No More BARRIERS

by Kenneth J. Holland

In the quiet sanctuary of the Takoma Park church at Annual Council last October delegates awaited the moment of truth for our missionary magazines These Times and Signs of the Times. For months, even years, church leaders had discussed the future role of these journals. How, they pondered, can we best utilize the tremendous potential of these soul-winning publications?

Now the delegates were being asked to vote on a plan submitted by a publishing committee that met in Thousand Oaks, California, last spring. The plan envisioned the church doing away with territorial restrictions, changing magazine formats, and launching into a new and accelerated program of mass distribution of our missionary journals, combining the efforts of Pacific Press and Southern Publishing Association and using their expertise in a cooperative venture to help finish the work. They had in mind a circulation of five million copies each month by 1982.

When the vote was taken, the delegates enthusiastically and unanimously endorsed the Thousand Oaks plan. The mood seemed to be, "This is what we have been waiting for. Now we can get the message into every home in North America."

The General Conference in Annual Council is the highest authority of our church. By its action that day it urges clergy and laity alike to distribute our magazines like the leaves of autumn. Now is the time to call all people to the truth as it is in Christ Jesus.

For several years our missionary magazine program has been fragmented; each publishing house has had its own territory. Signs of the Times could be promoted only in the Western United States and Canada, These Times promotion being limited to the Eastern sector of the U.S.A. Many church members had been discontent with the arrangement. It was restricting their outreach. Now there are no more barriers. Taking as their motto "Together in Service," the two publishing houses have joined forces to meet the needs of today and both journals may be promoted anywhere.

The rest of the action voted at the council reads as follows:

1. That we produce two monthly missionary journals:

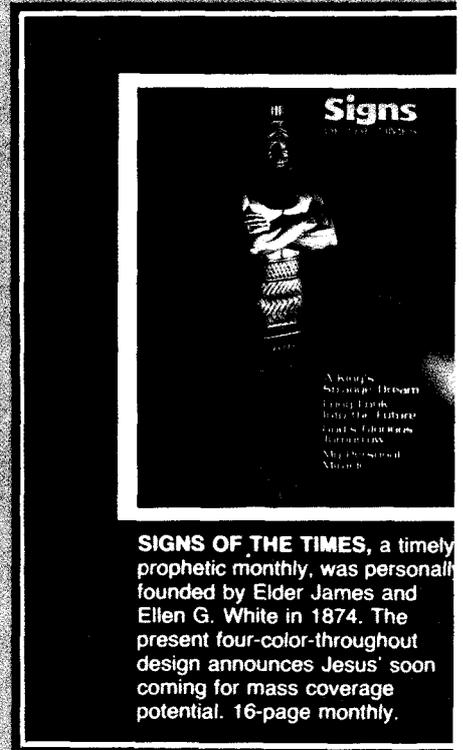

a. One with high-quality design and format—32 to 36 pages.

b. The other an economy journal of 16 pages, well illustrated, with short articles and produced for mass distribution at the lowest possible price.

2. That the Pacific Press Publishing Association produce the SIGNS OF THE TIMES as the 16-page journal and the Southern Publishing Association produce THESE TIMES as the 32- to 36-page journal.

3. That these two missionary journals, as well as EL CENTINELA, MESSAGE, etc., be promoted, and presented together in the same campaign in all churches throughout the entire North American Division.

4. That both publishing houses cooperate in the promotion of these journals throughout the North American Division, according to promotional plans as outlined by the General Conference Lay Activities Department in counsel with the Publishing Department.

5. That the target date for the implementation of this plan be the July issue, 1979.

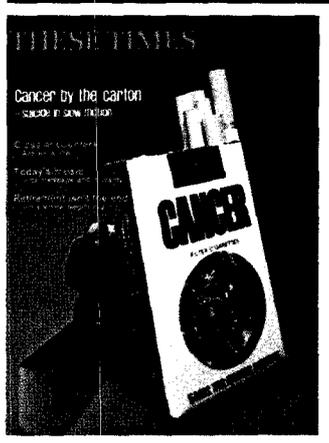

6. That the General Conference Publishing Department join the Communication Department and the Adventist Radio-TV Center in a study to determine ways by which these missionary journals may be used for mass distribution in the church's radio-TV ministry outreach.

7. That missionary journal advertising and pricing plans be finalized annually at the time of the Publishing House Subcommittee of the North American Division Publishing Council.

It is understood that this plan by the publishers is in response to an urgent need of the church and that it relates to SIGNS and THESE TIMES; and does not affect MES-SAGE, its field of service and circulation.

The present circulation of our missionary journals totals one million copies each month. Since an average of four persons reads each copy of a magazine, in 1982 our readership could reach 20 million plus!

As conditions in the world worsen, people are going to come to us

Award-winning THESE TIMES presents Christ-centered solutions to the problems plaguing contemporary society. It seeks to present Christ in His fullness and the Seventh-day Adventist message in a way that speaks to modern man. 36-page monthly.

MESSAGE, the most widely circulated religious journal within the black community, presents the truth for this time, plus other practical articles that speak directly to the needs of the people. 36 pages. Seven issues a year.

because they have confidence in us and in our publications. Right now thousands of people, perhaps millions of them, in Christian America secretly admire us for our stand on the Sabbath. People love people who stand for something.

Is it any wonder that Ellen White says, "Great thinkers will join us." Is it any wonder she wrote, "More than one thousand will soon be converted in one day, most of whom will trace their first convictions to the reading of our publications." — Review and Herald, November 10, 1885.

Our literature makes a tremendous impact on people.

Speaking of Signs of the Times, long acknowledged as the "prophetic monthly" of the Seventh-day Adventist Church, Leonard F. O'Neal, minister, First Baptist church, Leamington, Ontario, Canada, says, "Please find enclosed my check for a year's subscription to your publication, Signs of the Times. I read a copy of it a while ago and feel it would add much to my spiritual knowledge and understanding. If there is any further charge, let me know, and I will forward it without delay."

These Times, the award-winning magazine aimed at the modern, contemporary members of society, whether young or old, recently received this letter from Mrs.

Dorothy E. Caputo of Peabody, Massachusetts: "This issue of These Times is fabulous. I couldn't stop reading it. I am ravenous to learn. If it were not for your free Bible studies, I wouldn't be where I am today—a Seventh-day Adventist baptized member, so happy and content."

Sister White once wrote, "We should treat as a sacred treasure every line of printed matter that comes from our publishing houses. Every page that comes from the press is a ray of light from heaven, to shine into the byways and hedges, shedding light upon the pathway of truth. Let us remember that somebody would be glad to receive every page we can spare."

You and I who sponsor our missionary journals can claim countless spiritual rewards. Because of our faithfulness and generosity thousands of people all over North America have been touched by the message. Something they have read has caused them to completely reevaluate the framework of their thinking and living. Because of the magazines they have found Christ; they have been baptized.

Then when we think of the surprises that await us in the gloryland, when we can meet these people face to face and realize we have helped them get there—it's almost too good to be true. It's a mighty good feeling to be a sponsor of our missionary magazines. The spiritual rewards are out of this world!

Out there, in the homes of America, where it's a man with his magazine and the Holy Spirit, is where the action is. That's what our missionary magazine program is all about. That's why the delegates to the Annual Council were so excited.

No more barriers. Praise the Lord!

States of Miracles

Jackson upon listening to his true story of the church at Parkstown (LaGrange), North Carolina.

The fact that a beautiful, modern church, fully equipped with pews, furnishings, heating and air conditioning, with a seating capacity of 250, could be built by a (book) membership of 75 poor persons free of debt, opened and dedicated at the same time, is a miracle.

Another most unusual occurrence is to note that this church is the fourth Seventh-day Adventist church built in the same block by the same family within two generations. The record says "our local elder Jessie W. Jackson built our first church." The church was built in 1921 and a church school was then established. It burned in 1934. Local elder Jessie W. Jackson again was the builder of another church, still standing, on this corner property which was donated by Vera Parks, the mother of Nora Body, 84, the oldest living member of the Mt. Zion SDA church.

Jackson had 13 children, every one of whom attended the church school. In 1945 Jackson died and so did the church school.

In the interim another little building was procured across the street in which the group worshiped before the present old church was built.

In October, 1977, local elder

Samuel Jackson, the son of local elder Jessie Jackson, started the fourth church as the contractor. On January 20, 1979, with the aid of his wife Julia Jackson, who is also the chairman of the building committee, he and the 75-member congregation opened and dedicated at the same time a beautiful 250-seat church free of debt.

In his dedication sermon, Woodfork informed the overflow audience that the Stone upon which Jesus built his church is not Peter, but upon Himself. Honorable Hinson Barnes, Senator of the North Carolina General Assembly, in his remarks likened Jackson to Nehemiah of 2,500 years ago. Willie Taylor, the pastor of the congregation, likened the former 16 pastors, from whom he inherited such a legacy, to Paul who planted. He likened himself to Apollos, who watered, and he gave glory to God who gave the increase.

The second miracle is that which is on the lips of everyone who attended the grand opening of the Bucksport church on October 22, 1978.

About six families, under the leadership of James Keller Sumpter, Sr., a veteran Adventist of some 40 years, went into Horry County to set up a lighthouse for the black people of the area. Right on the main highway, 701, about two years ago, they bought two acres of land for $5,000. They started to build about a year ago, and within 10 months, according to Keller Sumpter, Jr., the historian, they moved into this beautiful, 275-seat sanctuary. The present book membership of the congregation is 51. They had no contractor, but they worked together like one. The church has a present appraised value of $150,000 with a mortgage of $28,000.

This was not done on flowery beds of ease. The winds and gales of South Carolina did not spare them of its fury. The walls fell down while the winds lifted the rafters, along with the reinforcement steel and wires, from their moorings into the open fields about 50 feet away. This did not discourage these modern Israelites, because they started all over again to rebuild the walls and replaced the rafters and brought the building to completion.

Mrs. Jean Woodfork cut the ribbon to let the crowd through the beautiful double doors to worship. The mother church, Hemmingway, came to lend support and provided the music and other assistance. A large number of community friends attended. The district pastor, Cleveland Mair, and President Woodfork conducted the ceremonies. Each person who paid $100 to open a door and $50 to open a window stood by their places as they participated in the opening ceremony on the outside.

Once each week for the last three and one-half years, Dr. Sung Min Im has volunteered his medical services to patients who visit the survey center. Dr. Im estimates that thus far he has served over 2,000 people.

The 5,000-square-foot main building includes offices, a classroom, kitchen, dental and medical examination rooms, and storage facilities for clothing.

Eddie Wright had devoted his life to serving humanity. For a number of years this Adventist man and his mother, Helen, operated a nursing home in Orlando. But at the age of 44, Eddie's life was about to be snuffed out by diabetes. Just before his death, Eddie asked just one request of Stan Dombrosky. "Please take care of my mother."

Following her son's death in 1964, Helen Wright tried to manage the nursing home, but restrictions imposed by the city and other problems forced her to close the facility. It appeared as though an era of service to humanity at the Westmoreland Avenue building had come to an end. However, the end of service was actually just the beginning for the former nursing home.

The block structure sat dormant for a number of years until a nearby auto dealership offered to purchase it from Mrs. Wright, who accepted a $10,000 deposit. However, the final transaction was never made.

Meanwhile, the medical screening van program had recently begun in Florida. Staffed with volunteers on missions of mercy, the mobile vans traveled to large cities and small communities which gladly welcomed the medical workers who conducted free blood pressure clinics.

The van program soon became a vital part of the Seventh-day Adventist Community Services, and so Dombrosky, community services director for the Florida Conference, realized the need to establish a training center for volunteers.

It was at this time that he shared this need with Mrs. Wright. "There is no doubt in my mind," she said, "that this is what my son Eddie would have wanted."

So the $10,000 deposit was returned to the auto dealership, and the building was given to the Florida Conference.

Life and purpose were again breathed into the concrete structure. A new concept of Adventist Community Services was born. In 1971, the Eddie Wright Memorial Adventist Community

Sorting, washing, pressing, and arranging clothes at the thrift store are all part of the routine six days a week for Barbara Myers. Average daily sales of between $80-$100 enables the survey center to be self-supporting.

Services Health Survey Center opened its doors.

Since then, training programs for volunteers in areas of health screening and nutrition have been conducted, with church members receiving certification by the General Conference to conduct nutrition classes.

Another dimension of the center is an extensive health screening service, which is offered without cost to the community. This includes checking for signs of diabetes, glaucoma, and oral cancer. Blood pressure checkups are also administered, as are regular medical examinations and pap, pelvic, and breast cancer tests.

The entire operation of the center is made possible by an all-volunteer task force which is comprised of registered nurses, a medical doctor, and a dentist, and other qualified personnel. The rigorous program has necessitated the staffing of two individuals. They are Mr. and Mrs. Miner Myers, who are volunteering their full time to the program. They receive no salary, only housing quarters. This dedicated and energetic husband and wife team not only coordinate the health screening programs, but also operate a thrift store adjoining the center. The 3,500-square-foot store is stocked with new clothing which has been donated by large department stores in the Orlando area as well as used clothing.

The operating expenses of the center are large, but income from the thrift store has enabled the entire program to be self-sustaining. One of the expenses includes the cost of supplying Adventist literature, which is given with each purchase from the thrift store. Literature is also made available to those who register for medical screening.

Dombrosky, who is credited with the survey center concept, says that the program has done much to reinforce a positive identity of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in the Orlando area. City officials and public service organizations, such as the American Cancer Society, Heart Association and Red Cross, have praised the work done by Adventists at the center.

A group that aids victims of spouse abuse uses the medical services of the weekly clinic "because everyone is so kind and understanding," according to a spokesperson for that organization.

Dr. Don Cone, a dentist who has volunteered his services for more than four years, says, "It is rewarding to provide a service without remuneration. People are surprised that there are those who are willing to render this type of service."

One of the unexpected benefits of operating the center has been the open reception by the public to the Ingathering program. According to Dombrosky, "In 1978 members of the Florida Conference raised $404,000 for the Ingathering campaign, the largest amount raised by any conference in the North American Division. Certainly the reputation of the survey center is responsible in part for the success of the Ingathering program."

There are a multitude of people who have made and will continue to make the Eddie Wright Survey Center a vital service to the community, but that is only because of dedication and self-sacrifice, the same dedication that Eddie and Helen Wright had, the same dedication which is the true mark of a good and faithful servant.

Miner (Bud) Myers and his wife have devoted their entire lives to the maintenance and operation of the survey center. Since the center began serving the community, four persons have been baptized.

Evangelist Bill Waters visits with Joan Knotts and her mother, Mrs. Atkinson (not related to Leo and Lorraine Atkinson). Joan left her shopping cart in the store aisle to attend the meeting one night. Her husband had already been attending for about two weeks. She came under conviction and made her decision a short time after that first meeting.

Prophecy '79 Evangelist Bill Waters earnestly spoke of Christ's love to those who attended the Camden series.

n: City

Camden, South Carolina, has long been known as a typically picturesque southern town. Through the years, travelers have been interested in Camden for its Civil War history. But from January 12 to February 24 of this year, Camden became the city of miracles for the members of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in that city when Bill Waters' Prophecy '79 Insight to Revelation series brought 39 persons to a decision to join the Advent movement.

Although the church in Camden is small, about 50 members, thorough preparation was made before the meetings began. Nearly 20,000 brochures were mailed, reaching about 20 miles beyond the city limits in all directions. The city itself has about 12,000 residents.

Imagine the thrill the team and the church members received when 465 persons attended the opening meetings in the "Little Theater" in downtown Camden. Less than 100 of those attending that night were already church members. Many had come because of the brochure, but many also came because of Operation Andrew.

Under the direction of Associate Evangelist Bruce Hehn, the church had set a goal of bringing at least one visitor per member. That first night's attendance exceeded the goal by more than five times. Even as the meetings continued, Operation Andrew continued to keep the attendance at about twice the original goal.

The real story of the city of miracles is in the experiences of those who have joined the church in Camden. The miracle of conviction that attends the work of the Holy Spirit was evident in so many lives.

Leo and Lorraine Atkinson had been searching for a church home. Mrs. Atkinson had visited many churches and for a time was studying with the Mormons. Prophecy '79 interested the Atkinsons, so they began to attend. Night after night they came under conviction that they were hearing truthful explanations from God's Word. After Mrs. Atkinson heard about the Sabbath, she wanted to visit with Waters. One afternoon she was trying to reach him by phone. She was finally able to reach Bill's wife, Cora, who told Mrs. Atkinson that

Tom and Juanita Miller are thrilled with the Adventist message. Mrs. Miller became a member one year ago. Tom was uncommitted. One day he was thinking about his relationship to God when Bill Waters knocked at the front door. Bill had been praying that God would lead him to the right house that afternoon.

Lorraine and Leo Atkinson discuss a point with Evangelist Bill Waters. They had been searching for a church that teaches Bible truth when Prophecy '79 came to Camden.

of Miracles

Bill was not available to speak with her at that time because he was out making some visits. Disappointed, Mrs. Atkinson said goodbye to Cora and was hanging up the phone when Bill knocked at her door. Feeling that God had rewarded her search for Bible truth, Mrs. Atkinson took her stand and became an Adventist. Sometime later, in the stillness of their home, her husband, Leo, came to the same decision to follow Jesus all the way and to join his wife in her new faith.

Joan Knotts was at the grocery store when her miracle happened. Her husband, James, had been attending the crusade meetings for two weeks by himself. She hadn't been interested. As she was walking down one of the aisles, the conviction came upon her that she should attend that night. Leaving her half-filled cart in the aisle, Mrs. Knotts went straight to the meeting in progress at the Little Theater. The message that night: the Sabbath. She came under conviction. But her own minister was attending that night for the first time, too. He came under a different conviction and, seeing the Knotts, made a point of going home with them, arguing against the Sabbath all the way. Despite the minister's efforts, Mrs. Knotts followed her convictions and today is an Adventist.

The meetings remained downtown for four weeks before transferring to the church. For one week the familiar multi-media format was continued making the transition to the church quite smooth. During the final week, the meetings were more reminiscent of a typical church service. The week concluded with a candlelight communion service. That, too, was the scene of another miracle.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Glenn had transferred to Camden from Iowa a few months before Prophecy '79 came to town. Unfortunately, the company Mr. Glenn worked for went bankrupt. But because they liked the small-town atmosphere, the Glenns decided to stay in Camden. Mrs. Glenn had been studying her Bible for some time when the brochure for Prophecy '79 came in the mail. The entire family attended the first night. Although he intended to drop the family off at the meetings the second evening, Mr. Glenn didn't have enough gas in his truck for two trips so he stayed through the meeting. Thereafter, the family attended every meeting they could together. It was the foot-washing service prior to the communion that really clinched their decision. Even before the Glenns had moved to Camden, they had determined that those who followed all of the Bible's teachings would conduct the foot-washing service before communion. They had looked in vain for a church following that practice. The crusade meetings deepened their conviction about the Adventists as presentation after presentation lined up with scripture. But when they came to the communion and learned that Adventists conduct the service according to the Bible, foot washing and all, they knew they had found their new church home. Mr. and Mrs. Glenn and all four of their children were baptized.

Each week Bill Waters conducted a human relations class for the church members following Sabbath morning services. During these meetings Bill explained his entire program step-by-step, inviting discussion. Principles for working with new members were discussed which, when understood, would bring strength to the entire church. Bill taught that learning to relate to other members in a positive and loving manner is vital for continued church growth.

And grow they did! Thirty-nine decisions were made for joining the Adventist Church. Presently 26 of these (19 family units) have already been welcomed into the Camden family. Thirteen others will be joining in the weeks to come.

Other interests spawned by the series are encouraging. Thirty-seven people are prayerfully weighing the present truth message. A young Southern Baptist preacher and his wife have accepted the Sabbath and are considering what to do about their church.

Local Pastor Elder G. C. Winslow, and church elder Herb Davis, himself a convert from meetings held three years previous, will continue the Bible class for new members and visitors begun by Waters three Sabbaths before the close of the series.

Souls have been won. The members are encouraged. Camden has become the "city of miracles."

A lot of Christians are reluctant to talk about their faith to people outside the church. This was brought out in a recent survey among members of the Lutheran Church in America, and it has been a damper on religious vitality in modern society. According to analysis of the Lutheran Church in America survey, the lack of excitement about their faith is the highest barrier to be found around any church congregation.

According to a Louis Harris survey, health, love, peace of mind, and family life topped the list of 11 major values considered by American men under 50 as "very important" for a happy and satisfied life. Harris did the study for Playboy Enterprises, Inc. Religion was near the bottom of the list, ranked 10th according to the values cited most often by men as being important. Sex was rated almost as low. It ranked ninth.

Still not good enough. That's what many religious organizations are saying about proposed Internal Revenue Service regulations directed at private schools. Under heavy criticism, the IRS has already revised the proposal. But at public hearings before a congressional subcommittee, representatives of religious organizations said the proposed measures still entangle government with religion in the case of parochial schools. None who testified were in opposition with the stated aim of the IRS—to end racial discrimination in private schools. But they don't want the IRS examining Christian schools. Among those who testified was Charles Hirsch, executive secretary of Seventh-day Adventists' Kindergarten through 12th grade schools. He summed the feelings of many by saying, "With its threat of removing tax exemption, the IRS is not only attempting to have a voice in the admissions policy of private schools, but is actually interfering in the affairs of the church."

Explicit sexual behavior is still rarely shown on prime-time television. But a new study shows there is an increasing tendency to "tease" audiences with suggestive behavior, comments, and situations. According to the study, "Flirtatious or seductive behavior nearly quadrupled in frequency from less than one instance per hour in 1975 to more than three in 1977." Sexual innuendos increased more than five times. And contextually implied intercourse or references to it jumped from two an hour in 1975 to 20 in 1977. The study of sex on TV was funded by United Methodist Communications, Church of the Brethren, Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) and Reformed Church in America through Media Action Research Center and the American Medical Association. Authors of the study say TV's light comical presentation of sex, and its biased portrayal via flippantly seductive behaviors may have a profound impact on the emerging sexual attitudes and behaviors of young viewers.

The COOKING CLASS in Bessemer was well attended and Robert James has received praise for bringing health and economy to the kitchen.

A COMMUNITY SERVICE CENTER is to be opened by the Riverside church in Nashville. The center is to open in March in the Wharton school on 18th Street. The school was built to service 2,000 students but due to the busing orders it is serving only 700 at present. The school is using the 19th Street side of the building and has assigned to the Riverside Community Service Center the principal's office and two other rooms on the 18th Street side with parking, shelving, desks, chairs, decorations, and permission for a sign. The school feels that it is better to have a building in use than to have it vandalized. Dorothy Wilson, who made the contact, is to be the director of the center.

The Riverside basketball team went to the PLAYOFF with Jackson, Mississippi, in Birmingham on March 10. However, the trophies were not awarded by Churchwell because the referees were not professional. Playoffs will be held in Memphis at the Youth Congress, according to J. McCoy, conference youth director.

During the conference committee BUDGET MEETING in March, new churches were voted to be constructed in Knoxville, Memphis, Jackson, Mississippi, and Greenville, Mississippi. Church buildings were voted to be purchased in Talladega, Alabama, and Nashville. Groundbreaking for the New Heights church in Jackson, Mississippi, is set for April 15. They hope for the building to be finished by Thanksgiving.

The treasurer's January report showed a $31,000 TITHE GAIN over January, 1978. At this rate D. A. Walker, conference treasurer, predicts that the conference will have enough funds to care for the presently rising costs of operation and grow by adding a few more churches. Walker thanks the pastors and members for their faithfulness in tithing, and thanks the treasurers for their prompt reporting. He praises God for His wonderful blessings.

SOUTHERN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION

A letter, dated February 20, 1979, arrived in the SPA treasurer's office thanking the organization for its good work in the South. Enclosed in the letter was a CONTRIBUTION FOR $50,000.

Stories

Jay Gallimore, pastor of the Charlotte, North Carolina, Sharon church, has found an evangelistic use for the church sign. Each week a basic tenet of Adventist belief is displayed to traffic-laden Sharon Amity Road. Area residents have commented that they look forward to seeing the newest message.

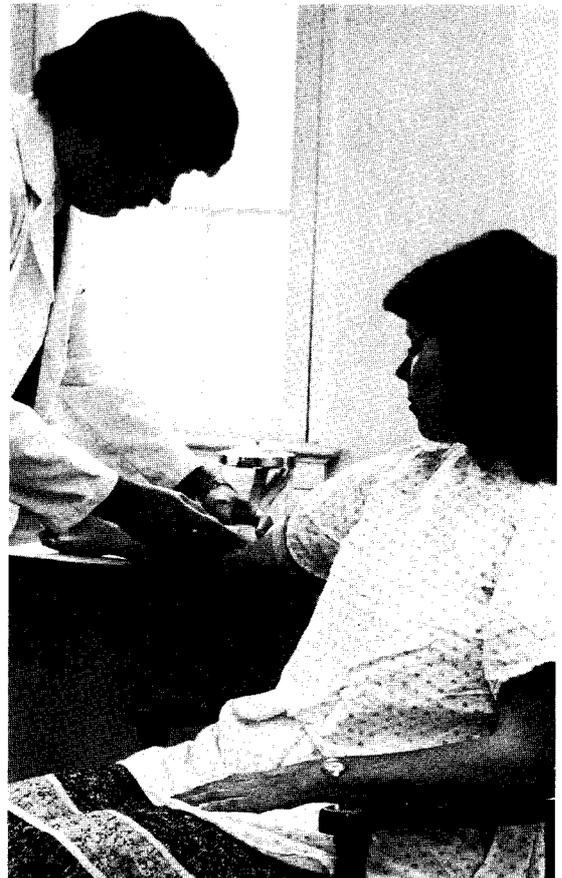

Amidst the charred remains of a mobile home, Mrs. Judy Harroff (left) discovered a book which was still intact—Bible Readings for the Home. As she began to study the book her mother, Maureen Emery, began studying the Bible, independent of Judy. Last October Mrs. Emery told her daughter that she wanted to attend a church. Judy agreed, but insisted that it be a Seventh-day Adventist church. Leesburg, Florida, Pastor Haskell Williams began studying with the ladies, culminating with their baptism on February 3.

Franklin Trimm, a junior medical student at Loma Linda University and a native of Birmingham, Alabama, administers a blood test to a participant in the university's Social Action Corps outreach. Trimm is president of Students for International Medical Service, an organization that encourages LLU students to enter mission service. An offering to be received April 21 will be divided between student scholarships at LLU and the building of a science complex and men's residence hall.

Personal evangelism resulted in the baptism of 11 individuals during January and February in the Cynthiana/Winchester/Richmond, Kentucky, district. Membership in the three churches had been only 88, meaning a 13 per cent increase in just two months. Pictured here are those who were in the first baptism: Mildred Jewett (left), Debbie Ratliff, Helen Gibbs, Dr. Fred Gibbs, Pastor Lewis Brand, Cornelius Boss, Phil Hayden, and Carol Hayden.

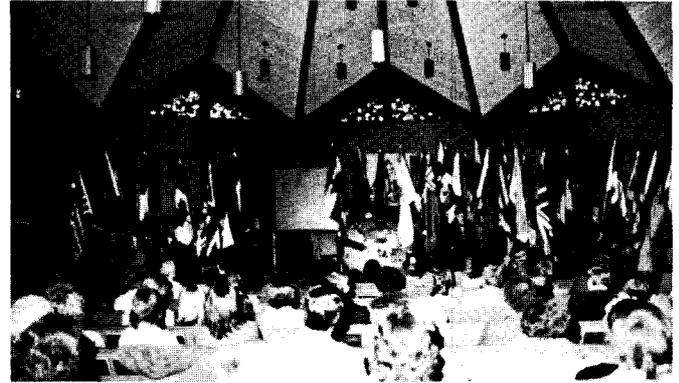

The Apopka, Florida, Highland church held its first life and health run for the community January 13. Twenty-three persons entered the 10,000-meter run. Steve Baez received the trophy, and the other runners received ribbons and a certificate with the Florida Conference seal. It is planned that this will be an annual event.

When Walter Arties, producer-coordinator of the Breath of Life TV series, presented a concert at the Northside Baptist church in St. Petersburg, Florida, during January, members of the Tampa Bay-Area SDA Communications Committee were on hand to greet him. The committee arranged for Breath of Life to receive 39 free half-hour slots on WTVT. At the last committee meeting in February it was announced that the series contract had been renewed. With Arties (left) are committee secretary Gayle St. Onge and chairman Kingston Bassett.

A Festival of the Word, held in Birmingham, Alabama, February 16, 17 drew an attendance of more than 500, according to Alabama-Mississippi Youth Director Lewis Hendershot. Other participants included Norm Matiko of the Voice of Prophecy, Des Hills of the General Conference Youth Department, Jere Webb, pastor of the Collegedale church, Clay Farwell, Southern Union youth director, the Celesta Singers of Bass Memorial Academy, and God's Love Song from SMC. Witnessing workshops were a highlight of the festival.

Asheville-Pisgah Adds Reading, Listening Centers

Carolina — First- and second-grade students at the Asheville-Pisgah, North Carolina, church school now have extra space for a reading and a listening center in the form of two 6-foot by 10-foot platforms built above the storage closet and the older reading area.

The Asheville-Pisgah school had constructed reading and listening centers for its first and second graders.

The reading center provides space for the children to work quietly on their reading assignments or to just read a library book. The listening center is equipped with a tape recorder, a record player, and 16 sets of earphones.

First- and second-grade teacher Susan Bossenberry says the listening center is used for more than free time listening. She utilizes the center for student enrichment and reinforcement in weak areas.

Each of the centers is carpeted and completely surrounded by a protective railing that reaches almost to the ceiling. Soft cushions are available for the children to sit on when they are up in one of the centers.

Both of the study areas were built by Miss Bossenberry and two other instructors, Guy Robertson and John Wolfe.

Youth

South Central Organizes Seven Youth Federations

South Central — The parking lot was full of cars. The smiles of the greeter at the door, his warm handshake, and cordial directions helped the delegates forget the freezing cold outside. Erline Madison went to the piano, Gazetta Holt went to the organ, and the music began.

Roland Hill, pastor of the Columbia, Tennessee, district, used the deductive method when teaching the Sabbath school lesson. You would hardly recognize that the occasion was an organizational Youth Federation. Seven such Youth Federations had been set up by the youth director of the conference, Joseph McCoy. Five of them were on the same day, February 17.

This Youth Federation was in the Middle Tennessee area, and Billie Simmons was its interim president. His team of helpers cared for every detail, and it all worked smoothly. The Pathfinders in uniform served as ushers, the pastors and officers greeted the worshipers, deacons from the district churches were designated to lift the tithes and offerings. Judy Dent, Bessie Ratliff and Dwayne Hamilton sang just before Dr. Lorenzo Grant of SMC preached on justification by faith.

Pathfinders served as ushers at the South Central Youth Federation meetings.

In the afternoon the election of officers and other organizational items were cared for.

The whole conference is now organized into seven Youth Federations with plans for meetings throughout the year. But the great objective is by a deeper love and greater faith to help to finish the work of the gospel in all the world.

Health

Academy Temperance Leaders Meet

Southern Union — Temperance officers, contest winners, sponsors, and principals from 10 academies and four junior academies met for the annual Southern Union Academy Temperance Weekend, February 23 and 24 at Bass Memorial Academy. Also in attendance were the temperance directors of the various conferences, and Southern Union Temperance Director Clay Farwell, and his associate, Ralph Peay, who coordinated the weekend. The featured speaker was S. L. Deshay, M.D., health director of the General Conference.

On Sabbath afternoon 10 groups were dispatched to prearranged locations in shopping malls in the Hattiesburg, Mississippi, area to present better-living demonstrations and distribute temperance literature. Saturday night activities included demonstrations by the Southern Missionary College and the Bass Memorial Academy gymnastic teams, temperance orations, display of posters, and presentation of awards.

The most active academy was

Georgia-Cumberland Academy Temperance President Walter Cross and Charles Young receive a gold award from Conference Temperance Director John Strickland. The academy earned more than a million activity points.

Fayetteville Cooking Class Draws 40

Carolina — During the week of February 5-8, Elder and Mrs. Barry Mahorney presented a cooking class on "Disease Preventive Nutrition" in Fayetteville, North Carolina. The 40 people who attended the lectures each evening never went home empty-handed. Literature and vegetarian foods were available for those attending.

Mahorney began each class with a devotional from the scriptures and prayer. He also was an instructor in bread making, to the surprise and delight of the class.

Mrs. Mahorney guided each participant through a day's meals, teaching them how to improve their current diets and to reduce the risks of disease at the same time. The lectures were followed by slide presentations on air, sunlight, caffeine, rest, and nature's deserts.

Doctors, Nurses Hold 2nd Biennial Witnessing Seminar

Southern Union — "Most of us are impatient. We want to begin Bible studies on Friday night and see the person baptized the next day," remarked Carl Coffman to the 200 individuals present for the Doctors-Nurses Witnessing Seminar held March 2-4 at Gatlinburg, Tennessee. While acknowledging that that rarely occurs, Coffman proceeded to outline numerous methods by which Adventist medical personnel may witness to their patients and their families. Coffman, who was the principal speaker at the seminar, is the director of the Department of Religion at the Andrews University School of Graduate Studies.

Other personnel leading out in the tri-union seminar included J. Wayne McFarland, M.D., and Alice Mazie A. Herin, retired associate health director of the General Conference, visits with Carl Coffman following one of his presentations.

E. Smith of the General Conference Department of Health, and L. W. Crooker, Marion S. Brown, and H. F. Roll, health directors of the Atlantic, Columbia, and Southern Union Conferences, respectively.

The Gatlinburg meeting was the second such biennial gathering of physicians, dentists, nurses, and others in the medical professions. Participants included those in private practice as well as those affiliated with health-care institutions.

"We need to periodically take time to view our effectiveness as soul winners," states Roll, who coordinated the seminar. "The science of all sciences is that of saving souls."

500 Attend Miami Health Seminar

Florida — Jay Hoffman, Ph.D., professor emeritus of the American Geriatrics Society, and author of several books, including The Hunzas, held a seminar on health in January at the Miami SDA church.

Some 500 people attended the five-day series of lectures, including a group of Jewish people from Miami Beach.

Many people in the audience heard for the first time the Spirit of Prophecy concept of health.

Slides of Hunza people and culture preceded the lectures each evening. Dr. Hoffman has visited and studied the Hunzas to determine the secret of their longevity and believes it is because of their diet and healthful way of living.

The last evening of the lectures two Catholic women sought out the church pastor, Horace Walsh, and requested Bible studies, saying, "This is the church for us."

Who and Where Kentucky-Tennessee Launches Literature Distribution Drive

Kentucky-Tennessee — For some time, there has been a great concern to scatter our tracts and books to our cities. W. M. Abbott, Jr., lay activities director, has come up with a literature packet which consists of a new book, God's Answers, a response card, and a special book-offer sheet of seven books. This literature packet can be taken door to door, hung on the door handle, or mailed in an attractive envelope.

The suggestion is for every church member to give at least 10 of these literature packets a month for at least six months. A church member can buy and give away 10 packets a month for only $2.50.

Pastors and lay activities leaders presented this outreach plan to each church on one of the first three Sabbaths of March.

Religious Liberty Leaders Meet in Madison

Southern Union — Pastors and representatives from churches and conferences met in Madison, Tennessee, February 27 and 28 for the purpose of learning methods of keeping in touch with laws pending in state legislatures that may affect Seventh-day Adventists.

This training session brought together 16 religious liberty directors and capital representatives from the conferences in the Southern Union. Tennessee State Senator Douglas Henry, chairman of the Senate Finance and Ways and Means Committee, visited with the group, explaining certain information such representatives need to know and how to obtain that information.

Instructors for the session included: Gordon Engen, General Conference Religious Liberty Department; Robert Nixon, attorney for the General Conference; R. L. Reynolds, field secretary for the General Conference; and Fernon Retzer of the Southern Union.

Fellowship and sharing were important fringe benefits of the witnessing seminar, as experienced by Myron Eberhardt, M.D. (left), of Cleveland, Georgia, Adrien Brutus, M.D., of Worcester, Massachusetts, Faye Campbell, R.N., of Jackson, Tennessee, H. F. Roll, and Clayton R. Farwell, Southern Union health and temperance directors, respectively.

M. A. Tyner served as host for the session.

Amazing Facts Team Aims to Re-establish Church in Sylacauga

Alabama-Mississippi — For a number of years Sylacauga, Alabama, has been without an Adventist church. Nearly 20,000 people live in this city which at one time was home for a Seventh-day Adventist congregation. Officially the church was dissolved 13 years ago, requiring the few members in the area to drive a considerable distance to attend churches in Birmingham or Pell City.

"Amazing Facts," a radio evangelistic outreach, is sponsoring a new team of workers whose full-time efforts are devoted to dark city evangelism. This team is spending three months giving Bible studies, visiting in hundreds of homes, and following up with evangelistic meetings March 24-April 14.

First, there is the "Amazing Facts" radio broadcast aired over station WFEB, 1340 KC, daily. In addition, team workers are giving many Bible studies weekly throughout the area.

The first branch Sabbath school was held February 3, with 34 in attendance. Represented were members from the Birmingham First, Pell City, Clanton, Selma, and Dothan churches. David Sauer, with "Amazing Facts," directed the program and Charles Wheeling was the speaker for the service. The "Amazing Facts" evangelistic team also includes Ray Vice.

This program combines the work of public evangelism with the efforts of the literature evangelist. It is anticipated that this adventure for Christ will result in a strong new church in Sylacauga.

Deaf SDAs Meet in Rome, Hixson

Georgia-Cumberland — Hixson-Daisy Pastor David VanDenburgh coordinated activities for deaf people at the Rome, Georgia, church February 10. David Conti, a deaf Hixson member, helped with the planning. Over 100 were in attendance, including deaf visitors from Alabama, Tennessee, and Georgia. A similar meeting was held in Hixson church in January, 1979.

Deaf persons presented the main parts of the morning activities. Conti and his wife "interpreted for the hearing" at Sabbath school. The deaf interpreter for VanDenburgh's sermon was Kim Taylor, who will graduate from SMC this spring.

There were afternoon meetings following a fellowship dinner. The first was a joint meeting, with hearing and deaf people together. VanDenburgh interpreted this meeting on how to evangelize deaf people. For the second meeting they separated and gave feedback on the morning sermon. Conti led out in that event.

Deaf persons from three states met at Rome, Georgia, February 10.

South Central Laymen Plan Unprecedented Thrust

South Central — The lay advisory council met with Conference President Dr. C. E. Dudley and departmental leaders in their February Meeting at Oakwood College to discuss a 12-point agenda.

Perhaps the three highest proposals were the organization of a Savings and Loan Association to help new churches and schools get started; the spreading like the leaves of autumn of the E. C. Ward tracts, and the entering of 26 more dark counties in 1979.

Laymen have been helping more and more in soul winning in each church. In Memphis, Tennessee, laymen went into the prison and started Bible studies that resulted in more than 34 baptisms. (An Adventist church can now be organized in a state prison). Laymen helped to win the 130 who were baptized in Huntsville, Alabama, in 1979. Laymen held tent meetings, cottage meetings, and hall/church meetings, resulting in four new congregations being raised up. Laymen now want to enter 26 dark counties in 1979. With God's blessings, they are sure that more than 20 new churches will be organized.

With other laymen pooling their resources together, funds will be available when the new congregations are raised up to construct new buildings for them. Many laymen and ministers have invested in the savings association.

Community Service, Tutoring Programs Aid Anderson Outreach

Carolina — In the November issue of the TIDINGS, Anderson, South Carolina, was the featured article of the Carolinas. Pastor Bill Harward has reported on the progress there.

Attendance at the mid-week prayer meeting has climbed to 27 in recent weeks. With this increase in attendance, Harward is pressing toward a goal of purchasing some land upon which the conference will place a double-wide trailer, modified to serve as a short-term sanctuary. The church fund is up to $2,100 and moving toward a goal of $7,000 by July 1.

During the latter part of January and in the week of February 5-9, two Five-Day Plans to Stop Smoking were conducted.

Plans are set now for beginning a community service program in Anderson. Perhaps the best news regarding community service is a special tutoring program for area children with reading difficulties. Dr. Frank Lang, of the Institute of Developmental Studies, Inc., of Chattanooga, Tennessee, is working closely with Harward on this project. A new couple, trained in the reading therapy program, will be moving into Anderson to get this program rolling.

And finally, evangelistic meetings with the Friedrich evangelistic team are scheduled for March 24-April 21 in Anderson. Bill and his wife, Judy, seek a continued interest in your prayers.

major prophecies of both Daniel and Revelation and contains more than 65 photos, maps, and illustrations of the Bible passages—most of them in four color.

The one-half-million-copy run, which would equal a one-and-one-fourth-million-copy printing of a standard 36-page issue, is the largest single magazine printing order ever undertaken by the church, according to associate editor Ralph Blodgett.

The project will consume more than 120 tons of paper (some five carloads), and will require approximately 290 gallons of ink, weighing some 2,000 pounds. If the finished magazines were placed in a single pile, the stack would be six times taller than the Empire State Building in New York. And its 42 million pages, if laid end to end, would stretch 4,000 miles—all the way from Los Angeles to Washington, D.C., and back to Dallas, Texas.

As impressive as these statistics are, the unique impact of this project is its modern-day application to Ellen White's counsels: "The books of Daniel and the Revelation should be bound together and published. A few explanations of certain portions might be added," and "I have been instructed that the prophecies of Daniel and the Revelation should be printed in small books, with the necessary explanation, and should be sent all over the world" — Testimonies to Ministers, p. 117.

Adventist Book Centers have placed large orders for this special issue, anticipating numerous requests from the membership. Reduced rates are available for purchases of 10 or more.

Anxiety in Trust Services

HHS — What are we most anxious about in the Trust Services program?

CGC — That each church member shall be saved in Heaven.

HHS — How does that relate to Trust Services?

CGC — Each of us is a steward of his own possessions.

God watches to see what we choose to do with them. He trusts us. Trust Services helps each member to trust God. It is God who gives us life and the "power to get wealth" (Deuteronomy 8:18). Trust Services workers can help our people make Trust Agreements, Annuities, Life Income Agreements and other instruments that provide financially for spouses and needy children and for the closing work of God. We are anxious that each church member will soon hear the Saviour say, "You have kept your eye on your mission in life. You have been faithful with your money and things. Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

If readers believe that we might be helpful to them, like we were to 1,002 church families in 1978, they may contact us at the respective offices shown below.

THE BEAUTIFUL CHURCH need not be large. Neither does it have to be new. Whether made of brick, wood, or block, your church can be a thing of beauty.

What makes a beautiful church? First, beautiful members. A friendly church is a beautiful church. A well-kept church is an attractive church. The architecture need not be spacious for the lawn to be neat. The windows can be other than stained glass and still be trimmed with paint that isn't cracked. Is the carpet clean? Does all lighting function?

What identifies your church as Seventh-day Adventist? An attractive sign? Weathered sign? Outdated sign? No sign?

Your church speaks. It presents a sermon to the hundreds who pass each day. It tells them something about Seventh-day Adventists. It indicates what they think of themselves, their community, and their God.

Do something this month to make your church more beautiful.

Conference Sessions

This year, 1979, we have five conference constituency meetings scheduled. These are triennium sessions. As of this writing, we have had the Florida Conference session. It was an unusually well attended session of delegates coming from 100 churches. Enthusiasm ran high as the result of the reports of administration and departments of the progress of God's work during the past three years. Fourteen new congregations were accepted into the sisterhood of churches in the conference, and it was reported that the total membership now stands at 18,538, ninth in size in North America. Tithes and offerings are at their all-time peak. Elder H. J. Carubba and his entire office staff were retained.

The next meeting, as of this writing, is scheduled with the Georgia-Cumberland Conference constituency.

H. J. Carubba

Joint Magazine Venture

In this issue of the SOUTHERN TIDINGS, we have featured the new concept of promoting all the missionary journals rather than the two promoted in the Southern Publishing Association territory as in the past. This package of journals includes These Times, Signs of the Times, Message, and El Centinela. These journals will be promoted in all of North America, giving our people a chance to choose one or two or all of these periodicals to send or give to their relatives and neighbors. We believe this will bring about an upsurge in the circulation of these missionary journals and thus bring God's message to many more people than heretofore.

Annual Conference Audits

We have just completed the audit meetings of all of our conferences in the union conference. All seven of our local conferences are strong in their financial operation, with one or two of them having very tight budgets and having to operate exceedingly carefully. Evangelism and soul winning are vigorously promoted and provided for in all the conference budgets. This is

SIZZLE FRANKS. LOMA LINDA DISCOVERS THE MISSING LINK.

Other people have made meatless franks before, but they always left a lot to be desired. Namely, the real taste and texture that make franks such a favorite among both adults and kids.

Now Loma Linda has discovered the missing link.

We call them Sizzle Franks, and we think you'll call them delicious. Because Loma Linda uses a special ingredient that combines two different vegetable proteins for better flavor and texture, and a more favorable nutritional balance.
