me straight into my wit's beginning. This situation had gone far enough! Something had to be done immediately something drastic. This had to stop. Biter and I contrived a plan full of risks, but one that was sure to get the kids' full attention and, hopefully, their complete about face. Within hours our plan was complete and ready for implementation. Action! Man and how! (Stay tuned - don't turn that dial!)

Yours for drastic action when demanded,

B. E. Leach.
