Employees pose for a picture in front of the Atlanta Sanitarium, which was born after the Review and Herald branch office, the original occupant of the building was removed to Nashville with the formation of Southern Publishing Association.

Until 1929 the Seventh-day Adventist church school was held in the basement of the Cherokee Avenue church.

More than 7,500 members in 22 congregations.
 Seven elementary schools and two senior academies.
 A 100-bed acute-care hospital.
 Headquarters for a local conference.
 Headquarters for a union conference.
 Two Adventist Book Centers.

Who could have imagined it 100 years ago?
 A century ago Atlanta was still reeling from the ravages of the Civil War, near the conclusion of which General Sherman ordered most of its buildings burned. Reconstruction had just ended.

Not a single Seventh-day Adventist lived in the area. But, on June 3 and 4, 1983, General Conference President Neal C. Wilson joined the Belvedere church in celebrating 95 years as an organized congregation.

The Belvedere congregation, which meets in the building pictured above, left, was the first congregation in the Atlanta area, having had several church homes over the years. The Beverly Road church, near downtown Atlanta, has been in this building for many years. The Berean church was the first black congregation in the city. The Atlanta Korean congregation, with 149 members recently bought this building, and is one of two Korean churches in the area. Atlanta also has two Spanish congregations.

The history of Adventist work in Atlanta is one of struggles, privation, and endurance, resulting in a solid, progressive presence today.

The 1886 General Conference session passed the following resolution: "That G. W. Anglebarger and his wife go to Atlanta, Georgia, to superintend the new mission to be started in that city."

The 1888 Yearbook, reporting progress of the previous year, stated: "In March, a mission was established at Atlanta, Ga., by G. W. Anglebarger and wife. C. F. Curtis is now in charge. In addition to the mission work, tent-meetings have been held. . . . The results of these labors have been favorable, there being a company of upwards of twenty believers at Atlanta, and scattered brethren at other points. Book sales have become quite large, and the demand for denominational literature is still good."

Because of a severe depression, the Atlanta Mission was closed, and church operations moved to the southeastern part of the city, where, in 1888, the first Adventist church was organized.

The Atlanta Constitution of October 26, 1889, reported a trial of four former members of the Methodist Smyrna Hospital represents the Right Arm of the Advent Movement in Atlanta today.

Greater Atlanta Adventist Academy, which grew out of Berean elementary school is the South Atlantic Conference's first 12-grade school. Atlanta Adventist Academy will be a full-fledged 12-grade day academy beginning with the 1983-1984 school year. The gymnasium still under construction is nearing completion.

Episcopal Church who had become Seventh-day Adventists. To substantiate its charges of heresy, a committee of the church charged the four: "Believing themselves to be right, they do not recognize the Sabbath of the M. E. Church South, and hence are observing the seventh day of the week (Saturday) as the Sabbath. They propose to continue until they are convinced they are in error. They are also confirmed in the belief that the doctrine of the immortality of the wicked, as held by the M. E. Church South, is unfounded by the Bible."

A branch of the Review and Herald Publishing Association was established in the city in 1889, continuing until 1901, when Southern Publishing Association was organized in Nashville.

In 1903 the Review and Herald buildings were transformed into the Atlanta Sanitarium, which continued in various forms and locations until the death of Dr. Julius F. Schneider in 1958.

A camp meeting, held in the Atlanta suburb of Austell in 1901, saw the organization of the Georgia Conference, which merged with the Cumberland Conference in 1932.

Progress among the black population in the Southeast advanced to the point that, in 1946, the South Atlantic Conference began operations, with headquarters in Atlanta. Today, membership in churches affiliated with that conference totals 4,493.

The challenges of evangelism and Christian service in Atlanta is great. More than two million people live there. Thirty radio and seven television stations entertain and distract. Professional baseball, basketball, and football franchises compete for attention. More than 20 four-year colleges and universities, 3,000 wholesale firms, 13 rail freight lines, 170 trucking companies, one of the world's busiest airports, 5,000 acres of parks and playgrounds, and numerous cultural entities—including opera, art, ballet, and symphony—ensure an abundance of activity and leisure.

For 95 years Adventist congregations have been in Atlanta. A cause for celebration?

Yes. They have grown. They have served. They have shared.

But what will it take to reach the masses? How many more anniversaries must go by before Christ returns?

1983. A time for celebration, but, more than that, a time for commitment.

*Compassionate Care and
Well-Trained Professionals*

by Louis Zumstein

To provide residents with compassionate care after the example of Christ in concert with well-trained professionals is the goal of Sunbelt Health Care Centers. The ability to meet this and other goals was strengthened in October, 1982, when SHCC affiliated with Adventist Health System/Sunbelt Health Care Corporation to purchase and manage long-term care centers in an efficient, professional, and cost-effective manner. As of this writing, there are five SHCC member facilities in Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky, and Texas which collectively represent 495 long-term care beds.

Based on his experience in nursing home management, Louis Zumstein accepted the presidency of SHCC and its challenges which include working with state and federal nursing home regulations, and providing services which are essential to the physical, mental, emotional, social and spiritual well-being of each SHCC resident.

Beyond housing the headquarters of SHCC, Imperial Manor Convalescent Center, Madison, Tennessee, has been licensed by the state to offer an Administrative In-Training Preceptor program which is designed to train qualified people interested in nursing administration. The food service department has a training program for managers. During 1982, SHCC developed a staff of consultants who are trained in all areas of nursing home operations.

The several training programs help assure qualified professional care coupled with a Christlike attitude toward people which benefits SHCC now and in the future.

IMPERIAL MANOR CONVALESCENT CENTER.

Some measure progress solely by bricks and stone and things material. But Imperial Manor Convalescent Center (left) attributes its success to dedicated workers and selfless citizens of the community who in countless ways bring immeasurable and priceless gifts of love and joy into the lives of its residents. One of the finest facilities in the South, it has been serving the community of Madison, Tennessee, since 1967, and today is also headquarters for Sunbelt Health Care Centers. Louis L. Zumstein (above), is the administrator.

HIGHLAND MANOR.

Highland Manor is located on an academy campus near Portland, Tennessee, so, while it serves the elderly, it also employs young students, which provides them with income to help meet school expenses. The nursing facility paid out more for student labor during the 1982-1983 school year than for any previous year. Plans are to incorporate the 49 hospital beds as a retirement center soon after Highland Hospital moves into its new building in Portland. This will provide facilities for residents needing limited medical care and supervision. Peggy Snow recently accepted the position as administrator.

COON MEMORIAL.

Texans are known for thinking "big," and Coon Memorial Home in Daltart, Texas, is true to form with its spacious lobbies, dining area and patient rooms. Born over a hundred years ago, "Uncle Dick Coon" desired to lend a helping hand to patients, but his magnanimity reached even beyond his own lifetime. His trust fund provided finances to build this beautiful facility to serve the citizens of the Texas Panhandle, Oklahoma, and New Mexico area. Richard Simpson, a native Texan, is administrator.

PINECREST MANOR.

Pinecrest Manor, in Hopkinsville, Kentucky, is unique because it has a small 32-bed cottage home along with the new 83-bed skilled and intermediate care facility. Steve Rose, who was born and reared in the area, is administrator. His father serves as medical director and works with his son to give quality care to the residents.

LAKELAND VILLA CONVALESCENT CENTER.

Nestled among pine trees in the deep South at Lakeland, Georgia, Lakeland Villa's 62-bed facility offers serenity and comfort in lovely, restful surroundings. Its beautiful building typifies the latest advances in nursing home design. Tender loving care is given in large doses to each of the residents by a staff of nurses 24 hours a day. Ernest Yap is administrator.

Each week students visit their "adopted grandparents" at the nursing home.

Two students and their charges cheer the Big Sister program Georgia-Cumberland Academy.

In mid-May, 2,530 students and 250 teachers throughout the Georgia-Cumberland Conference joined in a collective sigh.

A group of 329 eighth and twelfth graders did something in May that they have waited a long time to do—graduate.

In many ways, the 1982-83 school year seemed just like previous years in the Conference. Enrollment continued to climb, achievement test scores stayed a couple dozen points above national norms, and new facilities were added to existing ones in places like Morristown, Tennessee.

But in the schools there was something very special happening that changed the lives of many students forever.

Jim Epperson, education superintendent, explains: "Last fall, we decided not to have service and witnessing programs as added activities in our schools. Instead we authorized our teachers to make Christian outreach projects part of their curriculum!"

Epperson goes on to say that Christianity should be taught as a "living experience," not something taken from a shelf on Friday night and put back 24 hours later.

"I think that's what makes our educational system so different," says Epperson. "We teach our young people to be 'others oriented.'"

Schools throughout the Conference testify to this philosophy.

Arlene Dever, of Dunlap, Tennessee, leads her classes in letter-writing campaigns.

"We correspond with former students, those who have graduated from our little school. The children love to keep everyone up-to-date on all the happenings at their alma mater. Then the older ones write back with advice and encouragement. It's really a very beautiful feeling to watch children taking an interest in other children."

Many schools carry on card-making activities. Classmates design and create get-well, birthday, or simple "We're-praying-for-you" cards. These find their way to fellow church members and friends.

School children in Maryville, Tennessee, visit a local nursing home each week and bring joy to their adopted grandparents.

"I'm not sure who has the most fun," reports Teacher Renita McDougal. "For a whole hour each week, these children have someone to talk to and the 'grandparents' have someone to listen to."

McDougal states that the weekly visits have had medicinal-like effects on some shut-ins. "There was one lady who was very withdrawn and didn't speak beyond a mumble. Then one of my first-grade girls began reading to her and showing her all the latest school assignments. In a very short time, her speech and memory improved to where she asks every day if it's Wednesday. If it is, she insists that someone comb her hair, find her teeth, and Spalding students erect bluebird houses for their community beautification project.

Phillip Green and Glenn Sibadogal read the letter from a friend who needed to hear Bible promises.

Reaching Out

by Charles Mills

make her look pretty for that special friend who comes to visit her."

"Now at lunch," says McDougal, "instead of hearing about the latest TV show or Pac Man, the children talk about their adopted grandparents. Now that's exciting!"

Wednesday is also a busy day for a group of coeds at Georgia-Cumberland Academy.

"We bring local kids in by the bus load," explains LeClair Litchfield, pastor and Bible teacher. "It's too easy nowadays for kids to be stuck on themselves. Our Big Brother, Big Sister program gets kids thinking in terms of the other guy."

At Spalding Elementary School in Collegedale, several teachers have banded together with their students to make and distribute bluebird houses around the community.

Students at some schools bake bread for the elderly and help tidy up their yards.

Throughout the Conference educational system, outreach programs are being fostered and exercised, right along with English and math.

And it's changing lives.

Margaret Halverson shares this touching story from her Spalding fifth-grade class.

"We had our children print Bible promises on cards and go door-to-door in the neighborhood. They would read the promises and pray with the people who came to the door.

"Two of my boys weren't too excited about the idea but reluctantly agreed to give it a try. They looked up some Bible promises, wrote them down, and headed for their first home. No answer. At the next house, their knock was answered by a man who listened silently as they shared their texts. They knelt down and prayed for the man and said goodbye.

"The next day, we received a letter from that man that began with the words, 'Two angels visited me today. . . .'

"It seems that he had recently moved from up North and was having a hard time. He said that he was on his knees asking God for a sign to let him know that He was still with him, when the doorbell rang. It was the two boys. The promises they shared were the very ones he needed to hear.

"That letter is now a prized possession of two fifth graders who didn't want to knock on doors."

Superintendent Epperson says that stories like these are not rare.

"We have got to make a difference in the lives of our students," he says. "We must be special. With our dedicated teachers and energetic kids, we'll keep doing things differently till the Lord comes."

YOUTH UNITED

by S. E. Gooden

The venture of the Youth Federation to bring the young people of the Adventist Church together for the purpose of instruction, inspiration, sharing, and fellowship, is one of the best things that has ever happened to the Church. March 26 was the first time that the federations of South Atlantic Conference tried such a meeting, and a bold venture by V. J. Mendinghall, who became youth director last year. Gerri Elder represented Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young (who was out of the country) at the meeting. She read a proclamation from the mayor proclaiming March 26 as South Atlantic Conference United Youth Federation Day in Atlanta.

Mendinghall tried to find a suitable place elsewhere in the Conference and had to finally settle on the World Congress Center in Atlanta. All the young people of the Atlanta-area churches were very happy that they could host this first venture. The guest speaker, Wintley Phipps, inspired the young people, not only with his singing which preceded his message, but he kept the young people in that packed auditorium spellbound for the entire session.

The four federations—Eastern North Carolina, Western North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia—all participated in the program. The Aeolians of Oakwood College, under the direction of Alma Blackmon, and the Prophetic Songs of Joy, an orchestral band of Atlanta-area churches, under the direction of Samuel Campbell of the Maranatha church, were the guest musical groups for the day.

One important feature of the afternoon's activities was the Bible Bowl which tested the young people's knowledge of the word of God. This was won by the combined Carolinas. The day's activities culminated with the last of the Basketball Tournament, which was won by the Carolina group.

MUSIC — MUSIC — MUSIC

by J. W. Clarke
Photography by Truman Parrish

It was a thrilling Sabbath at Highland Academy April 8 and 9 when students from eight elementary schools and junior academies assembled for a music festival. This was the first time in many years that such an event was held. Because of the tremendous response and success, it is planned to make this an annual event.

Lyle Anderson and Loraine Paulk, Ph.D., conference education superintendent and associate superintendent, respectively, planned the program, with Highland Academy Principal Eugene Brewer as band clinician and Conference Trust Services Director Stewart Crook as choral clinician. The schools involved were Greater Nashville Junior Academy, Highland Elementary and Highland Academy, Lexington Elementary, Madison Campus Elementary, Memphis Junior Academy, and Pewee Valley Junior Academy.

Not only did this music festival give opportunity for the students to enlarge their understanding of the vastness of the Seventh-day Adventist Church, but it helped them to have fellowship, stimulate interest in and appreciation for cultural music, and to develop poise and a sense of security in performing before a large audience.

Speakers for the Sabbath services were Conference President Clayton Farwell and Conference Youth Leader Jim Pleasants.

The choral group, under the direction of Stewart Crook, presented several musical numbers at the music festival.

A strong brass and woodwind section helped the band in its excellent musical presentations.

For the past three school years a large number of people have cooperated together to make Christian education possible for the children of the Waynesville, North Carolina, church.

When Ron Whitehead became pastor in Waynesville, he realized that very few of his 100 members were able to provide church school education for their children. The members discussed the possibility of starting a school in the Waynesville-Junaluska area. Before long it became apparent to the congregation that the best solution was to send their children to the Asheville-Pisgah Elementary School on the campus of Mount Pisgah Academy. It is a 25-minute drive from Waynesville and a number of the members live in the Pisgah area.

When the request was presented to the Asheville-Pisgah school board the response was so favorable that the board allowed Waynesville parents to send their children for the first two years at a lower tuition rate than the Asheville-Pisgah members were paying.

One man gave a station wagon to provide transportation, and the program started with five children for the 1980-81 school year. After two years the station wagon was getting old and could no longer carry the increased number of students. Another church member offered to sell the church a 15-passenger van at a special low price. Pledges were taken and the vehicle was purchased.

Fifteen students attended during the 1982-83 school year. Four of them did not come from Adventist homes. In addition to purchasing the van, the Waynesville church members also assisted some families with tuition payments.

The project became a great cooperative effort by church members in the whole area. Gary Edmonds, Asheville Foster Memorial church finance committee chairman, operates a service station and garage in downtown Asheville. His assistance in keeping the van in good running order has been a blessing to the school project. Gary is a member of the school board, but his interest in helping with the Waynesville project is rooted in his own experience with Christian education. He did not grow up in a Seventh-day Adventist home. His parents sent him to Mount Pisgah Academy for his junior and senior years of high school. While there, he became friends with several Seventh-day Adventist young people in the community. After graduation they all went to Southern Missionary College. Four years later, Gary came back to Asheville with a degree in business administration and joined the family business. While in college he married a Seventh-day Adventist and joined the Church himself. This is why the Waynesville project is of special interest to him. Gary Edmonds looks forward to his children, nine and six years old, having the opportunity for quality Christian education. "We have a good educational system," he says. "You can't change people on the outside. You have to start on the inside to change them."

The Waynesville church building is in a picturesque setting near Lake Junaluska.

"We have a good educational system," says Gary Edmonds.

For a while it was necessary for the driver to make two trips a day transporting the children to and from school. Then, Brenda Myers accepted a job baking for Pisgah Manor Nursing Home. She works during school hours and then takes the children home, making only one trip each day. Pisgah Manor has cooperated by allowing her work hours to be the same as school hours. Brenda reports her interest in the church was not strong when the school program started. Since then she has experienced a spiritual revival and is now church clerk and Sabbath school secretary, in addition to van driver. Not only will her son Bryan, age 13, benefit from her willingness to cooperate in this project, but so will the other 14 children. Along with Brenda, there have been several other church members who have shown new interest in the church because of the school.

The Asheville-Pisgah school has also benefited from the Waynesville project. Ron Whitehead serves as volunteer chaplain and spends time there every week. Five Waynesville children, in addition to those from the other churches, have been baptized. Waynesville church elder Francis Stone does remedial tutoring for the school, plus substitute teaching when needed.

The Waynesville school project demonstrates again what can be accomplished when a group of people cooperate together to advance the work of God.

Brenda Myers is van driver for the Waynesville church.

Fifteen students rode the van from Waynesville to Asheville-Pisgah Elementary School during the 1982-83 school year.

CHRISTIAN RECORD BRINGS HOPE TO THE BLIND AND DEAF

by John Treolo

Some things in life are hard to understand.

Take the experience of Kelley Michele Rowland, for instance. At 21, Kelley had a lot going for her: she was attractive, possessed a vibrant personality, was preparing to enter a Christian college, and she longed to be a missionary in Mexico or South America to bring Christ to those who did not know Him.

Kelley was missing from her job at a school in Little Rock, Arkansas, February 12, 1982. Her mother, Etta, two brothers, and one sister, all feared the worst but were confident that God would protect Kelley. Their fears, however, became reality; Kelley was found a week later in a nearby park, raped and stabbed to death.

To make matters worse, Kelley was totally blind and partially deaf.

Kelley loved the Lord and, during her life, her Christian experience was strengthened with reading materials in braille and recorded media she received from the Christian Record Braille Foundation. She was also inspired from attending National Camps for Blind Children at Camp Yorktown Bay in Arkansas. Kelley attended her first blind camp at age 11.

While attending camp one year, Kelley shared this response with her mother: "Did you know that flowers were an expression of God's love for us?"

Although a member of another denomination, Kelley appreciated the services she received from Christian Record. She would have made a good Seventh-day Adventist, for witnessing for the Lord was as much a part of her life as was discovering new flowers in nature that she never saw. Witnessing, however, appeared to have led to her untimely death.

For years, Kelley had enjoyed sharing her faith with friends in despair or to others who were discouraged. A good friend of hers knew a boy who was heavily involved with drugs and alcohol. During several telephone conversations Kelley shared with the young man her love for Jesus and the love that Christ had for him. She was encouraged with his attitude to learn more.

After several months of conversing by phone, the young boy pleaded to meet with Kelley in person for just a few minutes. Kelley agreed. This was the last time anyone saw her alive.

Yes, Kelley would have made a good Seventh-day Adventist.

Kelley Michele Rowland
1961-1982

Her mother shared Kelley's passion for flowers in the following personal epitaph to her daughter: "God gave us this lovely flower as an expression of His love for us; we gave her back to Him in full bloom, but her fragrance will remain with us forever."

Many other blind and deaf persons like Kelley are being introduced to the Saviour through Christian Record's Bible Correspondence School and reading materials; others have strengthened their own Christian experience with the inspirational services sent to them; still others have accepted the teachings of the Adventist Church and are now active, baptized members.

Seventh-day Adventist member support during Christian Record's annual offering appeal July 9 helps provide these wonderful doctrinal materials for the blind and deaf throughout North America and 89 countries overseas. With your help, the blind and deaf have hope.

ALABAMA-MISSISSIPPI

A PLAY presented by students from grades 4-6 at Bass elementary school in Purvis, Mississippi, was written and directed by their teacher, Linda Booth. Many hours were spent in the study of the history, dress, customs, and life style of the Jewish people at the time of Esther.

North Alabama senior youth spent a REWARDING WEEKEND April 8-10 in Huntsville, with Joseph and Lindy Correa as guest speakers. A visit to the Space Museum was also part of the weekend activities.

CAROLINA

On February 27 the schools in Eastern Carolina enjoyed an historical FIELD TRIP to Moore's Creek Battlefield near Wilmington, North Carolina, where in a brief but violent clash in 1776, North Carolina patriots defeated a larger loyalist force. Approximately 80 students enjoyed the centennial celebration that took place that day. Dean Flint, principal of Raleigh school, indicates the battle was one that changed the tide in favor of North Carolina's independence from royal authority. Some of the schools went on to visit the Battleship U.S.S. North Carolina at Wilmington, a battleship that has one of the most impressive records in naval history.

Burlington church Pastor James Rochester, along with his wife, Phyllis, and three children, were the focus of a very positive article on VEGETARIAN DIETS in a recent issue of the Burlington, North Carolina, Times-News. The full-page article emphasized a meatless diet as a means to a long and healthy life.

Doug Sayles, Adventist Book Center manager, reports 1982-83 fiscal year showed total sales over $600,000. The figure represents a $40,000 INCREASE over the previous year. Most of the increase was in the area of books, periodicals, and tracts. The increase in sales has made it possible to increase working capital and pay old debts.

The Columbia, South Carolina, church presented an Easter PAGEANT April 2. The pageant and the Columbia Chorale were directed by Arline Bracebridge. Those who witnessed the pageant and those who took part in it felt that they had, indeed, been "there, when they crucified our Lord."

Clarification: Robert Sheldon, of the Christian Record Braille Foundation, was quoted in the May SOUTHERN TIDINGS as saying the blind camp at Nosoca Pines "will be the only one of its kind this year." The Telex item did not say that the reason it will be the only one if its kind is that it is aimed primarily at adults, while all the other blind camps which will be conducted this year across North America will cater to children. SOUTHERN TIDINGS regrets this omission.

FLORIDA

H. J. Carubba, conference president, reports that there were 305 BAPTISMS conference-wide during the first quarter of 1983. The new figure raises church membership to 22,252. Traditionally, first-quarter membership gains are slower than the rest of the year. A projection of 23,000 members by the end of the year is very likely, according to Carubba.

J. P. Rogers, conference treasurer, states that first-quarter tithe figures have been totaled and there is a 5.2 percent INCREASE IN TITHE receipts over the same period last year.

The Key Largo company held a COOKING AND NUTRITION SCHOOL in April which was attended by 15 residents from the island community. Among those attending were the wife of the Key Largo elementary school principal, where the meeting was held at no charge, and two secretaries from the school. At the conclusion of the class, participants requested the company to hold another such program, which it intends to do this fall, according to Alta Sype, personal ministries secretary at Key Largo.

R. A. Lopez, Florida Conference Association treasurer, reports that the following churches have obtained funds for BUILDING LOANS from the Southern Union Revolving Fund: New Port Richey, Jacksonville Mandarin, Fort Meade, Markham Woods, St. Cloud, Orange Cove, and Bushnell. Also, West Coast Junior Academy has received a low-interest loan from the Revolving Fund. The total amount of loans to these entities thus far is $1,380,120.

GEORGIA-CUMBERLAND

Ten students from Southern College will be joining the Georgia-Cumberland LITERATURE EVANGELISM team this summer. Many of these students have been enrolled in the class of Christian Salesmanship taught at Southern College by H. A. Fish, conference publishing director. These students will have the opportunity to earn a good scholarship while working for the Lord at the same time.

Nine individuals were baptized at the Hixson, Tennessee, church at the conclusion of the five-week PROPHECY SEMINAR series with Evangelist Rudy Skoretz and Pastor Henry Uhl. The series began in the airatorium at the main intersection of Hixson Pike and Highway 153 across from the Northgate Mall in North Chattanooga (Hixson). In spite of three power failures and a severe windstorm, which flattened the airatorium four times and forced an early transition to the church, plus an auto accident in which the evangelist and pastor were injured, seven joined the church by baptism and two by profession of faith.

Richard Center, treasurer, reports tithe through the first quarter was $1,949,039. This is a 4.6 percent GAIN over the same period for last year. The conference also registered increases in evangelism and Sabbath school offerings for the first quarter.

KENTUCKY-TENNESSEE

Dickson, Tennessee, Pastor John Hood has begun a ONE-MINUTE DEVOTIONAL over radio stations in his district in Dickson, Centerville, and Lobelville. Called "Capsule Commentary," the program is heard each weekday in these cities.

Clayton R. Farwell, conference president, has been to nearly every church in the conference explaining the relationship of the KENTUCKY-TENNESSEE ADVANCE to Highland Academy needs. The response of the members has been most encouraging and there is optimism that in 1983 the Conference will reach the $200,000 goal. The amounts received from Kentucky-Tennessee Advance this year are: January, $11,422.51; February, $11,849.08; March, $13,001.89.

SOUTH ATLANTIC

Chaplain Merette H. Wilson, of Durham, North Carolina, spoke at the Ephesus church, Darlington, South Carolina, April 16 for HOMECOMING ANNIVERSARY SERVICES. Two hundred tracts, entitled "Good News Travels Fast," were distributed in the afternoon as a community outreach endeavor. A "family hour" program and a musical appreciation program held on Sunday afternoon concluded the weekend activities. Pastor Nathaniel Hollis, of the Sumter-Manning, South Carolina, district, was the speaker for the candlelight communion service on Friday evening. Annie Shaw coordinated the homecoming activities. Harold Gaskins is the pastor.

Walter Parker, son of F. W. Parker, stewardship director of the South Atlantic Conference, was recently appointed ACCOUNTING MANAGER of North Kansas City Memorial Hospital, Kansas City, Missouri. In that position he supervises 10 accountants in doing the business of the hospital.

Dr. James Parham conducted the WEEK OF PRAYER for the Oakland Avenue church, Florence, South Carolina, March 27-April 2. The theme for the week was "Now Is The Time." In response, several young people came forward for rededication and baptism.

SOUTHEASTERN

The 1,000 Days of Reaping evangelistic thrust is carried forward in various ways. In Jacksonville, Florida, W. J. Ervin, personal ministries director, with his group leader, DISTRIBUTES LITERATURE throughout the city the first Sabbath of each month. Ms. J. Brooks, director of AYS is also involved in this monthly missionary exercise

SOUTHERN COLLEGE

A very successful FIVE-DAY PLAN was conducted by students of Southern College at the East Ridge Life Care Center. Of the 12 people in attendance, 10 successfully kicked the habit. Dr. David Winters, a local physician, assisted with the program. Plans are being laid for another Five-Day Plan which will be conducted this summer.

At the recent GENERAL CONFERENCE MUSIC COMMITTEE, it was voted to invite the Southern College Symphony Orchestra to be the nucleus of a 100-piece orchestra for the second weekend of the 1985 General Conference session in New Orleans. Orlo Gilbert, director of the SC Symphony, was asked to be the director and coordinator of the session symphony. As part of his responsibility, Gilbert will be inviting outstanding Adventist musicians to join the orchestra for that weekend.

Students from Southern College planned and executed an INTERCOLLEGIATE BIBLE CONFERENCE, held March 31-April 3, at Camp Yorktown Bay in Hot Springs, Arkansas. The purpose of the conference was to promote intercollegiate fellowship and develop leadership through mutual Bible study and prayer. Students attended from Union College, Lincoln, Nebraska; Southwestern Adventist College, Keene, Texas, and Southern College, Collegedale, Tennessee. Norman Middag, assistant director of the North American Youth Department was guest speaker for the conference.

H. Thomas Goodwin, a theology/biology major at Southern College, is one of the recipients of this year's AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY NATIONAL AWARD. Goodwin was selected because of his excellence in New Testament Greek. He was awarded a Greek/English New Testament with the ancient Greek and Today's English Version texts side by side.

Southern College recently received $12,000 worth of EQUIPMENT from North Park Hospital of Chattanooga. The equipment donated included electric power beds, bed tables, a wheelchair, and a stretcher. The equipment will be used by the Division of Nursing, Health Service, and the Physical Education Division.

Thirty BRASS MUSICIANS recently met at Southern College to join talents under the baton of Patricia Silver, assistant professor of music at the college. The mass ensemble performed for both worship services in the Collegedale church, March 16, in addition to performing an afternoon concert narrated by Evie VandeVere. Both the Nashville Sounds of Brass and the Orlando Sounds of Brass, whose members are former music students of Silver, joined the Southern College Brass Ensemble for this union of instrumental music. Musical selections for the reunion of present and former students included a variety of traditional brass selections, organ and brass combinations, antiphonal brass choirs, and familiar hymn tune arrangements.

ADVENTIST HEALTH SYSTEM/SUNBELT

Florida Hospital met the MAY 15 completion date of the new EIGHT-STORY PARKING GARAGE that accommodates approximately 2,000 cars. A covered pedestrian walkway, offering easier access to the hospital, should be finished this fall.

Florida Hospital/Apopka unveiled its latest additions to more than 500 visitors at an OPEN HOUSE on Sunday, April 17. The additions include an intensive care unit (ICU) and private rooms, and a refurbished nurses' station. The open house included displays on the lawn by the Apopka Fire Department, and the Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) program, a free computerized health test in the hospital lobby, free refreshments, free musical entertainment and a special open house program in a tent on the lawn. The program featured John Land, mayor of Apopka; Bill Arrowsmith, chairman of the former North Orange Tax District and president of the Central Florida Bank; and Richard Mark, president of the Apopka Chamber of Commerce. Also featured were Don Welch, president of Adventist Health System/Sunbelt; Mardian Blair, president of Florida Hospital; Bob Uhran, administrator of FH/Apopka and Arthur Ranson, a retired Presbyterian minister from Apopka who participated in the hospital's dedication services nearly 20 years ago. Two musical groups, the RSVP Senior Swingers and the Dream Lake Elementary Ukelele Band, provided entertainment after the program. The visitors toured the newly constructed areas at FH/Apopka, including the new ICU unit and private rooms. They also saw the new sub-nursing station, the new nurses' conference room, the new treatment room, the new physical therapy area, as well as the new respiratory therapy area.

SOUTHERN UNION

Ben Kochenower was elected to a second term as president of the ASSOCIATION OF ADVENTIST CPAs, Eastern Region, by acclamation, at the Association's annual spring meeting in Nashville, Tennessee, April 22-25. Kochenower is the managing partner of the firm Cline Brandt Kochenower and Co., C.P.A.'s, with offices in Gaffney and Spartanburg, South Carolina. Association members attended special Sabbath services at the Ridgetop church with Jack Clark as the guest speaker and Ben Parrish providing the special music. Sabbath dinner was provided at the home of Kenneth and Viola Knight. Saturday night activities included a visit to the Grand Ole Opry. A business meeting was held at the Opryland Hotel Sunday morning, followed by a trip to the Hotel's famous Brunch Buffet. The weekend was capped by a seminar on Stress Management conducted by Margaret Lawrence, a professor of social work and sociology at Limestone College in Gaffney, South Carolina.

Gerald Morgan, youth pastor of the Collegedale, Tennessee, church, baptizes Michelle Kingman as her mother, Margaret Johnson, observes. Michelle was one of nine youth baptized April 16 during the annual Pathfinder Camporee at Cohutta Springs Camp. Other pastors participating included Don Miller, pastor at Ellijay, Georgia; Amos Cooper, pastor at the McDonald Road church near Collegedale; and Warren Ruf, pastor of the Maryville, Tennessee, church. Also baptized were Bobbi Jean Toomey, of Collegedale; Jonathon Bentjen, Jeremy Newton, and Greg Johnson, of Ellijay; Kate Wolf, of Maryville; Barry Janzen, Joel Stein, and Chuck Strickler, of McDonald Road.

Dr. Frank Knittel, holds a prestigious award granted to him by the Phi Delta Kappa organization naming him Outstanding Educator of 1983. Phi Delta Kappa is an international organization composed primarily of educators from all levels of the educational system. The Chattanooga Chapter, representing some 250 educators from several counties in a tri-state area, voted this award. Knittel is beginning a sabbatical study leave after 12 years as president of Southern College

J. C. Bru, (center) a native of Mauritius, an island in the Indian Ocean, and a missionary for some 20 years, visited the South Atlantic Conference on March 30. He was accompanied by his wife and daughter. Bru is serving as religious liberty and ministerial director of the Central African Union. He brought greetings from his treasurer, Robert Patterson, who preceded J. A. Simons, the present treasurer of the South Atlantic Conference. The membership of the Central African Union is 142,000, with approximately 700 churches and 450 ministers. Bru said that more than half of the membership is young people. Flanking Bru on the left are Mrs. Bru and former General Conference Vice-President C. D. Henri, and on the right are Bru's daughter, Margie, and Mrs. Henri.

The 15-member Little Creek Academy Bell Choir, directed by Sara Ann McNeilus, provided a sacred concert during the Savannah, Georgia, area camp meeting April 16. The Savannah gathering was one of five camp meetings held in the Georgia-Cumberland Conference, including the main camp meeting in Collegedale. Other meetings included Lakeland, Georgia, April 8 and 9; McMinnville, Tennessee, April 1 and 2; and Greeneville, Tennessee, May 6 and 7.

Lewis and Anne Hendershot were honored by 639 Pathfinders representing 36 clubs during the Annual Georgia-Cumberland Pathfinder Camporee at Cohutta Springs Camp, April 14-17. The Hendershots were given a recognition plaque by the Pathfinders and directors for founding the Mission Challenge Team, which included trips to Honduras in 1980, Levida, New Mexico, in 1981, and Nova Scotia in 1982. They were also presented with a large 18 x 24-inch picture frame that held a paper signed by most Pathfinders and leaders in the Conference. Mrs. Hendershot was presented with a silver platter for her service and devotion to the youth of the Conference and Hendershot was given a plaque honoring him for progress in the youth program and for the spiritual growth of the youth in the Georgia-Cumberland Conference. Hendershot is now serving as youth director for the Florida Conference.

The Florence-Oakland Avenue church, under the leadership of Jack Hanna, first elder, carries on a very productive prison ministry in Florence, South Carolina. Hanna requested prison officials to allow a number of the young men to attend church each Sabbath. They granted his request and gave these young men the Sabbath off under the sole supervision of Hanna. Pictured with the group is J. A. Simons (left), treasurer of the South Atlantic Conference. On the back row are Harold Gaskins, pastor of the Oakland Avenue church, Hanna, and Joe Hinson, personal ministries director of South Atlantic.

On April 23 Southern College Alumni R. L. and Martha Montgomery Odom, of Gentry, Arkansas, formally presented original editions of early Adventist literature to the McKee Library. Southern College Assistant Librarian Peggy Bennett (left) expressed that the set of 19th century Spirit of Prophecy books is a "veritable gold mine." Included were a large set of Bible Student's Library, which includes pamphlets written by James and Ellen White and others. Odom is the author of more than 20 books and was editor of the three volume index to the writings of Ellen White. He was editor of three magazines and much of the church's Spanish literature and served in at least six countries as a missionary.

BMA Students Aid Flood Victims

Alabama-Mississippi — When the April flood waters of Mississippi began to rise, Zetra Bowen wondered how she would ever get things in her shop back in order. As the waters receded it was determined that several thousands of dollars in damage had been done to her shop, Southeastern Wholesale Florist, in Hattiesburg.

Hearing of her plight, students at Bass Memorial Academy about 20 miles south of Hattiesburg, checked with campus Pastor Tui Pitman to see how they could help in the cleanup activities. Teams were organized to assist not only Mrs. Bowen but others in need in the area.

Additional teams helped in the shelters set up around the city, and others assisted in preparing and serving meals to National Guard workers and other volunteers involved in rescue and cleanup activities.

130 Attend Environmental School

Carolina — Approximately 130 fifth and sixth graders from the six largest Carolina Elementary schools met April 24-27 at Nosoca Pines Ranch for three exciting days of outdoor education. Asheville-Pisgah, Captain Gilmer, Columbia Jr. Academy, Eddlemon Memorial, Kilgore, and Tri-City were all represented. A full day of class in orienteering was taught by Dr. Melvin Campbell, of Southern College, for the sixth graders. The girls mastered the art of reading maps and following compasses on Monday. The boys had the same opportunity on Tuesday.

Other classes included: Adopt-a-Tree, Calligraphy, Cemetery Unit, Conservation, First Aid, a history tour, and the old-fashioned schoolhouse.

Jim MacLaughlin, pastor of the Florence and Manning, South Carolina, churches, conducted the chapel devotions and the campfire sessions.

Overall response from the students, according to classroom Supervisor Alice Robertson, was extremely positive, with many indications of appreciation for the experience.

Evangelism Field School Slated for Cleveland

Southern College — Southern College's Division of Religion annual field school of evangelism will be conducted May 27-July 2 at the Bowman Hills church, Cleveland, Tennessee.

Clifford Vickery, evangelist for the Georgia-Cumberland Conference, will be the speaker for the series. Five hours of college credit will be earned by seven students: Tom Long, Rick LaVenture, Steve Springer, Paul Young, Steve Haley, Andy Wheat, and Bob Mountain. Two classes in applied theology will be taught: Pastoral Ministry I, by Edwin Zackrison, and Evangelistic Methods, by Douglas Bennett.

Students will gain theory and practical experience in the field of personal and public evangelism. The students will assist in the visitation and public meetings.

Four Conferences Hold Elementary Music Festivals

Southern Union — In addition to the Kentucky-Tennessee Conference (see page 9), the Alabama-Mississippi, Carolina, and Florida conferences also held music festivals for their elementary students recently.

Students from 13 Alabama-Mississippi Conference schools gathered at Bass Memorial Academy April 21 and began practicing for the fifth annual Music Festival. Carmen Swigart, music teacher at the academy, rehearsed with the students and then directed their performances Friday evening and Sabbath.

"Lifting Our Voices in Praise" was the theme of three area K-10 music festivals held this spring in the Carolinas. Parents, pastors, teachers, students, and friends gathered at Columbia Junior Academy on March 6, at Mt. Pisgah Pisgah Academy, coordinated and directed this venture. The mass choir was directed by Elbert Anderson, Carolina Conference senior youth, health, and temperance director.

The 26th Annual Music Festival sponsored by the Education Department of the Florida Conference was held at Forest Lake Academy, April 22, 23. Some 700 elementary and junior academy students from 31 schools, including students from the Collegedale Elementary School, Collegedale, Tennessee, blended their musical talents to provide a sacred and secular festival of music.

The theme for the two-day program was "Profiles." Under the direction of guest band conductor Pat

Steve Roche directs a massed band during the three Carolina music festivals this year.

246 Graduate at Southern College

Southern College — Graduation ceremonies for the 1982-83 school year at Southern College in Collegedale, Tennessee, were conducted April 29-May 1. Two hundred forty-six seniors shook the hands of school officials, grasped their diplomas, and walked away as graduates of the liberal arts college. Of that number, 138 earned bachelor's degrees, 102 associate degrees, and six received one-year diplomas.

The weekend began with a consecration service Friday evening April 29, and a message presented by Southern College President, Frank Knittel, Ph.D. The baccalaureate address was given April 30 by Ron Wisbey, president of the Potomac Conference. Festivities were brought to a close with the commencement exercise on Sunday, May 1. Don Jacobson, D.Min., pastor of the Stone Mountain, Georgia, church, delivered a speech entitled "I Am a Debtor."

The largest number of graduates receiving bachelor's degrees are trained in the areas of business management and accounting, elementary education, biology, and nursing. A majority of the associate degrees are in the field of nursing. According to college Registrar Mary Elam, four persons graduated with the honor level of summa cum laude.

Youth

Youth Attend "Celebration Life '83"

Carolina — Keynote speaker for the second annual conference-wide Youth Celebration, held in Charlotte, North Carolina, on April 16, was North American Youth Director Les Pitton. In his messages he challenged the youth to be a positive influence for good in a problem world.

About 800 youth were present in Park Center Auditorium when Conference Senior Youth Leader Elbert Anderson welcomed them and introduced Charlotte City Councilman George Selden, who wished them a profitable day in the city.

A number of musical groups took part in the program: the Friendship Singers from Southern College, Mount Pisgah Academy and

The Kress Trio, from Orlando, Florida, gave an afternoon concert during Celebration Life '83.

Fletcher Academy choirs, the bell choir from Arden, North Carolina, and the Kress Trio, from Orlando, Florida. Additional talent included Anderson and his two sons, known as the Tranquil Valley Trio, and Jean Inaba, from Charlotte, in a violin solo.

Following lunch, which was prepared by ladies from the conference office and the Charlotte church, the group had opportunity to visit a number of booths that had been set up in the auditorium. Health, temperance, and educational themes were featured in the booths, as well as the American Cancer Society, American Lung Association, and the American Heart Association, who participated in the displays.

The early afternoon was sharing time. One group distributed 200 miniature loaves of bread in a neighborhood. Others gave out literature. Some presented musical programs in homes in the area. The day ended with a musical concert by the Kress Trio, and a final challenge from Les Pitton.

Fletcher Hospital Hosts Luncheon for Religious Leaders

Carolina — Fletcher Hospital, Fletcher, North Carolina, played host to 18 area religious leaders at the hospital April 13. The interdenominational luncheon was held to provide firsthand information concerning the new $10.8 million Fletcher Hospital facility, and also to seek their cooperation for Fletcher Hospital Weekend, scheduled for May 14 and 15 in the area's houses of worship.

Herbert E. Coolidge, Ph.D., president of Fletcher Hospital and Academy, Inc., addressed the religious leaders and asked them to support the hospital and its building fund program. The private sector, which includes the hospital family of medical staff, board of trustees, employees, and auxiliary, and also area businesses, industry, financial institutions, clubs and organizations, foundations, individuals, and churches, are asked to contribute $2.25 million in pledges and gifts.

Coolidge indicated that less than 10 percent of the hospital's patients are Seventh-day Adventists, although the hospital's service philosophy parallels that denomination's principles—and that it is truly a community hospital, serving all faiths and creeds, without restrictions.

Fletcher Hospital, a 103-bed, acute-care facility, receives no financial support from either Henderson County or from the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Tax-exempt, hospital revenue bonds will be used to finance the program and will be repaid by the hospital over a period of 30 years. The bonds are due to go on sale in August.

TV Clip on Stop Smoking Program Gets Nationwide Response

Florida Hospital — On March 10, a TV clip on Florida Hospital's Five-Day Live-In Stop Smoking Program was aired nationally on more than 80 stations on P.M. Magazine, a nationally syndicated television program. The Five-Day Live-In Program is held once a year at Camp Kulaqua in Northern Florida. The program includes a healthful diet, films, lectures, and lots of outdoor activity, including a canoe trip, horseback riding, and tennis. We call it "a vacation with a purpose," explains Jim Hinson, program coordinator and associate director of health education.

Since the program was aired, the health education department has received more than 175 replies, from people in 29 states, who are interested in the program. The letters and phone calls have come from as far as Maine, California, and Texas. Many of those who have called or written have tried other stop smoking programs in an effort to kick the habit and feel that the Five-Day Live-In Program will be the answer to their problem. Some have already signed up for the October class.

Hospital Receives Nearly $100,000 in Local Resident's Will

Medical Center Hospital — Medical Center Hospital in Punta Gorda, Florida, recently received the largest gift in its 36-year history, says William A. Haupt, president.

The $98,628.90 bequest came from the estate of former Punta Gorda resident Tibor Von Jany. Area residents remember him as being associated with the movie industry before moving to Charlotte County with his family about the time the hospital was built in 1947.

The founding medical director of the hospital, W. B. Clement, MD, said Von Jany may have named the hospital in his will during early fund-raising appeals. Most of the contributions which built the hospital came from nonaffluent members of the community, according to Clement.

Hospital System Presents Map to Southern College

Adventist Health System/Sunbelt — During the nurses' pinning ceremony at Southern College April 30, Donald Self, director of development for Adventist Health System/Sunbelt Health Care Corporation (AHS/SHCC), presented a relief map for permanent display in the school's nursing building, Donald Self (left), of Adventist Health System, presents a relief map display to Ellen Gilbert, chairman of Southern College Division of Nursing, and Cyril Fletcher, academic dean, at the recent nurses' pinning ceremony in Collegedale. Lettering on the display reads, "Adventist Health System/Sunbelt Health Care Corporation: a system of hospitals committed to excellence in Christian nursing."

Mazie Herin Hall. The map shows the location of the corporation's 26 hospitals throughout the Sunbelt.

"Hospitals operated by AHS/SHCC employ some 7,000 people" according to Self. "Each year there are well over 200 openings for registered nurses at our various hospitals."

The Southern College Division of Nursing graduates approximately 180 Associate and Baccalaureate Degree nursing students each year.

"We hope this display will be a frequent reminder of both our commitment to quality Christian health care and our desire for young professionals to join us in carrying forward our mission," Self said.

The Adventist Health System in the United States is the largest nonprofit, Protestant hospital organization in the world.

Who and Where

Adventists Participate In Florida State Fair

Florida — More than 200 church members from the Tampa First and Brandon churches volunteered more than 2,000 hours of their time and services in the preparation and implementation of a fair display at the Florida State Fair held in February at Tampa.

In spite of 12 rain-soaked days, volunteers provided a free health appraisal to more than 4,000 people and distributed 27,000 pieces of literature.

Sherry Johnson, communication secretary of the Tampa First church, coordinated the program and Jack and Joanne NeSmith, members of the Tampa First church, built a sign from plexiglass incorporating the theme "People Helping People," which was also the theme of the Adventist booth at the 1982 World's Fair at Knoxville, Tennessee.

Additional volunteer help also came from students of Tampa Junior Academy. Some of these youth operated the computer for the health evaluation program.

40 Percent of South Central Pastors Use Radio

South Central — Of the 54 districts in the South Central Conference, 22 support a radiobroadcast.

Antoine Maycock, of Pensacola, Florida, has a Sunday program at 7 a.m. Entitled "The Real Truth," the 15-minute program is broadcast live from the studios of WBOP. A Bible course is offered free.

Recently Maycock baptized a lady who was raised an Adventist but had disconnected with the church. She heard the broadcast and found her way back. The broadcast costs the church $25 each week, raised from Sabbath morning "love offerings."

Maycock got his inspiration from Joseph Jones, who broadcast five-minute daily spots during an evangelistic tent meeting program in Hazlehurst, Mississippi. Eighty new members were added to the faith.

Norman G. Simons, also of Nashville, has been broadcasting for 25 years. Though he is now retired, Simons says he wants to continue broadcasting.

The weekly Sabbath service from the Oakwood College Campus church is broadcast, not only over the college radio station, but also over station WEUP in Huntsville, Alabama. This costs $150 an hour.

Carolina Holds Personal Growth Seminar

Carolina — The Family Life Department of the Carolina Conference sponsored a Personal Growth Seminar at Nosoca Pines Ranch April 23, 24. Speaker and psychologist Dr. Judy Perry, from Worthington, Ohio, presented helpful information for the group of about 50 people who attended this seminar on "Enhancing Your Image."

Louis Canosa, director of the Family Life Department in Carolina, hosted a panel discussion among seminar personnel Dr. Alan Nelson, C. E. Bracebridge, and Elder and Mrs. Grover Winslow. The question-and-answer session was followed by vespers with Conference Youth Director Elbert Anderson. At the close of the meeting recreation was provided.

Faith Associate Sees Contact Baptized

Carolina — Lori Ann Raby doesn't recall what magazine it was or where she got it, but within its pages she found a coupon to send away for free Bible studies from Faith For Today. She did just that. On March 12, thanks to the work of laymen in Fayetteville, North Carolina, Lori and her husband became Seventh-day Adventists.

In one of her lessons she was asked to indicate whether or not she would like to have a personal visit from one of the representatives of Faith For Today. She wrote "yes" on that line. It was at this invitation that Faith Associate Mary Edmister and her husband, Dr. James Edmister drove 20 miles out into the country north of Fayetteville to find Lori Ann. A Faith Associate is a lay person who receives names of interested persons from the Faith For Today telecast, which they contact and encourage.

Soon after their visit, Mary introduced the Rabys to Ernie and Norma Howell. They offered friendship as well as another series of Bible studies for both Lori Ann and her husband, Ray. Early in 1983, the Rabys started bringing their three little boys to Sabbath school and church.

On March 12 Pastor Herb Weise baptized this happy young couple into the Fayetteville church.

Disney Gives $5,000 for Florida Community Services

Florida — At the Walt Disney World Community Service Awards Presentation, held at the Walt Disney World Contemporary Hotel near Orlando on April 28, a panel of judges chose 58 community service organizations from 340 competing applicants in the Central Florida area to receive cash awards for outstanding achievements in 1982. Among those groups receiving awards was the Community Services Department of the Florida Conference, directed by S. L. Dombrosky.

For the seventh time Walt Disney World has recognized the community services work of the Church with a trophy and cash award. For six years Walt Disney World has presented the Community Services Department $1,000 cash awards. However, this year a check for $5,000—the special judges award—was presented to Dombrosky for special health services of the Community Services program.

The grand prize of $25,000 was awarded to Mothers Against Drunk Drivers (MADD).

The Layman's Lecture

How is it that ye sought Me? Wist ye not that I must be about My Father's business. Luke 2:49.

Jesus as a very young lad understood the purpose of His life in this world. He knew who His Father was and what He wanted Him to do. Jesus' life was one of service to others.

Never in the history of mankind has the need been greater to follow Jesus' example than today. The world is longing for a demonstration of Jesus' love and compassion. Many a troubled soul is crying out, "We would see Jesus." The only way many will ever see Jesus will be by watching real Christians in their everyday life.

"He gives to every man His work. Each has his place in the eternal plan of heaven. Each is to work in cooperation with Christ for the salvation of souls. Not more surely is the place prepared for us in the heavenly mansions than is the special place designated on earth where we are to work for God." (Christ's Object Lessons, pp. 326, 327).

Let our daily prayer be, "Lord take my heart; for I cannot give it. It is Thy property. Keep it pure, for I cannot keep it for Thee. Save me in spite of myself, my weak, unchristlike self. Mold me, fashion me, raise me into a pure and holy atmosphere, where the rich current of Thy love can flow through my soul." (Christ's Object Lessons, p. 159).

"Lord help me to do my best. Teach me how to do better work, Give me energy and cheerfulness. Help me to bring into my service the loving ministry of the Saviour." (Ministry of Healing, p. 474).

"The strongest argument in favor of the Gospel is a loving and lovable Christian." (Ministry of Healing, p. 470).

What a wonderful promise Jesus gives in Matthew 11:28-30: "Come unto Me all ye that labour and are heavy laden and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light."

Let Jesus be seen in your life today.

World View

Australian Institutions Spared: Three Seventh-day Adventist institutions were spared destruction recently during wildfires which broke out after months of drought and the hottest summer on record. Twice the fire missed the Warburton, Victoria, site of the Signs Publishing Company, The Warburton Sanitarium, and a Sanitarium Health Food factory. Groups of people prayed as the fire approached, and the wind shifted, causing the fire to pass by the other side of the town. Later that week the fire returned. This time a sudden cloudburst spared the institutions. Adventist Review, May 26.

Drugs Weaken America: Though drug abuse is declining among teenagers, overall it is increasing and is impacting every segment of society. Test scores and industrial productivity have plummeted as drugs have become pervasive. In 1982, 64 percent of Americans 18 to 25 had tried marijuana, compared with four percent in 1962. Law enforcement agencies seized about twice as much illegal drugs in 1982 as in 1981, but saw no shortage in the market. U.S. News and World Report, May 16.

SDAs Less Likely Cancer Victims: The Cancer Registration Office in Copenhagen, Denmark, recently reported its findings in a study which compared 750 Adventist males with the general population over a 35-year period. According to the study, one in 10 SDAs had developed some form of cancer, while, among the general Danish population, one in four had experienced similar cancer problems during the same length of time. Ole Miller Jensen, the Cancer Registration's chief medical director, said that, without a doubt, the Adventists in the investigation ran far less risk of developing cancer—70 to 80 percent less—than the average person. General Conference News Release.

Adventist Station To Reach Monaco. Greg Scott, a native of Knoxville, Tennessee, will be going to Monaco in August to manage a Seventh-day Adventist-operated radio station. Ron Myers, a former general manager of Adventist World Radio-Europe, began a similar station in France beamed toward Geneva, Switzerland, in 1981. Radio 74, as it is called, with a format which includes classical, easy listening, and religious music, is the second most-listened-to radio station in Geneva, according to Scott. The Monaco station, with a power of 50,000 watts, will try to reach the more than half-a-million residents and tourists within a 25-mile radius in the tiny country. Funds are being raised through contributions in the United States by Faith Media Inc., a nonprofit group in Riverside, California. Project Monaco, News Release, April 30.

About Curlers, Toothpaste, Hairspray, Etcetera

The next time you find your bathroom littered with curlers, brushes, uncapped toothpaste, hair spray, and other feminine impedimenta, relax! Instead of exploding with a few not-so-well-chosen words, remember, the stuff is hers.

Now there was a time—at least for most of us males—when we would have given an eye tooth to have in our possession something, anything, that belonged to her. Remember high school? Her handkerchief. Her watch. Her class pin. Her pen. Almost anything would do. Just so it was hers. (And I believe I've known young women to make similar collections.)

Perhaps David has some helpful counsel when little things aggravate us. Whether it be hair spray, curlers, and magazines, or the daily paper, socks, and tools, the sweet singer of Israel says, "I remember the days of old." (Psalms 143:5).

It is good for us to do the same. Instead of bristling, do a little remembering—back to teenage years in academy, early dates, wedding, and honeymoon days. Yes, "remember the days of old." You just might get a new perspective on curlers and socks.

State of the Union

A. C. McClure President, Southern Union Conference

On a recent weekend I had the privilege of participating in the dedication of two church buildings. Though vastly different in size and total expenditure, both buildings tell a story of vision and sacrifice; and both, in their own way, bear eloquent testimony to that which Seventh-day Adventists believe and preach.

Wilkesboro, North Carolina

It is a small frame structure, nestled in a clearing, in the beautifully wooded foothills of North Carolina's mountain country. Several miles south of Wilkesboro, a regional center, the passerby cannot but notice the attractive structure and the three angels that occupy a prominent place on the front. Neighbors say that visitors frequently stop to take pictures of this unique sight and are often seen taking note of the text—Revelation 14:6-12—that appears just below the three angels.

The building is small; 50 people would crowd its sanctuary. There is no stained glass in the windows and the furnishings are simple, but Pastor Larry Allen and his 38-member congregation are rejoicing in the fact that God has blessed them with success in their efforts to build a house of worship.

In a brief history of the church presented during the dedication service, Steve Holbrook, local elder, reflected on the forming of a church group in 1977 and how, through the help of friends, they have been able to build this structure for approximately $25,000. Obviously much of the actual construction work was done by the members themselves.

Although their number is small, this congregation has plans to grow. They have started their own church school. It has only three students now, but they can foresee a large increase. The pastor is being heard on three radio stations regularly; and in his remarks during the dedication service, he challenged his flock to begin thinking and planning on a new and larger sanctuary adjacent to the one being dedicated.

Huntsville, Alabama

At the other end of the spectrum, as far as size is concerned, the Oakwood College church seats 3,004 and is a magnificent place in which its 1,700-member congregation, plus college students from all over the world, are able to participate in worship.

Built at a cost of approximately $1.3 million, the church building has an octagonal sanctuary with six faceted glass windows depicting the plan of salvation. It occupies a very prominent site on the college campus, and its beauty and symmetry make a very positive statement to the community of how we view and worship God.

Pastor Eric Ward has been the shepherd of this large flock for 10 years, and not only gave leadership to the building project but also enjoyed the happy experience of seeing it dedicated free of debt. During his tenure as pastor he has led his congregation in spawning the Huntsville Mt. Calvary church, with 208 members, which has recently built a lovely church. Pastor Ward and the members of the Oakwood College church are not resting now, however. They are currently working in Athens, Scottsboro, Stevenson, South Pittsburg, Hollywood, and Baltimore Hills with the intention of starting new church groups.

Our Mission

No matter the size of the church congregation nor how imposing its building, every church can fulfill a very important part in our mission of carrying the gospel to the world. Whether or not that happens depends upon the dedication and vision of its members. Thank God for these two congregations with both.
